JOHNSON INDORSED BY MINNESOTA FOR PRESIDENT

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH, Whose Diamond Jubilee Is Being Celebrated at Vienna.

Additional Light Thrown on Methods of Mrs. Guinness.

One Room in Her Home Was Always Kept Locked.

Chicago, May 7.—Following is Mrs. Guinness' "matrimonial ad" with which victims were lured to death:

PERSONAL — COMELY WIDOW, who owns a large farm in one of the finest districts in Laporte county, Ind., desires to make the acquaintance of gentleman, equally well provided, with view of joining fortunes. No replies by letter considered, unless sender is willing to follow answer with personal visit.

Laporte, Ind., May 7.—Additional light on the methods by which Mrs. Belle Guinness lured to her death farm, one mile north of here, the persons who are supposed to have fallen victims to her lust for money, was shed today by Ask K. Helgelein, brother of Andrew Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D., whose dismembered corpse is among the nine already found. Helgelein told the coroner that not only had his brother been in communication with the woman, but also that she had written to him after Andrew's disappearance, in an attempt to induce him to visit this city.

"Sell your brother's stock and come here and we will hunt your brother together," was the gist of the epistles written in Norwegian, and as yet only partially translated. The letters are jealously guarded by Helgelein, under orders of Ralph N. Smith, prosecuting attorney, but enough was revealed to show that the woman had not hesitated to dare to attempt to gain a hold over the nearest relative of her latest victim.

Rain may interfere with further exhumations today on the death-enshrouded farm of Mrs. Guinness. Sheriff Smutzer announced that unless the downpour, which began early this morning, ceases, it will be impossible to explore the lawn of the homestead, where, it is believed, more bodies have been concealed.

Roy Lamphere, accused of first degree murder in connection with the incineration of Mrs. Guinness and her children, is expected to be a center of interest today. Efforts to connect him more closely with the appalling series of violent deaths, will be made by the public prosecutor, although that official asserted yesterday that sufficient evidence to convict the prisoner of complicity in the murders is already in his possession. Lamphere revealed yesterday that his former employer had urged him to insure his life in her favor, asserting that Mrs. Guinness had offered to pay the premiums on such a policy, provided that he agreed to marry her. He also said that he believed that his refusal to fall in with her plans had caused the enmity which she later manifested toward him, resulting in his arrest on three occasions and his trial before a lunacy commission on a fourth.

Denied Admission to Room.

Lamphere also told of a closed room in the Guinness home, to which, he was always denied admission. He said that Mrs. Guinness always carried the key to this room. It is the theory that in this room much of the grewsome work which preceded the

WOULD OUST THE CHIEF OF POLICE

Assistant Attorney General of Kansas Begins Suit Against Officials.

Kansas City, May 7.—Ouster proceedings were instituted late yesterday in the circuit court at Kansas City, Kan., by C. W. Tricket, assistant attorney general of Kansas against Chief of Police D. H. Bowden, Captain of Police U. G. Snyder, and practically every detective, sergeant and patrolman composing the police force of that city.

The suit was brought under a section of the state prohibition law, which requires police officials to furnish the county attorney or the attorney general with all evidence obtained in violation of the law. Instead of doing this, the police have been raiding the illegal liquor resorts and convicting the owners in police court. Mr. Tricket says that the fact that he was not supplied with information is sufficient cause to oust the officials. He was appointed by Governor Hoch to prosecute these particular cases and a year ago caused the closing of all saloons.

DIAMOND JUBILEE

Of Emperor Francis Joseph Begins With Reception at Vienna

Emperor William and Heads of Princely Houses Present.

Vienna, May 7.—The heads of the princely houses of Germany, led by Emperor William, has assembled in Vienna to present their congratulations to Emperor Francis Joseph on the occasion of the diamond jubilee of his reign as emperor-king of Austria-Hungary and to inaugurate a series of festivities with which the jubilee is to be celebrated throughout the dual monarchy.

Emperor William and the empress arrived at the Meidling railroad station this morning from Pola, where they landed yesterday from the imperial yacht Hohenzollern. The royal visitors were met and welcomed at this station by Emperor Francis Joseph, who accompanied them by train to another station near Schoenbrunn palace, known as Pensing. Here there was a great gathering of notables to receive the German emperor and his wife. All the Austrian archdukes and archduchesses and the principal state officials, the members of the German embassy and the burgomaster of Vienna were on the station platform when Emperor Francis Joseph alighted from the train and was followed by Emperor William.

This unique gathering of royalty attracted a host of visitors into Vienna, and the city had been bedecked with bunting while triumphal arches span the principal thoroughfares.

Given Magnificent Reception.

The imperial guests were given a mag-

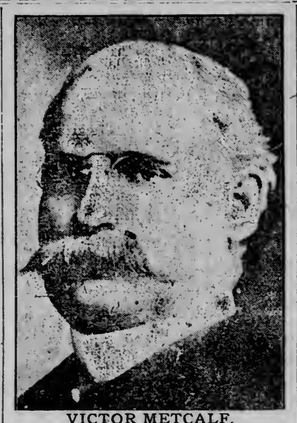
BETRAYED BY HIS FRIEND

The Man Who Killed Salt Lake Officer in Hands of Police.

Seattle, May 7.—In a desperate gun fight in a crowded thoroughfare in this city, last night, Joe Garcia, alias Joe Cerdovia, who now confesses to having shot and killed Policeman Joseph Ford in Salt Lake City, on the night of Dec. 14, immediately following a holdup and robbery of a saloon by Garcia and his companions, was himself shot and fatally wounded by detectives.

Garcia was led to a trap by a lifelong friend, who turned "stool pigeon" for Sheriff Emery of Salt Lake City. Emery had arranged with his accomplice to lead Garcia into the hands of a waiting posse, led by the sheriff himself. This was done, but when Garcia saw Emery, he drew two revolvers and opened fire on the sheriff. His aim was erratic, and he soon fell, his wrists and side pierced by bullets from the detective's revolvers.

After the shooting, Garcia admitted that he, and not Joseph Sullivan, who was recently convicted of the crime in Salt Lake City, and sentenced to life imprisonment, is the man who murdered Policeman Ford.



VICTOR METCALF, Secretary of the Navy, Whose Four-Starred Flag Is Waving Over the Fairmount Hotel at San Francisco. He Will Review the Fleet This Week.

BIG PARADE OF JACKIES

The Day's Feature of Fleet Festivities at San Francisco.

Governor's Banquet Will Occur in Evening at Fairmont Hotel.

San Francisco, May 7.—The two chief events in connection with the fleet-festivities today will be the great military and naval parade, and the governor's banquet in the evening at the Fairmont. The latter function can be participated in only by a limited few, but everyone can see the parade.

Between 7,000 and 8,000 sturdy American seamen, said to be the greatest number of United States bluejackets and marines ever to come ashore at one time to take part in a procession in any city, will march today in the third division of the big military and naval parade under command of Capt. Seaton Schroeder.

Today's parade will mark the last public appearance of Admiral Evans in his active career as a naval officer. In a few days he will retire from the service. He will be in the carriage division directly following the regular soldiers. Directly preceding him as a personal escort of honor will be the corps of 302 Salt Lake high school cadets, who serve as his bodyguard at his personal request. Riding with the admiral will be Surgeon P. McDonald, his physician; Mayor Edward E. Taylor and Lieut. F. T. Evans.

In all 15,000 soldiers and sailors will be in line, including 2,500 men of the regular army under Gen. Funston, the National Guardsmen of California, consisting of twelve companies of the Fifth regiment of the naval militia of California.

Johnson sentiment swept the city from end to end last evening at the Democratic primaries held here, and there can be no question but that the governor's supporters will absolutely control the county convention here next Saturday afternoon.

Johnson's supporters in the city will have seventy-seven delegates to the county convention and Bryan will have but thirty-four.

Returns from outside points have been somewhat slow in coming in, but there is no question but that Johnson carried the county, and probably by an even larger plurality than he did the city. Johnson supporters today predict that there will be three Johnson delegates to one Bryan delegate in the county convention, which will be called to order by W. E. McEwen next Saturday afternoon.

A Tie Vote.

There was one tie vote in the fourth precinct of the Fifth ward. In this precinct, however, the Bryan men had three names on their ticket. Under the law the precinct was entitled to but two delegates, one from the precinct and one for every sixty votes, or major fraction thereof, cast for Johnson at the last election. There were eighty-nine votes for Johnson, which would allow but two delegates. Section 206 of the revised laws of Minnesota would render the Bryan ticket void, and the Johnson delegates will, therefore, be seated in the convention. Following is a copy of the section in question:

"CONDUCT OF ELECTION—At the hour appointed for holding such primaries, the chairman or secretary of the party committee of the district, or, if neither be present, some member of the party who is a voter in the district, shall call the meeting to order. Those present, and qualified to vote at such election, shall choose from their number, viva voce, a chairman, clerk and two judges of the election. The delegates shall be chosen by ballot, and each may contain as many names as there are delegates to be elected from the district. If more be placed thereon, the ballot shall be void. Those receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and, if there be a tie, the judges and clerk shall determine it by lot."

Twenty-nine Precincts.

In Duluth, Governor Johnson's delegates were elected in twenty-nine out of forty-three precincts.

The delegation headed by Charles F. Macdonald was the only Johnson ticket that was successful in the First ward. Four strong Johnson delegates will go from this precinct, but the rest of the ward was for Bryan, the Bryan men winning out by small pluralities in the other precincts.

The vote in every precinct where

BISHOPS' ADDRESS

Presented to General Conference of Methodist Episcopal Church.

Baltimore, May 7.—The feature of today's sitting of the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was the presentation of the Episcopal address, prepared by the bishops. It was read by Bishop Goodsell of Boston.

The address of the bishops, after the custom of other conferences and historical events of the church which had Baltimore for their scenes, notes a gain in the number of communicants during the past four years of 178,357, the greatest gain during any similar period for sixteen years. Other figures show the number of ministers in the annual conferences (not including local preachers) to be 19,353, an increase of 1,171; subject to appointment as pastors on trial and in full membership, 15,722; local preachers serving as pastors, 4,439. The total "pastoral army" numbers 20,161, these according to the address preach the gospel in 130 languages and dialects.

Relative to investigation of charges of heresy by the bishops, the address says: "We are unanimously of the opinion that the bishops ought not be charged with any functions of investigation, these being foreign to the work to which they are appointed. We believe that the function of preliminary investigation in these cases, should be confined to the annual conference of the body which has lawful jurisdiction."

Ministerial Appointments.

The matter of ministerial appointments is treated thus: "If there be increasing difficulties in any degree as to making appointments, it is because of growing interference on the part of the ministers and laymen with the judgment of the bishops to what is best for the work, since ministers demand to be kept within the range of the more lucrative charges, because they have had one or two of

VICTORY IS COMPLETE

Not Over One Hundred Bryan Delegates in State Convention.

St. Paul, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank A. Day, chairman of the Democratic state central committee and private secretary to Governor Johnson, is naturally delighted with the result of the Democratic primaries. "It is a splendid triumph," he said today. "Never has a more complete victory been gained, and the result gives notice to the Democrats of the country that the state of Minnesota indorses Governor John A. Johnson as the strongest candidate who can be named at Denver for the presidential nomination. The verdict at yesterday's caucuses is an indication of the great strength of the governor with the people and assures his friends that his nomination for president would result in Minnesota's electoral votes being cast in his favor. I do not believe there will be more than 100 Bryan delegates in the state convention. Hennepin, St. Louis, Ramsey, Stearns and Winona counties, where the Bryan men fought hardest, all went overwhelmingly in favor of the governor."

St. Paul, May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson and his followers have swept Minnesota clean in their fight for the control of the state delegation to the Denver convention. At the best the Bryanites will not have more than 100 delegates out of 935 in the state convention. They predicted a majority of 150 in the state convention for Bryan, but when the caucuses were held they fell down badly. They were routed at every point where they were most active.

The result is that Minnesota will send a delegation of twenty-two Johnson men to the Denver convention instructed to work and vote for the nomination of John A. Johnson as the Democratic candidate for president of the United States.

Hennepin and St. Louis counties, which were so confidently claimed by the Bryan leaders, went strongly in favor of Johnson, and Ramsey county followed suit. Hennepin went for Johnson by about two to one. The Johnson forces carried Winona by ten to one. In the Red River valley everything was Johnson, and the Ninth district delegation will be solid for the governor. In the southern and central

FOUR KILLED AND TWELVE HURT IN A TENEMENT FIRE

New York, May 7.—Four persons were killed and twelve injured early today in a fire believed to be of incendiary origin which practically destroyed the five-story tenement house at 101 Orchard street. This building is within a stone's throw of Delancey and Allen streets, where twenty-six persons were burned to death in a tenement house fire three years ago.

The dead are:

EVA BERG, 53 years old.

SAMUEL SACH, 10 years old.

HATTIE KOPLEMANN, 2½ years old.

An unidentified man.

The fire was first seen by a policeman, who turned into Orchard street, when the flames were shooting from windows in the lower part of the house. His call for help brought several other officers to his assistance and in a moment nearly every one in the house had been aroused and the fire escapes were choked with frightened tenants. The policemen carried several children to the ground before the firemen arrived. By that time the condition of the fire escapes was almost hopeless. Men, women and children were packed so closely on the narrow platforms that no one could get down.

While persons in the building, who had been unable to get out because all the windows leading to the fire escapes were crowded, struggled for exit on one side, the firemen on extension ladders labored on the others. One by one women and children were dragged from the overloaded platforms by the firemen and carried down the extension ladders to the street and safety. More than a hundred persons were taken from the fire escapes in this way.

In the meantime those who had been forced to remain in the blazing house had been having a serious time. Some of them, finding escape by windows and stairways blocked, sought to get out on the roof. Not one of them succeeded in reaching the roof, however, as the flames had swept up the stairways and spread all through the upper part of the building.

It was while attempting to reach the upper part of the house that little Hattie Kopelman lost her life, and her mother had a remarkable escape from death. Mrs. Kopelman had gone out on a fire escape, intending to make her way to the roof, as the flames were sweeping around the lower part of the iron ladder. She had the child in her arms when she stepped through the window to the platform. A misstep caused her to fall, and as she struck the side of the platform, Hattie fell from her arms and rolled through the opening in the platform of the floor below, which was red hot. There the child was burned to death before anyone could reach her. Mrs. Kopelman rolled across the opening, but saved herself from falling through. Mrs. Eva Berg and the Sach boy were burned to death in their rooms, apparently having been overcome by smoke while asleep.

WEATHER—Fair weather tonight and Friday; cooler tonight.

What makes some Clothing better than another?

What makes Oak Hall Clothing better than any other ready-to-wear clothing—and equal to the tailored-to-measure?

"Distinctiveness."

It is clothing of character—and appeals with peculiar personal force to you because it is designed and fashioned expressly for you, meeting your ideas and individual requirements as perfectly as the made-to-measure sort.

So much cannot be said of any other clothing, and, because it cannot, no other clothing can come quite so near your ideal.

INDICTMENTS ARE RETURNED

Four Prisoners Must Stand Trial for Assault and Robbery.

The first report was returned by the grand jury this afternoon, with two indictments for robbery in the first degree and two for assault in the second degree.

Andrew Peterson and Frank Oja were indicted for robbery in the first degree. It is charged that on April 6 they held up Andrew Anderson in St. Croix alley, hitting him on the head with a rock and relieving him of $90. Anderson was seriously injured by the blow.

Herman Maki and Emil Mattson were indicted for assault in the second degree. Maki is charged with assaulting Herman Johnson with a knife, March 23, and it is charged that Mattson assaulted Frank Nelson with a pocket knife March 13.

NEW FIGHT TO ESCAPE FINE

Standard Oil Company Begins Appeal Against Landis' Decision.

Chicago, May 7.—The Standard Oil Company of Indiana today commenced a new fight to escape from the payment of the fine of $29,240,000, levied against it by Judge Landis in the United States district court when its attorneys appeared before the United States court of appeals to argue the appeal from the judgment of the lower court. The hearing consumed the greater part of the day.

The opening argument for the company was made by John S. Miller. Mr. Miller declared that a reversal should be granted because, according to his statement, the oil company did not know that it was using illegal rates and that each train load of the company's product should have been taken as the basis of a shipment instead of each car as charged in the indictment under which the company was convicted.

WED IN VACATION TIME.

Many School Teachers Send in Resignations During Summer.

Supt. Denfeld of the public schools is busy looking over the signed contracts of the teachers, engaged for next term, which are coming in.

He expects that at least thirty of them will never be fulfilled, however, for it is the practice of some of the fair educators to get married during the vacation, and then send in their resignations. Often they do this to prevent their school friends from learning of their plans. Others do it because they are loath to give up their jobs until they are married.

Supt. Denfeld always has a list of available alternates on his list, to guard against such resignations.

REICHSTAG ADJOURNS.

WILL HAVE BALL TEAM

Oak Halls Will be Made Up of West Duluth Players.

Games Will be Secured With Duluth Commercial Nines.

West Duluth fans are wide awake with interest, for their end of the city is going to support a baseball team of its own.

The new team has organized under the name of the Oak Halls, which clothing firm has promised to furnish it with outfits. They are a lively bunch of players, all of whom have had plenty of experience on the diamond, and are all enthusiastic over the prospects of a successful season. For the last two weeks they have been limbering up every evening on the old West Duluth ball grounds. They are open for dates with all comers for Sunday baseball, but in particular they are after the scalps of the Columbia, Fitwell and the Kelley-How nines.

Theodore Feddell, who is a well-known local pitcher, and Tony Nelson will be the battery, at least for the first games of the season. John Gram, manager for the Oak Halls, has not fully decided who will hold down the other positions on the team. He is giving them all a try out, and will not be ready to announce the line-up until next week. There are several old-timers in the field who are practically sure of places on the West Duluth nine. Among them are Theodore Feddell, Tony Nelson, Alex Bethune, A. Blaney, Jim O'Brien, George Sheppard, an old league player; Ernest Caughlin, Lester Nellis, Bert Talbert, W. M. Logue and Roy Sontere. They should be the right kind of material for a first-class ball aggregation.

MILLER WILL SPEAK.

Will Address Alumni of Irving School at Annual Banquet.

Clarence B. Miller has been invited to speak at the annual banquet of the Irving School Alumni association to be held May 29 at Wade's hall. He has promised to accept if the engagement for that date, which he already has, is cancelled, as he says is likely.

A number of the members of the association have been selected by the arrangement committee to respond to toasts. S. A. Foster, principal of the school, will be invited to act as toast master, and Rev. Thomas Grice will pronounce the invocation. A short program of music has also been arranged for the evening. Following the banquet there will be dancing.

It was decided at the meeting of the association a short time ago that each member may invite one friend, subject to the approval of the general arrangement committee. The banquet will be served by the ladies or one of the West Duluth churches.

Heavy Vote for Johnson.

An overwhelming vote in Johnson's favor was cast at the election of delegates to the county convention last evening in West Duluth. Johnson delegates carried six out of nine precincts, in every case winning by a large majority. In most of the precincts four to one and in some as high as eight to one. In Fond du Lac the majorities were smaller.

N. P. PASSENGER TRAIN OFF TRACK

Duluth-Staples Train Derailed at Aitkin—Fireman Hurt.

Aitkin, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—As passenger train No. 11 of the Northern Pacific which left Duluth at 8:15 this morning was pulling into Aitkin about 11.20 a. m., today it struck an open switch and the entire train was derailed. The engine and tender rolled over on their sides and are badly wrecked. Fireman Stram was injured, but not seriously, and is in a local hospital. The engineer jumped to safety. None of the rest of the train crew nor any of the passengers was hurt. The mail car received a rough shaking up, the forepart of the car being off the trucks. The other cars are off the rails but stand upright on the ties. Wreckers are at work and will have the train on the track before night.

How the switch came to be opened is not known. So far as known there is no suspicion of attempted train wrecking. The train was slowing down as the engine struck the open switch and in a twinkling it and the tender started on another track then rolled over, the coupling breaking so that the balance of the cars were not upset.

ROUTINE WORK BEFORE BOARD

Proceedings of Afternoon Session of the Commissioners.

At the adjourned session of the county board this afternoon the county auditor was authorized to advertise for bids for the improvement of the Miller trunk road from the corner of Section 15, 54-17, north, the roadway to be twenty-four feet wide between ditches. The construction work is to be under the supervision of an engineer, to be employed by the county, and a county board committee, consisting of Commissioners Patterson, McInnis and Ryan. The committee is authorized to employ an inspector when necessary.

The extension is to be a state road and the sum of $11,100 in state funds is avilable. The contract will be let in sections and the extension will be carried as far north as the funds will cover, the letting of contract by sections bringing it within the appropriation.

The board reconsidered its action in granting a saloon license to Anderson & Co. in the town of White last month and turned down the application. Since the license was granted last month the members of the board learned that misrepresentations were made in the application. The company described the building in which the saloon was to be located, and it is said that there is no building at the location given.

The following appropriations were made from the special county road fund in the districts named: McMahon's, $8,800; Ticher's, $7,400; McInnis', $14,000.

Admit Defeat in Duluth, But Not in the County.

Measure of Credit for Victory Due News Tribune.

Duluth presents about the same woebegone appearance to the Bryanites as did the historic Mudville upon that memorable occasion when mighty Casey knocked three holes out or the ozone in an effort to stave off crowding defeat.

There was no gleeful laughter or music for Mudville upon that sad and gloomy day. Neither is there mirth nor hilarity of extreme nature in the camp of the Bryan followers today. The day broke chill and exceedingly gloomy to them, and the receipt of each return from the outlying districts has not served to show the silver lining in the murky atmosphere of political despondency.

"We are beaten in Duluth," said T. T. Hudson, leader of the Bryan movement today, after there remained no doubt of the thoroughness with which the Johnson broom had swept the city. "We are beaten in the city, but we are not ready to admit that St. Louis county has been carried by the Johnson delegates."

Some of the Bryan workers were in the office of Mr. Hudson when this statement was being made, and their bearing failed to reflect the optimism of their leader. In fact, every man that entered the office of Mr. Hudson this morning carried the look of doom on his countenance. They saw the handwriting on the wall last night, so in a way they were prepared for the full realization of their utter defeat, that came with the chill monotony of truthful figures ere the morning hours of the day wore on.

Mr. Hudson will not admit that the overwhelming sentiment in favor of John A. Johnson is a fair estimate of true Democratic opinion. He attributes the heavy Johnson majority to Republicans of Scandinavian birth. He won't admit that Johnson has carried the state at large, nor will he admit that many of the outlying districts of the county have returned Johnson delegates. They are dying hard.

"Before the discussion of the Johnson victory is concluded," said a Democrat today, "the need of credit due the Duluth News Tribune should not be withheld. With its customary maladroit ineptitude, it stuck its busy finger in the buzz saw, with the usual result."

TALKS ON POSTAL SAVINGS BANK

Senator Carter Tells of the Benefits They Will Produce.

Washington, May 7.—Postal savings banks were the subject of an address in the senate today by Senator Carter of Montana. Mr. Carter spoke upon the bill to establish postal savings banks recently reported by the committee on postoffices and post roads.

"The pending bill," he said, "proposes to subject the machinery of the postoffice department to an additional, worthy, beneficent and consistent use.

"It does not," he said, "contemplate the employment of an additional force in the postoffice, the purchase of more equipment nor the imposition of any burdens of expense.

"The bill responds to the long-continued and earnest demand of the people for the use of the postoffices as savings depositories. To begin, the postmaster general may confine the depositories to the presidential offices only, and later extend the system to the full authorized limits. Accounts may be opened by any person over the age of 10 years, and by a trustee for a person under that age. A deposit of $1 or more may be made, and increased by 10 cents or multiples of that amount. No deposit shall ever be allowed to exceed $1,000, and interest will not be paid on a sum in excess of $500. Interest at the rate of 2 per cent per annum is to be paid.

"The deposits in turn are to be placed in government depositories near the place of deposit, and 2½ per cent per annum is to be required for the use of the money. In the near future it is estimated there will be 37,684 postal depositories.

"Dwellers in remote country districts will have the same inducements to economize and save now enjoyed by those residing in the vicinity of the best conducted savings institutions in the large cities. The incalculable benefits to the people and to the government destined to flow from the establishment of postal depositories no one can estimate, but all can appreciate. A prudent, thrifty man is rarely if ever a delinquent citizen, and good citizenship insures good government and respect for law. That which will tend to discourage extravagance and encourage a saving disposition will surely tend to suppress vice and encourage virtue."

Easier to Talk Than to 'Make Good'

It's easy enough for some people to write nice-sounding stories about anything they have to sell—and it's easy enough to have merchandise which looks well when displayed in windows, or even on the counter—but it's not an easy matter to have garments "fit" and really accentuate the beauty lines of the figure nor to have garments which retain that "correct shape" and "snappy air" after six or eight months' wear—In short, it's not easy for a customer to get garments which she can be proud of from the day they're donned until they're literally "worn-out." These latter things, which are not easy to do are the very things which we claim for Gidding's Garments, and about the only way to convince yourself that we claim what's true is to test it for yourself—and we have that comfortable feeling of knowing that our merchandise and our expert fitters will "make good" for us in the test.

Publishers Describe Way They Are Held Up for Paper.

Washington, May 7.—The special house committee investigating the wood pulp and print paper question, heard additional publishers of newspapers today regarding the increase in the price of their paper.

W. E. Gardner, publisher of the Post Standard, Syracuse, N. Y., testified that he has paid from $1.75 to $2.50 per 100 pounds. The lower rate, he said, was due to local reasons. Mr. Gardner said that after he had broken with the International Paper company, that company endeavored to prevent him getting bids from any competitive source. Describing the difficulty he experienced in making a contract for 1908, he said that notwithstanding the fact that he had the assurances of a number of paper mills that they would be glad to have his order, when the time came to make the contract he met obstacle after obstacle, and although he went from New York to Wisconsin, and then to Canada, he could not get any satisfaction. Finally, he said, he was compelled to make a contract at $2.50, with H. G. Craig & Co., who had named him this figure before he started on his tour of the mills.

Up Against a Stone Wall.

"I was up against a stone wall," he continued, "and my movements in the West and Canada were known in New York."

Mr. Gardner said that in his opinion the increase was due to the shortage of the wood pulp supply and through a combination of the paper mills, "and such a comparison of cost that made it impossible for me to go into an open market at all."

Mr. Gardner said that the increased price of paper would cost him $22,000 to $24,000 this year over last year and to meet this loss he said he had been obliged to increase his advertising rates and cut down the size of his paper.

Mr. Gardner did not think that the removal of the tariff on print paper would have any appreciable effect upon our market, but he said he would very much like to see the duty removed for whatever practicable good may follow and for the notice to the offenders that the government was "on to them."

"In your judgment, there are offenders?" said Mr. Sims.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness.

Mr. Gardner said he did not believe it possible for the American supply of pulp wood to meet the demand in the future.

Same Story as Predecessor.

Millie Bunnell, publisher of the Duluth, Minn., News Tribune, told the same story that had been related by his predecessor on the stand—"The constantly increasing cost of paper to the newspapers and the impossibility of buying from any but a particular mill."

"From my experience in making contracts," he said, "I do not think there is any real competition among the mill men. I have never been able to buy paper except from one mill."

"What was the reason given to you for increasing the price?" asked Mr. Sims.

"Scarcity of paper and increase of demand," was the reply.

"They did not attempt to tell me that the cost of production was any more in our country because they do not pay any more for pulp wood now than they did when we were getting the low rate. In fact, they are not paying as much for pulpwood now to the producer as they did a yea rago."

"Why did you say it costs them less now than it did a year ago?" asked Mr. Sims.

"The cost of labor is less for one reason," replied Mr. Bunnell.

The witness said that the cost of paper to the News Tribune has advanced from $1.87½ prior to 1902 to $2.40. In the former years, too, he said, the mills allowed a 3 per cent discount for cash, but this practice had been discontinued.

Mr. Bunnell said he had tried to buy paper in the East, but could not get a rate there that would compare with the rate he was paying, and although there were other mills in Minnesota he was never able to buy from them. In fact, he said, the representatives of these mills had advised him to continue with the company he was dealing with.

Mr. Bunnell was on the stand when the luncheon recess was taken.

WHY MEN GET SICK

Medical Scientists Ascribe Most Maladies to Germs, Neglect and Wrong Living

If you carefully take some of the mucous from the Pharynxx of a Diphtheria patient, spread it onto a slide and put it under a microscope to be magnified 1,000 times, you will find millions of Diphtheria Germs in less space than that of a pin's point. These and all other germs live on the blood or other tissues of the patient; multiply very rapidly and secreet poison which, if the resistant power of the man is not strong enough, will kill the patient. Some germs are extremely slow in the poisoning effect, but in their course of long living, are just as dangerous to wreck the health and life of man. Of the quickly killing germs are those of Diphtheria, Pneumonia, Smallpox, lockjaw, cholera. Those of the slowly killing type are the germs of Consumption, Blood Poison, Syphillis, Gonorrhea and Gleet. These are most horrible in its consequences if the cure is neglected. In Consumption, the lungs are eaten up. In Syphillis, in the first stage the disease heals, apparently, but in its second stage ulcers break out on the legs or any part of the body, a man takes a few treatments and the sores heal up and he is under the impression that he is cured, but the most horrible of all diseases appear in the third stage, that of locomotor ataxia, where he cannot live nor die. Gonorrhoea is doing harm locally, for the germs are causing decay of the tissues and stricture follows in later years, and often the disease goes into the blood and causes rheumatism, bladder disease and kidney trouble, heart and skin diseases. Often a man never had any disease to his knowledge, and thinks he can never get sick. He forgets that the human body, by wrong living, needs repairs as well as anything else, and if this is neglected, he will die many a year before his time is up. There is just one place where you can get a cure in Duluth, and that is by the Progressive Medical Specialists. If you have any chronic diseases, they are the people to cure you, because they have spent their life and labor getting the knowledge for the cure of these diseases of men. They extend their cordial invitation to you, sick man, to consult them free of charge. Come from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Sundays, 10 to 1. No. 1 West Superior Street.

JOHNSON SWEEPS COUNTY

the Johnson men won out was strongly in favor of the governor. In the Third precinct of the Sixth ward, Bryan did not get a single vote, while thirty-four ballots were cast for Johnson.

In the Second precinct of the Third ward Frank Miller, E. A. McCarthy and William Gullinsrud, on the Johnson ticket, swept everything before them, and Johnson carried the precinct by 107 to 23.

In the First precinct of the Second ward, the vote stood 44 to 18 for the Johnson ticket. In this precinct W. H. McMahon was a candidate on the Bryan ticket.

Up in the Fifth precinct of the Fourth ward, the vote stood 26 to 7, in Johnson's favor.

Johnson sentiment was especially strong in West end and West Duluth, and the entire Fourth ward went for Johnson. The First precinct in the Third ward went for Bryan with a majority of seven votes. In the Fifth ward the voting was close. The precincts showed narrow margins for the successful delegates. The first two in the Fifth went for Johnson, and the Third for Bryan. It was in the Fourth precinct that there was a tie.

In the western end of the city Bryan took the Second and Sixth precincts in the Sixth ward, and the Third and Fifth in the Seventh, and the Fourth and Eighth in the Eighth, while the remaining precincts in these wards were strongly for Johnson.

At Proctor, J. J. Doyle and J. E. Findlan, both Johnson delegates, were elected by a vote of 46 to 3.

The Johnson candidate for delegate at Embarrass was elected.

"There's a Reason"

PE-RU-NA AS A TONIC AND BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mrs. Paul Casavant Writes From 219 Monroe Street, Topeka, Kansas, Concerning Peruna. Read Her Letter Below:

In Spring and Early Summer a Tonic is Needed.

Mrs. Emily Kellogg, 5649 S. Lawrence St., South Tacoma, Wash., Gives Her Experience With Peruna. Read Her Letter Below:

The source of good blood is fresh air and well-digested food. If anything interferes with digestion the blood becomes impure.

A catarrhal condition of the stomach prevents perfect digestion. Such a condition allows the food to ferment and decompose in various ways, instead of digesting. The blood is thus contaminated with various materials that do not belong in the blood.

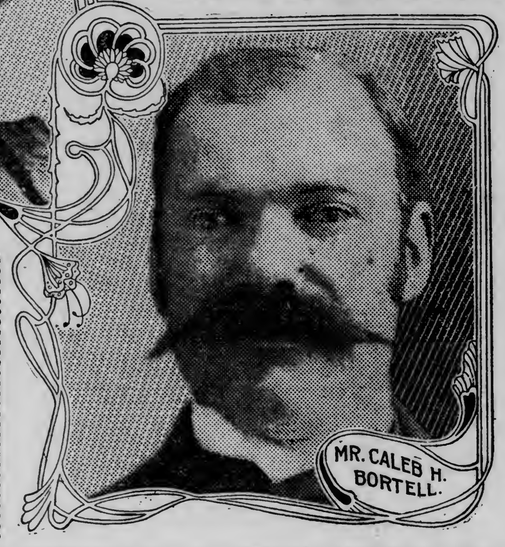
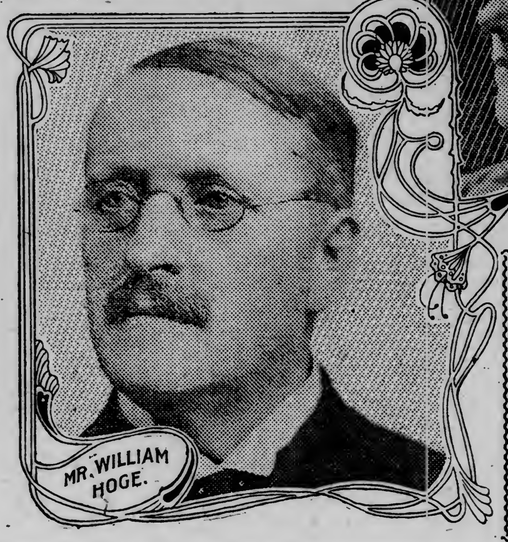
Peruna corrects all these difficulties by striking at the source of them. By eradicating the catarrhal condition of the stomach Peruna at once restores digestion, the blood is thereby purified, and the whole machinery of the body is put in working order.

Peruna has probably made a more remarkable record in cases of catarrh of the stomach than any other medicine. These cases are very frequent, and we have a host of testimonials in which Peruna has received lavish praise for prompt and permanent relief in cases of catarrh of the stomach.





Mrs. Paul Casavant, 219 Monroe street, Topeka, Kansas, writes:

"I have found Peruna very effective in restoring my health and strength after I had been worn out and run down for a long time.

"I began to use it about six months ago when I was unable to leave my bed.

"My nervous system was shattered and I was daily losing flesh and strength.

"This condition was completely altered after a few bottles of Peruna had been used and I kept on using it until I was finally restored to perfect health and had gained about fifteen pounds.

"I feel so grateful for what your medicine has done for me that I am pleased to give it my hearty endorsement and shall always be glad to speak a good word for it."

Mrs. Emily Kellogg, 5649 S. Lawrence St., S. Tacoma, Wash., member of Ladies of the Maccabees, writes:

"Three months ago I had an attack of billousness which threatened to undermine my health and strength.

"Luckily for me, I tried Peruna at the suggestion of my friends before it was too late.

"I found in a few days' time that I did not have the usual sick headache, neither did food nauseate me any longer.

"In two weeks' time Peruna had completely rid my system of the poison and bile, and I was in a much better condition. My skin assumed its normal color, I had a splendid appetite and I was in every way improved in health.

"I used Peruna for a month longer and it wrought a wondrous change in my entire system."

TONES UP THE SYSTEM.

Mrs. William McRoberts, Waverly, Minn., writes:

"I am perfectly well of the catarrh. I took Peruna and Manalin. I recommend your medicine to every one and cannot praise it enough. It is a fine medicine to take any season of the year. Taken in the spring it tones up the system and acts as a gentle stimulant."

A GOOD TONIC.

Mr. Joe Leonard, Flat 3, 232 Allen St., Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"I have good reason to indorse Peruna, as I have found it a good tonic, stimulating the system and sustaining it under great pressure, imparting unusual endurance and enabling me to work much longer and harder than the system could possibly do were it not for the great powers with which it endowed me. It gives one nerves of iron."

Mr. Caleb H. Bortell, police officer, 212 North Paca street, Baltimore, Md., writes:

"For several years I was troubled with catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. Many times I would vomit before and after eating.

"I took seven bottles of Peruna, and I am glad to say that it has cured me.

"I feel more like living and working and am not bothered at all with my old troubles.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Peruna to all sufferers with catarrh, and I thank you for what you have done for me, for none but those who have suffered as I have can appreciate a great cure as I have found Peruna to be."

SPLENDID FOR LA GRIPPE.

Mr. Frank H. Fielder, 213 Pleasant avenue, Montgomery, Ala., formerly principal of Haynesville High School, writes:

"I can truthfully say that Peruna is a splendid remedy for la grippe, and a good tonic for building up the system."

PAIN IN CHEST.

Mrs. A. W. Gustin, 5209 Lake avenue, St. Joseph, Mo., writes: "When I began taking Peruna I had quite a severe pain and ache in the left of my chest. I suffered a great deal with it.

"I wrote to Dr. Hartman and asked him what I should do. He advised my taking Peruna, which I did. I took three bottles, and I can say I am cured.

"Thanks for kind advice and Peruna."

HAY FEVER AND CATARRH.

Miss Mayme E. Smith, 444 East Mound street, Columbus, O., writes: "Have used Peruna for catarrh and hay fever. The results being remarkable, I can highly recommend it to all who are suffering with the above diseases. I am happy to be able to say it has helped me wonderfully."

EYES RED AND WATERY.

Mr. William S. Hearn, 1063 Segal street, Camden, N. J., writes:

"For about two years I was troubled with my eyes being red and watery, and my general health was very poor.

"Finally a friend advised me to try Peruna. I had tried almost everything else, so I purchased a bottle of Peruna and commenced to take it at once, and before I had finished the first bottle I found I was improving.

"I wrote you for special advice concerning my eyes, which I received. I continued to take Peruna until I had used six bottles.

"Now my eyes are absolutely well, and I feel like a new man in every way.

PERUNA TABLETS.

Some people prefer to take tablets, rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

Mr. William Hoge, President Commercial Travelers Association, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y., writes:

"I indorse Peruna as the most effectual remedy for catarrh I have been able to find in my travels in this country or Europe. I can truly say that I have spent thousands of dollars in this country alone trying to find a cure, and it was not until I was induced to give Peruna a trial that I obtained anything like permanent relief. As a tonic it is simply great. It ought to be in the grip of every commercial traveler on the road. It cured my wife as well as myself. We have not had the slightest symptom of catarrh for a long time."

In a later letter Mr. Hoge says: "I have used Peruna for many years; never without a bottle in my grip. I am the youngest feeling and youngest looking man of my age in New York, which I think is entirely due to Peruna."

JOHNSON INDORSED BY MINNESOTA

parts of the state, the Johnson sentiment swept everything before it. It was the same story everywhere, and despite the desperate efforts of the Bryan men, they were overwhelmingly defeated. In Ramsey county the Bryan men held separate primaries, refusing to enter the caucuses called by the county committee, and will send a contesting delegation to the state convention, but there is no probability of it being seated.

None of the Bryan leaders will be seen in the state convention. Stearns county went solid for Johnson, and J. R. Bennett's forces were badly defeated. In Winona, H. L. Buck, another Bryan leader, was beaten, and in Minneapolis, S. A. Stockwell, J. M. Bowler and the lesser Bryan leaders were buried beneath the Johnson vote. St. Louis county will send a Johnson delegation, and this eliminates T. T. Hudson, Bert Fesler, Alfred Jaques, Charles d'Autremont and M. B. Cullum as delegates to the state convention.

BELTRAMI FOR JOHNSON.

Solid Johnson Delegation Will Go to the State Convention.

Bmidji, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the Democratic primaries held in this city last evening Johnson delegates were elected to attend the Democratic county convention to be held Saturday. Reports from outside precincts indicate that Johnson delegations have been selected from the majority of precincts of the county and that a solid Johnson delegation will represent Beltrami county at the Democratic state convention.

Red River Valley for Johnson.

Crookston, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the primaries last evening, Johnson delegates were practically unanimously elected. There were contests in but two wards in Crokston. The total vote was: Johnson, 217; Bryan, 28.

Johnson delegates were elected in every presinct in Polk county.

Ada, in Norman county, and Hallock, in Kittson county, are the only cities in the Red river valley which elected Bryan delegates.

Lake County for Johnson.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic primaries last evening went solidly for Johnson, and the five delegates will vote to send a county delegation for Johnson for president. The rest of the county is for Johnson.

Pine County for Johnson.

Hinckley, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Returns show that Johnson delegates were elected everywhere in Pine county, and the delegation to the state convention will be solid for Johnson for president.

Crow Wing County.

Brainerd, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic primaries in this city passed off quietly last evening, though there was quite a struggle between the Johnson and Bryan forces for supremacy. The delegation, according to the best judges of the delegates named, give the delegation to the state convention to Bryan. According to the statement of the leaders the delegations from the First, Fourth and Fifth wards are for Bryan, that from the Second for Johnson, and that from the Third uninstructed. The following are the delegates:

First ward, James Smith, P. E. McCabe, J. J. Johnson, John Gaffney, John Ripplinger.

Second ward—C. D. Johnson, J. W. Koop, H. P. Dunn, T. M. Reilly, Dr. Werner Hefstead.

Third ward—John Hughes, Tom Mooney, Andrew Wallace, C. W. Koering, William Barron, John Taylor.

Fourth ward—Felix Graham, Peter Bisiar, W. W. Hutchinson, John Favrou, John Falconer, Mike Peterson, Antone Anderson.

nificent reception. The route from the railroad station to Schoenbrunn palace, which was lined with troops, was decorated with Venetian masts and flags and filled with a great throng of people from the city and its suburbs.

Shortly before noon all the other royal visitors, most of whom had been given quarters in the Hofburg, in Vienna, were driven out in court carriages to Schoenbrunn and assembled in the great crimson drawing room of that palace, where they were joined by Emperor William and the empress. The procession, composed of the German princes all in brilliant uniforms and headed by Emperor William and his wife, then proceeded to the Marie Antoinette salon, where Emperor Francis Joseph awaited his visitors.

Emperor William Makes Speeches.

Emperor William made a speech in which he tendered Emperor Francis Joseph the congratulations of those present upon the sixtieth anniversary of the beginning of his reign. The German emperor spoke in high praise of Emperor Francis Joseph's untiring devotion to the welfare of his country and of the glorious example his sixty years of labor had given to the world, and in conclusion said:

"We then, true friends and allies of your majesty, have hastened hither, and with us is her majesty, the empress queen, my consort, to bear testimony of the deep feelings of close friendship and devotion which we entertain for your majesty. With overflowing hearts we offer homage to the noble ruler, the true ally, and the mighty guardian of peace, upon whose head we invoke the richest blessing of providence."

Emperor Francis Joseph Replies.

In returning thanks for this proof of friendship, which he said would be one of the most precious recollections of his life, Emperor Francis Joseph said:

"In this act of cordial attachment I may, I think, discern a solemn manifestation of the monarchical principle to which Germany owes her power and greatness. Austria-Hungary's strength also is to be found in this principle. Such a great assemblage of German princes around me is, at the same time a most eloquent confirmation of the close and indissoluble alliance which has existed between us for nearly thirty years.

"This day fortifies me in the joyous expectation that this alliance, which pursues none but pacific ends that are effectively assisted by similar efforts on the part of other powers, will fully accomplish its objects unto the remotest future."

The reception of the royal visitors was carried out quietly and as privately as possible in order not to fatigue the veteran monarch of Austria-Hungary.

interring of the bodies was performed. The testimony is partially corroborated by the evidence of Joseph Maxson, who was working on the farm when the house caught fire April 28. Maxson asserted that he had never been allowed access to the second story of the farmhouse where the closed room was looted.

Ask K. Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D., was in conference with Dr. C. S. Mack, coroner of the county, until long after midnight. The steps by which the Norwegian farmer became infatuated with the Indiana woman were canvassed once more, but only partial progress was made toward clearing the mystery. Helgelein told again of the secrecy with which his brother had shrouded his movements before his departure from South Dakota. Enough was evolved to show that advertisements for a matrimonial agency had been printed in Scandinavian papers in the Northwest, Helgelein asserting that a single sheet printed in Norwegian and full of such notices had been circulated among his acquaintances.

The circumstance leads the investigators here to believe that Mrs. Guinness established communication with her victims through this agency, such a premise accounting for her relations with Ole B. Budsberg, the farmer of Iola, Wis., whose sons are expected here today. It is reported that the Iola men will bring with them copies of the advertisements which lured their father to his death.

May Have Been Shipped From Chicago.

Evidence that the nine dismembered corpses had been shipped to this city, probably from Chicago, came to light by the testimony of draymen who had carted trunks and boxes to the Guinness home bearing this out.

In addition, the local authorities received information that two trunks consigned to Mrs. Bella Guinness, Laporte, Ind., were being held in an express office in the larger city, and the assistance of the Chicago police in unraveling the puzzle was sought at once.

Two of the nine mutilated bodies were identified yesterday afternoon with considerable certainty. Antone Olson, 1410 Indiana avenue, Chicago, viewed the remains supposed to be those of Jennie Olson, the 16-year-old foster daughter of Mrs. Guinness, and pronounced them those of his daughter. A sister of the dead girl, Mrs. Leo Olander, 2818 South Park avenue, Chicago, accompanied the father and added her testimony regarding her sister's characteristics.

Bessie Conklin, a young woman residing in Michigan City, Ind., whose former home was in Laporte, has been arrested by Sheriff Smutzer and is being held in jail as an important witness.

The woman was a friend of Ray Lamphere, who is accused of complicity in the murders at the Guinness home. Miss Conklin is not accused of complicity, but her testimony is considered of so great importance that she will remain locked up until the grand jury hears her testimony next week. It is said that Lamphere while talking to Miss Conklin made threats against Mrs. Guinness and said that he had information which if disclosed, would hang Mrs. Guinness.

"He told me that Mrs. Guinness had to be good to him, or he would make it hot for her and send her to the gallows," said Miss Conklin to Sheriff Smutzer."

She further said that she was ready to disclose all that Lamphere told her, adding that "he was in love and crazy jealous over Mrs. Guinness."

Coroner Mack turned over today to a local undertaker for preservation the body supposed to be that of Andrew Hegelein. Dr. Mack announced that he had taken this action, but he was still far from convinced as to the identity and that the body would be held for further efforts at identification.

Ask Helgelein, the brother of Andrew, affirms most positively there can be no doubt as to the cadaver being that of his brother. He identified it by the peculiar formation of the face, the width across the cheekbones; the flat and sharp pointed nose, the spreading teeth in the lower jaw, by the shape of the hands, feet and the knees. He states further that he can bring many persons who also can establish the identity beyond any question.

that sort and feel humiliated and degraded if they are sent to a small reduction. Churches make it impossible for the bishops to justly arrange the work by insisting on appointments, which if granted, compel widespread injustice as to other members of the conference. Conferences pass resolutions protesting against transfers without equivalent exchange, and then wholly refuse transfer; thus putting the appointing power where it must disappoint a church by sending a man not wanted, or crucify a man by sending him to a disappointed officiary, if not a disappointed church. This has reached a pass when the bishops are accused of tyranny and self-will when they do what the church demands of them. We keenly feel the embarrassment thus created by both ministers and churches, by proceedings wholly outside the law.

It is declared that the church has not yet reached unanimity touching the removal of the time limit from the pastorate, and on the subject of the brotherhood, recommends that the conference recognize a brotherhood of the Methodist Episcopal church and provide for the incorporation of the brotherhood in the economy of the local church, assume some general direction and enact such legislation as may be deemed necessary. Unification of the work of the deaconesses under a central board is recommended.

As to Amusements.

As to amusements, and the book of discipline, the address continues: "We are moved by a profound conviction of duty in again calling your attention to the subject of popular amusements in relation to the spirit and conduct of spiritual life. We regret that the general prevalence of harmful amusements does not diminish. We still firmly hold that they are antagonisic to vital piety, promote worldliness and especially be pernicious to youth.

"We recommend not that Paragraph 248 stricken out, but that it be amended by striking out the confessedly partial list of worldly amusements found therein, beginning with the last word in the eighth line and ending with the word "other" in the eleventh line which were inserted in 1872, leaving as the ground for church trial in case such trial becomes necessary, that portion of the paragraph reading:

"Taking such amusements as are obviously of misleading or questionable moral tendency, or disobedience to the order and discipline of the church,' and especially our original rule, 'to taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus.' Grave injustice will be done if this recommendation is interpreted as an abandonment of our early opposition to worldly amusements. Indeed, it is a return to the principles and to the exact words furnished by John Wesley."

The Divorce Question.

As to divorce: The consecutive polygamy permitted by the divorce laws of some of our states is a disgrace to our country. It continues to undermine family life and to break up into helpless and warring factions that which God means shall be a unit. We greatly rejoice that the conscience of the nation is being quickened on this subject and that the demand for uniform divorce laws increases."

As to Mormonism the bishops declare: "We believe from the best evidence we can obtain that the polygamous practices are still found in the states and territories occupied in part by representatives of the Mormon body. In several states they have such political strength and furnish such sympathetic juries that the laws against such polygamous practices cannot be executed. We believe that as in divorce these must be brought within the scope of national legislation before the evils can be reached with the vigor to punish them as they deserve. We trust, therefore you will consider whether it is not wise for you to advocate some constitutional amendment which will make polygamy and polygamous practises a crime against the United States."

Church and Workingmen.

The bishops have quite a little to say as to workingmen and the church, and as to trades unions, a part being as follows:

"We hold the right of those workingmen who desire to do so to form labor unions for the advancement of their interests, as we hold the right of individuals who prefer to do so to seek the control of their own labor. The church and the trades unions should seek each others' help for the uplift of mankind. The church is not a museum of perfected specimens, all ticketed and labeled and shut up in a stained glass case for the world to admire. It is a workshop to which all who are willing to work out their own salvation with fear and trembling must be admitted. The church cannot refuse its help and countenance to any one who professes to accept its principles and seek a better life, be he either capitalist or laborer. By so much as a capitalist is selfish, miserly, exacting, oppressive, has the church business with him; she cannot throw him away until the last day of his dessicated and shaken life brings him before God. She must hold before him the image of the unselfish Christ in the hope that in its light he will see where he is.

"Let it be remembered, however, that nowhere in the world does wealth manifest its obligation to contribute to the public welfare as in the United States."

ARE GOING ELSEWHERE

Driven From Thief River Falls, They Seek Better Climes.

Crookston, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The warfare that the authorities of Thief River Falls are waging on the red light district is bearing fruit in driving the undesirable element from the town into other places, where they are equally unwelcome. Acting Mayor Pritchard is reported to be enlisted in the fight to a finish. Red Lake county authorities are investigating affairs, looking for evidence.

Minnie Smith, a keeper of a dive at Swan River and in several places in this section, has gone to Thief River Falls to look after matters, aided by legal counsel.

Inmates of the red light districts have been arriving here on every train and fleeing to the cities of Minot and Duluth for refuge. The local houses have refused to house them on account of their number and the warnings of the local police.

The women are trailed by a bunch of tin-horns and gamblers, arrayed in racetrack checks, and, during the short minutes that the police permit them to roam at large about the streets, they lend some picturesqueness to the town. One of the tin-horns said last night that they "guessed we were knocked out of another good town."

Some of the inmates lodged for a time at Red Lake Falls, but most of them moved on to Crookston and scattered in all directions. There are about twenty inmates and as many or more tin-horns and gamblers that have passed through the city already.

The Swan River woman has a representative at the depot here, gathering them together and sending them on again. The openness of the traffic has aroused the mayor to issue orders against them.

LAMBRECHT CASE MAY BE DROPPED

Proceedings Against Fargo Promoter Liable to be Given Up.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Charles F. Templeton at the request of both State's Attorney W. H. Barnett of Cass county and Attorney Lacy of Fargo postponed the rendering of a decision in the habeas corpus case of James Lambrecht, wanted in Moorhead for obtaining money under false pretenses from John Haas, a well known saloon man. The judge had intended giving his decision yesterday. He will render his decision Saturday or Monday.

It is stated that there is a probability of the Lambrecht case being dropped. Negotiations are understood to be under way at Fargo whereby everything will be arranged to the satisfaction of all parties concerned. Whether this will include the dropping of all the damage suits instituted by Lambrecht against State's Attorney Barnett, John Haas and others for false arrest and imprisonment in Fargo a week or so ago could not be definitely learned, but this is considered to be the probable outcome.

STANDS BY BUILDERS.

Fargo Commercial Club Indorses Their Attitude.

Fargo, N. D., May 7.—The fight against organized labor started in Fargo when the builders and traders declared for the open shop at the first of the year has been carried into the Fargo Commercial club. A resolution was passed favoring the course of the builders and pledging moral and financial aid in the fight. The painters are out to a man and it is believed the carpenters will leave work soon. Trouble is imminent and the stand was taken by the business men through the Commercial organization.

MAKES WORK EASIER

Duluth People Are Pleased to Learn How It Is Done.

It's pretty hard to attend to duties
With a constantly aching back;
With annoying urinary disorders.
Doan's Kidney Pills make work easier.
They cure backache.
They cure every kidney ill.

J. E. Watts, living at 918 Tenth avenue, Duluth, Minn., says: "I have had no reason to change the opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills which I expressed in a testimonial given in 1898. At that time they cured me of a bad attack of backache and lameness, which made me stop work. I was unable to stoop, and the pain was severe just over the kidneys and through the loins. Plasters and other remedies I used brought me no radical benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me so strongly that I decided to try them. I soon found that they were just the remedy for my case. In a few days the pain left me, and the cure has been permanent."

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

Appeals to U. S. Circuit Court in Land Cases Heard.

St. Paul, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charged with conspiring to defraud the United States government out of thousands of acres of land by inducing settlers to make illegal and fictitious homestead entries, and with having illegally inclosed the land with fences, the appeals of Bartlett Richards, Will G. Comstock, Charles C. Jameson and Aquilla Triplett were heard in the United States circuit court of appeals yesterday. The quartet were tried in the United States district court for Nebraska and found guilty. Richards and Comstock were each sentenced to be imprisoned for one year and pay a fine of $1,500, while Jameson and Triplett were sentenced to serve eight months in prison and pay fines of $500 each. They appealed from this judgment to the circuit court of appeals, alleging numerous errors by the trial court, and their cases are now being heard together.

Thomas M. Huntington, Aml B. Todd and Fred Hoyt, who were indicted with the four defendants in this case and were also convicted and appealed, will be given a hearing after the first hearing is finished.

PIPESTONE MAN CHOSEN.

Stillwater, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a special meeting of the board of education to elect a city superintendent of schools, the choice fell upon W. H. Hollands, at present city superintendent at Pipestone. There were about forty applicants for the position, but only a few of them were voted for. The board held a long session, and it was nearly midnight when the conclusion was reached.

Among the candidates prominently considered were: Albert Gullette, Minneapolis; C. H. Barnes, Wells; J. A. Burger, Staples; H. C. Hess, Sleepy Eye; E. E. McIntyre, Crookston; Mr. Phillips, Albert Lea.

THE COW CAME BACK.

Bossy, Imprisoned in Hay Stack for Three Weeks, Comes Out.

Fertile, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ole Hoven, a Liberty township farmer, lost a valuable cow some three weeks ago, but was surprised the other day to have her among his herd again. The animal had been buried under a strawstack, tipped over. She was imprisoned twenty-one days, but is in good condition and shows no bad effects from her long fast.

MONEY DISAPPEARS.

Officers at Valley City Hush Matter and Make Still Hunt.

Valley City, N. D., May 7.—The local Soo authorities and the police have been much mystified over the disappearance from the safe at the office of that road, last Thursday, of $316. A search warrant was issued by Judge Smith and all the newspapers injoined to silence, and a gumshoe hunt began for the missing coin, but it has not yet been found. The search warrant was of no avail and the missing coin is still missing.

E. W. Davis is the day man ar the Soo station at North Valley City, and made up his cash Thursday night and turned it over to Frank Goers, who put it in the safe. There was $240 in currency and $76 in two checks. It was put in a large envelope and directd to the First National Bank of Minneapolis.

Mr. Goers placed the money in the safe, which, it appears, was not locked. Several people had access to the room where the safe was and might have taken the envelope. The search warrant failed to develop any clew to the money, and the officials are completely mystified—they do not appear to have struck the faintest clew.

SALOONKEEPERS JOBBED.

Sort of a "Woodchuck" Session of City Council Raises License.

Marquette, Mich., May 7.—Marquette saloonists were greatly dismayed Tuesday when it developed that, as a result of a clever dodge Monday night in the common council, the liquor tax had been increased from $500 to $700.

With several aldermen enjoying a minstrel performance at the theater, the high license proposition was trotted out unexpectedly and put through. The ordinance had been passed at a previous meeting, but was held invalid on a technicality. It stands now.

ASHLAND'S ORE DOCK.

Big One Built by Northwestern Road Nearly Ready.

Ashland, Wis., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ore dock of the Northwestern road, which is being rebuilt, will not be completed until about June 15, according to those who have the building in charge. This will be in plenty of time for the ore season, for if it opens up before then, the new dock which was rebuilt two years ago can handle the boats until the No. 2 dock is completed. When the new dock is completed, Ashland will have two ore docks with all the latest improvements, and capable of loading the 10,000-ton ore carriers with dispatch.

The rebuilding has been going on all winter, and still there is enough timber and lumber remaining to give the place the appearance of a wholesale lumber yard. It is estimated that there will be 10,000,000 feet of lumber used in the reconstruction of the new dock, and of this over 5,000,000 is new lumber. A large portion of this is Washington fir, some of it being shipped to Ashland over a year ago, at which time it was thought the dock was to be rebuilt last winter. To carry this amount of timber would require fifteen or eighteen lumber boats of average size, if the stuff was shipped by water.

KILLING GOPHERS IS BECOMING QUITE VOGUE.

Black River Falls, Wis., May 7.—The most thriving industry hereabout for several weeks this spring was the hunt for gophers, as the county pays a bounty of 20 cents for the pocket variety and 10 cents for the striped gopher. Owing to the vigor with which the hunt was pushed the harvest is now on the wane after unters have been able to make $4 to $5 a day. Town chairmen, to whom the skins were delivered, have had to establish certain days upon which to attend to this business, owing the the frequent interruptions which they would otherwise suffer. To prevent the same skins being offered twice, the hides are buried when received by the officials. Indians are among those who made war on the burrowing pests at so much per pest.

SCARED BY CARS, OLD MAN FALLS TO DEATH.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 7.—Losing his nerve after a freight train had passed him, Baptiste Waters of Barron fell from a Wisconsin Central bridge into Duncan creek and was fatally injured. He was trying to cross the bridge ahead of a train, but seeing it gaining on him stepped to the side. The train passed without hitting him, but it is believed the rumble of the cars confused him and caused him to fall. Waters is 74 years old and has two sons.

MANY CALUMET BIRTHS.

Ninety-One Last Month, or Five More Than in March.

Calumet, Mich., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Finnish, 35; Americans, 14; Austrians, 13; Italians, 8; Norwegians, 8; Swedes, 4; English, 3; Canadians, 3; French, 1; Scottish, 1; Germans, 1.

This is a list of births by nationalities for Calumet township for the month of April just ended, as compiled by Township Clerk C. E. L. Thomas. It shows a total number of 91, or 5 more than last month, which was a new high water mark for the township. It will thus be seen that a record has been established.

During the same period twenty-five deaths are recorded. This is somewhat higher than the average for previous months this year, but is offset by the births recorded.

DEVELOP AITKIN POWER.

Everything Indicates Mud River Improvement This Year.

Aitkin, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Negotiations are so far advanced now that the development of the Mud river water power this season is a reasonable certainty. There are two concerns figuring on the work, but Mr. Kathan, who holds the key to the situation, received a letter yesterday in which he is informed that blue prints have been made for the work and the order practically let for the water wheels, the word from Aitkin being the only thing they are now waiting for.

This is from the Pennsylvania concern, and they have evidently hastened their plans by the advent of the Indianapolis people who expressed a willingness to take hold of the project. There will be no concessions asked from the village council by either firm and no cause for unnecessary delay and it now looks as though the first on the grounds ready to do business will get it.

AITKIN SCHOOL MEETING.

School Officers From All Over County Expected to Attend.

Aitkin, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thursday and Friday of next week the school officers of the county will meet in annual session in Aitkin. Harrington of the state agricultural school at Crookston will introduce the subject of agriculture in connection with public school work, and Judge Stanton will address the meeting. On Friday the Eighth grade graduates of the county schools will give their essays and recitations, and the assistant state superintendent will present the diplomas. The county superintendent is going to give a large historical map to the school having the largest number of pupils present.

GETS SALT LAKE JOB.

Fargo Contractor Walks Off With Large Piece of Work.

Fargo, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Contractor Kennedy of this city has captured another big contract in Salt Lake City, Utah.

On one big job for $117,000 he was the lowest bidder and was given the contract without a murmur.

On another for $73,000, a Salt Lake firm, Davis & Heiser, underbid Mr. Kennedy $2,300—but after thinking the matter over and considering the high quality of work Mr. Kennedy had been doing for years on the sewer contracts, the council awarded Mr. Kennedy the job at his original figures.

DO BETTER NEXT YEAR.

Walker, Minn., May 7.—The assessors of Cass county met at the courthouse yesterday with County Auditor Byhre and F. L. McVey, chairman of the Minnesota tax commission. Mr. McVey said that while the assessors would be allowed to pursue the usual course this year and assess the real and personal property according to their own judgment, next year the commission would insist on a literal fulfillment of the new state statute requiring a list of the taxable property to be returned at its full market value instead of the 50 per cent value decided upon this year.

NEW BRICK BLOCK.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Paul Hagen has started on his new two-story brick block, 70 by 50 feet, to cost $25,000. Mr. Hagen is one of the leading residents of East Grand Forks, and has served the city for many years. He was a resident of West Superior before moving to East Grand Forks.

Red Blood Good Health

Red blood is the foundation of health and strength.

The same parts of the blood which give it color—the red corpuscles—also contain the elements which sustain and invigorate the body and its organs.

It is because the blood is thin, weak and watery in the spring that nearly everybody requires a blood-builder and restorative.

Now what Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills do is to increase the number of red corpuscles in the blood, or in other words, to make the blood redder and richer in the elements which go to build up new cells and tissues to replace those wasted by disease or in the process of living.

Redden the blood by the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and you lift yourself from that low level of health which leaves you tired and languid and an easy victim of consumption or some form of wasting or contagious disease.

The portrait and signature of the famous Receipt Book author, A. W. Chase, M. D., are on every box of the genuine. 50 cts. at all dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

THEY WILL START RANCH ON ALEUTIAN ISLANDS.

Bowman, N. D., May 7.—W. H. Armstrong and F. F. Butler, two ranchers, left Monday evening for Aleutian islands, near Alaska, where they will look over the country with a view of starting a large ranch on one of the islands of that group. The above gentlemen represent about twenty of the ranchers of this county, who have organized a company, and the result depends on the report of these men, who were accompanied by L. H. Young also.

Clinton—Residents of the township of Prior, near Clinton, are exercised over the mystery connected with the disappearance of Walter Sherman, aged 13, who left his home on Monday, April 27, and cannot be traced to his hiding place. Kokomo Woman Gives Fortune

To Help Women Who Suffer.

In the past few years Mrs. Cora B. Miller has spent $125,000.00 in giving medical treatment to afflicted women.

Some time ago we announced in the columns of this paper that she would send free treatment to every woman who suffered from female diseases or piles.

More than a million women have accepted this generous offer, and as Mrs. Miller is still receiving requests from thousands of women from all parts of the world, who have not yet used the remedy, she has decided to continue the offer for a while longer, at least.

This is the simple, mild and harmless preparation that has cured so many women in the privacy of their own homes after doctors and other remedies failed.

It is especially prepared for the speedy and permanent cure of leucorrhoea or whitish discharges, ulceration, displacements or falling of the womb, profuse, scanty or painful periods, uterine or ovarian tumors or growths; also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weariness and piles from any cause, or no matter of how long standing.

Every woman sufferer, unable to find relief, who will write Mrs. Miller now, without delay, will receive by mail free of charge, a 50-cent box of this simple home remedy, also a book with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer and how they can easily cure themselves at home without the aid of a physician.

Chisholm, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—An old logging camp outfit, owned by John Mulvihill, mysteriously disappeared within the last two weeks. A milkman, residing in Chisholm, wanted to rent a place to house his cattle during the summer, and after inquiring around, struck a bargain with Mr. Mulvihill. They went out to look over the camp, and to their astonishment, when they came in sight of the land where the camp always stood, they found an empty space. They returned home and Mr. Mulvihill set out to ascertain what became of them. It is thought that some person inspected them and thought that they were of no use to the owner, took them apart and removed the logs to some other location, and will later saw them up for burning purposes.

ON CHURCH EXTENSION

Report of Board Submitted to Methodist General Conference.

Unusual Mortality Among Members During Past Four Years.

Baltimore, May 7.—The reports of the board of church extension and the board of home missions and church extension were submitted to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church today. They say: An unusual mortality prevailed among the members of the board during the quadrennium. Six bishops have passed from labor to reward. Eight laymen and four ministers were called from the church militant to the church triumphant.

We think that the present general conference should order that the Sunday school collections during the coming quadrennium should be evenly divided between the board of home missions and church extension and the board of foreign missions. The commission ordered that the property should be divided equally; that bequests and legacies be divided equally, and why should the Sunday school collections have been divided unequally during the six months just closing, May 5, 1908?

The report refers to an effort which has been made on recommendation of the general committee to consolidate the principal publications of the two boards and quotes a resolution adopted by a joint meeting of representatives of the two boards at Philadelphia last March. It was the sense of those who took part in this meeting that the consolidation of these publications at the present time is undesirable and impracticable. Continuing, the report says:

Our Methodist city problems no one has yet comprehensively grasped. We have been forced out as pioneers, not only in the method of our literature, but in its matter. What we have printed represents conditions almost as new to literature as if from another world. Gladly would we have availed ourselves of any publications, but none covering our field were in print.

We expect our book publications to be at least self-supporting, and we are glad to state that while we have largely increased the amount and variety of our literary output and have reduced the expenses at the rate of $1,000 per month, we are now conducting the same at a saving of $20,000 over last year's budget. Our ideal is a publication department reaching a million Methodist homes at no cost to the church. We are certainly traveling in that direction.

The recent financial flurry has brought to the office a large number of applications for loans. Some comparatively large applications for loans were received when we were borrowing money from the bank to enable our treasurer to send drafts to the presiding elders that the preachers on new and needy fields might receive their regular quarterly appropriations.

We very much need a great increase in the loan fund. There are places where the rates of interest are exorbitant. If we had an increase of even a quarter of a million in our loan fund it would be a great blessing to many struggling churches.

A total of $113,660 has been collected thus far for the relief of the churches in California which suffered from the earthquake and fire on April 18, 1906. It was originally planned to raise $250,000, and the board has placed on record a statement declaring that the efforts to secure a sufficient amount of money to rehabilitate our cause on the Pacific coast must not cease.

The Publishing Agents.

It is with much satisfaction that in making our quadrennial report we are able to present an exhibit of sales and earnings which surpass those of any other four years in the long history of the book concern. While the profits of the last fiscal year are not quite equal to those of the previous year, the slight falling off in net earnings is more than accounted for by the reduction in the hours of labor in our manufacturing department during that year from a nine to an eight-hour day, with no reduction in the scale of wages. The total sales during the quadrennium have been $1,175,019, showing an increase over the previous quadrennium of $577,327. The net profits have been $738,909, an increase over the previous four years of $231,911. After providing for the payment of the last dollar of indebtedness, we closed our last fiscal year with cash on hand $54,899, together with surplus investments and fire fund reserve amounting to $668,713, making the total of cash and surplus at the end of the year $723,613. All of our holdings in real estate are now free and clear of incumbrance. The department of publications and sales has made a gratifying showing during each year of the quadrennium. The total sales in this department for the four years amount to $1,466,582, and increase over the previous quadrennium of $157,940. The department suffered a loss in sales by the transfer of the San Francisco business to the Western Methodist Book concern, but benefited by the sales of the new Hymnal, which have been large.

Our aim in publishing and selling has been quality rather than quantity. We believe it is far more important that the literature we distribute should be of the most uplifting and stimulating Christian character that consecrated brains and ready money can produce, than that for a little additional profit we should pander to the questionable demand of the times for light literature, not to call it by stronger terms.

Our long established and successful depositories, located at Boston, Pittsburg and Detroit have contributed their full share to the publishing interests of the church.

In pursuance of a healthy policy established in recent years, dividends to the annual conferences are now declared only from earnings actually in the treasury, rather than from anticipated earnings, as was formerly the usage. We are gratified to report that the dividends paid in this quadrennium aggregate a larger sum than was ever paid in any corresponding period in the history of the concern. It is also gratifying to state that these larger dividends can now be paid without in any way encroaching upon the business necessities of the house. Our periodical literature, in volume of output, and as against all competition, has fully held its own in this quadrennium. These periodicals have been steadily held to a high standard of circulation. Attractive features both in their substance and appearance have been added from time to time, and special helps for beginners have been introduced.

Our inventories as presented from year to year are made up subject to such a scale of discounts as to keep all practical values conservatively and surely fully up to the statements presented in the published exhibits of the concern.

The Most Common Cause of Suffering

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50-cent sizes. For sale by all druggists.

Boston, Mass., May 7.—The Democratic state convention today instructed its four delegates-at-large to the national convention to vote for William J. Bryan for the presidential nomination.

James W. Synam, chairman of the state committee, called the convention to order. Frederick J. Stimson of Dedham was elected temporary chairman. In his speech he discussed principally what he termed "the cyclone of centralization," before which all other issues must give way. The speaker praised W. J. Bryan as a leader who saw the evil coming and promised to fight it.

The platform is as follows:

"The aims of the Massachusetts Democracy are:

"For a government restored to the service of the people devoted to all the people and opposed to privilege; the master not the servant of predatory wealth.

"Corporations forbidden the issue of water stocks, forfeiting charters for political contributions if foreign subject to jurisdiction of state courts.

"Railroads restricted to fair profits on fair valuation, restrained from discrimination by imprisonment of officials.

"Labor protection by the eight-hour law; jury trials for contempts in labor injunctions; public investigation and conciliation of strikes and lockouts; abolition of the fellow servant rule; like rules of competition to labor and capital; abolition of child labor.

"To this end, let each Faneuil hall assembled, instruct the four delegates elected in this convention to cast their votes in the national convention for William J. Bryan."

For the Year 1907-08 Shown by the English Budget.

London, May 7.—The budget for the first time in many years was presented to the house of commons this afternoon by the premier, Mr. Asuith, instead of by the chancellor of the exchequer. Mr. Asquith, who was former chancellor of the exchequer had prepared the budget and it was thought he should himself explain it in parliament.

No budget of recent years has been awaited with as much interest as this one. Everybody was keen to learn of the government's scheme for old age pensions, the house consequently was packed and its galleries were overflowing with visitors.

Mr. Asquith after commenting briefly on the present slackening of trade throughout the world following the boom year of 1907, announced that Great Britain's realized surplus for the year 1907-8 amounted to $23,630,000 which he said would be largely applied to the reduction of the national debt.

ONE MAN KILLED.

Chicago, May 7.—One man was killed, many pedestrians were put in peril by falling live wires, and others were blown down and injured during a terrific wind and rain storm which set in early today.

In the outlying parts of the city windows were broken, electric wires carried away and trees blown down. Only two steamers put out from this port early on the morning and both of them came back for safety. No other boats will leave before tomorrow, unless the gale moderates.

CANNOT FIND RECORDS IN THE SORENSON CASE.

Chicago, May 7.—Coroner Hoffman today began a search of the records of the coroner's office, police and health departments, with a view to ascertaining if possible whether Max Sorenson, the first husband of Mrs. Guinness, was murdered.

The records show that the body was exhumed September 3, 1900, and that a postmortem was held, but no record of the finding in the case is to be had. It was also found that Carolina Sorenson, a daughter of Mrs. Guinness, died August 2, 1896, and that an infant, age not given, died April 10, 1896. Coroner Hoffman is seeking to ascertain whether there was any insurance on Caroline Sorenson and the younger child.

SHIP'S CREW IN GREAT DANGER

The Peter Rickmers is Being Badly Battered by Heavy Seas.

New York, May 7.—The men on the disabled, stranded ship Peter Rickmers are in peril this afternoon. The big ship is plunging helplessly about in a tumbling, pitching sea on a sandbar about a thousand yards off shore, not far from Fire Island. Three of her masts are gone, half of her cargo of case oil has been cast into the sea and she is being pounded by a battery of waves which neither she nor any other ship similarly placed can long endure.

Two life lines were sent out to the Rickmers today when it became apparent that those on board might require quick assistance, but this afternoon, as the waves drove the vessel steadily but slowly westward, the lines gave way and the only link of safety between the ship and shore was destroyed.

In the meantime the Rickmers had begun to feel the effects of the frightful battering she was receiving from the waves. Her seams began to open and the water poured in streams into her hold. Every wave now makes a clean sweep over the ship and three life-saving crews are fighting against the wind and seas in a driving rain, in an attempt to run other lines to the doomed craft.

INJUSTICE THAT BREEDS CRIME

How An Innocent Boy Was Started on a Criminal Career---Detained Three Months in Prison as a Witness.

Some of the humanely inclined in New Jersey have been trying to get a law through the present session of the legislature which will enable each community to tax itself, if it so elects, for the erection of a building quite separate from the jail, in which witnesses held by the state because they have no bail shall be confined, without coming into contact with prisoners or bearing the odium of having been in jail. Sheriff Frank H. Somer of Essex county, whose enforcement of the "Bishops' law" has made the county of Newark and "all the Oranges" one of the dryest spots on earth on Sunday, is one of those who is working for this measure. He tells this little story in support of his position, says the New York Press:

"Here is a prisoner's dock, reached by three marble steps, and behind it a bronze door which leads into the prisoners' detention room. Facing the judge is an audience of men, women and children. As you scan their faces you can see that they are filled with lines of care, anxiety and hope deferred. They are relatives of prisoners and the judge is about to pronounce sentence on their husbands, fathers, sons or brothers. A man comes through the bronze door. He keeps his face averted and his eyes fixed on the judge. The judge pronounces on him a sentence of penal servitude—a just sentence. The man turns and goes out. And at that moment a scream rises from the audience. Who is it thus disturbing the dignity of the court? Only a gray-haired old woman, the prisoner's mother. She and he have finally come to the parting of the ways. She will return to a desolate home and he will go for a term of years in a state's prison.

"Now, the old-fashioned way was to lay all the blame on the man and tell how he has brought his mother's gray hairs in sorrow to the grave. That is partly true, no doubt, in every case. But I happen to know that man's whole story. I looked it up and I am acquainted with the facts. He was born in a congested portion of the city of Newark, a portion where every inch of space was covered by tenement houses. They boy went to school. The school was the only thing that society provided for him; the only elevating, improving institution which it sent into his neighborhood. It so happened that the school was right behind the tenement house where he lived. Around that school was a good bit of ground—the only unoccupied space in that neighborhood. At 3 o'clock every afternoon a padlock was put on the gate till 9 the next morning. During these hours it lay there, a waste ground. What sort of playground did the boy get? The most vicious one that can be offered any boy in the world—the street of a congested district in a cosmopolitan city.

"The boy belonged to a gang in his neighborhood—a perfectly innocent gang. When he reached working age he found employment. Along about this time his gang found its way through the balze-covered doors of the saloon and began to play games there; games perfectly innocent in themselves and only dangerous because of the environment. Why should not the boy go to the saloon? It was licensed by the state. These boys made their own recreation center in the saloon. There was no other recreation center in that neighborhood except certain theaters. I have sampled these theaters, and I confess that of the two I would rather a son of mine should go to the saloon.

"One night there was a row in that saloon and a man was injured. Everybody ran away except the injured man, who lay on the floor, and this boy, who, confident in his own innocence, stayed to help the wounded man. The police arrived, and the boy was taken into custody as a witness for the state. He was taken through the public streets in custody of the police in such a manner that anybody might suppose that he had been arrested for crime; in itself an offense by the state against a citizen. He was thrown into a police prison cell for the night. The next morning he, with the man who had committed the assault, who had been apprehended during the night, both appeared before the magistrate. The accused man had friends with property who bailed him out, and he went off about his business. The boy, who had committed no offense, had no friends with property, and he was remanded to the witness detention room.

"That is a little room in which from ten to eighteen men are usually found, white, black and yellow, living there, eating and sleeping there for days, weeks, sometimes at a time. This boy was white and he was innocent. He had committed no offense whatever, and he lived there three months. This was a grand jury offense. It was the summer recess. By the time the new grand jury had returned the indictment and the cause had come to trial, three months had passed.

"Then, for some reason, the charge fell through, and the accused man was discharged. He had not had a day's imprisonment. The boy had had three months. The prison stigma was on him, and, more than that, he had had, for the first time in his life, daily and hourly association with certain hardened criminals. The state compensated him royally. It gave him 50 cents a day for the period of his incarceration, which was exactly $2 a day less than he was making in the job of which the state deprived him. Do you suppose this thing didn't rankle in that boy's mind? It did rankle for years, and it rankles yet. He knew very well that it was because he had no money that this injustice was put upon him.

"Well, of course, he had lost his job. He didn't get another steady job right away. Although those who understood knew he had been detained only as a witness, everybody didn't understand. The prison stigma was on him, and, moreover, the boy was feeling ugly and defiant. His mother had been short of funds while he was away—he was her only support—and there were hard times in the home. He got little temporary jobs, first at one thing and then at another. His mother fell ill when he was out of work and out of money. He took to supply her with comforts. It was a small theft, and he got a short sentence. It scared him. He came out of jail determined to straighten up, get a job and attend to business. He did it. He got a good job and was in it, and life began to look bright once more.

"One day he met the policeman who had arrested him for the theft on the street. They engaged in what he supposed was a friendly conversation. The officer asked him how he was getting along. The young man said he was getting along first rate, told him where he was working, how much he was getting and all about it. The next morning when he went back to work he was handed his wages and discharge in it. The boss told him he was not discharged for having been in jail, but for 'deceit,' because he had not told that he had been in jail when he got the job. Now, I don't accuse that officer of going straight to that employer and losing that man his job. I don't know whether he did or not. The boy didn't know. I am merely telling you the facts.

"After that the young man determined that he would tell his whole story every time he asked for a job. But he never once got a chance to tell it. The minute he said he was a former convict he was ordered out. It was absolutely impossible to get a job on that plan. And finally he got ugly as well as penniless and began the career which ended in the court scene which I described and his sentence to a long term in state's prison.

"Now wasn't the state at least partly responsible for that man's end? It gave him no place to play. For his amusements it licensed the saloon and the low theater. It imprisoned him three months unjustly in that vile detention room. Later when he was let out after a trifling offense which in no wise ought to blight a man's career, it was to face this other penalty which society imposes, which makes an imprisonment, be it only for a day, a sentence for life, because society absolutely refuses to give the former convict another chance.

"The difference made between the man who has money and the man who hasn't permeates all our laws. A man who had been sentenced to jail for ten days said to me the other day: 'I wouldn't mind going to jail so much if the fellow that was with me had to come, too. We were sentenced for just the same thing and got just the same sentence, $10 or ten days in jail. He had the $10 and walked out. I didn't and I've got to go to jail.' Well, what would you do about it?' said I. 'Why can't they let me out on probation and let me work it out?' said he.

"He hit the nail on the head. Fines and imprisonment should never be alternatives for the same offense. They are not in the same category. It is not the same punishment for a man to pay a fine and go to prison. It places no stigma on him to pay a fine; it does not take him away from his business or employment or lose him his job. There are some offenses for which a man should not be allowed to buy himself off. Let every man who commits them go to jail. There are others for which society is sufficiently punished by a fine. Let the man who has money pay this, and let the one who has not, go out under a probation officer and pay it from his wages, knowing that the eye of the law is on him and he can be clapped into jail any minute he tries any funny business."

JAMES BOYS NOT SO BAD.

Had Sense of Humor and Played Joke on Detectives.

Perhaps there is not another man living at the present time who knows more of the life of the famous criminals, Jesse and Frank James, who, thirty years ago, terrorized certain parts of the west with their band of robbers and murderers, than Wilson J. Holbrook, from a farm in Central Missouri, who is in Denver, says the Denver Republican. Mr. Holbrook was the owner of a ranch in the immediate neighborhood of the James farm at the time their names were feared throughout the country in which they were operating. Said Mr. Holbrook last night in speaking of the James boys:

"They were a queer conglomeration of good and evil, the latter quality predominating in most of their lives. I was frequently in their company for long periods and I can truthfully say that I have never known either of them to take a life without provocation. It is true that they placed themselves in position where the necessary provocation must be made by citizens if they would protect their own property, but there was none of the absolute brutal cruelty in the James boys which was often found among other criminals who flourished about that time.

"The bad side of their characters has been told so often that I never lose an opportunity to tell the good things I know to be true concerning them. They both were possessed of a kind of grim humor which is exemplified in the following case:

"The James boys and their companions had taken three officers who had been detailed to capture them. They had no desire to kill them, primarily because they had aroused such a fury of public sentiment against themselves throughout the country that they did not care to stir up more feeling.

"They took the three men, led them into the woods, blindfolded them and then took them to a distant point along a ravine. The drop was some twelve feet. The outlaws kept talking all the time they were approaching the spot of the awful death that was to come to the three by falling thousands of feet down a precipice. Taking three pieces of rope they tied them to a tree and let the other ends hang over the ravine.

"Then fastening the feet of the men so that they would not climb up, they let them down within six inches of the sandy bottom and left them there with the admonition to drop when they wanted to. The three captives, thinking that there were many, many feet between them and the bottom of the precipice, held on to the rope as long as they were able and finally in utter exhaustion they fell upon the soft sand but a few inches below, safe and sound, except for the nervous strain which eventually caused the death of one of them.

"The James boys, particularly Jesse, never talked of their work even among themselves, and I often heard Frank say that he wished he could leave it. Not knowing that they were criminals and meeting them in a city one would like them for they had traits about them which were admirable."

Unusual Mortality Among Members During Past Four Years.

Baltimore, May 7.—The reports of the board of church extension and the board of home missions and church extension were submitted to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church today. They say: An unusual mortality prevailed among the members of the board during the quadrennium. Six bishops have passed from labor to reward. Eight laymen and four ministers were called from the church militant to the church triumphant.

We think that the present general conference should order that the Sunday school collections during the coming quadrennium should be evenly divided between the board of home missions and church extension and the board of foreign missions. The commission ordered that the property should be divided equally; that bequests and legacies be divided equally, and why should the Sunday school collections have been divided unequally during the six months just closing, May 6, 1908?

The report refers to an effort which has been made on recommendation of the general committee to consolidate the principal publications of the two boards and quotes a resolution adopted by a joint meeting of representatives of the two boards at Philadelphia last March. It was the sense of those who took part in this meeting that the consolidation of these publications at the present time is undesirable and impracticable. Continuing, the report says:

Our Methodist city problems no one has yet comprehensively grasped. We have been forced out as pioneers, not only in the method of our literature, but in its matter. What we have printed represents conditions almost as new to literature as if from another world. Gladly would we have availed ourselves of any publications, but none covering our field were in print.

We expect our book publications to be at least self-supporting, and we are glad to state that while we have largely increased the amount and variety of our literary output and have reduced the expenses at the rate of $1,000 per month, we are now conducting the same at a saving of $20,000 over last year's budget. Our ideal is a publication department reaching a million Methodist homes at no cost to the church. We are certainly traveling in that direction.

The recent financial flurry has brought to the office a large number of applications for loans. Some comparatively large applications for loans were received when we were borrowing money from the bank to enable our treasurer to send drafts to the presiding elders that the preachers on new and needy fields might receive their regular quarterly appropriations. We very much need a great increase in the loan fund. There are places where the rates of interest are exorbitant. If we had an increase of even a quarter of a million in our loan fund it would be a great blessing to many struggling churches.

A total of $113,660 has been collected thus far for the relief of the churches in California which suffered from the earthquake and fire on April 18, 1906. It was originally planned to raise $250,000, and the board has placed on record a statement declaring that the efforts to secure a sufficient amount of money to rehabilitate our cause on the Pacific coast must not cease.

It is with much satisfaction that in making our quadrennial report we are able to present an exhibit of sales and earnings which surpass those of any other four years in the long history of the book concern. While the profits of the last fiscal year are not quite equal to those of the previous year, the slight falling off in net earnings is more than accounted for by the reduction in the hours of labor in our manufacturing department during that year from a nine to an eight-hour day, with no reduction in the scale of wages. The total sales during the quadrennium have been $4,175,019, showing an increase over the previous quadrennium of $577,357. The net profits have been $732,999, an increase over the previous four years of $230,301. After providing for the payment of the last dollar of indebtedness, we closed our last fiscal year with cash on hand $51,899, together with surplus investments and fire fund reserve amounting to $668,718, making the total of cash and surplus at the end of the year $723,618. All of our holdings in real estate are now free and clear of incumbrance. The department of publications and sales has made a gratifying showing during each year of the quadrennium. The total sales in this department for the four years amount to $1,463,582, and increase over the previous quadrennium of $157,940. The department suffered a loss in sales by the transfer of the San Francisco business to the Western Methodist Book concern, but benefited by the sales of the new Hymnal, which have been large.

Our aim in publishing and selling has been quality rather than quantity. We believe it is far more important that the literature we distribute should be of the most uplifting and stimulating Christian character that consecrated brains and ready money can produce, than that for a little additional profit we should pander to the questionable demand of the times for light literature, not to call it by stronger terms.

Our long established and successful depositories, located at Boston, Pittsburg and Detroit have contributed their full share to the publishing interests of the church.

In pursuance of a healthy policy established in recent years, dividends to the annual conferences are now declared only from earnings actually in the treasury, rather than from anticipated earnings, as was formerly the usage. We are gratified to report that the dividends paid in this quadrennium aggregate a larger sum than was ever paid in any corresponding period in the history of the concern. It is also gratifying to state that these larger dividends can now be paid without in any way encroaching upon the business necessities of the house. Our periodical literature, in volume of output, and as against all competition, has fully held its own in this quadrennium. These periodicals have been steadily held to a high standard of circulation. Attractive features both in their substance and appearance have been added from time to time, and special helps for beginners have been introduced.

Our inventories as presented from year to year are made up subject to such a scale of discounts as to keep all practical values conservatively and surely fully up to the statements presented in the published exhibits of the concern.

The Most Common Cause of Suffering

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50-cent sizes. For sale by all druggists.

INSTRUCTED FOR BRYAN

Boston, Mass., May 7.—The Democratic state convention today instructed its four delegates-at-large to the national convention to vote for William J. Bryan for the presidential nomination.

James W. Sysam, chairman of the state committee, called the convention to order. Frederick J. Stimson of Dedham was elected temporary chairman. In his speech he discussed principally what he termed "the cyclone of centralization," before which all other issues must give way. The speaker praised W. J. Bryan as a leader who saw the evil coming and promised to fight it.

The platform is as follows:

"The aims of the Massachusetts Democracy are:

"For a government restored to the service of the people devoted to all the people and opposed to privilege; the master not the servant of predatory wealth.

"Corporations forbidden the issue of water stocks, forfeiting charters for political contributions if foreign subject to jurisdiction of state courts.

"Railroads restricted to fair profits on fair valuation, restrained from discrimination by imprisonment of officials.

"Labor protection by the eight-hour law; jury trials for contempts in labor injunctions; public investigation and conciliation of strikes and lockouts; abolition of the fellow servant rule; like rules of competition to labor and capital; abolition of child labor.

"To this end, we in Faneuil hall assembled, instruct the four delegates elected in this convention to cast their votes in the national convention for William J. Bryan."

For the Year 1907-08 Shown by the English Budget.

London, May 7.—The budget for the first time in many years was presented to the house of commons this afternoon by the premier, Mr. Asuith, instead of by the chancellor of the exchequer. Mr. Asquith, who was former chancellor of the exchequer had prepared the budget and it was thought he should himself explain it in parliament.

No budget of recent years has been awaited with as much interest as this one. Everybody was keen to learn of the government's scheme for old age pensions, the house consequently was packed and its galleries were overflowing with visitors.

Mr. Asquith after commenting briefly on the present slackening of trade throughout the world following the boom year of 1907, announced that Great Britain's realized surplus for the year 1907-8 amounted to $23,630,000 which he said would be largely applied to the reduction of the national debt.

ONE MAN KILLED.

In the outlying parts of the city windows were broken, electric wires carried away and trees blown down. Only two steamers put out from this port early on the morning and both of them came back for safety. No other boats will leave before tomorrow, unless the gale moderates.

CANNOT FIND RECORDS IN THE SORENSON CASE.

Chicago, May 7.—Coroner Hoffman today began a search of the records of the coroner's office, police and health departments, with a view to ascertaining if possible whether Max Sorenson, the first husband of Mrs. Guinness, was murdered.

The records show that the body was exhumed September 3, 1900, and that a postmortem was held, but no record of the finding in the case is to be had. It was also found that Carolina Sorenson, a daughter of Mrs. Guinness, died August 2, 1896, and that an infant, age not given, died April 10, 1896. Coroner Hoffman is seeking to ascertain whether there was any insurance on Caroline Sorenson and the younger child.

SHIP'S CREW IN GREAT DANGER

New York, May 7.—The men on the disabled, stranded ship Peter Rickmers are in peril this afternoon. The big ship is plunging helplessly about in a tumbling, pitching sea on a sandbar about a thousand yards off shore, not far from Fire Island. Three of her masts are gone, half of her cargo of case oil has been cast into the sea and she is being pounded by a battery of waves which neither she nor any other ship similarly placed can long endure.

Two life lines were sent out to the Rickmers today when it became apparent that those on board might require quick assistance, but this afternoon, as the waves drove the vessel steadily but slowly westward, the lines gave way and the only link of safety between the ship and shore was destroyed.

In the meantime the Rickmers had begun to feel the effects of the frightful battering she was receiving from the waves. Her seams began to open and the water poured in streams into her hold. Every wave now makes a clean sweep over the ship and three life-saving crews are fighting against the wind and seas in a driving rain, in an attempt to run other lines to the doomed craft.

How An Innocent Boy Was Started on a Criminal Career---Detained Three Months in Prison as a Witness.

Some of the humanely inclined in New Jersey have been trying to get a law through the present session of the legislature which will enable each community to tax itself, if it so elects, for the erection of a building quite separate from the jail, in which witnesses held by the state because they have no bail shall be confined, without coming into contact with prisoners or bearing the odium of having been in jail. Sheriff Frank H. Somer of Essex county, whose enforcement of the "Bishops' law" has made the county of Newark and "all the Oranges" one of the dryest spots on earth on Sunday, is one of those who is working for this measure. He tells this little story in support of his position, says the New York Press:

"Here is a prisoner's dock, reached by three marble steps, and benind it a bronze door which leads into the prisoners' detention room. Facing the judge is an audience of men, women and children. As you scan their faces you can see that they are seamed with lines of care, anxiety and hope deferred. They are relatives of prisoners and the judge is about to pronounce sentence on their husbands, fathers, sons or brothers. A man comes through the bronze door. He keeps his face averted and his eyes fixed on the judge. The judge pronounces on him a sentence of penal servitude—a just sentence. The man turns and goes out, and at that moment a scream rises from the audience. Who is it thus disturbing the dignity of the court? Only a gray-haired old woman, the prisoner's mother. She and he have finally come to the parting of the ways. She will return to a desolate home and he will go for a term of years in a state's prison.

"Now, the old-fashioned way was to lay all the blame on the man and tell how he has brought his mother's gray hairs in sorrow to the grave. That is partly true, no doubt, in every case. But I happen to know that man's whole story. I looked it up and I am acquainted with the facts. He was born in a congested portion of the city of Newark, a portion where every inch of space was covered by tenement houses. They boy went to school. The school was the only thing that society provided for him; the only elevating, improving institution which it sent into his neighborhood. It so happened that the school was right behind the tenement house where he lived. Around that school was a good bit of ground—the only unoccupied space in that neighborhood. At 3 o'clock every afternoon a padlock was put on the gate till 9 the next morning. During these hours it lay there, waste ground. What sort of playground did the boy get? The most vicious one that can be offered any boy in the world—the street of a congested district in a cosmopolitan city.

"The boy belonged to a gang in his neighborhood—a perfectly innocent gang. When he reached working age he found employment. Along about this time his gang found its way through the baize-covered doors of the saloon and began to play games there; games perfectly innocent in themselves and only dangerous because of the environment. Why should not the boy go to the saloon? It was licensed by the state. These boys made their own recreation center in the saloon. There was no other recreation center in that neighborhood except certain theaters. I have sampled these theaters, and I confess that of the two I would rather a son of mine should go to the saloon.

"One night there was a row in that saloon and a man was injured. Everybody ran away except the injured man, who lay on the floor, and this boy, who, confident in his own innocence, stayed to help the wounded man. The police arrived, and the boy was taken into custody as a witness for the state. He was taken through the public streets in custody of the police in such a manner that anybody might suppose that he had been arrested for crime; in itself an offense by the state against a citizen. He was thrown into a police prison cell for the night. The next morning he, with the man who had committed the assault, who had been apprehended during the night, both appeared before the magistrate. The accused man had friends with property who bailed him out, and he went off about his business. The boy, who had committed no offense, had no friends with property, and he was remanded to the witness detention room.

"That is a little room in which from ten to eighteen men are usually found, white, black and yellow, living there, eating and sleeping there for days, weeks, sometimes at a time. This boy was white and he was innocent. He had committed no offense whatever, and he lived there three months. This was a grand jury offense. It was the summer recess. By the time the new grand jury had returned the indictment and the case had come to trial, three months had passed.

"Then, for some reason, the charge fell through, and the accused man was discharged. He had not had a day's imprisonment. The boy had had three months. The prison stigma was on him, and, more than that, he had had, for the first time in his life, daily and hourly association with certain hardened criminals. The state compensated him royally. It gave him 50 cents a day for the period of his incarceration, which was exactly $2 a day less than he was making in the job of which the state deprived him. Do you suppose this thing didn't rankle in that boy's mind? It did rankle for years, and it rankles yet. He knew very well that it was because he had no money that this injustice was put upon him.

"Well, of course, he had lost his job. He didn't get another steady job right away. Although those who understood knew he had been detained only as a witness, everybody didn't understand. The prison stigma was on him, and, moreover, the boy was feeling ugly and defiant. His mother had been short of funds while he was away—he was her only support—and there were hard times in the home. He got little temporary jobs, first at one thing and then at another. His mother fell ill when he was out of work and out of money. He stole to supply her with comforts. It was a small theft, and he got a short sentence. It scared him. He came out of jail determined to straighten up, get a job and attend to business. He did it. He got a good job, did well in it, and life began to look bright once more.

"One day he met the policeman who had arrested him for the theft on the street. They engaged in what he supposed was a friendly conversation. The officer asked him how he was getting along. The young man said he was getting along first rate, told him where he was working, how much he was getting and all about it. The next morning when he went back to work he was handed his wages and discharge in it. The boss told him he was not discharged for having been in jail, but for 'deceit,' because he had not told that he had been in jail when he got the job. Now, I don't acuse that officer of going straight to that employer and losing that man his job. I don't know whether he did or not. The boy didn't know. I am merely telling you the facts.

"After that the young man determined that he would tell his whole story every time he asked for a job. But he never once got a chance to tell it. The minute he said he was a former convict he was ordered out. It was absolutely impossible to get a job on that plan. And finally he got ugly as well as penniless and began the career which ended in the court scene which I described and his sentence to a long term in state's prison.

"Now wasn't the state at least partly responsible for that man's end? It gave him no place to play. For his amusements it licensed the saloon and the low theater. It imprisoned him three months unjustly in that vile detention room. Later when he was let out after a trifling offense which in no wise ought to blight a man's career, it was to face this other penalty which society imposes, which makes an imprisonment, be it only for a day, a sentence for life, because society absolutely refuses to give the former convict another chance.

"The difference made between the man who has money and the man who hasn't permeates all our laws. A man who had been sentenced to jail for ten days said to me the other day: 'I wouldn't mind going to jail so much if the fellow that was with me had to come, too. We were sentenced for just the same thing and got just the same sentence, $10 or ten days in jail. He had the $10 and walked out. I didn't and I've got to go to jail.' Well, what would you do about it?' said I. 'Why can't they let me out on probation and let me work it out?' said he.

"He hit the nail on the head. Fines and imprisonment should never be alternatives for the same offense. They are not in the same category. It is not the same punishment for a man to pay a fine and go to prison It places no stigma on him to pay a fine; it does not take him away from his business or employment or lose him his job. There are some offenses for which a man should not be allowed to buy himself off. Let every man who commits them go to jail. There are others for which society is sufficiently punished by a fine. Let the man who has money pay this, and let the one who has not, go out under a probation officer and pay it from his wages, knowing that the eye of the law is on him and he can be clapped into jail any minute he tries any funny business."

Had Sense of Humor and Played Joke on Detectives.

Perhaps there is not another man living at the present time who knows more of the life of the famous criminals, Jesse and Frank James, who, thirty years ago, terrorized certain parts of the west with their band of robbers and murderers, than Wilson J. Holbrook, from a farm in Central Missouri, who is in Denver, says the Denver Republican. Mr. Holbrook was the owner of a ranch in the immediate neighborhood of the James farm at the time their names were feared throughout the country in which they were operating. Said Mr. Holbrook last night in speaking of the James boys:

"They were a queer conglomeration of good and evil, the latter quality predominating in most of their lives. I was frequently in their company for long periods and I can truthfully say that I have never known either of them to take a life without provocation. It is true they placed themselves in position where the necessary provocation must be made by citizens if they would protect their own property, but there was none of the absolute brutal cruelty in the James boys which was often found among other criminals who flourished about that time.

"The bad side of their characters has been told so often that I never lose an opportunity to tell the good things I know to be true concerning them. They both were possessed of a kind of grim humor which is exemplified in the following case:

"The James boys and their companions had taken three officers who had been detailed to capture them. They had no desire to kill them, primarily because they had aroused such a fury of public sentiment against themselves throughout the country that they did not care to stir up more feeling.

"They took the three men, led them into the woods, blindfolded them and then took them to a distant point along a ravine. The drop was some twelve feet. The outlaws kept talking all the time they were approaching the spot of the awful death that was to come to the three by falling thousands of feet down a precipice. Taking three pieces of rope they tied them to a tree and let the other ends hang over the ravine.

"Then fastening the feet of the men so that they could not climb up, they let them down within six inches of the sandy bottom and left them there with the admonition to drop when they wanted to. The three captives, thinking that there were many, many feet between them and the bottom of the precipice, held on to the rope as long as they were able and finally in utter exhaustion they fell upon the soft sand but a few inches below, safe and sound, except for the nervous strain which eventually caused the death of one of them.

"The James boys particularly Jesse, never talked of their work even among themselves, and I often heard Frank say that he wished he could leave it. Not knowing that they were criminals and meeting them in a city one would like them for they had traits about them which were admirable."

ZEPHIRE RABIE GETS JUDGMENT

Rat Portage Company Must Pay Him 65 Cents.

Judgment for 65 cents was entered in municipal court this morning in favor of the plaintiff, in the case of Zephire Rabie, against the Rat Portage Lumber company.

April 21, Rabie brought suit for $9.25, alleged to be due him as wages. April 30 the company paid him $8.60, but he insisted on getting the balance of 65 cents. The defendant failed to show up in court to fight the claim, and, accordingly judgment of 65 cents was entered. The costs of the case runs the total up to $13.50.

Rabie claims to have worked one month and six days for the Rat Portage people, between Nov. 26 and Jan. 2. When the company paid him there was a difference of $9.25 between his figures and theirs. They refused to pay, and he brought suit.

APPRAISERS REPORT AWARDS OF DAMAGES

County Board Appropriates $286,376.05 to Cover Total Amount.

County May Now Take Immediate Possession of Courthouse Site.

St. Louis county may take immediate possession of the proposed courthouse site at the intersection of Fifth avenue west and Second street.

Based on the report of the appraisers, which was filed in the district court yesterday afternoon, the county board this morning appropriated $286,376.05 from the county general revenue and courthouse sinking funds to pay the awards of damages, as determined by the three appraisers appointed by the court in the condemnation proceedings. The appraisers were George R. Laybourn, Thomas W. Hoopes and Renwick B. Knox.

The money is available to the owners now if they care to accept the awards. If the owners object to the awards they have thirty days in which to take an appeal. The county has the same privilege.

The awards are as follows:

Lots 73 and 75, block 29, Third division, and fractional lot 73, West Second street, owned by A. M. Miller	34,761.55
Lots 84 and 82, block 20, owned by Electra W. Spalding	51,527.10

The appraisers were on their work for nine days.

The amount of damages appraised S. I. Levin and the Cash estate are identical with the options given by the owners to the county. These two amounts will be paid out of the courthouse sinking fund. The damages in the other cases will be paid out of the county general revenue fund.

The work connected with the condemnation proceedings, the looking up of titles, owners, etc., and the sifting of the testimony as regards the valuations to be placed on the various properties has been no inconsiderable task and the speed with which the transactions have been carried through reflects much credit on the board of appraisers and Assistant County Attorney W. J. Stevenson, who has looked after the legal phases.

The resolution appropriating the money from the county funds to cover the awards was introduced by Commissioner McInnis and the county commissioners voted unanimously in the proposition.

RAILROAD NEWS

FAST TIME BEING MADE

Through Freights to the Coast Are Breaking All Records.

Few Delays Are Now Encountered in Handling Freight.

Through and local freight from Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis, over the Northern Pacific railway, is moving at a rate of speed that has not been attained for a period of five years prior to the present time. Both through and local freight is making coast points in approximately seven days, which is equal to the time made by the fast through freight in the years intervening since 1903.

Although it must be admitted that one of the causes for the efficient service that is being given to shippers at the present time, is the small volume of traffic, this cause has not been the principal factor in cutting down the running time between this city and Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and other coast points.

The service has reached a point of efficiency where but few delays are encountered in the handling of local freight and the running time has thereby gained accordingly. It is not so much the speed attained by a freight train as it is in the delays encountered that counts for time. The present service to the coast is losing a little more than six hours' time on the long run across the western half of the continent. This fast time in reaching the Western destination is due to promptness all along the line and the number of cars that at the present time are at the disposal of the road.

The following train report, received by T. E. Blanche this morning, shows how close the through and local freight trains leaving St. Paul, Minneapolis, the Minnesota Transfer and Duluth & Superior are running on schedule time:

St. Paul, Minneapolis, Minnesota Transfer, Duluth & Superior to Miles City, Mont., schedule time 35½ hours, average time, 34; Butte, Mont., schedule time, 85 hours, average, 86; Spokane, Wash., schedule time, 107½ hours, average 109½; Seattle, Wash., schedule time, 142½ hours, average, 148½; Tacoma, Wash., schedule time, 143 hours, average, 149; Portland, Or., schedule time, 155½ hours, average, 161½.

LONG TASK FINISHED

W. R. Gillis and William Getty Complete Work for Railroad.

After five years' hard and diplomatic service in the employ of the Wisconsin Central road, in surveying the right-of-way into Duluth, and the acquisition of the same, Col. W. R. Gillis, assistant engineer, and William Getty of this city, will sever their connection with the railway company May 10 next.

When the Wisconsin Central people began to plan their extension line from Ladysmith, Wis., to the Head of the Lakes, the officials of the company looked about for men who were in thorough touch with the local conditions, and in whom the company would have confidence to intrust the work of laying out a road and securing the right-of-way. Col. Gillis and Mr. Getty were selected, and the progress thus far made, together with the prospects ahead when the new road and its terminals are completed, bespeak something of the successful manner in which Col. Gillis and Mr. Getty have carried out their duties.

One of the most interesting features about their work is the fact that a right-of-way practically through Duluth's industrial and business center has been acquired with comparatively few lawsuits. There are said to be few instances on record where a railroad entered a city of prominence by a right-of-way taking in such property as it does in Duluth, where the litigation has been so small. The policy of the local representatives of the Wisconsin Central road was of a liberal nature, and they were, in the main, very successful in securing the right-of-way wanted without going into courts with the owners.

Col. Gillis and Mr. Getty, when they retire from their service with the Wisconsin Central road, will be able to do so with the satisfaction of knowing their work to have been well done.

The task of acquiring the titles to the various parcels of properties wanted by the road was an arduous one, as some of the owners lived in other lands. Mr. Getty secured options to some of the property two years before it was generally known what railroad was to occupy the land. The company now owns ten miles of right-of-way within the city limits of Duluth and Superior.

The property acquired in Duluth represents an outlay of about $1,200,000, while the right-of-way in Douglas county, Wis., cost about $500,000.

It is expected that the first trains will be run into the city by July 1 next.

ADVOCATES NEW SCHOOL

Supt. Gilpin Urges Establishment of County School of Agriculture.

County Board Will Investigate the Proposition This Month.

County Superintendent of Schools S. W. Gilpin appeared before the county board this morning and urged the matter of the establishment of a county school of agriculture, according to the provisions of the law passed by the last legislature.

Mr. Gilpin stated at some length the necessity of such a school by reason of the fact that this northern country is fast developing along the lines of agriculture and dairying and the country pupils should have a school where they may receive instruction along special lines that will fit them for the vocation of agriculturists. Mr. Gilpin emphasized the fact that the town and city schools do not offer the country pupils the sort of special training they desire and the majority of them are not in a position financially to finish the common schools and then attend the state agricultural school.

The county school of agriculture, Mr. Gilpin claimed, would provide just the sort of higher education that the farmer boys and girls need most.

While the law contemplates that the county school of agriculture, wherever established, will ultimately be self-supporting, the tuition will be free to the pupils from the home county. The school should have at least ten acres of ground about it for cultivation.

According to Mr. Gilpin's estimate it would require a levy of about 17 cents per $1,000 valuation to raise the money necessary to get the school started. The law provides that the maximum amount to be levied for the school, in any one year cannot exceed $20,000.

The commissioners were urged by Mr. Gilpin to provide for a special election, at which the people of the county may indicate their desires in the matter. The school cannot be established unless the people vote a levy for that purpose. The main point just now is to give the people the opportunity of saying whether they want the county agricultural school.

While the board took no action in the matter this morning, it was understood that the commissioners will investigate further, and the subject will come up again at the June meeting of the board.

John Johnson of Biwabik served notice on the county board that he intends to close up the highway across his land, in the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 17, 57-15. If he does it there is likely to be trouble, for the commissioners claim the road has been in use ten ears, and is, therefore, a legalized highway. The county attorney was directed to advise Johnson against taking any hasty action.

A communication from Dr. R. Lord of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, directed to the Commercial club, urging that body to use its influence with the board to get a road to a number of settlers between Duluth and Two Harbors, who recently came from Iowa points, was submitted to the commissioners. It is claimed that only about a mile of the road asked for would be within St. Louis county, the remainder in Lake county. Some of the commissioners thought there was serious difficulties in the way of road construction, by reason of the rough country to be traversed.

Three renewals of liquor licenses were received and filed. William Orr wants to continue his saloon at Pelican Lake. Mrs. L. Briggs wants to sell booze at Ash Lake. The Virginia Lumber company has asked that no license be granted there. Hugh McCoy wants a renewal of the Frank Dungal license, in the town of Great Scott.

Sheriff Bates has asked the board for a steel cage for the emergency hospital to avoid the expense of keeping guards there for the county jail prisoners who contract contagious diseases. Some action will be taken on the request this afternoon.

Notice was received from the officers in charge of the state school at Owatonna that Benjamin Wakefield, a boy sent there from this county in April, has tuberculosis and should be sent to a sanitarium. This means an expense of $7 a week and the school authorities want to know if the county will stand for it. If not, the boy will be sent back here and will become a county charge anyway. The claims and account committee will determine the best action for the board to take in the matter.

Six applications were made for the positions of janitor or watchman at the courthouse, but no action was taken this morning by the board.

A. J. Meagher and twenty-five or thirty other residents of Floodwood petitioned the board for an examination of the books and accounts of school district No. 19.

Five petitions were received for new county roads and one petition for the organization of the town of Wuori out of the unorganized town of 59-17. The name means "The Town on the Hill." Some of the commissioners suggested that it mean "worry" for the county auditor's office.

The board adjourned until 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

THEY MADE IT STRONG!

Minnesota declared for Governor Johnson at the caucus last night in emphatic terms. It is another "Johnson landslide," and once more the people of Minnesota have shown their confidence in this self-made chieftain of men. The verdict is overwhelming, as it should have been. Johnson delegates will have unanimous control of many county conventions, a very large majority in nearly all the counties, and will lose only a very few. The state convention will be practically all one way.

It has been a spirited contest, but no bones are broken, and little bitterness will remain. With the exception of a very few of the Johnson opponents, it is safe to say that the great majority of the rank and file of the party, no matter how they voted at the caucuses, are glad that it turned out as it did; glad that Governor Johnson has been given the support of his home state in a most emphatic manner; glad that the state is not to be stained with the blot of ingratitude, as it would have been had the opponents of this indorsement succeeded. The fight against him never should have been made. It is one of the most shameful and regrettable political manifestations ever set going in Minnesota. The outcome is not only a deserved tribute to Governor Johnson, but its crushing character is a deserved rebuke to the few self-seeking, jealous, disappointed and bitter politicians whose venom has thus produced their own humiliating defeat.

The result could hardly have been otherwise. No citizen of Minnesota who had confidence in the public spirit and sound sense of his fellow citizens believed that it could end differently, and the outcome is distinctly encouraging to deserving public servants, as it is proof that distinguished public service cannot be rebuked at the instigation of envious, self-seeking politicians while the people remain as wide awake as they are today.

ONLY A STEP.

While the employers' liability law which congress has passed and the president has approved is a step in advance, it must not be thought for a moment that it represents the complete fulfillment of the theory that the employer should assume a greater responsibility for the safety and well-being of his employes and their dependents than he has had in the past.

The chief evils of the system of personal injury litigation still exist, under this law no less than under all other similar laws in this country. Besides, this law applies only to railroads, and takes no account of the many other lines of industry in which similar protection is needed.

This act gives to the injured railroad employe or his dependents an assurance of having a cause of action in case of injury or death, but it stops there. It puts upon the employe the burden of proving in court that the injury involved resulted from the negligence of some officer, agent or employe of the railroad concerned, or because of "some defect or insufficiency, due to its negligence, in its cars, engines, appliances, machinery, track, roadbed, works, boats, wharves or other equipment."

This means that the courts will still be congested with personal injury litigation. It means that the employers will still have to maintain elaborate and expensive systems for defence against this class of litigation, including high-priced lawyers, claim agents and secret service men. It means that the injured employes will still have to go into court with the best attorneys their means will secure for them, that they will have to fight their causes through all the stages of litigation and over all the obstacles of demurrers, postponement, appeals and new trials that ingenious lawyers can devise, and that they will have to divide their victory, if they win, with their attorneys.

This system, as The Herald has pointed out repeatedly, is expensive for the taxpayers, obstructive to other litigation, and costly to both plaintiffs and defendants.

What is needed is a system of law under which the employer will be compelled to bear the burden of risk attending employment, and neither party will have to go into court to force or oppose a meritorious claim; while "fake" claims cannot be cooked up in the hope that thoughtlessly sympathetic or corporation-hating juries may possibly grant verdicts.

Such a system as this prevails in practically every civilized country of the world except this one. Countries where political freedom has not been attained, and where, presumably, conditions are a century behind those in this country, have laws under which the amounts of damages are definitely fixed, and the liability of employers to pay them definitely settled. There are no "personal injury" cases in such countries, no "ambulance-chasers," and no courts congested and hampered in their legitimate functions by masses of litigation between employer and employe.

A LESSON IN JOURNALISM.

A number of students in the University of Kansas who are taking a course in journalism were given a touch of real practical experience the other day that will without doubt be of great profit to them, because it proved that newspaper life is not all "beer and skittles," that it has its real problems which are not always easily disposed of by ingenious theory, and that it carries duties and responsibilities which are more important than its pleasures and profits—when there are pleasures or profits.

Not long ago the class in journalism was given permission to get out an issue of the Lawrence, Kan., Journal. The editor took his force on a picnic, and the students prepared themselves for their task. For weeks beforehand the young men and women of the class in journalism worked on their plans for that edition. They intended it to be a model of high idealism. One member of the class, who had received his primary newspaper education in the hard knocks of real newspaper work, and who therefore knew some things about it that no school of journalism can teach, was made managing editor. Either through his motion or that of some other member of the class, the new editorial staff decided to take a fling at "reform journalism."

So a good deal of space, local and editorial, was devoted to exposing the "joints" of Lawrence. This task was performed with commendable realism and definiteness. Not only did these embryo editors tell the names and locations of the "joints," but, better still, they ferreted out and published the names of the highly respectable persons who owned the buildings in which the unlawful resorts were conducted.

The edition was a great success. It stirred the town of Lawrence as it had not been stirred before. It was a real "sensation," and the class in journalism accomplished a "scoop" which ought to have been vastly humiliating to the regular editor.

But it didn't end there. Publicity had its usual result. Though probably every citizen of Lawrence had known all along that the "joints" existed in defiance of the prohibition law and the laws of decency, and had known, too, that some of their "most highly esteemed" and "prominent" citizens were accessories before the fact through their ownership of the buildings which had been diverted to unlawful uses, nothing very exciting happened about it until it "got into the paper."

Then the students who had done this thing realized that when they had written their stories and had scanned with ill-concealed pride the flaring headlines and double-leaded columns which were their handiwork, their duty was not completed, as they had fancied.

They had not expected that they would be called upon to prove their cases in court, but that is exactly what has happened. They have been called as witnesses against the resorts which they exposed, the prosecuting attorney and the grand jury having taken a hint from their expose. There is small doubt that they will be able to prove their cases, however, and the experience will teach them a needed lesson: that they must not, in their journalistic careers, speak otherwise than by the card, and that when they spring their "sensations," they must be well grounded in the facts and prepared to stand by them.

THE FLY MUST GO.

The old saying "as harmless as a fly," and that other old saying, to express gentleness, that "he would not even harm a fly," are being put out of use by the discovery that the fly is by no means harmless, and that it is a very meritorious and public-spirited action to kill as many flies as possible.

A committee of the Merchants' association of New York has taken up an anti-fly crusade, and a systematic campaign will be waged against this household pest, with the object of extermination.

It has been discovered that the fly is a prolific distributor of disease germs. Born in filth and finding his most congenial refuge in filth, the fly sails complacently from it to our homes, and deposits his burden of disease upon the furnishings of our dinner table.

Formerly the fly was regarded as only a nuisance. The housewife kept up an instinctive and unceasing battle against him. We barred our doors and windows against him by screens, but he popped in whenever a door was opened, and flew immediately to feast upon our food. It was bad enough before it was suspected that the fly brought danger with him, because we knew that the foul associations of his birth and his living habits made him undesirable as a household companion. But now that we know that he carries with him the message of death, that he visits us fresh from contact with filth and vileness, that before he came to us he rested upon the sputum of the consumptive and associated with the germs of typhoid fever; now that we know these things, it must be war to the death between us and him.

The New York committee that has taken up this fight alleges, after a thorough investigation, that in New York alone 7,500 deaths from typhoid fever every year are due to the germ-carrying capacity of flies. How many more are due to the germs of other diseases that flies carry with them no man can say.

The mosquito, too, has come into the same evil category. It has been established that yellow fever and malaria are spread only through the medium of certain mosquitoes, and the discovery has made it possible to stamp out these diseases. We have mosquitoes in the north, but no malaria or yellow fever. As yet they are only nuisances. Yet that was all they were supposed to be in the fever and malaria countries before it was discovered that they spread these diseases. Some one may yet discover that in northern latitudes they make specialties of other deadly ills.

THE BREAD LINE VANISHING.

One of the most encouraging news items that has appeared in some time was the announcement in The Herald last night that the bread line, which swelled to 300 members a little over a month ago, has dwindled to a very few, and that the prospects are that these will shortly vanish at the beck of useful employment.

The bread line, which is a blot upon civilization, a rebuke to our social system, and a proof of society's mismanagement, has been a very unpleasant outcome of the depression following panic. Capital, drunken with successful exploitation, committed excesses that led to reaction, and then, affrighted at the results of its debauch, sulked in its tent and refused to work, thus throwing thousands of men out of employment. These men, anxious only for a chance to earn an honest day's pay by an honest day's work, were forcibly subjected to the ignominy of charity. Duluth did the best it could with the unemployed that fell to its care, in spite of the protests and silly fears of those whose distaste for the poor and downtrodden was instinctive.

The disappearance of the bread line means that better times have come, and that these men who have always had an inherent right to work have at last been granted the chance to work. It means the parting of the clouds of doubt and discouragement that lowered upon the financial sky, and it means that they will shortly disappear.

The nation will hope that there is no truth in the alarming reports about the health of its only living ex-president.

The development of the Mesaba range is proved again by the fact that it now has three semi-weekly newspapers, the Hibbing Tribune, the Virginia Virginian and the Eveleth News.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

In discussing the saloon question last night at the St. Louis hotel, A. P. Mosher of Chicago stated that the brewers, represented by the American Brewers' association, at the coming meeting, to be held in Milwaukee in the near future, would adopt plans of their own volition that would have a tendency to work radical changes in the saloon.

The spread of the "dry" movement has awakened the brewers of the entire country to the menace that is confronting the saloon, according to Mr. Mosher. Circulars have been sent from Chicago brewers calling the Eastern brewers to action, and the Milwaukee meeting has been chosen as the place where one of the problems of the saloon will be dealt with. They are going to handle the problem without gloves, too, says Mr. Mosher, if the program under consideration at the present time is carried out.

The brewers realize that the tough saloon is the worst enemy to the saloon business that could possibly exist. They realize, further, that unless some radical change of sentiment occurs in the near future, the existence of the saloon as an established institution is threatened. They are going to try to bring about a change. They are fighting for "wet" territory, as it were. They have watched the encroachment of the prohibition movement into what they believed to be radical anti-prohibition territory, such as certain Southern districts that were turned into prohibition districts at the last elections. They have viewed with alarm the shutting off of districts where immense profits were derived, and view with equal alarm the shrinking of the liquor belt. Its area has undergone a wonderful change, and it is to put a stop to the sentiment against the saloon that the brewers propose to take up the role of reformers.

They are going to make one of the most radical reforms come from within the ranks of the liquor interests. They are attempting to stem the tide of anti-saloon sentiment by abolishing the tough saloon and working reforms in the conduct of the saloons in general. They are sincere in this desire, says Mr. Mosher, for their sincerity has been brought on by a knowledge that radical action of a reform nature is the only thing that can possibly save the saloon from becoming an institution restricted to a decidedly limited area.

The brewers propose to refuse the issuance of licenses that are controlled in the name of the breweries. They also propose to exert their influence to prevent the tough saloons from securing licenses from the various city licensing boards. All the saloons controlled by the brewers will be subjected to the most strict regulations, if the present program is carried out. The law will be carried out to the very letter, the brewers becoming the leaders in seeing that saloons do not violate the liquor laws. If they carry out their present resolutions, they will place the liquor traffic upon a solid business basis, if such a thing is possible, and cut out the hang-out saloon, where criminals are bred and harbored.

Every member of the association will be asked to do his part in carrying out the new program. A country-wide reform in the ranks of the saloon will be attempted. The low brows, who swing a shortened section of lead pipe, from the rear of the thirst stand, those others who conduct a growing if nefarious business of reducing the visible amount of change in the pockets of an overwhelmed victim of the beverage, will be forced into more open ways of highway robbery, if the better class of brewers have their way—and while the saloon will never exactly become the meeting place for any civic league reform meetings, the brewers are going to try to place it on a plane of comparative respectability that will banish some of the adverse sentiment that is resulting in a rapidly diminishing liquor area.

A traveling man in the lobby of one of the hotels last evening asked a rather seedy individual whom he thought would be elected president.

"Don't know," came the reply.

"Come now," urged the commercial man; "Johnson, Bryan or Taft?"

The naming of the candidates gained no expression of preference from the man who apparently had no choice.

"Who do you think has the best show?" asked the traveling man.

"Ringling Brothers," he exclaimed, with an air of absolute conviction.

Some of the collection came from Germany and are examples of the decorators' art. The collection contains steins from many countries of Europe and they have been distributed in the German, French and Italian rooms.

THE WEATHER.

Again the morning dawned brilliantly clear, warm and beautiful; and again, later in the morning, did clouds obscure the sky. But they were dry-looking clouds, and promised no rain, though showers would be welcome, and the weather man expects generally fair weather tonight and tomorrow, though he says it will be cooler tonight, with possibly frost. Last night's lowest temperature was 41 degs. and yesterday's highest was 49 degs.

A year ago today it was cloudy and cool.

The sun rose this morning at 4:24 and sets tonight at 7:26, making 14 hours and 44 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The center of the southern storm has advanced northward to Ohio. During the past twenty-four hours it caused light to heavy rains in most districts east of the Mississippi river and strong northerly winds in the lake region. It is somewhat cooler over southern states due to rising pressures. An area of high barometer central over Western Ontario and the Dakotas caused light to heavy frosts throughout the Missouri valley, Nebraska and Kansas. The barometer continues low and falling in the Far Northewst.

"I am sure he is a man of very high descent."

Washington Star: "How did your town come to embrace prohibition?"

"Well, sir," answered Col. Stilwell, "as near as I can figure it out it was a sort of spite work. A lot of men were willing to deprive themselves for the sake of playing a sort of practical joke on the others."

Philadelphia Ledger: "Can you be trusted with a secret?" he asked.

Chicago Tribune: City Nephew (entertaining him at the club)—Well, Uncle Henry, if you've had enough dinner we'll stroll down to the gymnasium and see what the boys are doing. By the way, do you ever bowl?"

Uncle Henry (wiping his mouth)—Not often, William, but when I do it's jinner'ly about this time of day.

"Why do you send your son to such a place as X college?"

"Why, I understand it has the highest reputation for the solidity of its learning and especially for its proficiency in the classics."

"That may be, but its football team hasn't won a single intercollegiate victory since it was formed."

MILLER AND BEDE.

Wahkon Enterprise: It looks very much as though Hon. C. B. Miller of Duluth, would look after the interests of the people of this district in congress after the expiration of the present term.

Eveleth Star: Joking to one side and right down to business and speaking as a real friend, J. Adam Bede is up against the real thing at this writing. If the elections were pulled off tomorrow and Bede and Miller in the fight, Adam would be retired from congress. But wait a minute, we have not yet finished, for there are several weeks ahead, in fact, almost five months before the primaries. J. Adam has not started into active work, and upon his work and the manner in which he builds his fences depend in great measure the results in September.

Biwabik Times: We are compelled to admit that the more we hear of C. B. Miller the more we are inclined to tender him our support in the congressional campaign. The Duluth people say that he is the man for the place and insist that he will not be the kind of man who will allow the Zenith City to hog it all. It is possible that he is just the man to walk off with J. Adam's scalp.

Virginia Virginian: J. Adam no doubt saw the handwriting at the district convention held at Pine City. If he didn't he should consult an eye specialist before again appearing at a political meeting in the Eighth district.

Hibbing Tribune: When our congressmen represent nothing but the Cannon-Payne-Dalzell crowd and when they can never raise their voices except in defense of such "leaders"—well, it is high time that they do it without paying them $7,500 per year for it.

Anoka Free Press: Would the Republicans of this district rather a Republican or a Democrat represent them in the matter of tariff revision? Bede, if he is anything, is a free trade Democrat, or was until he decided that he wanted office.

Virginia Virginian: A few scattering editors in this district seem to think that when Mr. Bede, the man with the many promises, begins to repair his fences he will be able to gather enough of his old flock into his fold to re-elect him to congress this fall. The few scattering ones are mistaken. Mr. Bede has paid so little attention to his fences that they are down in all parts of the district, and it will require more than five months to make them strong enough to withstand the Miller stampede. Bede has been tried and found wanting and the people of this district want no more of him.

Eveleth Star: If Adam Bede expects his old friends to stand by him, he will have to give up his eulogy of Uncle Joe Cannon. Men today who read the Congressional Record and the daily press, know about as much of what is going on as most congressmen. Uncle Joe is today pretty well fossilized.

Tower News: As the weeks pass the opposition to Congressman Bede seems to gain strength. The disfavor toward the congressman seems to grow from the fact that during his terms in office his works have simply been "bluff."

Overworked.

Washington Star: Miss Geraldine Farrar honored with her presence a Lenten luncheon of debutantes in New York.

Miss Farrar told the debutantes that there was happiness in work. She urged work upon all of them. Work, she said, would preserve them from degeneration into such a type as Mrs. Rose of Melrose. "Mrs. Rose's type is too familiar," she said. "To show you the sort she is:

"Mr. Rose came home from business. Mrs. Rose lay on a couch. He sat down by her side and said:

"'What did the doctor say, dear?'

"'He asked me to put out my tongue,' murmured Mrs. Rose.

"'Yes?'

"'And he looked at it and said, "Overworked."'

"'Then, my dear,' he said, firmly, 'you'll have to give it a rest. I have perfect confidence in that doctor.'"

Black Ballots

The negro does not vote—in the South. That is the palpable truth, and truth is always interesting.

Southern elections have become almost dull. Unwarlike citizens go to the polls, and their hip pockets are distressingly empty. Nowadays it is legal regulation, and not a shotgun, which is disfranchising the negro.

DATE TO BE NEXT WEEK

City Cleaning Day Will Probably be Next Wednesday.

Commissioner Patton Divides Duluth into Nine Sanitary Districts.

Probably next Wednesday will be set aside by Mayor R. D. Haven as cleaning day in Duluth. The mayor said this morning that he would be ready Saturday or Monday to issue a proclamation in regard to the day, and that the date would be about the middle of next week, very likely on Wednesday.

This one day will be set aside for a general cleanup of the city, and everybody will be expected to turn in and help, doing whatever they can to put their property in a more sightly condition. Front and back yards and vacant lots will come in for special attention. City employes will work in conjunction with private property owners, and Duluth will undergo such a scouring as she has never experienced before.

Health Commissioner Patton has divided the city up into nine sanitary districts, with an inspector in the employ of the department in each district. It will be the duty of these inspectors to see that everything is put in a sanitary shape, and kept that way. The new districts will mean the employment of about six more men than are now in the service of the department. They cannot be retained the year round, because of a lack of funds, but their services will be at the disposal of the city for two or three months at least, and by that time the need for them will not be so urgent.

In connection with the general movement toward cleaning up the city, the board of public works yesterday received the two new street flushing machines ordered recently, and today they are being tried out on First street, between First avenue east and Sixth avenue west, furnishing a pressure eual to that at the hydrant from which the water to fill the tanks are taken. The force of the stream is sufficient to sweep the street clean. Thus the street is cleaned and sprinkled at the same time. The flushers showed up very well in the experiments today, and it is believed their operation will prove a success.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The sewing society was meeting.

It was not a real sewing society, but whenever a few women are gathered together for conversation, they usually sew at the same time. Men smoke, but somehow their meeting for smoke and talk has none of the opprobium attached which makes a sewing "society" something of a hissing and a by-word.

"I must begin house-cleaning next week," said the woman, who was domestically engaged in darnign sox. "And I do dread it so," she said, with a little housewifely sigh.

"So must I," said the fashionable-looking woman, who had purchased puffs pinned onto her coiffure. "And it is fearful to contemplate. It's the hardest thing in the world to get our rental agent to do a thing, and the house is in the worst sort of condition. I told him the other day that we just couldn't stand it, and that if he didn't fix it up we'd move, and then I was scared to death nearly for fear he wouldn't, and wherever we'd go I can't tell."

And then a bomb was exploded in the midst of that quiet and peaceful and sweetly domestic scene. The bride spoke.

"I don't believe in house-cleaning," she said.

An awful silence followed that anarchistic statement—a silence which suggested that the American home was tottering on feeble foundati ons; that the virtue of the women was being assailed; that if the happiness of the men fo the country had to be entrusted to such frail and unworthy hands, what could one expect but that divorce and destruction should follow in a gray and dismal wake.

"And John says——" went on the bride.

"John!" said she of the puffs, contemptuously, "What does John know about it?"

"Not much, I suppose," said John's wife. "But then he has always lived in a house. And a house that has always been house-cleaned, too. I don't believe in taking the paper off the walls and pulling up the floors and making everybody uncomfortable for a series of days, and you yourself looking like time for six or seven days, just doing what everybody else is doing. With hardwood floors it isn't necessary."

"I used to talk like that," said the one who was darning sox, as she pushed the darner clear through a hole and brought it out on the other side. "I don't believe it's worth while to darn that stocking," she said.

"Anyhow, I don't believe in cleaning house," said the bride, in a very pleasant tone.

But she did not know that she would be shut out from association with her kind if she didn't.

She telephoned to a friend the next day and invited her over to chat and sew and drink tea and enjoy herself. "I can't," said the friend, I'm cleaning house."

"Oh," said the bride. "I don't believe in cleaning house," she said, as she rang off.

She telephoned another friend with an invitation to go to the matinee. "I can't," said the friend. 'I'm cleaning house."

"Oh," said the bride. 'I don't believe in cleaning house," she said, in a kind of relaxed and uninterested tone. And rang off.

She called another friend. "Let's go and call on that new girl, this afternoon," she suggested.

"I can't," said her friend. "I'm cetaning house."

"Oh, are you?" asked the bride. "What originality!" she said pettishly as she hung up the receiver.

And then the bride sat down and gazed straight ahead of her. She felt lonely and deserted and left out of everything. And then suddenly she saw that the front room curtains, which had appeared perfectly immaculate the day before were folding layers of the winter's dust between their folds and she saw a wisp of soft gray dust creep in a tantalizing manner across the floor.

"Sakes, alive," said the bride. "What do you think of that?"

And in a few minutes she had whisked off her afternoon gown and was into one of gingham. Her madonna puff was unpinned and laid away in the dressing table drawer and her hair was pulled back in unbecoming severity. She wrapped her head in a dusting cloth and she rolled up her sleeves. She telephoned to the woman who comes to help her once every week and engaged her for three extra days. She telephoned for a man to come and beat the rugs. She gave orders to have the furnace fire die out. She forgot meals; she saw that it was absolutely necessary that a new rug be purchased for the bath room; she knew that the picture of "Night" and "Morning," which she had received in a set for a wedding present would have to have their places changed if she was to fulfill all her dutles as a worthy wife.

Brimless Hats.

Gloom will be seen under many a barrel-sized hat of the "Riotous Relict" or Gainsborough type when the most recent news from Paris spreads. The monster hat had ephemeral life in the French capital, and is seen no more among the elect. In its place reigns the brimless affair, just a medley of lace and flowers, with a sweeping bird-of-paradise plume the only conspicuous ornament.

Simple Luxury.

There will be few women this year who can afford the luxury of simple dressing. For a tour of the shops reveals the fact that a hat with one chaste plume in its side and one reserved-looking rosette under the brim will cost three times as much as the fussy thing that is covered with flowers and owns so many feathers you expect to hear it squawk. It reveals, too, the distressing truth that it is not the little gowns with flossy ruffles and insertion and didoes which oppresses the purse and makes glad the eye. On the contrary, the dress which costs money is some stern-looking drapery unadorned by fold, or embroidery, or spangle—some echo, in fact, from the pastoral slopes of Ida.

But the hardest blight falls upon her who has a preference for "boiled" shirtwaists. For the prices of these are decidedly not boiled, and the woman who wants to wear one of those smart, mannish things with cuffs and collars will find that a $5 bill, and then some, will have to go to the pompadoured lady behind the counter. This is for plain white ones, too. As for the mannish waist with freckles of pink or blue or brown on its cuffs and collar—well, that's for those who never heard of a panic.

On Heaven.

"If I could be out of physical pain," said a lifelong invalid, 'I would ask no other heaven." "If I could be in a place where I might know that my husband never could be killed on the train!" cried one of the gentle "worriers," whose capacity for suffering is neither understood nor respected by the sanguine. • • • "If I could take my children to a world where every time I hear a croupy cough my heart did not stand still with terror," urged another, "that would be heaven for me." The mulatto girl who burst into joyful tears at first sight of a marble bust of herself, "because it was white,' had a glimpse of her heaven before its time, says Elizabeth Stuart Phelps in Harper's Bazar.

"Heaven must be like any other form of happiness, only 'more so,'" said a thoughtful man. "And the conditions of happiness are three; a clean conscience, something to do, and some one to love."

DOUBLE-TRAINED

Ethel Barrymore Introduces New Skirt to Fashion World.

Miss Ethel Barrymore has introduced a new skirt to the world of fashion, and from the mere idea of her adopting it the impression is conveyed that the style will be widely imitated. It is a double train that has caused the mild flurry of excitement in the world of dress.

It was introduced at one of Mrs. Clarence Mackay's Sunday evening musicales, where Miss Barrymore, who wore it, was the center of an interested group.

The gown was extravagantly simple and had the Paris cachet all over it. It was made of American beauty colored supple satin, draped so as to fully outline the figure, the lines in the skirt ending in two pointed trains, three feet long on either side, while the back was scooped out like a butterfly's wing. It is technically known as the Jacqueline butterfly train. The effect was that of a bird at rest, with its long wings folded close to its sides. Society groans! It has just learned, after four generations, to manage with semi-unconsciousness one train. How long will it take to learn to manage two trains?

Economy in Cookery.

Flour will lose its goodness if kept in a damp place.

Don't try to save coal at the expense of the viands; always have a steady and sufficient fire for cooking.

A stock pot should always be handy, and bones and odd pieces of meat put in for the making of soups and gravies.

Every drop of dripping and bacon fat, etc., ought to be saved. The former, when clarified, will keep a long time, and the latter is excellent for making pastry.

The outer parts of some vegetables contain most nourishment, therefore carrots and parsnips should be brushed clean and lightly scraped, and potatoes thinly peeled or boiled in skins and peeled before dishing.—Woman's Life.

NO PETTICOATS

Says Paris If One Would Be of Fashionable World.

"The great question in Paris dressmaking circles is the petticoat—to be or not to be?" writes Lady Violet Greville in the Graphic.

"The most fashionable couturieres have introduced the tightest-fitting and most clinging of robes, robes which they say cannot be worn over a petticoat but need tights beneath. We have seen one or two specimens of these on the stage already and fashion is slowly leading us back to the garments of the First Empire, when corsets were abandoned and elegantes like Mme. Recamier damped their limp dresses to make them cling closer to their bodies.

"Such costumes were very well when women never walked and always wore the thinnest of satin shoes, like the Empress Josephine, who would not have condescended to put shoe leather on her pretty little feet; but now, when women tramp in the mud, jump in and out of tubes and omnibuses, the clinging garment, which impedes movement, seems utterly out of place.

"Of course, the street dress must still be short, and with it the silk-flounced petticoat can be worn; but in the house and in evening dress the despotic decree has gone forth—no petticoats. There are some who still maintain that the chief feminine charm lies in the tempestuous petticoat, defining yet shroudinf, alluring yet mysterious.

"At an rate, when petticoats are abolished, women will have to learn to walk gracefully, to sit down artistically, and move with seductive languor like the beauties of Napoleon's court, whose sinuous, graceful gait across a room was observed and admired."

THE EVENING STORY

A REAL HOME

By Jay Palmer.

Perhaps there was no one away from the actual scene of hostilities who followed the operations of the war with Spain with more interest than frail Miss Ellen Dale.

Miss Dale was alone in the world. Her history was a sad one. At the dawn of the Civil war she had been betrothed to a young naval officer. He left her to become one of the devoted band that went down in the ill-fated Cumberland. With him perished also her brother, a fellow-officer. The double tragedy had well-nigh bereft her reason, leaving her after the storm with silvered hair and broken health. Her father, an army officer, emerged from the conflict only to succumb to a disease, resulting from hardships of the campaign, leaving a family of which Miss Ellen was now the only survivor. She received a small pension from the government, which enabled her to live carefully under the friendly shelter of the Old Ladies' Home.

Among those in the habit of visiting the home was Ethel Vernon, the daughter of one of the trustees and a favorite with Miss Dale. She was an attractive girl with winning ways, and a gift of sympathy which dispensed itself as naturally as the sunshine. Miss Dale was quick to respond to such a nature and they soon became warm friends. Ethel brought so much brightness from the busy, outside world into the old lady's lonely life that it was a grief to her when the young girl, being a Red Cross nurse, was called away to the hospitals by the war.

Deprived of these visits and driven in upon herself by the uncongenial atmosphere around her, Miss Dale spent much of her time in her own room.

One day it suddenly occurred to her that it would be a pleasant labor to make a scrapbook of the war, so she began to save newspaper clippings and pictures for that purpose. "I shall have no one to leave it to," she sighed; "but it may some time be of value and, at least, I shall enjoy it."

In collecting and classifying the material for her book she gained a very clear comprehension of the operations of the war, and noted many individual acts of bravery only briefly mentioned. She also decided to write to some of the officers and ask them for their autographs.

When the revolt in the Philippines broke out it promised to furnish Miss Dale with more names to add to her roll of honor. Many young officers, some already distinguished, were sent out with the new volunteer regiments to put down the rebellion. Among these was Capt. Lee Peyton of Virginia, who had won special mention and promotion by a daring act in the assault upon Caney, in Cuba, the previous summer. He had been afterward attacked with fever and only recovered in time to embark for the Philippines with his new regiment, one of the first to be sent out to reinforce Gen. Otis.

"Great Scott!" exclaimed Peyton, as he entered his old quarters in the city, "if this isn't luxury to see a bed once more and a roof over one's head, to say nothing of getting cleaned up again after floundering in that beastly mud—Hello!" Here his eye fell upon a letter on the table and he pounced upon it, longing for news of home.

But it was not a home letter. This is what he read after he had torn it open:

"September 12, 1899.

"Captain Lee Peyton.

"Dear Sir: I take a liberty in writing to ask for your autograph; but I should much value it on account of your services to the country by your brave act at Caney last year, and by your present labors in the Philippines.

"You and your fellow-soldiers are engaged in a righteous war for civilization as well as for our flag, notwithstanding the narrow, traitrous criticisms of a few at home. All true Americans are proud of your splendid work.

"Hoping you will pardon a stranger for thus addressing you, I am,

"Very respectfully,

"ELLEN DALE.

"131 East —— street, New York city."

"Jove!" he ejaculated, when he had finished the letter. "That girl's a brick and no mistake! It puts life into a fellow to feel that some in God's country know this dreary business is not a picnic excursion. Ugh! how we all hate it!"

He had lit his pipe and was puffing at it thoughtfully. "I'd like to see that girl," he soliloquized; "she must know a great deal about the situation and the war; she has followed events and got her facts straight. And she's a lady, one can see. Wonder if she's pretty, like that Red Cross nurse at Camp Wikoff, who pulled me through the Santiago fever; I owe my life to her—wish I knew where she was now!"

A few months later Capt. Peyton found himself at a hotel in New York city. After having fallen a victim to fever in Manila and been through a very severe illness, he had been sent home on sick leave. The long sea voyage had greatly benefited him, but he was still far from strong. He had stopped in town expecting to see an old friend, and had just learned that he was absent in Europe.

While he was idly wondering how he should spend the rest of the day, the bellboy brought him a letter which had followed him from Manila to San Francisco and across the continent. It was Miss Dale's grateful acknowledgment of his autograph and the ornament she had received.

When he reached the place he was astonished to see that it was an old ladies' home. He appeared dazed for a moment; then, recovering himself, went on and up the front steps slowly and touched the electric door bell.

"Can I see Miss Dale?" he asked, searching for his card.

He was ushered into a pleasant room in a distant corner. What he saw was silvered hair under a dainty lace cap, and beneath that the delicate, finely chiseled features of a gentlewoman of another generation. There was a little hectic flush in her worn cheeks which was almost youthful.

All the chivalrous instincts of the young Virginian were awakened as he bowed over the slender, outstretched hand: "I want to thank you, Miss Dale, for your kind and encouraging letter; it did me no end of good, 'way off there on the other side of the globe; and I am so glad to have found you."

"Won't you sit down?" she asked hospitably, and she looked into his thin face and frank blue eyes with a friendly smile.

Before Lee knew what he was doing he was telling her all about himself, his army campaign, and then his home and his prospects; it seemed the most natural thing in the world to confide in this sweet, motherly woman. He had no mother or sister, and his father was a hard-headed business man not much given to sentiment, though fond and proud of his son. What he wanted now, when his health was mended, was just the little sympathetic petting that Miss Dale seemed ready to give.

He did not know how long he sat there, but suddenly there came a quick rap at the door; then it was thrown open and a young girl, her face alight with animation, stood on the threshold.

"You told me always to come to your room, Miss Dale, so I didn't wait; I wanted to—" She stopped abruptly on seeing a young man in the room, installed there like a privileged friend.

"Ethel, this is Capt. Peyton," began Miss Dale—but the girl had risen suddenly.

"How do you do, Miss Vernon? How glad I am to meet you again!" And he shook hands with her heartily. "Miss Dale," he continued, "Miss Vernon was an angel of mercy to me; she nursed me through a wretched fever at Montauk, and then she disappeared before I had half thanked her."

"Capt. Peyton was not the only patient I had, as he seems to imply," she said, laughing and coloring a little.

"Of course I was not, more's the pity," said he gayly; while Miss Dale listened and smiled at the two young people talking so naturally in her own little sitting room.

"But I only dropped in, I can't stay an instant," said Miss Vernon.

"And may I not walk home with you now, Miss Vernon?" asked Lee, picking up his hat. "I have been trespassing on Miss Dale's hospitality all the morning; but she seems like an old friend."

"I did not know you were acquainted."

"Well, I'll tell you all about it on our way."

"I think," put in Miss Dale, "that it might be better for Miss Vernon to see you home, for, Ethel, he was really quite faint this morning."

"I shall be grateful any way you fix it," laughed Lee, "so long as I may talk to Miss Cernon."

They went out together, after he had thanked Miss Dale most earnestly for her kind reception and promised to come again.

And he did come again and often; for the gentle old lady so intelligent and sympathetic, was a charming companion. Also, it must be confessed, he was never without the hope of coming upon Miss Vernon at this pleasant rendezvous, and sometimes his perseverance was rewarded. Not that he had not other opportunities of seeing her, for he was welcome at her home; but there seemed to be a special charm in these impromptu meetings.

Miss Dale herself was not indifferent to the romance growing up under her eyes; she fostered it in her innocent fashion till she saw it ready to bud and blossom as her own might have done—ah! so long ago.

One day they called upon her together, which was in itself unusual, as they had hitherto maintained the appearance at least of meeting by accident. They solemnly led her to the sofa, and like two culprits, knelt before her. "We are going to be married, please, ma'am, and we want your blessing," said Lee.

"Yes, added Ethel, sitting in a heap on the floor with her head in the old lady's lap; "it's all your doing, Miss Dale, for I took him only on your recommendation."

"God bless you, my dears! I am not afraid to recommend either of you, and I have no misgivings that you will not always be happy." She held a hand of each and smiled at them through the tears which slowly gathered and fell.

"But we have a favor to ask you, Miss Dale, a stupendous favor—you tell her, Lee, and I'll do the coaxing."

"Well, you see," he began, "I am going to do as father has wished, resign from the army and go out to run his ranch in Colorado for awhile. I ought to fight the remains of this beastly fever alone and get strong enough to be good for something first; but I'm too selfish, I want to take Ethel with me."

"You mean, sir, that I insist on going to look after you," put in the girl.

"And—well," he went on, "we want you to come, too, dear Miss Dale, to keep us both in order—"

"Forever and always!" finished Ethel. "If you don't you will break my heart, break past even Lee's mending—and you wouldn't do that, now, would you?"

"You are like a mother to me, you know," pursued Lee, in a broken voice. "I have no other."

Miss Dale gave a queer little laugh. "You want to provide a mother-in-law for Ethel?" she asked. Then she burst into tears. "My children," she sobbed, as Ethel wound her arms about her and Lee clumsily stroked her hand, "my children, you give me what I have longed for—a real home, at last!"

PLANS SUNDAY TRAINS.

General Manager Gemmel is Considering the Matter.

Brainerd, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—General Manager Gemmell of the Minnesota & International railroad is considering the question of a Sunday train for summer service. The plan is to have the train leave Brainerd, either Saturday night, immediately after the arrival of the evening train from the Twin Cities or early Sunday morning, returning Sunday night or Monday morning in time to catch the early train to the Twin Cities. By this arrangement Twin City sportsmen could spend Sunday at the lakes up the Minnesota & International railroad while losing little or no time for business.

SHEPPARD OUT OF IT.

Great Half-Miler Will Not Try for Olympic Team.

New York, May 7.—Melvin W. Sheppard, America's greatest half miler, probably will not represent this country in the Olympic games in London this summer. Although the tryouts are less than a month off, Sheppard has not begun training, and according to the latest report he will not try for the team.

For his failure to try, Sheppard gives two reasons. One is that his present position does not give him sufficient time and the other that he recently passed the civil service examinations placing him on the eligible list for policeman.

FARMERS FEEL VERY JUBILANT

Red River Country Crop Condition Could Hardly be Any Better.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Never were the prospects for a successful season's farming operations in the territory tributary to Thief River Falls more promising than they are now. Neither have the advantages of this section ever been more apparent than at the present moment. This week will probably see all the seed grain, except flax, under the surface. Farmers claim that the wheat and oats are stooling beautifully and that the present brand of weather is exactly suited to lay the foundation of a bumper crop.

One remarkable feature in connection with this spring's seeding that surprises the old settler is the large acreage being sown to clover and timothy. This is in anticipation of the requirements of the creameries that are being constructed on the co-operative plan all over this and adjoining counties. By reason of the extension of drainage large tracts of valuable lands are being made available for cultivation and this spring are being broken for the first time. This largely accounts for the increased acreage of grain that report claims is credited to this region this year.

BEGIN WORK AT SUPERIOR

Finest Steel Derrick Scow on the Lakes Arrives Here.

Derrick No. 21, owned by the Great Lakes Dredge & Dock company, and credited with being the finest derrick scow on the Great Lakes, has arrived in the Duluth-Superior harbor of the use of the local branch of the company during the coming summer. The scow is to be used in the construction of the rubble-mound breakwater at the Superior entry, the contract for which has been awarded to the Great Lakes company.

Derrick No. 21 was constructed last year and is a fine type of construction scow. It is built of steel and is 200 feet over all with a 38-foot beam. It is equipped with two derricks with 85-foot booms and has a capacity of 2,000 tons of stone.

After being launched last year, the new scow was put in commission at Cleveland, being used in the construction of the new rubble-stone breakwater there. The Superior entry work is one of the most important contracts held by the company this season and the scow was sent here to give the company the best possible facilities for carrying it out.

The work on the Superior entry will begin within a week or so. The company will put a big crew on and the contract, which will consume all season will be rushed as much as possible. A hydraulic dredge will also be put at work on the trenches, the contract for which was awarded some weeks ago.

LEAVE TONAWANDA.

Winter Fleet at Lake Erie Port Will Soon Begin to Work.

Tonawanda, May 7.—Vessels which wintered at this port, have been getting out rapidly in the past few days. The first vessel to come up the Niagara river this spring was the steamer Fleetwood of the Tonawanda Iron & Steel Co.'s fleet. The Fleetwood was followed by the steamers Clyde, John F. Eddy, Oceanica, Packer, Veronica and Curtis, and the barges Holland, Fassett, Pennington and Moravia. These boats will load coal at this port for upper lake ports.

Most of the boats in ordinary at Tonawanda have taken out clearance papers and will get away on the first trip of the season during the next few days. Among the boats being fitted out are the steamers Pridgeon, Lycoming, Mary Boyce, Fred Myers and the barges Hutchinson, Buffalo and Sweetheart.

DENY ORDERING BOATS.

SHIPPERS REAPPOINTED.

Lake Carriers to Ship Men Under the "Open Shop" Plan.

Cleveland, May 7.—All the old shipping masters were reappointed today by the committee of the Lake Carriers' association and a number of new shipping offices were established to furnish men for vessels in the association under the open shop plan. This action indicates that the lake carriers are preparing to meet any attempt of the unions to force a contest later in the season after the fleets are in operation.

NO TONNAGE IS OFFERED

Vessels Will Not Move With No Assurance of Return Cargoes.

The second coal cargo of the season arrived yesterday, the steamer Blackrock going to the Boston dock with hard coal.

Reports from the lower lakes are contradictory of the statements that every port on the lakes is well supplied with coal. It is said that fear of another coal famine next winter is stimulating the demand for coal tonnage, and it is believed it will serve to keep the fuel-carrying rate at a high mark all summer.

Vesselmen in lower lake ports are anxious enough to get away, but coal charters are going begging because the owners do not like to take chances on return cargoes. They claim that the coal-carrying trade is not profitable enough to allow them to take their boats back to Lake Erie light, and, with the ore trade at a standstill, there is nothing offered for return cargoes for the bulk freighters.

Few cargoes of coal have been delivered at upper lake ports this year. At this time last season 150,000 tons of coal had been placed on the Milwaukee docks alone. Coal dealers at upper ports fear that when navigation does get into full swing, freight will have accumulated so that it will be difficult to secure tonnage for coal, and there may be a light movement in consequence.

It looks now as though there will be little coal delivered to the Head of the Lakes before June 1. In former years the coal trade has kept the freighters pretty well supplied with cargoes for the up journey from early spring until the last boats in November. Railroads cannot be depended upon to move coal late in the season, as all available cars are busy moving the Western crop.

Marine Notes.

The steamer Blackrock, with a cargo of coal, grounded while approaching the Boston dock last night. The tug Inman released her after about an hour's work.

The Great Lakes Dredge & Dock company has a dredge at work clearing the channels in the vicinity of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern ore docks at Thirty-third avenue west.

The Great Lakes Supply company has purchased the tug Bert S., from Bert H. Seldon of Superior and will use it in the chandling trade this summer. The Duluth Marine Supply company, the other new firm, has purchased the Richardson from R. H. Rathbun. Each company will put another tug on later in the season.

The officers of the Lake Carriers' shipping master will this year be in the office of Capt. Frank Henrich, compass adjuster, on the seventh floor of the Board of Trade building instead of in the Burrows block as formerly.

The package freighter Alva of the Chicago & Duluth Transportation company is expected to leave Chicago today with a cargo of package freight.

COMING TO DULUTH

Dr. Rea, the Minneapolis specialist, will make his next regular professional visit to Duluth, St. Louis Hotel, Saturday May 9th.

Dr. Rea has been visiting Duluth for the past ten years. He has been eminently successful in his practice, and has made many remarkable cures. He confines his specialty to the treatment of certain chronic ailments, those that are not usually doctored by the ordinary physicians, and therefore his practice does not in reality conflict with that of our local physicians.

As a matter of fact, Dr. Rea is styled as an irregular, meaning, of course, that Dr. Rea does advertise. That, however, does not interfere with Dr. Rea's ability and his thoroughness as a physician, nor does it prevent him from doing what he claims to do. Dr. Rea treats such diseases successfully, and to bring about a successful termination. In his treatment for cancer, tumor, tubercular glands and chronic diseases, his system of hypodermic medication is acknowledged by America's greatest physicians.

Dr. Rea is deserving and entitled to the high esteem in which he is held by the Duluth and surrounding people.

DIRECTORY OF AMUSEMENTS

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Grace Cameron in "Little Dolly Dimples."
METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

"LITTLE DOLLY DIMPLES."

Risque Jokes Mar an Otherwise Bright and Interesting Show.

Some jokes and songs, which would be better fitted to the smoke-filled atmosphere of a burlesque house, and which are decidedly offensive in a theater like the Lyceum, keep "Little Dolly Dimples" from being a bright and entertaining musical show.

It is a musical melange of singing, dancing, vaudeville turns, monologues and horse play, but most of it is bright, new and on the whole pleasing. The few risque jokes that are allowed to creep in, and one or two verses of the topical songs could be eliminated, however, and the male members of the audience, who are accompanied by their sisters, or mothers, or other members of the fair sex would rest more easily in their seats.

Miss Grace Cameron herself is an attractive little person, with a good voice. Al Lawrence makes a big hit with his monologue and his funny imitations.

There are many good vaudeville turns sprinkled through the performance. Rose Olah Faber, violinist; Emma King, dancer; the Shubert String trio; Eva Spears, the human flute, and several others give very entertaining and amusing acts.

The chorus is pretty and contains some well trained voices.

The entire performance is, in fact, surprisingly good for a popular priced show, and the few risque jokes do not quite succeed in spoiling it.

The Greater Minstrels.

Pleasing melodies run through the music which has been arranged for this year's production of the Al G. Field Greater Minstrels. Mr. Field has not not only given his entire time and thought to conceiving and building the many scenes and spectacles which mark this year's entirely new production, but he has also personally superintended the arrangement of the musical compositions, which are all original and new for this year's show. Mr. Field has had for his musical coadjutors Paul La Londe, Edward W. Brill and Charles E. Scope, three musicians of exceptional ability, whose respective skill in orchestration is second to none in the musical world.

The Burlesquers.

The audience at the Metropoitan this evening will decide which chorus girl in the Fay Foster company is the most capable vaudevillian, as they will compete for prizes in the chorus girls' contest, to be held in addition to the regular performance. The cleverest girls in the company, and there are many of them who are both clever and pretty, will take part in the tournament. Two of the girls will give a burlesque of the Gotch-Hackenschmidt wrestling match.

Keeping Faith With the Cubans.

The world has seldom witnessed anything finer in history than the relations of the United States with Cuba, and some of our ablest statesmen urge us to continue our faith with them by withdrawing from the island at the appointed time and allowing them to establish a government of their own. Seldom, if ever, has the record of cures made by the famous Hostetter's Stomach Bitters been equalled during its 54 years' experience. It has kept faith with the public by proving all the claims made for it, and if you have never tried it, do so today. It cures and prevents poor appetite, belching, flatulency, sour stomach, costiveness, dyspepsia, indigestion, liver and kidney ills and malaria, fever and ague. The genuine with Private Stamp over neck of bottle, we guarantee absolutely pure.

IDENTIFIES ASSYRIAN.

Body Found in Sheyenue River Was That of Abas Saien.

Crookston, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. Abas, the well-known Assyrian Main street merchant, has returned from Cooperstown, N. D., where he has been for two days looking into the discovery there of the dead body of an Assyrian peddler in the Sheyenne river, fifteen miles north.

Mr. Abas obtained conclusive evidence that the body was that of Abas Saien, borther of Ahmed Saien, who was lost about the first of April last. Ahmed left his brother, who could not speak English, at Courtney, and they were to meet at Aneta. Ahmed remained about Aneta for a week, but his brother did not arrive and he reported to Abas at Crookston, who advertised in the Journal for the recovery of the body.

"I suffered untold misery from female troubles. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death.

"One day I read how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it. Before I had taken the first bottle I was better, and now I am entirely cured.

COL. LOVELACE'S TRIAL.

Lisbon, N. D., Man Charged With Killing His Nephew.

Lisbon, N. D., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—After many months of postponement, the trial of Col. E. S. Lovelace of Lisbon, charged with the murder of William Lovelace, his nephew, has been taken up.

About a year ago, during the holidays, young Lovelace, who was a clerk in his uncle's store at Fort Ransom, disappeared. Two months later his body was discovered in a slough near Fort Ransom, and an examination showed a bullet wound through his head. Detectives were put on the case and after working some months in Lisbon, Fort Ransom, Fargo and the Twin Cities, caused the arrest of the colonel. The trial was adjourned till the present term. Col. Lovelace is one of the pioneer merchants in the state and was theoriginator of Fort Ransom. While the state regards the case as very strong, the defense is confident of acquittal. Nearly all the evidence is circumstantial.

MOTHER GETS ESTATE.

James Sharp Was American Citizen and Brothers Have no Claim.

Judge Middlecoff of the probate court has issued a final decree in the matter of the estate of James Sharp, who died in Duluth a little over a year ago. The court holds that all the property left by the decedent shall be turned over to Mrs. Lydia Sharp, his mother. Mr. Sharp was Canadian customs inspector for this port, and conducted a cigar store on Superior street. He left a few thousand dollars in property and cash, over which there was a contest by the mother and three brothers and sisters of the decedent. The brothers and sisters claimed that Sharp was a Canadian citizen, and that the property should be divided equally between them and the mother. The mother contended that her son was an American citizen and that she was entitled to the estate.

Let our chef cook for you. He knows better than you do how to bake beans

This is his specialty—his sole occupation—his one claim to supremacy. And he has the facilities.

He has ovens so hot that they break down the fibre of beans and make them digestible. You cannot do that.

He bakes in live steam, so the beans are baked well without browning or bursting. Our beans are nutty, yet mealy.

Our ovens are heated to 245 degrees. That's why our beans are digestible

We get better beans than you get. And we pay for them seven times what some beans would cost.

Our sauce is made from vine-ripened tomatoes. It costs us just five times what some sauce is sold for.

Then we bake the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork all together. Thus we get our delicious blend.

Beans are Nature's choicest food when they are rightly baked. They are 23 per cent nitrogenous—84 per cent nutriment.

That's about the same as the food value of beef, but note what a difference in cost. Beans should be a daily food.

Get Van Camp's beans, and your people will want them often. Then see what you save on your meat bills.

You will never be content with home-baked beans after you once know ours

Van Camp's are always ready. Heat the can in hot water—then open. It will seem as if the beans were fresh from the oven.

When you are tired, here's a meal without labor. When you are hurried, here's a meal in ten minutes. And such a meal! What do you know that compares with it?

But be sure to get Van Camp's. Other brands won't suit.

10, 15 and 20¢ per can.

ENGLISH CAPITAL FOR FROST ROAD

Chicago, May 7.—At a single stroke the $1,000,000 issue of receivers' certificates for the completion of the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric railway has been placed; the concurrence of practically all of the security holders has been obtained; the necessary funds become immediately available, and the project first undertaken by A. C. Frost & Co. will be brought to completion some time in July.

As a part of the arrangement making possible the early completion of the new interurban line that is to link Chicago with Milwaukee, George G. Moore of Detroit has accepted appointment as one of the receivers of the road, such an appointment having been necessitated by the resignation of Helge A. Haugan, president of the State Bank of Chicago.

English capital will complete the Chicago and Milwaukee line. The certificates have been taken by the Investment Registry, limited, of London, who were represented her in the negotiations by A. Lowenfeld.

This company previously had placed among its clientele in England $1,200,000 of the bonds of the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric railroad, the Wisconsin corporation. Until now it is has held aloof from the bondholders' committee, formed to co-operate with the receivers for the conservation of the interurban property.

The purchase was made at 95, thus making available $950,000 for the completion of the road. It may be had as rapidly as needed for the construction.

Work will be begun upon the uncompleted partion of the road within a few days, as soon, in fact, as the engineering force can be reorganized. It is estimated that less than three months' work remains to complete the undertaking at a cost not to exceed $986,150, the figures named by Engineer Bion J. Arnold in a special report made for the receivers.

It is said that the completed road will be able to give through service between Milwaukee and Chicago, making but one change at Evanston. It will connect with the Northwestern Elevated road at Evanston, but eventually its cars may be brought over the lines of that company directly to the loop district without transfer.

Photographing Mars.

No fewer than 7,000 photographs of the planet Mars were taken by the expedition sent out under Prof. Todd to the Andes, and this achievement is a remarkable one in the annals of astronomy. There are few people, indeed, in our modern times who do not recognize the value of a good malt tonic, such as golden grain belt beer, the ideal family beverage. Have it on the home table and enjoy its benefits. Order of Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

MURDERED FOR MONEY.

John Lorensen of Lake Benton Foully Struck Down.

Lake Benton, Minn., May 7.—John Lorensen, a laborer, was found dead yesterday in a barn behind A. Kerschner's meat market. The body lay behind a team of horses with the head crushed in. Near the body was an ax which was covered with blood, indicating a cold-blooded murder.

Lorensen was last seen Tuesday evening in the company of Martin Schwab, a young man. Both men were under the influence of liquor. Schwab is not to be found and a search is being made. It is thought Lorensen was murdered for his money. The inquest has not been held yet.

Lorensen leaves a wife and thirteen children.

PAN GOLD AT RAWHIDE

Witness New Town Spring Into Existence Between Two Days.

Lucien Merritt and James T. Hale, who have recently returned from Rawhide, Nev., are full of stories of the remarkable growth of that yet infant mining camp and the great wealth which its gold deposits promise. They have ridden the deserts in the automobile which is said to have done more towards exploring and developing Nevada in four years than the railroads have in the several years they have crossed the state. They have had the thrilling experience of washing the precious metal from its surrounding dross and they claim they have come away satisfied that the camp has a great future ahead of it.

Though there are probably more bad men in Rawhide than in any other city of its size in the United States, as is usual in such new Western mining towns, they say that it is a comparatively orderly place. It is ptarolod by state police, the majority of whom are mounted. They wear a brown uniform and broad brimmed hat. The state police have been established in Nevada within the last year by the governor, as a result of the strike at Goldfield. Almost all the small towns are watched by them now. Of course, everything runs wide open there, with gambling and no 11 o'clock lid. Nevada is now the only state in the Union which has no law prohibiting gambling.

Gates Plunged.

While Mr. Merritt and Judge Hale were in Rawhide quite a little stir was created there by the reckless plunging indulged in by Charles G. Gates, son of J. W. Gates, the capitalist. Gates and a party of wealthy men were in Rawhide for the purpose of taking options on some property. Young Gates played faro and lost nearly $100,000 in half an hour. "Tex" Rickard, the famous Nevada gambler, himself dealt the cards and raised the limit to accommodate the millionaire, who wagered $5,000 on the turn of a card. The Duluthians said that it was reported that he came out $20,000 ahead of the game before the night was over, but they are a little skeptical of this.

Judge Hale and Mr. Merritt witnessed, in a small way, an example of the stampede to Rawhide while they were there. "One evening," said Judge Hale, "a big strike of rich ore was reported about twelve miles out of Rawhide. In a few hours it seemed as if all Rawhide were moving. They started on the moment and all that night I could hear the automobiles and wagons passing the hotel. All the next two days they kept it up, until they had started a fairly good sized town. The town was named Bovard, after the man who had made the strike. He was also one of the first men on the ground when the rush to Rawhide took place."

First Rush Over.

"Rawhide has somewhat tamed down after its first excitement. Money is not plentiful, and the town is ahead of the development of the mines by a couple of months, though the ore from some of the mines looks very rich. On the big Four Lease there is a vein that runs as high as $9,000 to $10,000 to the ton." The whole area of the Rawhide district, about three miles wide and four miles long, Mr. Hale and Mr. Merritt say, apparently carries gold in varying quantity and quality over its whole extent.

Mr. Merritt tells how Rawhide first got its name. One of the old overland trails ran right through where Rawhide is now located. The old trail now forms the town's principal street, Nevada street. In the olden days the few scattered settlers in that locality hung a bag made of rawhide on a post to receive their few letters from the overland mail coach, and so the stage drivers got to calling it Rawhide stop, and hence the present name of Rawhide."

Though neither Mr. Merritt or Judge Hale witnessed it themselves, they were told of a funeral that took place early one morning in Rawhide. It was the funeral of a prominent gambling house proprietor, who had caught cold while dealing cards in his shirt sleeves, and died suddenly of pnuemonia. An old prospector, who had once been a Methodist minister, preached the sermon at the grave. It was more of an address than a sermon, according to the witness who told the Duluth men about it. Nearly all Rawhide turned out. In his address, the prospector quoted at length from Shakespeare. He spoke on the question of eternal life, and said that he would not turn his hand for a life eternal; at any rate he only believed in oblivion, that life ended with death and that was all there was to it.

Odd Characters.

The whole town is full of odd characters, men who have taken part in almost all of the country's gold booms in the last quarter century. One old prospector, who said he had witnessed the great rush to Virginia city, and had panned gold from the placer mines of Alaska, started up a conversation with Judge Hale, while they were riding to Rawhide in an automobile from Schurz. The old man was very enthusiastic over the new camp, and said that it had even greater prospects ahead of it than Virginia city. Another old-timer, who had hurried to Nome at the first rumor of the wealth of that North country, said he had suffered more from cold in Nevada than he ever had in Alaska. So hurried has been the growth of Rawhide that the settlers have not had time to build themselves proper protections against the cold of that high altitude. Besides Mr. Merritt says that wood there sells for $40 a cord, and water even brings $2 a barrel.

Judge Hale took a side trip to Goldfield while he was in Nevada and he says he was very much impressed with the metropolitan appearance of that city. He says they have as fine a hotel there as any in the country. But the fabulous wealth of some of the mines there most impressed him. He says that from the Mohawk claim of the Goldfield's Consolidated, it is claimed that the leasers have taken out in five months $5,000,000. Some shoots on the 400-foot level are reported to run as high as $30 to the pound. But they only average from one and a half to eight inches in width.

Miners Are Searched.

Judge Hale says that the strike at Goldfield, to which the miners in the first place were really opposed, it being instigated by other local unions, has resulted to the disadvantage of the miners in that, now, since the settlement, they are searched on coming from the shaft after a shift's work. Before the strike they refused to have their clothing turned inside out, claiming that it was an insult, and the employers were in such fear of the unions that they acquiesced without protest. Formerly, it is said, that the miners became so engrossed in hunting for high grade ore with which to fill their pockets, and were so successful, that often times they forgot to draw their pay. Many men also worked in the mines who were not on the company's payroll. Such miners were called "high graders."

Mr. Merritt and Judge Hale mention an odd fact in connection with the gold camps of Nevada. They seem to parallel the Sierra Nevada mountains, some of whose snow-capped peaks can be viewed from Rawhide. The line of mining towns run about north and south to the east of the mountains. There are five of them, beginning at the south they are Goldfield, Tonopah, Rawhide, Virginia City and Seven Truths.

GREENE SAYS DIAZ WILL RUN

Is Likely to be Again Elected President of Mexico.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 7.—"I had a talk with President Diaz of Mexico, two weeks ago and I have not the slightest doubt that he will be the next president of our neighboring republic." Col. W. C. Greene, who was in Bisbee in his private car thus expressed himself in regard to the coming presidential election in Mexico. It is a well known fact that Col. Greene is as close, and perhaps closer, to Mexico's president than any other American.

"Then you think that Creelman's article on the president, recently published, was incorrect?" he was asked. "Not exactly," was the reply. "President Diaz stated that he would not be a candidate for re-election, nor do I think that he will be. He has never been a candidate for the office, but he has been elected from year to year, despite the fact. I expect the same thing to occur this year. He will not be a candidate, but just the same he will be elected. President Diaz, although advanced in years, is still hale and hearty and able to discharge the duties of the office."

Col. Greene has been suffering considerably of late from rheumatism, and before he goes to Mexico again will take a trip to some of the hot springs in California, in the hope of securing relief. He left here for El Paso.

PRODUCTION IS REDUCED

New York, May 7.—The Iron Age says: The decline in volume of operations at the steel works in April, as compared with March, is reflected in the pig iron production reports. The total output of the coke and anthracite furnaces last month was 1,149,000 tons in thirty days, compared with 1,228,000 tons in March in thirty-one days. The decline is due largely to the steel works furnaces. Interest centers in the meeting of the pig iron and ore men in this city today. There is little prospect that anything tangible will be done as to prices of pig iron, although the organizations will probably continue for statistical purposes and interchange of data. The Southern makers were together on Monday, but one company was not represented. The Eastern makers are holding a preliminary meeting, some of them being in favor of a sufficient reduction in the price to permit some metal to be marketed.

A good deal hinges on the attitude of the lake ore selling companies, who were together on Friday last. It is understood that the general feeling is against any concession in the prices. These interests are very strong, and even an increase in the offerings of ore at concessions now being made by second hands, would not materially affect the situation. There has been a little more activity in pig iron in the Central West, buyers showing more interest as the result of widespread reports of coming sharp reductions. The markets have weakened a little more, but there is a good deal of the resistance which grows out of despair.

Structural work is coming out slowly, but in fair volume. Like in other lines contracts which at ordinary times would not be given out at one letting are coming out piecemeal, which creates the impression that there is less large work than the facts warrant.

Kidney complaint kills more people than any other disease. This is due to the disease being so insidious that it gets a good hold on the system before it is recognized. Foley's Kidney Cure will prevent the development of fatal disease if taken in time. At all druggists.

WERE WEDDED IN A HOSPITAL

Physician Married at St. Paul to Girl Who Nursed Him.

St. Paul, Minn., May 7.—A romance so unreal as to seem fiction has come to light at St. Joseph's hospital. It is a story of how a beautiful Wisconsin girl saved the life of a wealthy North Dakota physician, lying at the point of death. Dr. Leroy F. Straight of De Smet, N. D., came to St. Paul for treatment for pleuro-pneumonia in March. He was not expected to recover. Miss Hannah Berger of Portage, Wis., is the daughter of one of the leading citizens of that town. Miss Berger is a devotee of the game of basketball. Two years ago the city team of Portage was playing with Port Washington, an old time rival. As usual Miss Berger was seated in the front of the gallery, waving a banner and shouting lustily for the home team. There was a vacant seat next to her, and in the excitement she did not notice a handsome man take the seat and watch her with more than usual interest.

"I beg your pardon, miss, but I am a stranger here and a stranger to the game of basketball. Will you instruct me?" and he leaned toward her.

Of course she consented to teach him all she knew about the game. But before the game had ended basketball was forgotten and Col. Cupid had made his appearance upon the scene. Before Dr. Straight left Portage he was affianced. Repeated visits strengthened the bond of affection.

Last March Dr. Straight visited St. Paul. He contracted a severe cold, which developed into pneumonia, and he was removed to a hospital in a serious condition. He became unconscious and in his delirium spoke of nothing but his sweetheart.

"Send for Hannah," he said, and his fiancee was informed of his critical condition. The next morning Miss Berger was in St. Paul and day and night watched over the sick man. A week ago Dr. Straight regained consciousness. He saw Miss Berger at his side, and at 6 o'clock on the following Saturday, while the sick man was still in bed, they were made man and wife. His face was wan, but a smile lighted his features as the words of the wedding ceremony were read by Judge Finehout.

UNCLE JOE GIVEN A STRAIGHT TALK

President Tells Him to Make Good or Take Blame.

New York, May 7.—Speaker Cannon was called to the White House Tuesday for a heart-to-heart talk with the president, according to a Washington dispatch. The legislative program for the remainder of the present session of congress was the subject under consideration. It was the most important conference between the wielder of the big stick and the high priest of the "do-nothings" since the Sixtieth congress came into existence.

Some decidedly plain, blunt language was used, and not all of it of that peculiar stand-pat variety which characterizes the speech of the leading oppressor of legislation in the country. President Roosevelt is understood to have given expression to some strong opinions as to what may happen to Republican representatives if they do not carry out to the letter the plans promised by certain of the leaders, and of the woe that may befall if they don't go even further in enacting legislation for which there is undeniably a great popular demand.

Developments show that, while the rank and file of the Republicans in congress have been roused to an earnest effort to make an eleventh-hour record, and while many of the leaders likewise have been awakened to the necessities of the hour, "Uncle Joe" still maintains a disposition to sit on the lid.

An equally important development at the White House was that the president is not going to sit idly by and take chances with the promised program. He has taken a fresh hold of the big stick. With assurance that congress will sit at least four weeks longer, he will fight even harder from now on. He believes that there is time to do all that has been promised, and then some. From now on the plan of campaign will be to hammer at the speaker, who controls the house situation. The responsibility of failure to act will be laid upon Cannon's shoulders.

Incidentally, it is learned the president has added a free wood pulp and print paper bill and a postal savings bank bill to what may be called the urgency program.

COMMERCIAL PAPER AS ASSET

For Additional Circulation Agreed Upon by Republicans.

Washington, May 7.—At 11:20 o'clock last night, the Republican caucus of the house committed itself, by a vote of 115 to 21, to the principle of commercial paper as an asset upon which to issue additional circulation in time of emergency.

This is in accordance with the Vreeland bill, but by separate action, the resolution was so amended as to eliminate Mr. Vreeland's name from the bill. By still another vote, it was decided to recommend the appointment of a committee of five members to draft a new bill, in accordance with the action of the caucus, and along the general lines of the second Vreeland bill. In accordance with this action, the chair appointed as such committee, Messrs. Vreeland of New York, Burton of Ohio, Weeks of Massachusetts, McKinney of Illinois, and Knowland of California. Under the terms of the resolution the committee will be expected to report a perfected bill to an adjourned conference, to be held next Monday evening.

It is understood that Mr. Vreeland will lose no time in organizing his special committee, and that a bill will be ready for presentation next Monday night.

PIONEER DYING.

Billings, Mont., May 7.—William Hamilton, believed to be the oldest of the pioneers of the Northwest, is dying of cancer of the stomach. Hamilton left Missouri in 1832, and a few years later went up the Missouri river with a party of fur traders. In his younger days he was in many Indian fights, and acted as scout and interpreter for the government.

OPPOSED TO THE CANTEEN

The House Goes on Record Against Its Re-Establishment.

Washington, May 7.—By the overwhelming vote of 167 to 46, and following a two-hour debate, the house of representatives, yesterday, again went on record against the re-establishment of the canteen in the national soldiers' homes. During the discussion, a man giving his name as George Gridley of Providence, R. I., unfurled an American flag, and proceeded to make an address from the gallery on the temperance question. He was promptly taken out. Perhaps the real sensation of the day was an admission by Mr. Barnett of New York, a member of the immigration committee, that he, under the old immigration law, "railroaded" the naturalization of many foreigners in one day. With the exception of the adoption of the conference on the bill reorganizing the consular service, the sundry civil appropriation bill was under consideration the entire day.

THE PRESIDENT STILL BELIEVES NEGROES GUILTY.

Washington, May 7.—An alleged letter, recently written by the president to Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan, declaring his unchanged belief in the guilt of negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth regiment in the "shooting up" of Brownsville, was the subject of a spirited discussion in the senate yesterday, upon the conclusion of Senator Warner's speech on the Brownsville affair.

Mr. Warner closed his speech with comments upon his bill to authorize the president to re-enlist the soldiers of the Twenty-fifth regiment, in cases in which he believed they were innocent of complicity in the crime. The senator declared that he had confidence in the president to act justly in such a matter, regardless of what his opinion had been.

EMPLOYMENT OF CHILDREN.

Washington, May 7.—The senate, yesterday, passed a bill prohibiting the employment, within certain hours, of children under 14 years of age, in the District of Columbus, in any factory, workshop, telegraph office, restaurant, hotel, apartment house, saloon or pool and billiard rooms, bowling alley or theater, or in the distribution or transmission of merchandise or messages. No such child is permitted to work at any employment for wages during school hours, nor before 6 a. m., nor after 7 p. m.

Gingham in Various Plaids and Stripes to Be Worn - Dainty Shepherd Checks Also Popular - The Simply-Made One-Piece Frock - Sailor Suits - Lingerie Hats.

Gingham will play an important role this season in the wardrobe of the small daughters of fashionable households, but it will be used only in the finest and sheerest qualities, reproducing these colors and designs of the various clan plaids, showing wide stripes or large blocks of white. In these finer ginghams are also seen those dainty shepherd checks in pale blue, pink and green, with white, which, like the wider plaids, make up into most attractive jumper frocks for the small lady's morning use. Their design is of the simplest, the knee-length skirt being box or widely plaited into a bias band of the material, which at the same time does duty as a girdle; the bottom of the skirt hemmed broadly and handstitched that it may be readily lengthened after having been laundered. The jumper may be laid in a central box plait front and back, flanked by two or three wide side plaits crossing the shoulders, thus affording the necessary fulness, while the moderately large sleeves, set into a roomy arm size, extend midway to the elbow, the lower ends pointed at the inner arm seam and finished with braid bound scallops to match the pointed neck. The accompanying blouse is of fine white linen and embroidery, finished with frilled bands at neck and wrists.

For the child who looks best in a rather severe type of garb nothing is prettier than the simply made one-piece frock of tailored linen or pique which are being made up by children's clothing specialists in all the light and dark shades, the latter chiefly for early morning wear and traveling. The little maiden's tailored linen costume is much on the lines of that worn by her small brother, who is still condemned to the despised skirts. A wide double box plait beginning at the throat extends to the hem of the skirt front and back, the center plait being stitched flatly for its entire length and the outer one allowed to flare below the waistline, which the small woman has not as yet developed. Additional width is afforded the skirt by means of wide box plaits set under each arm size, which also supports a wide strap, through which is run the wide waistband, fastening in front with two medium-sized white buttons. Full-length sleeves, gathered at the top of the shoulder, puff widely to below the elbow, where they abruptly narrow into long cuffs and the turned-over linen collar is joined with a silk four-in-hand tie of a tint matching the military or nautical embroidery on the left sleeve upper.

Colored linens, plain madras and various attractive cotton fabrics of plain surface are used for the more elaborate jumper frocks which a small girl may quite properly wear to the luncheon table and during the afternoon. They are in two different pieces, the skirt and jumper being attached by means of reliable large hooks and eyes. From a wide box plait in the center of the front six deep side plaits at either side converge into a corresponding box at the back, forming the entire knee length skirt, which has a hem fully six inches in width. Between the wide panels forming the front and back of the jumper and the wide plaits crossing the shoulders and extending to the waist are trellised bands of stitched straps of the frock material, trimmed with many tiny colored buttons. The V-shaped neck is bordered with a bias band embroidered in self colors, and the Japanese sleeves, reaching almost to the elbow, have their upper sides joined by the trellising bands and are button trimmed. The white lingerie blouse is closely pin tucked about the shoulders and has three-quarter puffed sleeves with band cuffs of lace terminating with lace frills. The same model may be diversified by making the neck square and omitting the upper sleeves.

Party frocks of lingerie or China silk are quite as elaborate as any designed for the little maid's elder sister, so far as handwork goes. The Mother Hubbard, for some years pushed into the background, has again returned to fashion's favor for the benefit of miniature women, and the yoke, wide, deep and exceedingly ornate, is the chief feature of the lace, embroidery and muslin frock. Whatever semitransparent linen material is supposed to form the garment is invariably so finely tucked and traversed with trimmings that it is difficult to tell where the one begins and the other ends. Because long lines distinguish every type of feminine garment, be the wearer thereof an infant or a great-grandmother, the miniature Mother Hubbard is similarly treated, the skirt portion often being formed entirely of lace and pin-tucked panels, entre deux, and joining a deep flounce with the entre deux design running horizontally. Elbow sleeves are, of course, the only sort possible for a small woman's evening frock, and these are frequently wholly of the tucked material and finished with lace frills similar to those bordering the fluffy sleeve caps and deep yokes. Countless are the changes rung upon the tucking employed for children's frocks. Sometimes they are used in the up-and-down manner, again they are crosswise and often diagonally. Or they are arranged to form medallions, set squarely or transversely as centers for lace insertion or galloon trimming.

Sailor suits in striped or plain linen, worn by small girls, are precise replicas of those designed for the young masters, save that plaited skirts of abbreviated proportions substitute the knickerbockers. There are the same loosely fitting blouses, overlapping a leather belt, the shoulder wide marine collar and white pique embroidered vestee with its low plain band encircling a short round throat. The same suits are developed in the washable Bedford cords, and for really hard wear at the seaside and in the mountains are duplicated denims.

Lingerie hats belong by right of precedence to the small maiden who maintains a serene expression which alone is suited for such headgear which, to be effective, must lie lightly above a mass of thick, fluffy hair and pretend to shade a complexion of peachlike fairness. The child's runabout lingerie hat is a substantial affair of heavy linen with a self-embroidered edge. It may be readily detached from the plaited tam crown and the two separated sections laundered. They are trimmed with large looped bows of wide ribbon, matching the long strings which fall far below the waist. More elaborate lingerie hats of fine linen and lace are mounted on wire frames and have bandeaux of rosebuds, violets and forget-me-nots.

Curls are confined with the filet ribbon bands now so extensively employed for the decoration of feminine coiffures of any age and condition, the favorite type for the child being the wide band crossing the crown and secured at either side of the head with flower-shaped rosettes, matching the frock's tint. The front forelock may be tied at either side with a made or a string bow of stiff ribbon the better to give it an upstanding position.

High-topped buttoned boots of ooze kid with patent vamps are generally used for school wear at this season, but for the house low shoes, fastening with straps or laces and having widely rounded toes and spring heels are more comfortable.

Calf's Liver Saute.

Cut about three-quarters of a pound of calf's liver in slices a quarter of an inch thick, trim into nice cutlet-shaped pieces, rinse in cold water, and dry in a clean cloth. Mix some chopped ham, onion and parsley with bread crumbs, and dip each piece of liver into beatened egg, then in the seasoned bread crumbs, and fry in deep fat till thoroughly cooked. Serve hot with slices of fried bacon. Pour a thick brown gravy over.

Kidneys au Vin.

Skin and cut in slices six sheep's kidneys. Season with pepper, salt, nutmeg, chopped parsley and musbrooms, and dredge with flour. Put into a pan one ounce of butter; when quite hot add the kidneys and cook thoroughly; when cooked add a quarter of a pint of strong stock, which must previously have been boiled, flavor with two tablespoonfuls of sherry. Shake them well, without letting them boil. When ready to serve stir in a little butter and some lemon juice.

Two Hundred Dollar Trousseau.

There should be no shoddy materials nor an effort at making a show about the trousseau upon which a limited sum is to be expended. It is infinitely better to have two really good gowns that may be worn upon the street, as well as in the house, and composed of good materials of their class than a dozen made of flimsy, showy fabrics that will be almost in rags after having been worn several times.

In the opinion of most brides-elect, the wedding gown is of chief importance. This is quite proper, for if a bride is to have all the happiness that her friends wish for her, she is not likely to be twice married. She usually prefers a gown of purest white, yet if only $200 are to be spent for the entire trousseau, it would be the part of wisdom to select some light neutral tint, such as gray, which has never been more fashionable than at the present time. Gray may be made becoming to any figure by a discreet arrangement of draperies and to any complexion by proper treatment of the throat and shoulders with thin white fabrics, such as malinette and chiffon shirrings and pin tuckings. Of all the soft materials from which a pretty, simple wedding gown may be made, there is none that will give more perfect satisfaction than double-width lansdowne at $1.50 per yard, allowing 10 for a trained skirt, high-necked and long-sleeved waist and perhaps an extra bolero or sleeveless coat. Lansdowne, happily, does not require to be silk lined, so that a good quality of heatherbloom or some kindred fabric will do for the foundation, and this, with the addition of fancy lace, silver braid or silk soutache trimming, will not add more than $5 to the expense. This gown will, of course, be made in the house by a first-class visiting dressmaker, whose four days of time should not amount to more than $10.

The "going-away" costume, which will answer for the street, may be one of those blue, brown, tan or gray coat and skirt suits which are to be had in every first-class department shop for $25. To this sum should be added $5 for alterations and such supplementaries as adjustable linen collars and cuffs. A dark-colored, medium-weight wool fabric suit may be worn the year round if a Jersey top petticoat and sweater are provided for cold weather. It is advisable to keep serge or any wool street suit well brushed and pressed, as such care adds materially to their smart appearance.

A bride who expects to attend to the greater portion of her domestic machinery would best eschew fancy dresses for home wear and instead have several frocks that will answer alike for the house and the street. Heavily corded pique, which comes in all the fashionable shades, may be made up into simple skirt and blouse frocks, which may be worn on the street during the late spring, summer and early autumn and as afternoon house dresses during cold weather. Perfectly fitting patterns for such frocks are readily obtained at a minimum cost, and any girl who has made an ordinary shirtwaist may quite safely undertake such a task. By allowing 12 yards at 25 cents per yard for each frock the two should not cost more than $8.

Nun's veiling makes a most serviceable year-round gown, answering nicely for visiting and for winter parties. Such a dress should not cost more than $14, allowing eight yards of double-width material, at 75 cents per yard, $2 for trimmings—meaning a cotton lining and enough silk to trim the bodice and to make the girdle—and $6 for the dressmaker's services.

Seven yards of double-width goods in fancy or plain cotton crepe, at 10 cents the yard are quite sufficient for a kimono for a medium-sized woman and enough ribbon for borders may be procured anywhere for an additional 75 cents. A bride should have at least one dark-hued crepe negligee, at a cost of $2, and two of 10-cent figured lawn, all of which she can make up for herself at a cost of $4 for three negligees.

The all-enveloping, long cloak should be used for rain, traveling and to cover evening gowns, as it is one of the most expensive details of a bridal outfit, and it should be of good material and cut. Perhaps the best choice amongst such cloaks are those of rubberized satin or twilled silk or mohair, which, in dark colors, may be procured for about $15.

By making her own lingerie and carefully selecting the materials for it, the bride-elect may get together the customary dozen sets—petticoats, chemises, corset covers, drawers and night dresses—for about $40. Necessarily, they will have to be of medium quality lonsdale, trimmed with machine embroidery or imitation lace, but made neatly and tastefully, will look exceedingly well. Or the number of white petticoats may be limited to three and the cost of materials for the other nine be expended for two silk-flounced percaline petticoats.

In addition to the gray suede slippers which should accompany the gray lansdowne wedding gown, there should be a pair of black kid and three pairs of walking boots of different weights, averaging $8.50. Two pairs of rubbers at $1.50 and kid bedroom slippers at $1 will bring the shoe bill up to the $20 mark.

Three pair of elbow kid gloves—gray, tan and white—at $3, and three pair of wrist-length in tan or gray suede at $2 will use up the 15 set aside for hand covering, but one may economize on stockings as a very good quality may be procured at $3 a dozen.

The bride-elect whose trousseau money is limited to $200 would best make up her mind to dispense with flower and feather trimmed hats, as the first named fade all too quickly and the others are exceedingly expensive if worth purchasing at all. She can make a pearl gray or white net hat to wear with the lansdowne gown at an outlay of $8 and for $7 can procure a stylish model in rough straw to accompany her going-away costume which, if blue, might have a black hat trimmed with blue grounded oriental scarf or large cluster of substantial blue wings.

If not favored with a "handkerchief shower," one would best purchase a half-dozen 50-cent handkerchiefs for special usage and make the old ones do for every day. A thrifty bride-elect will not bestow all of her girlhood wardrobe upon a younger sister but reserve the best shirtwaists for ordinary use beneath the serge street suit, the half-worn skirts for rainy-day shopping and the better ones for afternoons at home.

Advantages of Short Negligees.

For many reasons, negligees that do not touch the ground are infinitely to be preferred to all others, especially for the woman whose laundry bill must be curtailed. The term "short" does not necessarily imply the hip-length kimonos, for there is an endless variety of loose and half-fitting sacque designs that clear the floor only a foot or so, and are worn over a fancy petticoat. These are pretty when made up in figured soft silks, such as those often to be picked up on bargain counters for the proverbial song. Challie, bordered or printed, is excellent for negligees, as it will launder satisfactorily, unless trimmed in materials that will not "tub."

Any negligee sacque that is liable to pay a visit to the laundress should have sleeves that may be easily ironed. For this reason the Japanese models are most to be recommended. These sleeves are of two distinct types. One of the order, familiarly known as the kimono sleeve, is finished of course with a three-inch bias border, while the other and the more picturesque is known as the handkerchief. This latter in its detached condition is simply a huge square, held dingonally so that with one point attached to the shoulder the other will fall over the elbow, the remaining two being drawn together below the arm-size.

The simplest way imaginable to make a short kimono is to take a yard and a quarter square of lawn, border it all round with lace or muslin edging, and in the center cut an aperture sufficiently large to insert the head, finishing the opening similarly to the jacket edge.

A Society Woman's $500,000 Gymnasium.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor, the beautiful wife of the millionaire, who is well known in New York and London society, has probably the most perfectly appointed private gymnasium in the world. This "Palace of Games," as it has been called, was built expressly by Colonel Astor for his wife, at their Rhelnbeck-on-the-Hudson estate, and commands the most beautiful scenery.

It has taken nearly three years to complete, costing in material and labor alone close on half a million dollars. Mrs. Astor, young, beautiful, the leader of the "Four Hundred," and almost as well known in English society, is an expert at all kinds of athletics, and there are few of her country women who can match her in swimming, diving, fencing, tennis, golf, skating, riding and driving.

"Ferncliffe," the country home of the American Astors, though one of the oldest houses on the Hudson, possesses little of that magnificence which one usually associates with American millionaires, but it commands one of the most superb views of the world.

The "Tennis House," as Mrs. Astor prefers to call the gymnasium, has been built at a slightly lower altitude than the house in order that this magnificent view might not be obstructed.

The group of buildings which go to make up the "Tennis House," is shaped like a T, the stem of the letter being formed by the great steel arched tennis court. The entrance hall, or "Resting Hall," as it is quaintly called, is a magnificent apartment, lofty and spacious, the walls as well as the Corinthian columns which support the roof being of the finest white marble. From the central panel of the roof hangs a wonderful electrolier of gilt, containing a thousand electric bulbs, which illumine the hall in a most dazzling manner. From the white walls spring other electroliers, which add to the brilliancy of a light which might, perhaps, be painful were it not that each electric bulb is beautifully modulated in color and shade. Innumerable double doors of French glass face each other on every side. The fireplace is 12 feet high and wide in proportion, so that 10 or a dozen people could hide themselves in its cavernous depths.

The mantel is superbly carved marble and came from some ancient palace of Rome. The furniture is in red plush and leather and extremely massive, one couch being big enough to accommodate 18 persons. The floor is inlaid with maple wood, and when the floor is cleared for dancing it will accommodate 300 couples.

In the eastern wing is the "plunge" or pool, where guests may swim and dive to the heart's content. The walls of this remarkable swimming bath are of white marble, the plate glass roof being supported by huge monoliths of the finest quarried marble.

The pool is 25 feet wide, 60 feet long and 14 feet deep at the deepest end, shallowing off to three feet at the eastern extremity. The water is pumped direct from the Hudson River, and though there are elaborate arrangements for heating to any temperature, both Mrs. Astor and her guests prefer, in mild weather at least, the water as it comes direct from the river. By touching a button the depth of the pool may be instantly regulated and, if desired, emptied entirely within a few minutes. The plunge is surrounded by a gallery, where visitors may watch the aquatic sports, which are one of the features of the entertainments at Ferncliffe during each season.

From the pool a door leads to the massage-rooms, furnished with slabs of polished marble and presided over by skilled operators, while nearby are the ladies' and gentlemen's dressing-rooms, each furnished in as perfect a manner as thought and money can devise. Returning to the "resting hall" one passes through another door and immediately steps upon a balcony which overlooks the tennis court—probably the most perfect indoor court of the kind in America. It is two stories high, 125 feet long and 75 feet wide. The roof is arched like a cathedral, and from the big skylight comes all the illumination the players require. At midday, when the sun pours down through the roof—which can be opened to the sky—curtains of cheesecloth are drawn so that the players' eyes are protected.

The flooring is of beaten clay, which is believed to be far less tiring to the feet than asphalt, and the courts are marked with ordinary whitewash. On either side of the net are benches for the players, but the spectators are expected to keep to the balcony. Mrs. Astor is one of the best amateur tennis players in America, and she spends a considerable portion of her time at the nets.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

WHITE SOX ARE HOME

Manager Morrow and Fourteen Men Arrive From Madison.

Manager W. E. Morrow, with fourteen White Sox in tow, arrived in Duluth this morning over the Omaha from Madison, where they played and lost the last game of the series. Down in weight and up in spirits, Morrow was glad to strike friendly territory and he's prepared to trot his team out for the inspection of the fans this afternoon at Athletic park, when the Sox will line up against the Kelleys.

"Predictions are worthless and boasts worse, but I believe I have a ball team right now that will not be lost when the pennant race begins," said Morrow. "We didn't pay any attention to the scores of the training games. I'll admit that most of them were against us, but that doesn't signify anything. They served their purpose of giving me a line on the men and I believe I have culled out the dead ones and come here now with a real live ball team for action."

The men, who arrived this morning, are: Catchers, Voss and Speer; pitchers, Brandt, Murray, Schmeller, Krick and Hauge; first base, Ness; second base, Pagles and O'Brien; shortstop, Koepping; third base, Baker, outfields, Rorabaugh and Morrow.

The men are looking fine and fit, considering the fact that during the past two weeks they have been compelled, for the most, to gaze out of hotel windows at falling rain and sloppy streets instead of working out stiffness on the diamond. Given an even break on the weather proposition, they will have six rattling good games here in which to get in condition before they go to Winnipeg for the opening. The fans will get a chance to see them work in three of the six games and Virginia will get the other three.

The Sox are joined here today by Jimmy Leighty and a pitcher named Francis, who came to play with Hibbing and signed a Duluth contract. Toot Thompson's case is still in the air. O'Dea claims that he cannot be held by Duluth, but the case will be taken up with the national commission and fought out there. Virginia is getting together a good team for the series with the Sox, which begins tomorrow. They have Cox, a third baseman; Billings, a catcher, and a pitcher from Rockford, Ill., cast off by the Wisconsin-Illinois leaguers, Jimmy Ryan, who was with Calumet last year and played the latter part of the season with Virginia, has also promised to be on hand and the Calumet amateur battery, Rosevear and Anthony, has also been signed again. Virginia is spending money freely to get men and will make a strong effort to beat the Sox.

WHITE SOX LOSE TO MADISON

Madison, Wis., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth White Sox played errorless ball yesterday and touched the Madison pitchers for ten hits, but they could only score five runs, while Madison gathered six. Each team worked three pitchers, the cold weather preventing anyone from going the whole route.

In the fifth, Madison bunched on Murray for three runs and tied up the game, adding one in the next inning. Duluth broke loose with a rally in the seventh, which was dangerous. After four runs had been piled up and they were in striking distance of the Madison score, they were cut off and didn't have another chance to score during the game.

Milwaukee, May 7.—Ad Wolgast of Milwaukee got the decision over Frankie O'Neill of California in a fast ten-round bout before the Green Valley Boxing club last night. It was Wolgast's fight all the way through, the California boy getting an even break in only one round, the sixth.

JEROME FILES COPY OF GRAND JURY MINUTES.

New York, May 7.—In compliance with Judge Rosalsky's amended order, Mr. Jerome filed, yesterday, a copy of the minutes of November grand jury which investigated the Metropolitan Street Railway company. Jerome defended himself in general from the charge that he did not strive sufficiently for indictment of accused persons in corporation cases. He said that in a quasi judicial office like his, he believed it to be the officer's duty not to waste his time and the public's money in obtaining indictments which he had every reason to believe the courts would dismiss.

Because the Sox were unfortunate on their training trip, as far as the actual results of games is concerned, the ubiquitous knockers are already busy and picturing Duluth in a far-off rear position when Sept. 7 rolls around. They are taking snap judgment on Morrow and his men because they haven't won every game against the Wisconsin-Illinois leaguers.

Duluth will not finish in last place this year.

Neither will the White Sox finish in third place and, if money can do it, there will be a pennant raising at Athletic park in the spring of 1909.

The training trip games don't count for anything. Big leaguers are beaten by second rate clubs in the South, but the managers do not worry. They know that the exhibition contests do not figure in the percentage column. When the teams get into the real race, their ability shows up and, if the Sox aren't up to the mark, there will be time enough to knock.

It's up to the fans to put their shoulders to the wheel and boost. If the Sox are to win a pennant, they must have the home crowd with them. The management has done its part thus far. Morrow has a reputation as a manager, that recommends him. He has gathered men around him, who, he thinks, should be able to win a pennant. They haven't been put to the test yet, and, until they are, every fan should be with them, pulling for the big end of every series.

The club that wins the 1908 pennant in the Northern league must beat Brandon.

On paper, Artie O'Dea has a fine bunch of stickers, a clean set of fielders and as fine a pitching staff as there is in the league. Give him an even break of luck and he'll make a run for the pennant that will make the fans' heads swim.

Duluth fandom has a warm place in its heart for Artie. His "kidding" ways win him friends, but behind it all, the boys, who follow baseball, know Artie has knowledge and ability. If Duluth can't win the pennant, the fans here would rather see it go to O'Dea than anybody. Duluth is after the rag and will fight to the last ditch for its possession. Brandon is the team that must be fought, for Artie O'Dea's boys are just now strong possibilities.

Winnipeg doesn't appear to be any too formidable. The Maroons have been beaten regularly by independent clubs in Illinois. The star lineup of last year is torn up and men like Crisp, Luderus, Zeider, Piper, Cox, Sawyer and Bushelman cannot be replaced in a hurry. The fans may take one fact to themselves and thoughtfully assimilate it. Brandon will be a stronger contender for the pennant than will Winnipeg.

Small enough is the amount of wordly goods left by the man, who did more than any other to bring the American game of baseball to the place it occupies in the hearts of American citizens. He gave his life to the game and the game gave him nothing, but pleasant hours and the satisfaction of knowing that the work he had undertaken was well done.

To the world, he left a legacy greater than can be estimated in dollars. To millions of Americans, he left enjoyment of a wholesome, clean sport, brought to the highest point of development along right lines, largely by his aid. Baseball will live forever in America and while it lives, Henry Chadwick's name will be associated with it and the close followers of the game will keep his memory green and revere it.

The sailors of the American fleet in San Francisco will see a slashing bout Saturday afternoon, when Stanley Ketchell will meet Jack (Twin) Sullivan in the ring. Ketchell should win without any great effort, but neither of the Sullivan Twins is to be held too lightly. Jack will make the fight interesting enough for anybody.

BRANDON GAINS EASY VICTORY

O'Dea's Men Bunch on Couture in Two Innings.

Hibbing, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.—While Smith held Brady's Colts safe and kept their six hits badly scattered, Artie O'Dea's men tied onto Couture in the third and seventh innings yesterday and scored four runs, Hibbing drawing a blank.

Brandon mixed three errors into the proceedings, but the Hibbing squad couldn't take advantage of them, Smith working especially well with men on the sacks. Couture was steady except in the two innings when Brandon scored.

The game was the first of a series of five and was attended by about 500 people. Nelson will pitch for Brandon this afternoon and Freeman or Gilligan for Hibbing. Score: R. H. E.

CONTRIBUTIONS SMALL.

Olympic Team Fund Being Raised Very Slowly.

New York, May 7.—Treasurer Julian W. Curtis of the American Olympic committee, has made a detailed statement of the various donations to the fund being raised to send a representative American team to the Olympic games in England this summer. Up to date he reports only $11,041 has been subscribed, which is far short of the $50,000 which the American committee estimates will be necessary to send a strong team abroad. Of this amount the colleges including Yale and Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Chicago and Michigan have subscribed $1,300 and various athletic clubs about $3,300. Individual subscribers include Andrew Carnegie, S. B. Guggenheim and A. G. Spalding, who gave $500 each.

SETTING UP APPARATUS

Apparatus Modern and Plentiful Enough for Good Results.

Classes have been suspended in the gymnasium of the Central Y. M. C. A. and individual exercises now rule there. When the classes are reopened next fall, they will be in the new building of the association at Third avenue west and Second street, where the apparatus is now being set up.

The equipment of the gymnasium will be a revelation to those not familiar with the modern means of developing the human body. While the appointments of the other parts of the building are elaborate and modern, the association has not neglected the physical department, which is counted one of the most important branches of association work. There, special effort has been made to secure facilities for getting the best results and if quantity and excellence of contrivances count for anything, it has succeeded.

The association has expended $2,500 for apparatus and an expert from the manufacturers is setting it up. Every known appliance for gymnasium work with every improvement made in recent years, is being installed and the change from the old gymnasium, with its limited facilities, to the beautiful new place, will be a welcome one.

The running track has been laid and the cork matting will be laid over the saucer shaped surface in a few days. Considerable time will be consumed in getting all of the apparatus in shape, and it will be nearly a month yet before the gymnasium will be ready for occupancy, but a number of the members have already visited it and raised pleasant anticipations by inspecting its appointments.

WILL TALK OF SEWERS.

Garfield Avenue Property Owners Will Meet Council Committee.

Garfield avenue property owners will attend a meeting this evening of the city council committee on drains, sewers and sanitation, to talk about the laying of a sewer from No. 500 to No. 1100 on that thoroughfare.

Many of the property owners are against the sewer project because they think the railroads are going to take over Garfield avenue land shortly and the sewers will become valueless. They intimate that they will carry the matter into the courts, to prevent the construction of the sewer.

Other Garfield avenue property owners want the sewer and they will be on hand this evening to press their side of the argument.

ASHLAND TO SPRUCE UP.

Nearby Wisconsin City is Going to Clean Things Friday.

Ashland, Wis., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow will be clean-up day in Ashland as well as Arbor day. Besides planting trees in accordance with the law, citizens generally are expected to wage a desperate campaign upon all accumulations that are an eyesore and a menace to health.

The health department will assist in the good work by furnishing teams to remove the rubbish, provided it is placed in boxes or barrels and in a convenient spot to get at. The health department is under no obligation to remove this accumulation of winter rubbish, but in order to facilitate matters has agreed to do so.

The city teams will only go over the city once, and no garbage or rubbish will be removed from any boardinghouse, hotel or other public places or from private stables. The health officials have called attention to the fact that there is an ordinance against using the streets and alleys for dumping grounds for rubbish.

The franchise calls for work to begin on the installment of the plant within six months and the plant to be ready for operation on or before May 2, 1909.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

WHITE SOX ARE HOME

Manager Morrow and Fourteen Men Arrive From Madison.

Manager W. E. Morrow, with fourteen White Sox in tow, arrived in Duluth this morning over the Omaha from Madison, where they played and lost the last game of the series. Down in weight and up in spirits, Morrow was glad to strike friendly territory and he's prepared to trot his team out for the inspection of the fans this afternoon at Athletic park, when the Sox will line up against the Kelleys.

"Predictions are worthless and boasts worse, but I believe I have a ball team right now that will not be last when the pennant race begins," said Morrow. "We didn't pay any attention to the scores of the training games. I'll admit that most of them were against us, but that doesn't signify anything. They served their purpose of giving me a line on the men and I believe I have culled out the dead ones and come here now with a real live ball team for action."

The team arrived this morning, also: Pitchers, Voss and Speer; pitchers, Brandt, Murray, Schmeiler, Krick and Hines; first base, Ness; second base, Pagel; and O'Brien; shortstop, Koepping; third base, Baker; outfields, Rorabaugh and Morrow.

The men are looking fine and fit, considering the fact that during the past two weeks they have been compelled, for the most, to gaze out at windows at the falling rain and sloppy streets instead of working out stiffness on the diamond. Given an even break on the weather proposition, they will have six rattling good games here in which to get in condition before they go to Winnipeg for the opening. The fans will get a chance to see them work in three of the six games and Virginia will get the other three.

The Sox are joined here today by Jimmy Doughty and a pitcher named Francis, who came to play with Hibbing and signed a Duluth contract. Toot Thompson's case is still in the air. O'Dea claims that he cannot be held by Duluth, but the case will be taken up with the national commission and fought out there.

Virginia is getting together a good team for the series with the Sox, which begins tomorrow. They have Cox, a third baseman, and Gallagher, a catcher, and a pitcher from Rockford, Ill., cast off by the Wisconsin-Illinois leaguers, Jimmy Ryan, who was with Calumet last year and played the latter part of the season with Virginia, has also promised to be on hand and the Calumet amateur battery, Rosevear and Anthony, has also been signed again. Virginia is spending money freely to get men and will make a strong effort to beat the Sox.

St. Paul, May 7.—Farris and Briggs were both batted out of the box yesterday, but errors by the Saints, together with bunched hits by the Hoosiers, gave Indianapolis the game by a score of 7 to 4. Eubanks, who relieved Briggs, pitched fine ball. Score: R. H. E.

WHITE SOX LOSE TO MADISON

Madison, Wis., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth White Sox played errorless ball yesterday and touched the Madison pitchers for ten hits, but they could only score five runs, while Madison gathered six. Each team worked three pitchers, the cold weather preventing anyone from going the whole route.

In the fifth, Madison bunched on Murray for three runs and tied up the game, adding one in the next inning. Duluth broke loose with a rally in the seventh, which was dangerous. After four runs had been piled up and they were in striking distance of the Madison score, they were cut off and didn't have another chance to score during the game.

The Wisconsin-Illinois season opens here today with ceremony. Score: R. H. E.

DECISION TO WOLGAST.

Milwaukee Boy Has the Better of Ten-Round Bout.

Milwaukee, May 7.—Ad Wolgast of Milwaukee got the decision over Frankie O'Neill of California in a fast ten-round bout before the Green Valley Boxing club last night. It was Wolgast's fight all the way through, the California boy getting an even break in only one round, the sixth.

JEROME FILES COPY OF GRAND JURY MINUTES.

New York, May 7.—In compliance with Judge Rosalsky's amended order, Mr. Jerome filed, yesterday, a copy of the minutes of November grand jury which investigated the Metropolitan Street Railway company. Jerome defended himself in general from the charge that he did not strive sufficiently for indictment of accused persons in corporation cases. He said that in a quasi judicial office like his, he believed it to be the officer's duty not to waste his time and the public's money in obtaining indictments which he had every reason to believe the courts would dismiss.

Because the Sox were unfortunate on their training trip, as far as the actual results of games is concerned, the ubiquitous knockers are already busy and picturing Duluth in a far-off rear position when Sept. 7 rolls around. They are taking snap judgment on Morrow and his men because they haven't won every game against the Wisconsin-Illinois leaguers.

Duluth will not finish in last place this year.

Neither will the White Sox finish in third place and, if money can do it, there will be a pennant raising at Athletic park in the spring of 1909.

The training trip games don't count for anything. Big leaguers are beaten by second rate clubs in the South, but the managers do not worry. They know that the exhibition contests do not figure in the percentage column. When the teams get into the real race, their ability shows up and, if the Sox aren't up to the mark, there will be time enough to knock.

It's up to the fans to put their shoulders to the wheel and boost. If the Sox are to win a pennant, they must have the home crowd with them. The management has done its part thus far. Morrow has a reputation as a manager, that recommends him. He has gathered men around him, who, he thinks, should be able to win a pennant. They have't been put to the test yet, and, until they are, every fan should be with them, pulling for the big end of every series.

The club that wins the 1908 pennant in the Northern league must beat Brandon.

On paper, Artie O'Dea has a fine bunch of stickers, a clean set of fielders and as fine a pitching staff as there is in the league. Give him an even break of luck and he'll make a run for the pennant that will make the fans' heads swim.

Duluth fandom has a warm place in its heart for Artie. His "kidding" ways win him friends, but behind it all, the boys, who follow baseball, know Artie has knowledge and ability. If Duluth can't win the pennant, the fans here would rather see it go to O'Dea than anybody. Duluth is after the rag and will fight to the last ditch for its possession. Brandon is the team that must be fought, for Artie O'Dea's boys are just now strong possibilities.

Winnipeg doesn't appear to be any too formidable. The Maroons have been beaten regularly by independent clubs in Illinois. The star line-up of last year is torn up and men like Crisp, Ludeus, Zelder, Piper, Cox, Shuyler and Bushelman cannot be replaced in a hurry. The fans may take one fact to themselves and thoughtfully assimilate it. Brandon will be a stronger contender for the pennant than will Winnipeg.

Small enough is the amount of worldly goods left by the man, who did more than any other to bring the American game of baseball to the place it occupies in the hearts of American citizens. He gave his life to the game and the game gave him nothing, but pleasant hours and the satisfaction of knowing that the work he had undertaken was well done.

To the world, he left a legacy greater than can be estimated in dollars. To millions of Americans, he left enjoyment of a wholesome, clean sport, brought to the highest point of development along right lines, largely by his aid. Baseball will live forever in America and while it lives, Henry Chadwick's name will be associated with it and the clase followers of the game will keep his memory green and revere it.

The sailors of the American fleet in San Francisco will see a slashing bout Saturday afternoon, when Stanley Ketchell will meet Jack (Twin) Sullivan in the ring. Ketchell should win without any great effort, but neither of the Sullivan Twins is to be held too lightly. Jack will make the fight interesting enough for anybody.

O'Dea's Men Bunch on Couture in Two Innings.

Hibbing, Minn., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.—While Smith held Brady's Colts safe and kept their six hits badly scattered, Artie O'Dea's men tied onto Couture in the third and seventh innings yesterday and scored four runs. Hibbing drawing a blank.

Brandon mixed three errors into the proceedings, but the Hibbing squad couldn't take advantage of them, Smith working especially well with men on the sacks. Couture was steady except in the two innings when Brandon scored.

The game was the first of a series of five and was attended by about 500 people. Nelson will pitch for Brandon this afternoon and Freeman or Gilligan for Hibbing. Score: R. H. E.

CONTRIBUTIONS SMALL.

Olympic Team Fund Being Raised Very Slowly.

New York, May 7.—Treasurer Julian W. Curtis of the American Olympic committee, has made a detailed statement of the various donations to the fund being raised to send a representative American team to the Olympic games in England this summer. Up to date he reports only $11,991 has been subscribed, which is far short of the $50,000 which the American committee estimates will be necessary to send a strong team abroad. Of this amount the colleges including Yale and Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Chicago and Michigan have subscribed $1,500 and various athletic clubs about $3,500. Individual subscribers include Andrew Carnegie, S. B. Guggenheim and A. G. Spalding, who gave $500 each.

There, special effort has been made to secure facilities for getting the best results and if quantity and excellence of contrivances count for anything, it has succeeded.

The association has expended $2,500 for apparatus and an expert from the manufacturers is setting it up. Every known appliance for gymnasium work with every improvement made in recent years, is being installed and the change from the old gymnasium, with its limited facilities, to the beautiful new place, will be a welcome one.

The running track has been laid and the cork matting will be laid over the saucer shaped surface in a few days. Considerable time will be consumed in getting all of the apparatus in shape, and it will be nearly a month yet before the gymnasium will be ready for occupancy, but a number of the members have already visited it and raised pleasant anticipations by inspecting its appointments.

WILL TALK OF SEWERS.

Ga. field Avenue Property Owners Will Meet Council Committee.

Garfield avenue property owners will attend a meeting this evening of the city council committee on drains, sewers and sanitation, to talk about the laying of a sewer from No. 500 to No. 1100 on that thoroughfare.

Many of the property owners are against the sewer project because they think the railroads are going to take over Garfield avenue land shortly and the sewers will become valueless. They intimate that they will carry the matter into the courts, to prevent the construction of the sewer.

Other Garfield avenue property owners want the sewer and they will be on hand this evening to press their side of the argument.

ASHLAND TO SPRUCE UP.

Ashland, Wis., May 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow will be clean-up day in Ashland as well as Arbor day. Besides planting trees in accordance with the law, citizens generally are expected to wage a desperate campaign upon all accumulations that are an eyesore and a menace to health.

The health department will assist in the good work by furnishing teams to remove the rubbish, provided it is placed in boxes or barrels and in a convenient spot to get at. The health department is under no obligation to remove this accumulation of winter rubbish, but in order to facilitate matters has agreed to do so.

The city teams will only go over the city once, and no garbage or rubbish will be removed from any boarding-house, hotel or other public places or from private stables. The health officials have called attention to the fact that there is an ordinance against using the streets and alleys for dumping grounds for rubbish.

To find, to get, to let, to sell—is to Herald want advertised.

HINCKLEY TO LIGHT UP.

Grants Cloquet Man Franchise for Electric Plant.

Hinckley, Minn., May 7.—(Special to Hhe Herald.)—J. J. Coburn of Cloquet, Minn., has been granted a twenty-year-franchise by the village council for an electric lighting plant. The franchise provides for a ten-year contract for four arc lights and nineteen fifty-candle power incandescent lights for street lighting purposes. It is expected that the Grindstone river will be dammed to provide power for the plant. The franchise calls for work to begin on the installment of the plant within six months and the plant to be ready for operation on or before May 2, 1909.

EXPORTERS VERY BUSY

Forty Loads of Wheat Worked in the Duluth Market.

Flax is Half a Point Up at the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 7.—This was another big exporting day in the local market, about forty loads being worked during the session.

The demand showed great improvement during the latter part of the day and the close was firm everywhere on this side of the Atlantic.

Estimates of Argentina shipments for this week were 2,500,000 bus, and small world's shipments are expected.

Most of wheat worked by the local exporters was durum, although there was some Manitoba and No. 1 northern. A little hard winter wheat was worked, to be shipped from the gulf next summer.

Liverpool closed ½d to ¾d lower, Berlin ½c lower and Budapest ½c higher.

The May option closed ¼c higher in Duluth and unchanged in the rest of the markets. The July option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth and Chicago, ¼c higher in Minneapolis and New York and ½c higher in Winnipeg.

Chicago July corn closed ½-¾c higher and July oats ⅝c up.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a steady undertone to the spot wheat market on the opening, although values were ½d to ¾d lower. Offerings were not pressing at this time but later became more liberal with support lacking. Pressure to sell resulted from the weaker American cables yesterday, fine weather reported in the United Kingdom, a pause in the inquiry for cargoes and a report by a private house here that shipments from Argentina this week would be about the same as last week. Toward mid-day, the market became steady with some covering by shorts and prices gained ½d with the exception of May which was extremely dull. At this time, the market was quiet but steady and unchanged to ½d lower than Wednesday.

Car receipts at Duluth were 20 against 124 last year, and at Minneapolis 94 against 273 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 124 against 397 last year. Chicago received 15 against 29 last year. Winnipeg received 2 against 226 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 262,000 bushels; last year, 778,000 bushels. Shipments, 652,000 bushels; last year, 375,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of corn were 289,000 bushels; last year, 359,000 bushels. Shipments, 278,000 bushels; last year, 571,000 bushels.

Wheat was rather quiet during most of the session in Duluth. May wheat sold at $1.06⅞, declined to $1.06⅛ and closed at $1.06⅝, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. July wheat opened unchanged at $1.06½, declined to $1.06⅛, rallied to $1.06⅝ and closed there, a gain of ⅝c over yesterday. September wheat closed ¼c higher at 91c.

Durum wheat closed ¼c higher and cash spring wheat was unchanged.

Flax was quiet but firmer. May flax closed ½c higher at $1.20. July flax opened ¼c lower at $1.21⅜, advanced to $1.21¾ and closed there, a gain of ¼c over yesterday.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Weak on Free Selling, Based on Lower Cables.

Chicago, May 7.—The market opened weak today on free selling of the July option which was based upon lower cables and the expectation of a bearish government crop report on Friday. July wheat opened a shade to 1⅛@¼c lower at 88⅞@89c, sold at 90¼c and then eased off to 89⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 143 cars against 158 cars last week and 428 cars one year ago.

Sentiment continued bearish until just before the close, when the market became firmer on covering by shorts. The close was firm, with July ⅝c higher at 90⅜@⅞c.

The corn market was firm at the opening, because of the continued wet weather which is delaying farming operations. Later the market eased off with wheat. July corn opened 86@⅞c higher at 64⅜@64⅝c and sold at 64⅜c. Local receipts were 90 cars with 15 of contract grade.

The advance of the May option to 74c was the feature of the market, but trading was light. The more deferred options were unchanged. The close was steady, with July ⅛@¼c higher at 64½@64⅝c.

The oats market was steady on fair buying by commission houses. July oats opened ⅜c higher, at 47c and sold off to 46⅞c. Local receipts were 116 cars.

The provisions market was dull and steady. A 5c decline in live hogs was offset by the moderate buying of packers. July pork opened unchanged at $13.50. Lard was a shade higher at $8.47½. Ribs were a shade higher, at $7.25@7.27½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.02¾; July, 86⅞@⅞c; September, 86c. Corn—May, 73⅝c; July, 64½@⅝c; September, 62⅜c. Oats—May, old, 55½c; May, 54⅝c; July, old, 47½; July, 45½c; September, 31½@⅝c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 7.—Extremely light receipts of only 94 cars against 273 a year ago and 30 against 124 in Duluth made the situation look firmer, but with Chicago dull and easy and big winter wheat crop estimates prices sold off early. Later they were strong again. The elevator stocks have increased 125,000 bushels for five days and will probably show a gain for the week, but with such light receipts a decrease next week is the expectation. From a Kansas state official came an estimate of 95,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels for that state while a New York trade paper sees a prospect for a total winter wheat crop of 485,000,000 bushels. The government report of tomorrow is expected to be bearish. Near the close, shorts covered and the market was strong. July wheat opened $1.07⅛; high, $1.07⅝; low, $1.06⅜; close, $1.07½@⅝; $1.07⅝; September closed at 91¼@91¾c; May closed at $1.08¾.

Cash wheat was stronger. Millers were more willing to buy and premiums were ½c better than yesterday. No. 1 northern 2@2½c over July and No. 2 northern July price to ½c over. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.08⅜@⅝ spot, $1.08⅝ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.07⅜@⅝ spot, $1.07⅝ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1.06⅝@1.06⅞. No. 3 yellow corn, 67½@67¾c. No. 3 white oats, 51⅞@52⅜. No. 2 rye, 75½@76¼c.

Barley quiet and neglected. Six cars sold on a range of 56c to 63c. Close: 55c to 67c.

Bran in bulk in active demand and quoted firm at $21.75@22.00 in bulk.

Better demand was the report in flour and a somewhat larger business was done. Eighteen mills are grinding and the output is larger but it is being disposed of as the East is taking flour more freely. Shipments, 35,230 barrels. First patents, $5.50@5.65; second patents, $5.40@5.50; first clears, $4.20@4.30; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

DUSTLESS ROADWAYS.

Roy A. Moore in The World To-Day: "We are now experiencing the luxury of absolutely dustless roadways."

A bulletin issued last July by the Kansas City park board makes the above statement. A year ago during the summer months, the board had its whole force of sprinkling wagons going every day in an attempt to keep down the dust which made the enjoyment of the park drives impossible at times. In a few hours the hot summer sun dried the roads, and every passing motor car left clouds of fine rock dust to settle on the foliage along the drive. Now a motor car passing at the highest speed over any portion of the extnsive boulevard system leaves no dusty trail in its wake. The oil has not only proved much more effective than water, bt is a third cheaper and preserves the roadways as well. One of serious problems here, as in other cities, has been the preservation of the drives from the wear o fthe motor car wheels. The oiled boulevard is also protected from erosion. Formerly every rainstorm left rugged gullies which took several days to repair. The eye of the most inexperienced could see that something was needed to bind the macadam, to preserve a smooth surface without dust and prevent washouts at the same time. The net savings in the use of oil for the year was $5,535.88 or 34 per cent.

STAGE DANCERS' SHOES.

Washington Herald: Samuel G. Firth, who is interested in the shoe manufacturing business, said that the making of shoes for dancers, atletes and stage folk was one of the interesting industries into which some hand shoemakers had drifted.

"In Boston, Brockton, Lynn and Haverhill," said Mr. Firth, "there are a number of old-time cordwainers who are now busily engaged turning out ballet shoes, dancing slippers, dancing clogs, athletic shoes and dress and grotesque footwear for the stage. Ballet shoes are made in quantities in Lynn for professionals of the stage, amateur dancers of the dancing schools and college and other girls who go in for physical culture.

"Dancers have small and shapely feet. This is also true of college girls who go in for physical culture. The typical stage foot is No. 4, which is an ideal size. The stage foot is apt to be broader across the toes than the ordinary foot, because dancers exercise the muscles of their feet and develop them. It is a rule of good dancers to wear shoes that will allow for space between the toes. It is a point of good fit that all persons should heed."

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Lowest Prices Recorded in Final Hour of the Session.

Realizing and Short Selling Occurred on the Earlier Rallies.

New York, May 7.—The opening stock market today was quiet and the tone irregular within a narrow range. Colorado Fuel rose 1 and St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred and Utah Copper large fractions. Southern Pacific and Delaware & Hudson declined large fractions.

A jump in Reading of a point with resultant higher prices in the rest of the list furnished an advantageous level for realizing and short selling, and the market relapsed to below the opening prices. The metal stocks and grain carriers weakened decidedly, but Reading, after a momentary setback, rose to the top again. Quite a number of minor stocks were strong. The decline lowered Amalgamated Copper and National Lead 1 and American Smelting 1⅜.

Selling subsided to some extent and there were small rallies on moderate dealings. Prices reacted again at noon with an increase of activity. Union Pacific and St. Paul lost a point. Bonds were irregular.

The market closed heavy and dull. Prices touched the lowest of the day in the final hour, although previous declines were not much extended except in Northern Pacific, which fell nearly 2 points. There were some gains.

QUEEN'S BLIND COLONY.

Carmen Sylva, the literary queen of Rumania, gives in the Corriere della Sera some particulars of the way in which she came to found her colony for the blind. The expenses of the enterprise are now largely borne by an invention of a blind man, Theodoresen. It is a new machine for printing books for the use of the blind.

"It all began one day that I visited an old men's home," said the queen, "where a hundred gray-haired waifs were sheltered. As I walked along a corridor a fine dark-haired young man came toward me. His step was uncertain and I asked what he was doing there.

"He was blind, they told me. He had been a printer and he lost his sight through the strain of his trade. His employer, as long as he lived, continued to pay him, but on the employer's death his means of living stopped. Then they separated him from his wife and children and he was sent him to the home for the aged, he being as helpless as the oldest of them."

The queen took him to the palace. Then the great desire to help the blind came upon her. She bought a machine for printing in raised letters for them and set her protege to work on it.

He soon became proficient and from that time on was able to earn a good living for himself and family. Then one day her secretary came to her in the palace at Bucharest and told her the blind man, Theodoresen, had made a great invention. It was a new machine for embossing books for the blind, and when a working model was made it gave entire satisfaction.

The queen patented it, it was exhibited at the Jubilee exposition in 1906 in Bucharest, and it has had such success that $160,000 has been set aside from the profits on it for a working fund for the blind colony.

The queen, whose interest in the subject had been aroused by Theodoresen's case, had been working steadily to develop her project. She ascertained that there were about 20,000 people in Rumania none of whom was able to earn anything, and who, in a majority of cases, lived in the greatest misery.

A Rumanian lady gave her a plot of ground, about fifty acres in extent, and then she began to gather the poorest of the blind people of the country, with their families and dependents. A general kitchen was established, with the women, who could see, in charge and others helping.

Separate cottages were laid out for the families; and gardens in which they could raise vegetables. Workshops were established for brushes, baskets and all the usual articles that the blind can make. A printing establishment for books for the blind was set up, with those who had any education working in it.

The colony soon became practically self-supporting, and it has grown until it includes several thousand persons. The children all go to the same school and learn the same lessons; the blind use the embossed books; those who can see, ordinary ones, with the same text.

Among the projects of the queen is the development of the musical talent which many of the blind possess. She thinks it will give many a way to make money, while it will be a comfort to all.

HER PROPHECY.

Chicago News: "You told me so?" repeated the married man.

"Well, didn't I?" asked his wife.

"I certainly haven't any recollection of it," said the married man, "but of course if you say that you did I am bound to admit it."

"It's a comfort to hear you admit anything," remarked his wife.

"Perhaps you can help my memory a little," said the man. "Can you tell me when you made this prediction which has been so completely verified? Psychologically considered, it might be interesting to have the details. What was it inspired you? If you had foamed at the mouth or gone into a trance, or something of that sort, no doubt I should have paid more attention."

"You never pay any attention to anything I say," declared his wife.

"It seems strange in the face of the scores of prophetic utterances that you have made, doesn't it?"

"You needn't try to be sarcastic, Henry."

"I'm not. I'm wondering at my own blind folly. When you came to me with a glaze over your eyes and told me that on the twenty-first day of March, at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, the hot water coil in the furnace would burst, flooding the basement and soaking the summer mattings with water and coal dust, and cracking the fire-clay lining from top to bottom, I ought not to have forgotten it. I ought to have made a note on the calendar and let the fire go out on the night of the 20th."

"Oh, or course, if you want to be absurd!"

"Do you mean it would have happened anyway and in spite of any precautions that I might have taken?"

"Do you think that's funny?"

"I'm simply trying to get light on the matter," said the man. "You say you told me so?"

"Well, I did."

"I hate even to appear to doubt you, but I don't believe you so much as knew that there was a hot-water coil in the blamed furnace."

"There's no necessity for using that sort of language about it, my dear."

"Well, did you?"

"Did I what? If you mean did I tell you the date and all that nonsense, you know perfectly well I didn't. You are always trying to make out that I said something that I never so much as dreamed of saying. That's the way all you men are. If I told you that you had said something you didn't say, I should never hear the last of it. And as far as paying attention to what I say is concerned, you know perfectly well you never do. And then when things happen you try to

ANAESTHETICS KNOWN LONG AGO.

London Globe: Lecturing before the Association of Surgeons of Munich on narcotics, Prof. Klein said that the process of reducing the sensibilities of patients with a view to making operations painless was known and practised in the Middle Ages.

Bishop Theodorus of Chervira wrote a prescription for a pain destroyer in the twelfth century which contained opium, morphine and hyoscum.

A medical work printed in 1460 contains the first known treatise on inhalation and we now inject under the skin the soothing mixture which in 1460 was inhaled.

THE CONFUSED BELL BOY

The recent visit of the Archbishop of Canterbury recalled the similar occasion a third of a century ago, when Bishop Selwyn was the guest of the Episcopal Church of New York, at the Hotel Westminster. Dr. H. C. Potter, now bishop, had personal charge of the entertainment of the visitor, and he gave the bell boy some lessons in English etiquette, among other things instructing the lad that when the bishop, answering his knock, asked "Who is there?" he should replyp, "The boy, my Lord."

All went smoothly until the bell boy called the bishop the morning after his arrival.

"Who's there?" called out the sleepy ecclesiastic.

The answer aroused him, for the confused lad shouted out: "The Lord, my boy."

ATLANTA, GA., HAS MILLION AND ONE-HALF FIRE LOSS

Two Solid Business Blocks Are a Mass of Ruins.

Several Hotels Burn, But All the Occupants Escape.

Poor Water Pressure Hampers the Work of Firemen.

Atlanta, Ga., May 8.—Two solid business blocks of Atlanta are in ruins today as the result of a fire which threatened for a time to carry its destruction through the business section of the city, and perhaps wipe out the entire down town district. The fire loss may be conservatively estimated at $1,500,000.

The Terminal hotel, one of the largest in the city, is a mass of bricks. It had, on its register 200 guests when the fire started, a block away. Everyone escaped. Nearby were several other small hotels, and in these also there was no loss of life.

The fire started in the Schlessinger-Meyer Baking company, Madison and Nelson streets, at 3:30 this morning, and within a few minutes the building was in flames. The wagons had just started away with their early morning load of bake stuff when the alarm was given, and an attempt was made to start the electric elevator in the Schlessinger building, to awaken the employes asleep there. The elevator failed to respond to the starting mechanism, and the fire department authorities believe the fire may have been due to some defect in this electric elevator.

General Alarm Turned In.

When the first fire company arrived the building was a mass of flames. Chief Cummings immediately turned in a general alarm. Flames were shooting from every window of the big building that ran the entire block from

STEAMSHIPS IN COLLISION

Matiana and a Hamburg Liner Come Together in Fog.

Portland, Eng., May 8.—The British steamer Matiana, from London for Calcutta, has been in collison with a steamer of the Hamburg-American line, at a point twenty miles south of here. The name of the Hamburg liner has not yet been ascertained. The Matiana has returned here with her stem broken and other damages. The collison occured in a dense fog. The extent of the damage to the German steamer is not known. A tug has gone out from here in search of her

Before the vessel parted the Hamburg liner said she intended to come to Portland, but she has not yet arrived here and nothing further has been heard from her. The fog is still very dense.

ONE WITNESS IS EXAMINED

House Committee Then Starts on Trip to Paper Mills.

Washington, May 8.—Victor E. Bender, publisher of the Daily Nonpareil, Council Bluffs, Iowa, was the only witness examined today by the special committee of the house that is investigating the wood pulp and print paper question. He testified that ten years ago he paid $1.70 per 100 pounds for paper delivered in Council Bluffs, and that his present contract called for $2.50.

"What reasons were given you for the increase in the price of paper?" asked Chairman Mann.

"The stock reasons," replied Mr. Bender, "are scarcity of water and the increase in the cost of production."

The committee left Washington today for Corinth, N. Y., where they will investigate the Hudson paper mill and also examine some of the operatives there. Word has been received from the local labor union at that place pledging cooperation to the committee in the investigation.

SIX BIG ELEVATORS

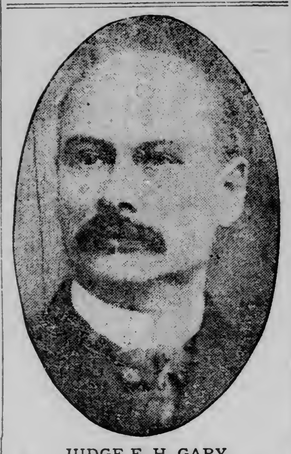
Winnipeg, Man., May 8.—The Grand Pacific railway announced today that the company will erect six 10,000,000-bushel elevators on the Kam river at Fort William. Work will be started this spring.

GETS VERDICT AGAINST THUNDERER FOR $37,500.

London, May 8.—John Murray, the publisher, has obtained a verdict of $37,500 damages against the London Times because the Times accused the publishing firm of extortion in selling the letters of the late Queen Victoria at a high price. This case has been an incident in the war between the Times and the book publishers of London, which began when the Times inaugurated a book club scheme in connection with subscriptions to the paper, and has attracted much attention in London.

CHAIRMAN GARY VIEWS FUTURE OF FINANCE AND BUSINESS AS OPTIMIST



JUDGE E. H. GARY,
Head of Steel Corporation, Who Is Optimistic on the Business Outlook.

Bright Side is Seen by Head of Steel Corporation.

Believes Conditions in Business World Are Already Normal.

Boom Times Not Expected But Return of Activity Foreshadowed.

Chicago, May 8.—In a New York special to the Record-Herald, William E. Curtis says: Judge E. H. Gary, formerly of Chicago, and now chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, the largest business organization that was ever formed in human history, is a thorough optimist concerning the financial and industrial future. He believes that conditions in the business world are already normal, with a few scattered exceptions, and that these weak places will be strengthened by natural causes very soon.

Judge Gary does not expect a boom; he does not anticipate so active and

FIND HUMAN BONES.

Located in Swamp in Deerwood--- No Clue to Identity.

Brainerd, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The bones and a few fragments of a man were found in a swamp in the town of Deerwood Wednesday by a crew of surveyors who were engaged in surveying a line for a spur from the Northern Pacific railroad to the site of the Rogers-Brown company's shaft on section 30. The remains were found about 2,000 feet south of the railroad track, and apparently had lain there nearly a year. Coroner Gibson of this city had them remover here for burial. There was no clue to the identity, and no one is known to be missing from that vicinity.

AERONAUTS SELECTED.

Paris, May 8.—Count Henri de La Vaulx, Jacques Faure and Alfred La Blanc, the aeronauts, have been selected as the French representatives in the International balloon contest for the James Gordon Bennett cup in Berlin, Oct. 11.

RHODORA WINS RACE

Croker's Three-Year-Old Filly Takes Brilliant Event.

London, May 8.—The 1,000-guinea stakes at Newmarket today was won by Richard Croker's Rhodora.

Rhodora is a half sister to Orby, Mr. Croker's horse that won the derby last year, is by St. Frusquin, out of the American mare Rhoda D, and was bred by Mr. Croker. Rhodora won the Dewhurst plate for 2-year-olds last November, defeating King Edward's Perrier by two lengths; in August she won the Londonderry plate at Leopardstown, and in May the Cadogan plate at the same place. She is engaged for the Epsom Oakes, but is not entered for the derby.

By capturing this event Rhodora, Mr. Croker's brilliant 3-year-old filly has added another classic to the sporting trophies already captured by the American sportsman. She won today's event from a big field of eighteen horses, with comparative ease.

The event of today was doubly an American victory, for Lucien Lyne, the American jockey, rode the winner. He displayed such judgment that Rhodora turned the tables on the favorite, Kesbla, a horse that defeated the American filly in the Middlepark plate last year and that up to the present time never had been beaten. Lyne lay behind Elm Twig until the bushes were reached. Here he drove his mount to the front and romped home two lengths ahead of Bracelet, with Ardentrive third. Only a neck separated Ardentrive and Courtesy, the fourth horse.

Mr. Croker was present to see his filly win, and King Edward and the Prince of Wales also were among the big crowd that witnessed the American victory.

The betting was as follows: Rhodora, 100 to 8 against; Bracelet, 5 to 1 against, and Ardentrive, 100 to 6 against.

CHILD FALLS OVER A CLIFF

Rolls Under a Moving Train and Loses Both Legs.

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Robert, the 2-year-old son of Jacob Sleckenstein, 275 Cliff street, rolled down a thirty-foot embankment, near his home, at 6 o'clock last evening, and fell under a passing freight train on the St. Paul railroad tracks. Both his legs were severed at the knees and he died at the city hospita at 11:45. He was taken to the city hospital, where he was attended by Coroner A. W. Miller.

The child had been playing near his home. While he was walking along the edge of the cliff, and before any of the children who were with him could catch him, he rolled down the embankment.

While the little fellow was rolling down the hillside, a Milkaukee freight train was going west, and the boy fell under the wheels. Ten cars passed over his legs. By the time the rescuers reached the tracks, and the train had been stopped, the boy was lying unconscious near the tracks, and the dismembered legs were cut into shreds by the wheels.

SNIDER FOR GOVERNOR

Hennepin County Republicans Likely to Present His Name.

Loren Fletcher or Charles Huhn for Mayor of Minneapolis.

St. Paul, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hennepin county, it is reported, will present S. P. Snider for governor, and it is said that considerable work is being done on the quiet, very quiet over there, to line up the county for him. Since he came into prominence as temporary chairman of the state convention, it is said, many of his friends have been busy getting the county into line, so that the delegation can come solidly into the state convention and present his name. The matter will be broached in the Fourth ward Republican meeting next Monday and a boom started. Although the club as such cannot take any action on questions within the party, those present will adjourn and meet informally afterward to take up the matter.

Politicians in Hennipin are pretty busy with a number of things these days, including the selection of a candidate for mayor. Charles Huhn and Loren Fletcher are the two most likely to file for the Republican nomination, but they are close friends and it is considered certain that both will not file, although one of them is likely to do so.

SHOPLIFTERS ARE CAPTURED

Minneapolis Police Round Up Gang of National Reputation.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 8.—Firing as they ran, a squad of detectives and police officers chased two men and a woman through the streets of Minneapolis yesterday afternoon and captured them. "Dick" Hines, R. W. Wilson, alias "Coal-Eyes Johnny" Wilson, and Edythe Smythe made up the trio. They are supposed to be shop-lifters of national reputation.

Their dash for liberty down Nicollet avenue at an hour when that great retail artery was throbbing with activity, followed visits to department and clothing stores, where it is alleged, they made a series of "lifts." When captured they had in their possession overcoats, fancy vests and a bolt of broadcloth.

The downfall of the trio came when they entered the gentlemen's furnishing store of E. G. Barnaby, Nicollet avenue and Fourth street south. Here several small purchases were made, and as they were leaving a clerk noticed that a bundle of expensive vests had disappeared. Patrolman Duffy was called in and he at once telephoned police headquarters for reinforcements, and he was soon joined by policemen and detectives.

TWO MORE SKELETONS ARE FOUND ON GUINNESS FARM

One Believed to be That of a Man, the Other a Woman.

One Found Buried Under the Other With Earth Interveining.

Thousands of People Watch the Diggers at Their Work.

Laporte, Ind., May 8.—Two more bodies were unearthed at the Guinness farm today in a grave near the spot where three of the four bodies were exhumed Wednesday. The first to be turned up is undoubtedly that of a grown male, and the second is believed to be the bones of a woman.

The rains having ceased, the diggers were put to work at any early hour. A soft spot under a pile of refuse was selected as the most promising place to begin operations. The digger had not been long at his task when he turned up a spadefull of bones, and before 9 o'clock the body, that of a full-grown male, had been entirely exposed. The skeleton, which was badly disarticulated, was scattered, but the bones were in a good state of preservation. It is believed that the body has been under ground about two years.

The second skeleton was found in the same place and directly underneath the first, with an intervening space of earth. The bones are much smaller, and thought to be those of a woman. The skeleton also was not in an articulated state, the tools of the diggers probably having to do with the breaking and scattering of the small bones.

The news that digging operations was to be resumed today brought a large crowd of the curious and sightseers to the scene. As early as 7 o'clock this morning buggies, hacks, wagons and all sorts of conveyances started

Unable to Participate in Grand Review of Warships.

He Will be Placed on Retired List Next August.

Battleship Fleet Reviewed by Secretary of the Navy Metcalf.

San Francisco, May 8.—Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, closed his long sea career today. He was not well enough to go on board the Connecticut today to participate in the review of the fleet by Secretary Metcalf, and the time of his departure for Washington is in doubt. Admiral Evans was somewhat fatigued from his long ride in the land parade yesterday, but it was stated by his family today that he was feeling better. He probably will leave for the East tomorrow morning. The review began at 10 o'clock this morning, when the little gunboat, Yorktown, with the secretary's white anchored flag at the main truck, and with the civilian head of the navy and a party of guests on board, put out from the Oakland shore to make a tour up and down the four lines of anchored battleships, armored cruisers and torpedo boat destroyers. This was the first big review of the navy that President Roosevelt has not made in person since he went into th White House six years and a half ago. The fleets at anchor in the hill-surrounded bay constitute the heaviest fighting force the navy has ever known in a single command, and no such force in all the history of the navies of the world has ever before assembled under a read admiral's flag. The ships were all dressed in the full radiance of rainbow flags, sailors manned the rail, and a salute of seventeen guns was fired from the flagship as the Yorktown approached the head of the four columns.

The splendid armored cruisers of the Pacific fleet are anchored in the line nearest the Oakland shore, the West Virginia, flagship of Rear Admiral James E. Dayton, at the head of the imposing column. In the second line are the ships of the second squadron of the Atlantic fleet, headed by the Minnesota, the flagship of Rear Ad-

ADMIRAL EVANS,
Who Has Retired From the Active Command of the Battleship Fleet.

MEN TAKEN FROM WRECK

Great Steel Ship Will Prove a Total Wreck.

New York, May 8.—Seventy-two men, who for more than twenty-four hours had been facing death in the raging sea near Fire island, were rescued from the crumbling hulk of the big German ship Peter Rickmers early today. The rescue was effected after one of the most trying experiences the life savers on this exposed coast had ever been called upon to face. No less than a dozen times hope of saving the men on the doomed ship was all but abandoned, and it was only the easing of the gale and terrific sea that made rescue possible. Fortunately not a man was lost, and it is believed that not one of them suffered any permanent harm as a result of their long fight against death. The great steel ship, one of the finest sailing vessels that ever rode the sea, is a total wreck. Her bow and stern have been completely torn off by the waves, her masts were ripped out, her deckhouses and bridge swept away and she is full of water. She is lying far back on the bar and it is unlikely that even any effort will be made to tow her to deep water again.

The Rickmers struck the sand bar

CONSERVATION OF RESOURCES

Strongly Approved by Governor Johnson and W. J. Bryan.

Washington, May 8.—The conference of the governors of states, looking to the conservation of the natural resources of the country, which will take place at the White House, from the 13th to the 15th inclusive of this month, is strongly approved by two of the Democratic candidates for the presidency, William J. Bryan and Governor Johnson of Minnesota, and by Associate Justices Harlan and Peckham of the supreme court of the United States. Their views as to the importance of the subject are contained in letters sent to President Roosevelt, in response to his letter inviting them to attend the conference. These letters were today made public.

"I greatly appreciate your kind invitation," says Mr. Bryan, "and shall take pleasure in attending the conference on the conservation of natural resources. I am, I beg to assure you, in hearty sympathy with the purpose of the conference, and I have no doubt that the discussion of the subject will be helpful to us all."

Governor Johnson's letter reads:

"To assure you that I heartily agree with your conclusion that the conservation of the natural resources of our country presents a problem demanding the best thought of our times is superfluous. We have been exploiting our resources with no thought of the morrow, and the claims of posterity upon us should certainly be taken into account."

LAKE STEAMER IS DISABLED

The Binghamton Towed Into Chicago by Two Tugs.

Chicago, May 8.—After battling twenty-eight hours with the storm the steamer Binghamton became disabled four miles off this port early this morning and was towed in by two tugs.

The steamer which runs between Chicago and Buffalo left for the latter place Wednesday night, but after several hours' struggle with the storm the captain decided to turn back. One of the engines became disabled and the steamer after fighting the storm all of yesterday reached a point four miles off Chicago at 2 o'clock this morning and then found it necessary to display distress signals. Three tugs went to its assistance, but the lake was too rough for one of them and it was driven back.

INVITATION BY MINNEAPOLIS

Baltimore, May 8.—Minnesota delegates to the Methodist conference, led by W. J. Dean of Minneapolis, will invite the next general conference to Minneapolis. Many delegates are favorably impressed with the Minnesota invitation and an active campaign has been begun.

The Minnesotans on the episcopacy committee are Rev. Messrs. Kennigs and Forbes and Laymen Ulland of Fergus Falls and Sperry of Owatonna. The Dakotans are Rev. Messrs. Nicholson of Grand Forks, Moore of Minot, and Laymen Tilton and Judge Pollock of Fargo. Frank J. Clemens, St. Paul, freight agent of the Milwaukee road, has been placed on a prominent committee. Dr. Robertson, formerly of the Minnesota conference and now of Dakota, was elected chairman of the committee on revivals.

Dr. S. F. Kerfoot, first reserve delegate of the Minnesota conference, expects Dr. H. C. Jennings' place as delegate if Dr. Jennings is elected bishop.

SEARCH FAILS TO REVEAL LICENSE.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A careful search of the marriage license records here for many years back fails to reveal any license issued for the marriage of Belle Guinness of Laporte, Ind. Minneapolis police have, however, received from Laporte charred photographs bearing the mark of a Minneapolis photographer. The likenesses have been destroyed by fire, but are believed to be those of the woman and her husband who met here and were married in Chicago.

BARON IS OUTSPOKEN.

Tokio, May 8.—Baron Sone, vice president general in Korea, in an interview in the Jiji Shimpo, is quite outspoken in regard to the disturbed condition of Korea and recommends drastic measures to suppress the agitation against Japanese. Baron Sone's return home is generally believed to be connected with important political changes in Korea.

Nelson street to Mitchell street, on Madison, and were leaping high in the air from the middle of the building. The water pressure was poor, and try as they would the firemen could not get a stream that would carry above the second floor.

Half an hour after the fire it was necessary, for fear of falling walls, to remove engines on the Mitchell street side of the Schlessinger building, and fifty firemen, with streams of water playing upon them, dragged the machines to a place of safety. Meanwhile high power trolley and electric light wires were falling everywhere, parts of walls were dropping out, and with the high wind prevailing, the flames shot across the street to the Terminal hotel, which acted as a sort of a flue for the fire. Floor after floor of the Terminal hotel was soon ablaze. The firemen were fought back until they were in the rear of the Terminal hotel, where lack of water again retarded any effort to check the fire. Within half an hour the walls and roof of the hotel had fallen in.

Explosions Wreck Walls.

Spreading from Madison street to Nelson street, the fire ate its way into the Liquid Carbonic company's structure, a five-story building to the east, and within a short space of time there were two terrific explosions, which seemed to carry all retaining walls and the roof of this building to the basement.

Next to the Carbonic company's building was the Inman block, which faced on Forsythe street. This was a three-story building, extending from Nelson street, on Forsythe, north to Mitchell, and containing nine or ten business concerns. A narrow alley separated the Inman block from the fire and it was soon a mass of flames, and fire company after fire company were drawn away from other spots and their combined forces applied here, for it was at this point that the fire was to be stopped from crossing Mitchell and Forsythe and burning further into the city.

East of the Terminal hotel, on Mitchell, was the Marion hotel annex and Child's hotel. The fire stopped after ruining the latter hotel. Across the street, postoffice station B, the most important sub-station in the city; the Southern Suspender company and the Southern Handkerchief Manufacturing company, the Georgia Vehicle company, the Piedmont Hat company and McClure's Ten Cent store all fell away like so many paper boxes.

Mitchell street, from Madison avenue to Forsythe, was one great furnace, flames shooting across the street from either side, with falling walls everywhere and danger to life and limb imminent, but the firemen stuck to their work and did not draw back until they finally had to drop their hose and run for their lives as the last wall of the Piedmont Hat company came down, leaving a space across a whole block, where was once one of the finest business blocks of the city.

Artists and Beauty.

The beauty of women appeals to all men, but not to all men alike; and artists, particularly figure-painters, are supposed to have strongly-pronounced preferences of their own. Nothing is so helpful to preserve health and beauty as a good malt tonic, such as golden grain belt beer. Taken regularly at mealtime it makes rich, red blood and strong nerves. CONFESSES TO WRECKING TRAIN

Young Italian Placed Dynamite on Track Near Bird, Mont.

Butte, Mont., May 8.—In a detailed confession Lewis Ferries, the young Italian, who dynamited the Burlington train near Bird, Friday night, in which two men lost their lives, tells of breaking the lock on the powder house of the West Olive Branch mine with a stone, stealing forty-five sticks of dynamite and placing the entire amount on the tracks.

Ferries watched the explosion, which wrecked the train, and then assisted the conductor of the train in summoning aid. He yesterday piloted the police about the scene of the explosion and to the powder-house, explaining how he stole the powder and his method of wrecking the train. His story concerning the theft of the powder has been corroborated.

Ferries declares that he alone is to blame for the dynamiting and claims that he was intoxicated at the time.

From evidence in the possession of the police it is believed that Ferries attempted the holdup of the Northern Coast limited of the Northern Pacific, about ten days ago at Welch's Spur, just east of Butte.

admiral Thomas. Down between two lines the Yorktown first proceeded. When the little gunboat reached the end of the line, where the cruiser Charleston and the battleship Wisconsin, respectively are anchored, she turned to the right and sailed up the line formed by the battleships of the First Atlantic squadron, and by the torpedo craft of both fleets. In this way, returning to the head of the columns, the Yorktown passed the Connecticut last of all. She then anchored and the flag and command officers were received on board for an informal reception by Secretary Metcalf.

Since the arrival of the Atlantic fleet on Wednesday, Admiral Evans has made his headquarters in the city at the St. Francis hotel, where he was joined by his family.

He will not be placed on the retired list until August, and will remain on waiting orders until that time at his home in Washington. Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas, now second in command, will resume his place as "senior officer present" during Saturday, on Sunday, the 10th, becomes actually and in his own right the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet. The Pacific fleet is to be retained in the harbor until May 15, so that until that time Admiral Thomas will have supreme command of all the forty-four ships that fill the Oakland fairway of the harbor.

On May 15 Admiral Thomas is to be relieved, at his own request, and then Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry, now commanding the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, will fly his flag from the Connecticut and assume command, to take the sixteen, world-girding battleships on the remainder of their cruise. The tour of the fleet will end at Hampton Roads on Feb. 22 next, when President Roosevelt will receive the ships on the Mayflower, as he sent them away the 16th of last December.

about ten miles from Fire island, April 30, while bound out from New York for Europe. At first it was believed that she would be floated without difficulty, but as the wind continued, and she drove further and further on the shelving bar, her position became serious. Even then, when the wind decreased, it was believed that she would be floated without serious damage, after a portion of her cargo of case oil had been jettisoned. A large force of wreckers were set at the task, and excellent progress was being made up to last Tuesday night, when a great storm broke on the coast. The wind increased so rapidly in force, and the sea assumed such proportions, that the wrecking tugs, which had been standing by were forced to flee for their own safety, leaving behind on the ship thirty-nine salvagers, who had been working on the cargo, and thirty-three of the crew of the Rickmers. As the storm increased the waves drove the big vessel steadily back on the bar. One by one her masts went, and surging over the rumbling hulk, threatened to sweep every living thing on board into the sea. Life-savers on the beach sent lines to the Rickmers, but before a single man could be hauled ashore the ropes parted. The storm continued to grow in intensity, and the plight of the men on the wrecked ship became more desperate. Five crews from life-saving stations were on the beach, but surf boats were useless in the sea, and the only hope was in subsidence of the storm, or the shooting of lines over the ship.

Early this morning the storm had subsided sufficiently to permit the wreckers on board the ship to launch their boats, and they came ashore unaided. Then a line was sent to the wreck and the crew of the ship were brought to the beach. They were taken to Freeport, L. I., and thence by train to New York.

Kodol completely digests all classes of food. It will get right at the trouble and do the very work itself for the stomach. It is pleasant to take. All druggists.

Farmers from the surrounding places, merchants, clerks and townspeople from adjacent towns and villages, and visitors from far away cities, made up the crowd that morbidly watched the diggers as they monotonously turned over the earth.

When it was learned in this city that more bodies had been found, many more repaired to the scene.

Expect Story From Lamphere.

Laporte, Ind., May 8.—New evidence connecting Ray Lamphere with the more recent deaths at the Guinness farm and the possible discovery of additional graves on the premises are the chief developments expected in today's expoundings of the mysteries.

What the inquiries of Prosecutor R. N. Smith into the alleged connection of Ray Lamphere with the crimes will develop is exciting interest. Deputy Sheriff Roy Marr, who is aiding the state's attorney in this line of work, claims that he will today produce witnesses to strengthen the testimony of Louis Roule, Bessie Wallace and Nettie Shoemaker, who yesterday told the authorities that Lamphere had asserted that he knew enough concerning Mrs. Guinness to convict her of serious crimes and had threatened to reveal this evidence in revenge for her prosecutions of him. One of these new witnesses, it is said, took part in the conversation between Roule and Lamphere and, it is further reported, is of unquestioned integrity and standing in the community.

If more bodies are found on the Guinness farm today, fresh mysteries will confront the authorities. Thus far only three of the nine bodies have been identified. The known victims are: Jennie Olson, the 16-year-old foster daughter of Mrs. Guinness; Andrew Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D., and Ole O. Budsberg of Iola, Wis. One female corpse and those of five males yet remain unidentified. Despite the searching investigations of the sheriff and state's attorney, there is as yet almost no clew to the identity of these remains. Their task is complicated by the fact that the bodies have been in the ground for at least eighteen months.

That the operatives of a detective agency, who were brought into the affair yesterday, may be able to discover fresh evidence is the hope of Sheriff Smutzer and Prosecutor Smith. The outsiders are in charge of C. J. Smith, and he is said to have four assistants. Two of these, it is said, have been detailed to search neighboring farms for information regarding Mrs. Guinness' establishment. The others are working under the direction of the sheriff.

The name of Bert Albert of Huron, S. D., is the latest to be mentioned in connection with the mystery. Mrs. Guinness is said to have promised marriage to him, but the plan was never carried out, because of his lack of wealth.

SPRING RECEPTION.

Bayha & Co. were the hosts yesterday at the annual reception at their store on First street and Second avenue west. This annual opening has come to be one of the spring affairs that is anticipated by many people and yesterday afternoon and last evening the floors of the store were crowded with callers. Musical programs of unusual merit were presented. DiMarco's orchestra was stationed on the first floor and played a delightful program. The strains of music greeted the guests on entering and many remained on this floor for the concert. The hall for the Victor machine on the second floor was filled during the entire time with enthusiasts and a splendid selection of records was chosen for concerts.

Pretty souvenirs were presented the women guests. Not the least attractive feature of the affair was the beautiful exhibits of furniture which were shown to great advantage on the various floors.

Patterns That Please.

The extreme and conservative dressers agree that C. W. Ericson never before showed such an elegant line of hand-tailored suits—$10 to $25.

No one is apt to think more highly of a store than its owner does—hence his advertising should be so big that it will reflect his belief in his store's importance—and so continuous that it will have the force of iteration.

FROM A RECENT NOVEL.

J. W. Foley, in Success Magazine: She dropped her eyes; he threw up his head.

Her face fell; he ground his teeth.

Her cheek burned; his heart sank.

She grew cold as ice; his brain was on fire.

Her heart came up in her throat; his brow grew dark.

Her eyes flashed fire; he tore his hair.

Her very soul was rent; he could have bitten his tongue in two for saying it.

She cast the lie back in his teeth; he swallowed a lump in his throat.

She shuddered as with a mortal wound; he grew weak as water.

An icy hand clutched at her heart; then he trembled like an aspen.

She grew faint and sick; he was in agony.

Plainly she strove for breath; his eyes blazed.

She swept from the room; he fell in a heap on the rug.

Plainly, after all this, life, could never be the same again for either of them.

CHOOSING A HOTEL

Unusual Attractiveness of the St. Regis, New York.

COMFORT AT MODERATE EXPENSE

"Are you contemplating a trip to New York? If so, a most important matter is the choice of a stopping place. The city has many high-class hotels, but none so completely fulfils every requirement of "a home when away from home" as the St. Regis, Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street. The reasons for this are many. Its location, in the heart of the city's select residential section, is quiet and refined. Its large and beautifully furnished rooms and suites are unequaled for comfort and convenience. Its dining halls and public rooms are the most superb in America. Its cuisine and service please the most fastidious.

There is an irresistible charm and indefinable air of quiet, comfort and goodfellowship about the St. Regis which distinguishes it from other hotels and makes living there enjoyable in the highest degree.

The Hotel St. Regis is now widely recognized as a most attractive stopping place for people who desire the best in the way of living when they visit New York. Bear in mind that no hotel in the world offers so much solid comfort and refined enjoyment as the St. Regis, and that prices there are not higher than elsewhere. In fact, a large, beautifully furnished room may be had for $4 a day, or one with private bath for $5 ($6 for two people), or a parlor, bedroom and bath for $12. Every room has an outside view. In the restaurant, which is one of the most famous dining establishments in New York, the charges are the same as those of other high-class hotels. Here one will invariably find congenial environment, faultless tables and tempting viands, with a refined, homelike atmosphere, which is all too often lacking in public dining halls.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

LID RULE IS UPHELD

Court Sustains Action of Village Council of Blackduck.

Saloonkeeper, Who Violated Law, Cannot Retain His License.

Bemidji, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The action of Mayor Dade and the village council of Blackduck in revoking the liquor license of John Berg, who conducts the Svea hotel at Blackduck, was sustained by Judge Stanton.

When Mr. Dade was elected president of the Blackduck village council this spring, he issued notice to all saloonkeepers that they must abide by the law in the matter of closing at night and also keeping closed on Sunday, and not selling liquor to minors.

Berg is said to have violated the law relative to selling to minors and also to keeping open on Sunday, with the result that the village council, at a recent meeting, revoked the license. Mr. Berg appealed to the district court, and the hearing on the revokation of the license was held before Judge Stanton.

O. W. Scrutchin of this city appeared as attorney for Berg and Bunn T. Wilson, village attorney of Blackduck, and Chester McCusick of this city represented the village of Blackduck.

Judge Stanton referred to the records in the matter, and sustained the village in its revokation of the license.

J. E. Dade, president of the village council at Blackduck, and D. D. Rolfe, village clerk at Blackduck, were present at the hearing.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand jury, which has been in session here several days, has indicted Edward Carmody on the charge of assault in the first degree, it being charged that he committed an assault upon Officer Henry Becker with a dangerous and deadly weapon and with intent to kill. Carmody was also indicted for burglary in the third degree. Although Carmody was not caught in the act of burglary, he is charged with influencing Green to commit the thefts.

Pat Sheehan was indicted on two counts, the same as those found against Carmody.

Frank Warzecha, the Holding man, was indicted for assault in the second degree. The indictment charges him with assaulting one John Pyka with a knife and inflicting a dangerous wound.

The cases of the four men will be tried in about two weeks. The civil cases will be done away with before the criminal calendar is taken on.

TWO SUSPECTS ARE RECOGNIZED

Accused Bank Robbers Were Recently in Thief River Falls.

BLIND PIGS RAIDED.

SAINTLY CITY TO HAVE FINE HOTEL

To Cost Million and be Erected on Old Windsor Site.

St. Paul, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—At last St. Paul seems to be in a fair way of securing an up-to-date hotel. The project was brought to a definite head at the Business league's annual banquet at a local cafe Wednesday night.

The new hotel will be erected upon the site of the old Windsor hotel, Fifth and St. Peter streets, and the undertaking will be financed by L. P. Ordway, the St. Paul man who, above everybody else, has done the most to make the hotel project a "go."

The building and site will represent an investment of about $1,000,000. Mr. Ordway's proposition to the Business league, a proposition which was accepted with great enthusiasm, was that if the Business league would donate the site, valued at $125,000, and furnish a desirable tenant, then he would take it upon himself to finance the project.

Immediate steps will be taken to carry out the terms of this offer, and the members of the Business league are confident that with the assistance of the Commercial club they can raise the necessary $125,000 in a comparatively short time. Many of the business men at Wednesday night's banquet declared their desire to contribute liberally, and with the hotel project a definite proposition there is no question about the people of St. Paul taking the matter in hand with an enthusiasm second not even to the way the Auditorium and Y. M. C. A. projects were handled.

Mr. Ordway did not disclose his plans for financing the project, but he let it be known that if the Business league and the business interests of the city generally will donate the site, there will be no further demands upon the people of the city.

Can't Empty the Ocean.

Andrew Larsen of Sorensen & Larsen, merchant tailors of Salt Lake City, was so low with kidney disease that he was in bed and death was looked for almost daily.

The treatment was changed. He began to mend. His partner 'phoned the doctor he was was slightly better. The doctor replied, "It makes no difference. It is as impossible for him to recover as it is to empty the ocean."

The progress was so slow that the patient would get discouraged and read our book for a bracer. He says he thinks he read it a hundred times. But the day he finished the third dozen he was back to business. Wonder what his physician thinks about emptying the ocean.

Fulton's Renal Compound is the first successful kidney emollient thus reducing kidney inflammation and controlling kidney troubles that have resisted all kown treatment as in the Salt Lake case. Literature mailed free.

ODD CHARACTER GETS WINDFALL

"Gros Ventres Johnny," Old Faro Dealer, "Plays" in Luck.

Great Falls, Mont., May 8.—Johnny Deigler, known all over this section as "Gros Ventres Johnny," because of his long residence with that tribe of Indians, former faro dealer and unique character, has finally made a lucky "play," in the parlance of the game, through the death of his father, John Deigler, Sr., of Yankton, S. D., by which he will inherit about $10,000.

The life of "Gros Ventres Johnny" has been an interesting and eventful one. Leaving his home in Iowa at an early age, he drifted toward the Missouri river and was picked up by a band of Gros Ventres Indians, with whom he lived for about ten years. Johnny is about 53 years old now, and it is nearly forty years since, as a boy, he left civilization and became a wanderer. The Gros Ventres were a rich and powerful tribe then. They had many ponies, which represented their standard of wealth, and they made an easy living, hunting buffalo and finding plenty of excitement in fighting their neighbors, with whom they were perpetually at war. Johnny liked their life, and after half a dozen years, had assimilated all the habits and customs of his adopted brothers, until, excepting for his color, he would have passed for an Indian.

Finally, as the country became more settled, he left the tribe and began gambling for a living, being known all over the Western country under the name by which he still goes—"Gros Ventres Johnny," the faro bank dealer. He dealt in all the camps of the state, and one of his peculiarities was that he always walked from camp to camp in preference to taking advantage of a horse or any vehicle.

Pigeon-toed, walking with the peculiar stride of an Indian, wearing his clothing unbecomingly, as though a blanket would be a more comfortable garment than a coat, Johnny was a familiar figure in all the mining camps and trading posts. He was a fairly successful gambler and generally carried a pretty fat roll. Whenever the notion struck him he would walk out of a camp or cow town and strike cross-country for another. When Great Falls began to grow, Johnny spent some time here. He dealt bank for Jack Enright and others and sometimes had a game of his own.

As the years passed he lost none of his Indian characteristics, and today one who did not know his history would think from his appearance that he had Indian blood in his veins. During the past few years the world has not gone well with Johnny. Whiskey and hard knocks have done their work in a measure, and recently the next meal has become something of a problem, although his friends of the old days have kept him from actual want.

The news of the legacy that he has coming, however, put a new interest into life for him and the future looks bright again. He says little about his plans, but those who know him say it's a safe bet that some morning he will turn up missing in Great Falls, and the people down the river will see "Gros Ventres" Johnny leading for Yankton on the old trail, and afoot.

CHAIRMAN GARY VIEWS FUTURE OF FINANCE

prosperous a year as 1906 or the first eight months of 1907, but he believes that the business interests of the country are rapidly settling down into healthy, wholesome conditions; that prices will be maintained and wages will be continued and that the demands for all products, both of the soil and the factories, will afford a reasonable profit to all concerned in the production. There has been no period in the history of the country or of the world when the financial, commercial, industrial and transportation interests were in such an encouraging condition, and, although the freight traffic has fallen off and a great many cars and locomotives are idle, Judge Gary says that a comparison between the volume of business handled today and that of five or three years ago will show that the movement of commerce is natural and encouraging. There has been a considerable falling off from the enormous traffic of 1907, but that was unreasonably large, and 1908 will compare favorably with any other year.

The prices of stocks are gradually advancing, which shows that the confidence of the public in the great corporations is being restored. A seat on the stock exchange was sold the other day for its full value; men who mortgaged their homes and other real estate to raise cash to carry them over the panic are paying off these obligations; the banks are showing greater confidence in their customers; the wholesale trade in all lines of merchandise is resuming normal conditions; the spring trade in the retail stores is as large as it ever was, except in jewels and some other luxuries, and the army of unemployed is being gradually reduced in numbers, because nearly all the factories are now running on full time to fill orders and the demand for every form of manufactured goods is becoming healthful and natural. The drummers are all out on their regular routes and they are sending in the usual lists of orders in most cases, showing that normal conditions have been resumed in the mercantile trade throughout the interior. Large enterprises which were abandoned or postponed are being taken up again and are likely to be carried out as originally proposed. Several large loans have recently been negotiated on ordinary terms by corporations, and the money will be expended in the employment of labor and the purchase of materials. All signs point to a complete restoration of activity and confidence, and Judge Gary is convinced that the remainder of the year will be as prosperous to everybody as could be expected in a presidential campaign.

"I don't know why it should be so," said Judge Gary, "but the year of a presidential election is seldom a good year for business. Nevertheless, 1908, in my opinion, will be up to the average in every respect.

"For the near future much depends upon the platforms and the nominees of the conventions to be held by the two great political parties during the early summer of 1908. If platforms should be adopted which are sound, reasonable and conservative and the candidates to be selected are men who have proved themselves to be honest and wise and solicitous for the welfare of the whole people, the effect on business will be of great and immediate benefit."

A Steadying Policy.

Judge Gary asserted very positively that there would be no reduction in the prevailing prices of the products of the United States Steel corporation and other manufacturers in the same line of business. That is assured by common agreement.

"Competition is not to be stifled," he continued, "but will be encouraged by the competitors themselves on a fair and honorable basis. It is not the intention to control prices nor to restrict output by any penalties or agreements, but the leading representatives of the iron and steel trade in this country are now cooperating under an agreement which places every one of them upon his honor to deal fairly and justly toward his competitors, his employes, his customers and the public. This agreement is something entirely new in the history of industry. It is a radical departure from old methods, and it is not only extremely important to the trade, but also to the public, because it gives a steadiness and a buoyancy to other industries and promotes a conservative disposition in the business world. Almost every line of trade and manufacture is more or less involved in the iron and steel industry. The price of pig iron has often been said to be the thermometer that indicates conditions in the business world, and the activity and prosperity of the iron and steel manufacturers will have a tremendous influence upon the healthfulness of other branches of production and commerce.

"A committee of seven of the managers of the great iron and steel plants of this country has been appointed to consider and supervise the interests of all of the producers in the United States, and, although they are competitors in many lines, they are recognized as wise, just and fair men, and will do right by everybody concerned. The experience of those directly involved with this committee since it was first organized last November has taught them that it represents a sense of business honor and a standard of integrity that can be relied on.

"Not long ago," continued Mr. Gary, "a question arose in one of the committees of the United States Steel corporation as to the recognition of certain claims upon the company, and Henry C. Frick expressed the sentiment of the corporation and the firm conviction that was in the mind of every man present when he declared that he would rather lose half a million dollars in the transaction than leave the corporation under a suspicion of having been guilty of a dishonorable transaction in any particular.

Higher Standard Adopted.

"One of the results of the recent panic," continued Mr. Gary, "has been the quickening of the moral sense of the business community and the adoption of a higher standard of business morals by the leading financiers of this country. Our prosperity was so great and our wealth was so large that we were becoming selfish, careless in our methods, indifferent to the opinions of our neighbors and oblivious to, if not defiant of, some of the laws of the land. All of us are willing to admit that lax methods existed in the management of some of our banks, manufacturing companies, railway companies, insurance companies, public institutions, municipal and even state organizations. It is not necessary to refer to exposures that have been made by official investigations and by newspaper publications.

"All that has been charged, I am confident, is not true, but there has been sufficient cause for distrust to bring about a moral revolution in the management of great interests, and hereafter business will be more fairly and honestly conducted. Managers of great corporations and those who are intrusted with the management of public utilities will hereafter observe more closely the requirements of the laws. They will have more regard for the rights and interests of their stockholders, their patrons, their employes and the public generally. Managers of large interests now recognise more keenly than they ever did before the fact that they are acting in the capacity of trustees for others and are under strict obligations to serve their shareholders and to deny themselves personal perquisites and advantages which may have been considered legitimate hitherto, or at least have been accepted in many cases. The conquence of this revival of conscientiousness is to make property more valuble, to make investments more secure, and the interests of those who have intrusted the management of their estates to others through the ownership of securities or otherwise will hereafter be better protected.

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—Field's minstrels.
METROPOLITAN—Burlesque.

The Field Greater Minstrels.

Wherever the Al G. Field Greater Minstrels have appeared, the critics and public have admitted that the acme of scenic display is the transformation scene from the minstrel first part to the spectacle, appropriately named by Mr. Field as "The Feast of Flowers." The Columbus Daily Review says: "It is one of the most bewildering beautiful stage pictures ever conceived." The scene is laid in a hothouse or conservatory of extensive proportions, trellised throughout with vines and creeping plants, while upon tiers are arranged potted plants and flowering shrubs which are electrically articulated with tiny bulbs of the exact color of the flowers, and which light up the interior of the massive glass house in a flood of vari-colored lights. The minstrels sit among the illuminated plants, extra brilliancy being added to the scene by an electric fountain, which casts upward cascades of water of all colors.

The Al G. Field Greater Minstrels will appear at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday.

The Fay Foster company will give three more performances at the Metropolitan, one this evening and two tomorrow, one in the afternoon and another in the evening.

CENTENARIAN PRELATE.

Chicago, May 8.—Chicago has one Catholic priest 100 years old.

The centenarian prelate is Rev. Father Jerry Cannon, and he resides at 190 Thirty-ninth street. A census enumerator yesterday reported his "discovery" to George D. Keith, superintendent of numeration in the Sixth ward, who quickly informed W. T. Monroe, the general superintendent in charge of the school census work.

Father Cannon is retired from active service and is not recorded as being officially connected with any Chicago parish. He was born in Ireland in 1808.

WANTS MORE PIN MONEY.

Young Cousin of President Roosevelt Asks Larger Allowance.

New York, May 8.—Living in the swirl and vortex of the society of Sayville, L. I., calls for more than $5,000 a year for President Roosevelt's second cousin's 17-year-old daughter, Miss Olga Roosevelt.

The young woman should have at least twice that amount of pin money, according to her father, Robert B. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the late stanch Democrat and Tammany sachem.

Mr. Roosevelt, who is Miss Olga's guardian under the will of her mother, and trustee of Olga's estate, consisting of $245,000 in real estate and more than $100,000 in stocks and bonds, yielding an income of $14,000 a year, says his daughter, just blossoming into womanhood, "needs at least $10,000 a year for her maintenance, education and support in the manner and style to which she is accustomed, and according to her estate and condition in life."

The supreme court is asked to double her allowance.

AEROPLANE TEST.

Aeronauts Rise in Air and Alight With Safety.

Manteo, N. C., May 8.—Wright brothers, aeronauts, now at Kill Devil Hill, made the first flight in their new aeroplane Wednesday afternoon.

Although only a test flight, it was successful in every respect, the machine being under perfect control of its two makers and traveling 1,000 feet. It was made to alight with ease and safety.

After several preliminary tests to be made during the next two or three days an endurance trial will be made, and on this occasion the inventors will probably attempt to take the machine to Capt. Henry, a distance of seventy-five miles and return.

BUSINESS QUITE GOOD

Strawberries Coming in Larger Quantities and Are Cheaper.

Business on commission row has been good during the week. The volume was nothing remarkable, but the demand was steady and firm. Prices have not shown any violent fluctuations, however, as receipts have been keeping up well.

Fruits and vegetables are getting cheaper. Strawberries are more plentiful and prices have gone off during the last few days. Receipts are from Louisiana and Tennessee, with Arkansas berries on the way.

Both the Louisiana and the Tennessee berries are excellent as to quality and are selling at the same price, $3.25@$3.50, for twenty-four quart cases. Those here now are about the last of the Louisiana berries, however.

Florida furnishes the first strawberries of the season and it furnishes them to the entire country. The Louisiana berries make their bow. About the time the Louisiana berries are in full swing on the market the Florida supply peters out. Louisiana berries supply the market, and quite expensive, until the Tennessee crop begins to show up and by that time almost anybody can afford to eat strawberry shortcake.

The banana situation has taken on a more bearish tone. For several weeks the banana market was as solid as the Point of Rocks and the firmness, it was said was caused by a disposition on the part of importers, who ceased importations and shipments, because of a desire to give the market a strength which it seemed to sadly lack. The experiment was quite successful and bananas went up 15c a pound straightway. This week, however, they became more plentiful and resumed the former level.

Cheese is off a cent this week. The coming of warmer weather has brought more liberal supplies and quotations for about all grades were slashed a little.

On the other hand, butter has been very firm during the past few days. Prices have not been raised, but creamery prints are holding very firm around 29 and 30 cents. This stringency in the breadspread market is not expected to last any great length of time, but it is genuine while it does last. Tomorrow, receipts are expected which will put all of the merchants on easy street, whereas, this week they have had to scratch around and even buy from the other fellow, if he had it, to fill their orders.

Green goods, not the kind yaps were wont to buy on visits to New York, but fresh vegetables, are being received in good quantities and the quality is excellent. Receipts of radishes, young onions and tomatoes are quite liberal.

Of the fruits, oranges are higher. Receipts from California are becoming lighter all of the time, and prices bulged yesterday. They are expected to be quite stiff from now on, although easy as compared with last season. This has been a remarkable year of plenty, so far as oranges are concerned.

Grape fruit is not so plentiful as it has been, although prices are unchanged. Cuban grape fruit, on the local market for a time at prices a little higher than asked for the domestic article, have vanished. They were good while they lasted.

Prices for other fruits are the same as a week ago.

The poultry market is showing no weakness yet. It was expected that prices would ease up somewhat but up to date, the market has maintained the same rigid front it has worn for a month. The demand is good and receipts just sufficient to supply it at the prevailing prices. There is precious little left over.

MANY DIVORCE CASES HEARD

Two of the district court judges granted seventeen applications for divorces yesterday, but were not able to clean up the divorce calendar. They continued hearing of sixteen divorce cases to day. Besides the seventeen cases in which decrees were granted, three cases were heard and continued, to give the plaintiffs an opportunity to furnish corroborative evidence.

The cases heard yesterday afternoon, in which decrees were granted, were as follows:

HEIGHT OF DISCOURTESY.

Chisago County Attorney So Views Opposition to Johnson.

Charles E. Elmquist of Rush City, attorney of Chisago county and a candidate for the Republican nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner, was in the city yesterday. When asked his opinion of the overwhelming majority that was returned for Governor Johnson by the voters of the state yesterday, Mr. Elmquist said:

"I think the opposition to Governor Johnson in his own state was the height of discourtesy. His victory has strengthened him abroad and at home. In my opinion he will poll a larger vote for president in the Northwest than Mr. Bryan."

When asked his opinion regarding the third term talk in connection with the name of Governor Johnson, Mr. Elmquist replied that he did not believe that Mr. Johnson desired or sought the election. He gave it as his opinion that nomination by acclamation would be the only way in which the Democrats could possibly bring about such an event.

NO AGREEMENT TO MAINTAIN PRICES

New York, May 8.—Following a meeting of the leading pit iron interests of the country at the United States Steel corporation's office yesterday, the following statement was issued:

Owing to the fact that much erroneous information has been disseminated concerning the purpose of this meeting of pig iron and ore producers, it is thought desirable to make a statement which embodies the views of all present.

"The meeting was called for the purpose of hearing reports from the blast furnace interests of all sections in regard to general conditions as affecting particularly the foundry iron trade. Prices of pig iron were only incidentally referred to.

There is no agreement to maintain the price of pig iron. Producers in different sections of the country are making quotations based on their cost of manufacture and the measure of their necessities. Prices are now $8 or more below the high mark of eight months ago and are almost without exception below the cost of production at Northern and Eastern furnaces, and with the exception of a favored few below cost at Southern furnaces.

"Information received indicates that producers of Lake Superior ore are materially curtailing production and from the information it is believed the price of ore will not be reduced below the price of last year."

When your food seems to nauseate take Kodol. There isn't any doubt about what it will do and you will find the truth of this statement verified after a few weeks' use. Sold here by all druggists.

UNION IS VERY STRONG NOW

Victory of Cooks and Waiters Brought New Members.

Nearly every cook and waiter in the city belongs to the union now. Since the local Cooks and Waiters' union won its victory over the restaurant proprietors, they have been fortifying themselves against any open shop movement that may come up next year, with the result that the officials of the union now claim they have the strongest labor organization in the city and are ready to forestall any movement on the part of the employers to install open shop methods in their restaurants.

A committee from the union has called upon a large number of non-union cooks and waiters, and in all cases, they claim, they have collected $1 from each man, as a guarantee of his good faith and intent to join the union. This is said to have been accomplished in all but a half dozen cases, and the committee claims it will have those few delinquents rounded up soon. All non-union men were advised that Duluth would soon be no place for any but men belonging to the Cooks and Waiters' union.

Henry Perrault, president of the trades assembly, is collecting statistics from labor organizations for the biennial report to the bureau of labor, industries and commerce at St. Paul. He has as his districts, Proctor, Two Harbors, Hibbing, Virginia, Brainerd and Staples. He held a special meeting of the railroad employes union at Two Harbors Wednesday. Next week he will go to Brainerd and Staples.

WILL QUALIFY AS EXPERTS

Commissioners E. M. Patterson and John Sundeen of the county board are handing themselves bouquets because of their ability to estimate the value of local real estate. Before the appraisers appointed by the court to fix the amount of damages to the owners in the condemnation proceedings for a courthouse site had begun deliberations, Commissioner Patterson told some of his friends that the new site would cost the county about $285,000. The amount of damages fixed by the appraisers was $285,376,05, so that Mr. Patterson's figures were pretty close, considering the large amount of property involved. Mr. Sundeen estimated the aggregate damages at $293,000.

The other members of the board are contemplating the election of Commissioners Patterson and Sundeen to the positions of "real estate experts" of the county board.

TESTING MILK.

Inspectors Take Samples From Wagons in Streets of City.

Sixteen samples of milk have been taken in two days from wagons on the street by inspectors of the health department. Health Commissioner Patton said yesterday that all samples passed muster, although some of them went through by only a very narrow margin.

The department has adopted the system of stopping the wagons on the street, at unexpected times and places, and taking samples of the milk. In this way Mr. Patton thinks he can get a true test, for he gets hold of milk that the dealer intends to sell on the everyday market.

Dr. Patton is preparing amendments to the milk ordinance which will go a long way toward securing pure milk for Duluth, and they will probably be presented to the council at its regular meeting next Monday night.

The charge of assault with a deadly weapon, first filed against Whitaker, has been dismissed and a new charge of murder in the first degree has been filed. The hearing has been set for next Monday.

NOT MOTHER'S COOKING.

Marinette, Wis., May 8.—When Fred Trattner, a mill hand, was arraigned on a charge of abandoning his wife, he put up the novel defense that his wife was not a good cook. Trattner said she burned the food, and that he was compelled to "go across the street," to obtain some of his meals.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

Mrs. T. T. Carter, Campbellsville, Tenn., praises Warner's Safe Cure, as she regards it as the medicine that keeps her alive and well.

"I have used your valuable medicine for many years and can thankfully say that I believe had it not been for your medicine and the help of our Heavenly Father, I would not now be alive. I can never praise it enough. It has benefited me so much. Many others here who have seen what it has done for me have used it with excellent results. It has never failed to cure in any case around here, and I would be proud if I could influence every sufferer from kidney disease to give it a trial. There has been such a complication of kidney troubles in my case that the physicians wonder how I kept up. I could write a volume on what it has done for me and for others to whom I have recommended it, both old and young."—MRS. T. T. CARTER, Campbellsville, Tenn.

ANOTHER PRINCE OF GERMANY GOES WRONG.

Berlin, May 8.—Another German prince, the Duke Heinrich Borwin of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, lieutenant in the famous Ziethen Hussars, cousin of the German crown princess, has been compelled to leave the army and take up his residence abroad. Although only 23 years old, the duke's financial affairs had become so desperate that his superiors found them incompatible with his continuance in a military career, and ordered him to surrender his uniform. The young officer's troubles seem to have been brought to a climax by his dealings with money lenders. Thinking that his connection with the reigning houses of the empire made him an easy object of exploitation, some of them contrived to enter into negotiations with the inexperienced duke, who signed obligations right and left as a means of extricating himself from the more urgent of his debts. As customary with "bankers" who ply their trade among impecunious young military men, the duke was paid less than a tenth of the amounts for which he had exchanged his signature. Even then they seldom handed over the money, but gave instead chattels of various kinds—in one instance a stock of children's coffins, in another a half dozen worn-out "race-horses," which the distracted prince would dispose of for anything that anybody offered. When finally he confessed the utter hopelessness of his position to his parents, the latter found the duke's outstanding obligations so enormous that settlement without scandal was out of the question. The duke's dismissal from the regiment thereupon followed. He is the second son of the Duke Paul Friedrich, who was himself, two years ago, because of financial difficulties, placed under a guardian by order of the Mecklenburg house, the Grand Duke Frederick Franz IV.

The Economy of Shoes That Fit

One pair of shoes properly fitted to the feet will outwear two pair of the best shoes made that do not fit. That this is a fact has been established beyond the question of a doubt. The shoe that doesn't fit is under continuous, unnatural strain. The counters are overrun, the lining rubbed continuously until it is worn through, the instep strained and the leather over the toes cracks because it does not fit snugly.

Walking up or down stairs is the best test of the fit of a shoe. If it fits perfectly—as Suffel's shoes always do—there is no resultant pain at any point. If it doesn't fit, the instep is cramped.

We want this fact understood thoroughly: A Suffel salesman has positive instructions not to sell a shoe to a customer unless it fits perfectly. Our salesmen are thoroughly trained and by simply glancing at the customer's foot are enabled to know exactly what shaped shoe it requires.

There is superlative comfort in a Suffel shoe. It doesn't require a cushion sole to have comfort. Every feature that is hygienically correct is embodied in Suffel shoes.

A Suffel fit means long life to a shoe and comfort from the first; a saving over the money unusually spent for shoes.

MURDER ON HIGH SEAS

Cook Compels Captain and Mate to Walk the Plank.

Terror-Stricken Cabin Boy Was Sworn to Secrecy.

Sydney, N. S. W., May 8.—Details have reached this city from Tarawa, British Guiana, of a most cold-blooded but highly romantic instance of single-handed piracy. Joseph Mortimer, a burly Belgian cook, has been committed for trial on the charge of forcing the captain and mate of the American-built schooner on which he was employed to walk the plank in regular old-fashioned Capt. Kidd style. After disposing of them in this fashion, with the help of only a cabin boy, he attempted to navigate the ship into an Australian port, intending there to sell her. Knowing absolutely nothing about seamanship, this strange crew succeeded only in running their craft on to the reefs which fringe the Gilbert islands in the South Pacific. There they were arrested and held for trial by the local authorities.

The cabin boy, George Jackson, an English lad, broke down and told the gruesome story. It appears that the schooner, which was a two-master of about fifty tons burden and named the Neuvre Tigre, hailed from Callao, Peru, and was engaged in the coastal trade. On her last voyage she left that port with a cargo of coke, carrying a crew of four all told—the captain, the mate, Mortimer the cook and Jackson, the cabin boy.

Officers Forced Into Sea.

The vessel had not been at sea many hours when, the night being a dark one, Mortimer crept on deck with a tomahawk, and, stealing up behind the mate, who was at the wheel, aimed a terrific blow at his head. Had it reached home it would have dashed the man's brains out, but, while unconscious of any danger, the mate moved his head slightly. Instead of striking his head, the tomahawk buried its edge in his arm. The mate immediately turned and grappled with his assailant, at the same time shouting for assistance.

The cook was a powerfully built man, and it was apparent from the first to Jackson, the terror-stricken cabin boy, who watched the desperate struggle from a safe distance, that he would ultimately triumph. After an unsuccessful attempt to wrench the tomahawk from the grip of Mortimer, the mate broke away and sought safety in the rigging.

The commotion and the shouts of the mate had by this time brought the captain on deck. He took in the situation at a glance, but before he could seize a weapon, Mortimer was upon him and rendered him unconscious with a blow of the tomahawk. Then the cook ran to his bunk below and almost immediately reappeared with a loaded shotgun, which he had evidently prepared in advance. Pointing it at the mate, who was still perched in the rigging, he gave him the alternative of jumping overboard or being shot. After an unsuccessful attempt to argue the cook into a more pleasant frame of mind, the mate chose the former alternative and took a header from the rigging into the sea. The horror-stricken cabin boy, from his post forward, saw him come up and start to swim toward a small island which had appeared off the starboard bow, but before long he sank again and is believed to have drowned.

Vessel Goes on Reef.

By this time the captain had regained consciousness, and the cook, standing over him with the shotgun, gave him also the option of being shot or jumping into the sea. It did not take the captain very long to decide which was the lesser of the two evils, for the immediately took a header over the rail. As he went over, Jackson says he threw him a plank, but does not know whether he got hold of it or not. It is extremely doubtful, however, and he is believed to have suffered the same fate as the mate.

Mortimer then advanced threateningly upon Jackson, who was crouching behind the forward mast almost dead with fear. Standing over the youth, the cook forced him to promise to help him take the vessel into an Australian port, and exacted a vow from him that he would never tell of the events of the day. The cargo was jettisoned and the name of the vessel erased from the stern. Mortimer confided to his companion that he intended rechristening her the White Rose, and expected to get a good price for the boat when he succeeded in getting her into an Australian port.

With this curious crew of two, neither one of whom knew enough about the business to box a compass, the voyage was begun. However, they did the most obvious thing, and always sailed with the wind. They might have cruised several times around the world in this way without seeing the shores of Australia had they not one morning brought up at the island of Apamama in the Gilbert islands. There was a strong wind blowing and it was not long before the vessel was hard on a reef and a hopeless wreck.

It was in this condition that the schooner was discovered by Capt. Malcolm, the master of the trading craft Laurel. Boarding the wreck, he found Mortimer and Jackson thoroughly sick of the whole job. They asked to be taken to Fiji, and the captain was about to give them passage when the local magistrate objected, and declared that he intended to hold the two men for inquiry, especially as they could give no satisfactory explanation of the whereabouts of the rest of the crew.

The two men were later arrested and it was while they were on their way to Tarawa for trial that Jackson made known the true story of the Neuvre Tigre and her last voyage.

THE SLEEPING PEST RAVAGES

Two-Thirds of Population Along Victoria Nyanza Exterminated.

London, May 8.—Heaketh Bell, governor of Uganda, sends a terrible account of the ravages of sleeping sickness in that territory. He says:

"A project for dealing with sleeping sickness in Uganda has recently received the approval of the secretary of state for the colonies, and it is hoped that by consistent and vigorous efforts the spread of the scourge may be arrested. It is generally accepted that a variety of the tsetse fly, the glossina paupalis is the principal if not the only agent for the transmission of the disease. This fly exists in enormous numbers on the shores of the Victoria Nyanza, and also on the borders of some other lakes and rivers of Uganda. Its habitat, however, is restricted to a narrow belt of forest growth, adjoining water, and a width of two miles is believed to be the limit of the infested zones.

"Scientists appear to be generally agreed that the tsetse fly can only transmit infection during a comparatively short period after feeding on a diseased person, and something under forty-eight hours is considered to be the limit. Under the conditions which have hitherto prevailed, the disease has raged uninterruptedly through the populations inhabiting the fly-infested belt, and the tsetse has constantly found at hand the means of fresh infection. Out of some 300,000 souls inhabiting the shores of Victoria Nyanza and the islands in the great lake, over 200,000 have already been swept out of existence, and it remains to be seen whether the remainder can still be saved.

"The extermination of the tsetse appears to be a hopeless task, and it has therefore been decided to remove all the surviving population out of the reach of the fatal fly. All those who still appear to be healthy are being located on fly-free areas inland, while the sick are placed in concentration camps, also in uninfected districts, where they will be cared for as well as means will permit, and where they may receive such medical treatment as gives promise of successful results. Atoxyl and other drugs, which so far appear to alleviate suffering, are being regularly administered. Even though all attempts to cure those already affected may result in failure, it is hoped that by completely removing from the tsetse flies the possibility of renewing their infection, the insects may gradually become as innocuous as they appear to have been prior to the introduction of the disease into the country.

"It is estimated that over 20,000 sick now remain to be dealt with, and they are being located in large camps capable of accommodating about 1,000 at a time."

WANTED HUSBAND KILLED.

Woman Confesses Her Regret That Assassination Plans Failed.

Brussels, May 8.—Remarkable scenes were witnessed recently at the trial of Mme. Feremans, the wife of a Malines brewer, who is accused of having tried to secure the assassination of her husband. The court was crowded, and a mob outside hooted and jeered the woman. Mme. Feremans admitted that she wished to have her husband killed, and expressed regret that the project had miscarried, owing to her denunciation to the police by an unknown enemy. She alleged that her husband beat her and otherwise ill-treated her. She consulted a fortune teller and the cards indicated that if she could get rid of her husband she would be happy.

Mme. Feremans thereupon secured the services of three notorious criminals and offered them $4,000 if they would kill her husband. They were to receive a bonus if they succeeded in hiding the body. Mme. Feremans recited a number of alleged acts of cruelty which she said had been committed by her husband. "They do not justify your attempt to have him assassinated," said the president of the court. M. Feremans made counter charges against his wife, and accused her of having thrashed him.

THE STOMACH'S WORKINGS.

Munich, May 8.—The problem of direct observation of the interior of the human stomach during life has been solved by Dr. Riehl, according to a medical weekly. The method employed includes the passing of a double tube through the esophagus to the stomach, the inner tube being fitted with a small electric bulb. Water is passed by means of a subsidiary attachment through the outer tube, filling the stomach. The light is then turned on, permitting the closest observation of the movements of the organ.

DR. A. W. CHASE'S CATARRH POWDER 25c. is sent direct to the diseased parts by the Improved Blower. Heals the ulcers, clears the air passages, stops dropping in the throat and permanently cures Catarrh and Hay Fever. No harmful drugs. 25c, blower free; all dealers or Dr. A. W. SCIATICA FOLLOWS THE GRIP

Patient Permanently Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

After Being Confined to Bed for a Month and When Ordinary Remedies Failed to Bring Relief.

"I suffered from sciatic rheumatism for a year and a half, after an attack of the grip," says Mr. J. C. Sutherlin of 103 North Olive street, Goshen, Ind., "and was confined to my bed for a month at a time, and for two weeks lying with my legs drawn up with pain. My suffering was so great that the doctor gave me hypodermic injections. The pain was in both legs from the hips to the toes and was sharp and stinging. I couldn't sleep nights without binding my legs tightly with cloths. My appetite was gone and what I ate distressed me. My stomach felt hard and pained me.

"I was under the care of one doctor for two months, of another for six months and of another for perhaps three months. They all called my trouble sciatic, but didn't help me. I tried everything that was recommended to me, but nothing gave relief. I then went to the baths at Martinsville. I took the baths for about four weeks and got only a little relief from them. One day an acquaintance gave me a part of a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and told me to try them. I felt a little benefit from them and took a few boxes more and was cured. I have no rheumatism now, weigh 225 pounds and I have recommended the pills to lots of people, as I think they are the best medicine on earth."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not simply relieve pain, but they cure, and cure permanently, diseases caused by depraved or vitiated blood. They actually make new blood and have, therefore, a direct and powerful curative effect on such diseases as rheumatism, anaemia, general debility and after-effects of the grip. As the nerves depend upon the blood for nourishment and medication, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unequaled for the treatment of even the most severe nervous disorders, such as neuralgia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be mailed, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

TAFT FORCES FINALLY WIN OUT IN KENTUCKY.

Louisville, Ky., May 8.—After having controlled the organization and seated their delegates in all save a few of the contested counties during an all-night session of the committee on credentials, the Taft men were apparently about to put their slate of delegates-at-large through without a hitch at yesterday's session of the Kentucky Republican convention, when their plan was endangered and the slate apparently broken.

Instead of winding up the business of selecting delegates-at-large in an hour or two, there was a session lasting from 10 a. m. until 5:30 o'clock, when the Taft men finally won out and elected the following delegates-at-large, instructed for the secretary of war to the Chicago convention: Governor A. E. Willson, Judge A. N. Burnham; W. Marshall Bullit, E. D. Kane, colored, Louisville. The upset which came when the Fairbanks men were apparently hopelessly beaten was precipitated by a harmony speech delivered by United States Senator-elect Bradley, the leader of the Fairbanks forces in Kentucky.

"Eat What You Please" When and Where You Please.

This simple but powerful prescription will enable those with "finicky" stomachs to eat what they please, when and where they please, without any distressing after effects. Says a noted Battle Creek specialist: "I always prescribe the following with the greatest success, for indigestion, acute or chronic dyspepsia, sour stomach, constipation, depression, languor, blues, wind and gas on stomach and bowels, heart palpitation and billousness. The results are prompt and lasting from these harmless but powerfully blended extracts and essences. If not in stock, any druggist can obtain these ingredients from wholesale firms who supply our profession with rare concentrations. Take a six-ounce or half-pint bottle and get two ounces syrup of Ginger, one ounce Comp. essence of Cardiol (in separate one-ounce bottle) and two ounces of essence of Pepsin. Mix and shake well; then take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal. One spoonful before eating will give a good appetite. One or two at retiring will relieve constipation. Give it to children who have stomachache, bad breath or bowel trouble. It may be taken freely, being entirely harmless and much better than any patent medicine containing opiates and enslaving drugs."

CONTRACTS AWARDED

County Board Makes Provision for Several Road Improvements.

Commissioner Ryan Will Oversee Work in His District.

Much of the county road work this year will be done by contract, under the supervision of the county commissioners, or an inspector appointed by the board.

Yesterday afternoon the board authorized the auditor to call for bids on the improvement of the Miller trunk road, $11,100 being available as state aid.

The board awarded contracts in Commissioner P. J. Ryan's district, where a great deal of highway improvement is planned this season.

Nestor Vainio & Co. have the contract for cutting out a mile of the Chisholm road, forty feet wide, and grubbing it twenty-four feet wide, beginning at the range line between 59 and 60-20, and running south. The consideration is $1 per rod.

The contract was awarded to another range firm of contractors for the cutting out, grubbing and corduroying of another mile of the Chisholm road, from the corner post between Sections 3 and 4, 9 and 10, 59-20, and south on the section line. The consideration is $1 per rod.

Ernst Brothers have two contracts. One is for the cutting and grubbing of a mile of the Chisholm road, running south from the corner post between Sections 9 and 10, and 15 and 16, 59-20, at $1.25 per rod, and the other is for the clearing of the Chisholm road from the Caldwell Hoist south for a mile and one-half on the right of way of the Swan River logging road. The last contract calls for the expenditure of $75, with $25 additional for repairing the dam and bridge.

John Bonnesberg and others will grade the Sturgeon Lake road from the quarter line in Section 17, 61-21 south three miles, for $1,100. The road is to be graded twelve feet wide and six inches deep.

The same contractors will cut and grub and ditch a twenty-four-foot road with sixteen-foot corduroy in Section 32, 61-21, for $2.25 per rod.

Ole Jonnsrud and others will cut out, grade and ditch two miles of the Tower and Itasca road, from the corner post between Sections 8 and 9 and 16 and 17, 61-21, to the corner post between Sections 10 and 11 and 14 and 16, 51-21, at $1.75 per rod.

John Helstrom will ditch and cover with corduroy the Lavelle road, from the quarter post between Sections 13 and 14, 56-20 south, as far as the road is cut out, for $1.25 per rod.

The bids received for the $600,000 worth of county certificates of indebtedness not being satisfactory to the board, the county auditor was instructed to readvertise for sealed proposals for the 600 $1,000 certificates to be issued to raise funds to complete and furnish the new courthouse. The terms have been changed. The certificates, instead of maturing at intervals between four and ten years, will all be payable ten years from date of issuance, at 4½ per cent interest.

Commissioner John Sundeen was appointed a committee of one to look after the protection of the shrubbery and trees on the site that the county has taken for its new courthouse. The board intends to prosecute to the fullest extent of the law any attempts to steal or mutilate the trees or shrubbery now growing on the properties acquired by purchase, or through condemnation proceedings.

George A. Swan was appointed watchman of the courthouse, at $65 per month, and Ole A. Berg was appointed janitor, at $75 per month.

The board adjourned until noon of May 12, when sealed proposals will be opened for the wrecking of the buildings on the courthouse site.

"I suffered habitually from constipation. Doan's Regulets relieved and strengthened the bowels, so that they have been regular ever since."—A. E. Davis, grocer, Sulphur Springs, Tex.

BUILD BIG DAM AT GRAND RAPIDS

Menominee, Mich., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—After a thorough inspection by hydraulic engineers, the directors of the Menominee and Marinette Light & Traction company have voted to close the option held upon the entire Holmes interest in the Menominee river-Grand Rapids water power, two miles west of Ingalls and Wallace.

The preliminary work of survey and the arrangements of plans and specifications for contractors to figure on will require some four weeks more, and in June the actual construction work will start on the big dam and power house. Over 200 men will be employed for a period of from eight months to a year in the completion of this great undertaking.

The minimum power to be harnessed will be 4,500-horsepower with a reserve or emergency of 6,500-horsepower.

This power is double that required to run every electrical and steam power plant in both cities.

The Grand Rapids dam will be 500 feet in length and an engineering marvel. A power house will be erected with complete equipment of the most modern type, and the great power will be carried by feed wires over the eighteen miles to Menominee and Marinette.

The capital of the Light & Traction company has been increased to $1,000,000 and $440,000 of new stock offered to Twin City investors at a par value of $100 for an actual selling price of $90 per share.

TO WEAR GINGHAM DRESS.

Menomonie, Wis., May 8.—Students of the department of domestic economy in the Stout training schools have voted to adopt a uniform dress for school wear, and have chosen a blue and white striped gingham as being most suitable for their purposes. This action has been taken with a view to promoting a democratic feeling among students and to discourage any tendency towards extravagant dressing. The change will not go into effect until next year.

SNAKES IN HER TRUNK.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Screams of terror, echoing through the halls, brought guests and bellboys on the run to a room on the second floor of the West hotel yesterday. Bursting in the door, the rescuers found a young woman half-fainting against the bed, as she gazed with horror at a big trunk which stood across the room.

Without a word the young woman ran from the room. In the hall she fainted. When restored to consciousness it was found that she was Miss M. E. Watterson, a saleswoman from New York. She had been waiting in Minneapolis for a trunk of samples which had been sent her from her company's offices in New York. The trunk arrived Wednesday night. It was sent to her room, and she started to open the big, travel-worn box.

The trunk was not locked but was securely strapped and roped. Undoing the fastenings, Miss Watterson lifted the cover. The trunk seemed to be full of blankets. She lifted the top blanket up and sprang back with a scream as a great snake lazily lifted its head and shot out a red forked tongue.

Further investigation showed the trunk was that of a snake-charmer, and had been sent to Miss Watterson's room by mistake.

AMERICANS ARE BLAMED

All Classes of Servants Expect Huge Tips for Services.

London, May 8.—To tip or not to tip, is the question confronting all classes of society in England just at present. The habit of exacting tips has grown so what it fed upon that now the givers of tips are raising an outcry against tip-grabbers throughout Europe.

Traveling Americans are held to be directly responsible for this situation. Their lavish expenditure in this direction has simply demoralized Europe. In many places millionaire Americans who desire to demonstrate that they "possess the rocks" have allowed their desire for notoriety to exceed their judgment. The consequence is that when the next person, more moderately endowed, makes his appearance he meets the contumely of the upturned nose and the reversed hand.

Tipping in Country Mansions.

At railway stations, big hotels, restaurants and theaters the habit of tipping is more or less an unassailable custom. And though it has long been the custom for tips to be freely given—and more freely expected, perhaps—at English country mansions, the domestic bandits have recently grown even more rapacious. If one is invited for a week-end visit, it is almost as costly as putting up at a first-class hotel. Every servant—even though he only hands you your cane or umbrella—expects not less than $5 on your departure. Recently, at the end of a few days' shooting at a well-known country house, the departing guest offered the gamekeeper $10 in the form of two golden sovereigns. The minion of the gunroom turned his back on the proffered gift with the cool remark: "Sir, this is a paper house," meaning that nothing less than a £5 note should have been tendered.

Chauffeurs Worst "Bandits."

The most exacting adepts of the tip in country places are the chauffeurs who drive you to and from your destination. Unlike old-fashioned family coachmen, who were satisfied with a modest reward for such service, the chauffeur regards himself in the light of a privileged functionary. If you fail to tip him both going and coming he does not hesitate to let the fact be known. Doubtless he regards himself in the light of a species of lifesaver and considers that he is entitled to a reward for not running his car into an obstruction.

The treatment of an invited guest at a country mansion is governed by the chauffeur's manner toward you on arrival. The other servants can tell at a glance whether or not you have "opened up" in a way equal to expectation. If not, a hundred and one embarrassing little things are likely to happen before the end of your visit, and you can congratulate yourself if you don't have to fetch your own hot water in the morning.

It seems that there is a tendency to revert to the times of old, when tipping in great houses almost amounted to a species of blackmail. It was customary for servants to "line up" in the hall and to expect $5 for every article handed to the departing guest. On one occasion a man refused to take his own gloves from the hand of a servant because he did not consider them worth the price expected by way of a tip.

Brilliant Season Expected.

The London season will not be curtailed, as recently reported. When the king left London for Biarritz on March 5 it was privately settled that his majesty would take up his residence at Buckingham palace for the season at the beginning of May, and this arrangement remains unaltered. Except for brief absences at Newmarket and during week-ends, the king will be in residence at Buckingham palace from the beginning of this month until June 6, and then from June 22 until July 25 or 27, when he is to leave London for the season.

The state visit of the president of the French republic to London is now definitely fixed to take place during the last week of May. M. Fallieres is to arrive on Tuesday, May 26. He will land at Portsmouth harbor, and will be received at the South railway jetty by the prince of Wales and Prince Arthur of Connaught.

Many Functions Planned.

The president will reside at York house, St. James' palace, during his stay in London, and the etiquette and ceremonial during his visit will be the same as were observed when M. Loubet came to England four years ago. There will be a state banquet at Buckingham palace, followed by a diplomatic and official reception on one night, and a state ball on another night. There is to be a gala performance at the opera, and the president will dine one night at Marlborough house with the prince and princess of Wales. There will also be a banquet and reception at the French embassy.

The London season this year promises to be exceedingly brilliant, and the hotels will reap a rich harvest. In a few days the Franco-British exhibition will be opened at Shepherd's Bush. It is the most ambitious enterprise of its kind yet attempted in London, and the genius of Imre Kiralfy has never been more strikingly displayed than in the varied architectural effects of the congeries of palaces raised as by a fairy wand on the hitherto arid waste lying beyond the tube terminus at Shepherd's Bush.

Horse Show and Olympic Games.

In June the international horse show at Olympia is to repeat its triumph of last year, when it was said to be the most attractive show of its kind ever seen. In July the Olympic games will be held at the Franco-British exhibition in the magnificent Stadium, which is now completed, wonderful in its reproduction of the classic athletic ground of Greece. The kaiser intends to visit the games, while his visit to Cowes regatta in the imperial yacht Hohenzollern will add immensely to the interest of that famous sea carnival. All these attractions mean a great outflow of money in London, and may bring back some of that prosperity to the trade of the West end, which, through a series of unfortunate occurrences, has been lacking of late years.

THE IRISH UNIVERSITY

Professors of Queen's College, Belfast, in Favor of Bill.

Aged Recluse, Recently Returned From America, is Robbed.

Dublin, May 8.—The professors and lecturers of Queen's College, Belfast, after considering the university bill at present before parliament, have unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

"That we desire to express our extreme gratification that an earnest attempt is being made to settle the Irish university question on a permanent basis. That we rejoice that the provisions of the bill insure that the proposed new university in Belfast shall stand upon the same broad nonsectarian and purely academic basis on which Queen's college, Belfast, has worked since its establishment; that the university shall be free from religious tests and from all ecclesiastical control; that it is to be a free and completely self-governing university; and that public bodies, benefactors, professors, graduates, secondary teachers, women and students will be represented on its governing body. That in our opinion the elevation of this college to university rank will not only add much to the dignity of Belfast, making it a university city, but will give a great impetus to higher education here and throughout Ulster; that it will stimulate both teachers and students to show themselves worthy of the higher status now proposed to be granted by the legislature; that it will excite much greater public interest in college and attract an increasing amount of public support from local benefactors, and that it will largely stimulate literary and scientific research and promote the diffusion of knowledge and culture throughout the north of Ireland.

Magee College Protests.

A strong protest was made at the closing sessional meeting of Magee college, Londonderry, against the proposal in Mr. Birrell's university bill to exclude the college from university recognition. Prof. Leebody, president of the faculty, said it was incredible that Magee college should be excluded and the other four colleges recognized by the Royal university taken in. The proposal looked like one policy for the south and another for the north. The exclusion of Magee would leave a rankling feeling which might result in students crossing the channel to Edinburgh, as was done so largely in the early part of last century in search of educational conditions denied them at home.

The Galway Urban council has passed a resolution complaining of the inadequate nature of the grant of £9,000 to Queen's college, Galway, under Mr. Birrell's university bill. It declares that the grant for Galway ought to be at least equal to that which is allotted to Queen's college, Cork.

Particulars have been received at Boyle of an extraordinary affair which has occurred at a place called Ballinamuck, a wild region on the borders of Longford and Leitrim. It seems that an old man named Reilly, who had spent some forty years in America, recently returned to his native place and rented a small cottage on the lonely moors. He returned a rich man, but had no communication with the outside world, as all his friends were dead or had emigrated, and he lived the life of a recluse.

Plunder Recluse's House.

Late on Saturday night his house was broken into by a party of men who were masked and had blackened faces. They are alleged to have taken the old man from his bed, stripped and gagged him, pulled a sack over his head, and tied him around with hay ropes. A large sum of money is said to have been carried off, and the house was plundered, everything worth carrying off being removed. It was not until late on Sunday that the old man's plight was discovered, and he was then in a pitiable condition.

A dispatch sent from Boyle to a London paper says: "Now that the United Irish league has been notified by Mr. Asquith that it may expect nothing in the way of home rule from the government, the restraint which has been exercised in the districts in the south and west of Ireland ruled by the league has been withdrawn, and the country is in a state of lawlessness, which has not been equaled for several years. All who object to the activities of the league are subjected to a relentless boycott and cattle driving has been revived with renewed vigor. An extensive ranch in South Leitrim, tenanted by a man named Gilmartin, was visited a few nights ago by a mob headed by a drum and fife band, and the cattle were scattered in all directions. Fences and gates were leveled, and a great deal of damage was done. Another farm, owned by Wilton Vaugh, the subsheriff, was visited, and a large number of sheep were driven off. No trace of them has been discovered, and it is supposed that they have been killed by the leaguers and salted down.

Revolt Against Crowding.

One of the most remarkable instances of the way in which all classes of Irishmen are coming together to work for the common good of the country has just been afforded in the organization of a branch of the Town Tenants' association in the town of Antrim, which would be the very last place in which one would expect a determined revolt against the present conditions. The logic of facts has been too much, however, for the hard-headed men of Antrim, and the new branch of the Town Tenants' association includes men of all political beliefs and all religious creeds.

The conditions which have brought about this change of spirit in the most conservative corner of Ulster are remarkable enough. The county of Antrim sent more emigrants out of the country last year than any other county in Ireland, and the reason for this is not far to seek. There is probably no county in Ireland in which the housing of the people is worse. Fifty thousand people, or 25 per cent of the population of the county, live in two-room houses, while 11,000 people occupy houses of only one room. In the town of Antrim only three new houses were built from 1891 to 1901, although the population had increased 200 during that period. The problem of overcrowding is really worse in the country towns of Ireland today than it is in the worst slums of New York or Chicago.

Ireland has the distinction of originating a new field of woman's work. An Irish lady has been appointed the manager of the gas works at Magherafelt, County Derry, and she has assumed her new duties, which involve the direction of several scores of men. The lady is Miss Richmond.

The woeful deficiency of fire-fighting apparatus in most Irish towns has again been illustrated by the catastrophe at Fermony. Half of one of the principal squares in the town has been wiped out and damage to the amount of $250,000 done, only because there was not a steam fire engine available. The fire had, therefore, to be allowed to burn practically unchecked until a steam fire engine could be brought from Cork, twenty-five miles away.

The new opening for the investment of Irish capital will soon be afforded by the launching of the first Irish insurance company. It may be mentioned that Ireland is the only country in Europe which has not a national insurance company.

KILLS RIVAL AND GOES FREE.

Belgrade, May 8.—The tribunal of Valievo, Servia, has just declared Dragi Simitch innocent of the death of Dushan Zuyaloviteh, whom he slew in a hand-to-hand combat. Both men were suitors for the hand of Linka Prenditch, a beautiful peasant girl, who could not make her choice between them. When she danced the village "kolo" with Dushan she smiled at Dragi, and when she walked with Dragi she waved her hand to Dushan to follow. At last the men determined, with her consent, to decide the matter by a duel with knives, in which Dushan was killed. During Dragi's imprisonment the girl visited him frequently and later they were married.

OIL KING TAKES REINS.

Twice in Year He Relieves Brother and Rogers.

New York, May 8.—Twice during the past year John D. Rockefeller, to whose genius Standard Oil owes its present rank in the business world, has responded to a call to take the active leadership of that corporation. Though in frail health for many years, he appears now to be stronger physically than the lieutenants to whom he gave up the command when he retired from business in the '90s. In those days Henry H. Rogers and William Rockefeller, brother of the founder of Standard Oil, were in the prime of life, and John D. Rockefeller appeared to be on the verge of physical collapse. Now the conditions are reversed.

For more than ten years after he gave up the routine of business life John D. Rockefeller did not set his foot inside the Standard Oil building at 26 Broadway. Nearly a year ago, when Mr. Rogers and William Rockefeller were far from being in good health, John D. Rockefeller startled the financial district one day by appearing at 26 Broadway. This was about the time that the government suit against the Standard Oil was being tried, out of which grew the famous $29,700,000 fine. When, last summer, Mr. Rogers was suffering from the effect of a slight stroke of paralysis and William Rockefeller was in Europe, the active head of Standard Oil was John D. Rockefeller. There has not been a day since when he has not been in direct touch with his property.

CIGARETTES MADE NOSE RED.

Oxford, England, May 8.—An undergraduate, aged 19, who had a red nose, recently sought the advice of a doctor on the matter. He was healthy in every other respect, and did not suffer from indigestion. He was much addicted to cigarette smoking, however, and to blowing the smoke through his nostrils. His nose was unnaturally red for a youth.

The only advice the doctor gave him was to moderate his smoking and to discontinue the habit of passing the smoke through his nostrils. The advice was taken, and a great improvement in the appearance of the undergraduate's nose was soon manifest. The doctor told the youth that cigarette smoking would in almost every case affect the skin.

BRAVE SURGEON WINS HEIRESS

Des Moines, Iowa, May 8.—This is a romance of the Philippines—the story of a dashing United States army surgeon who rescued a charming Spanish heiress from a band of bloodthirsty insurgents, nursed her back to life and who now will become her husband.

Dr. L. A. Woodring, since the Spanish war a Des Moines surgeon, is to marry Senorita Maursia Tretanciae, the heroine of the tale, on June 15, and the Spanish maiden is preparing even now to start from Manila on her long voyage and to journey to Des Moines, where she will rejoin her rescuer.

Nine miles south of Manila the United States troops surprised a band of insurgents at the wealthy plantation of Casso Dellasco. The insurrectoes had burned and pillaged the plantation and had killed all of the family except one 18-year-old girl, who was wounded. The natives were driven off, and Dr. Woodring, after dressing the girl's wounds, placed her on his horse in front of him and carried her to the city. There he nursed her back to life.

A few weeks ago Senorita Maursia Tretanciae came to America, where she received $200,000 from the United States for her father's plantation, which had been confiscated. By merest accident she met the doctor. And now their wedding is announced to be followed by a wedding trip throughout the East. The bride is an accomplished musician, born in Spain and the daughter of a colonel in the Spanish army.

RULE DAVIS DID NOT KNOW.

Johnston of Alabama Has Fun With the Arkansas Senator.

Washington, May 8.—Senator Johnston of Alabama, had considerable amusement at the expense of Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas, the other day. Johnston is considerable of a "kidder." He knew that Davis had been neglecting his official duty for the past sixty days or more to campaign in Arkansas. A few days after Davis returned from Arkansas, Johnston while talking with Davis, casually remarked that he (Johnston) was in trouble.

"What's the matter?" asked Davis.

"Oh, this thirty-day rule knocked me out on a couple of local bills that my people were greatly interested in."

"What is that rule?" asked Davis.

"It simply provides that if you don't call up any bill you introduce within thirty days it is dead," said Johnston "And I forgot about it and let a couple of my bills die."

Davis became very nervous. "Why, I didn't know anything about that rule," said he. "Do you suppose my anti-trust bill is dead?"

"You certainly arranged to have some senator call it up during your absence didn't you?" asked Johnston, in great astonishment.

"I did not," said Davis. "By the Gods, Senator Clarke (Arkansas) knew how deeply interested I was in that bill. He also knew the rules. And I intend to make him answer to the people of Arkansas for not looking after my bill during my absence."

A moment later Clarke drifted into the senate chamber and Davis tackled him. Clarke didn't know what Davis was talking about. Finally when Davis explained Clarke told him that someone was simply joshing him. Now Davis refuses to warm up to Johnston.

Help the Bowels Gently—Do as Nature Does

When pain follows physic you are doing the bowels an injury. You are wrecking the stomach, too.

Then the bowels cease to supply their own laxative, and you have constipation.

Harsh physic also inflames the stomach, and the result is dyspepsia.

Constipation and dyspepsia are generally due to salts, castor oil or cathartics.

You can get the same help without the slightest danger of injury.

Cascarets are just as effective. Yet they are gentle, acting in Nature's way.

No pain, no griping, no irritation. Take one daytime or night-time—whenever you need it. Correct the trouble at the start.

You won't need them long.

For Cascarets are curative. Their action is to set the bowels right.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

Cascarets "THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP"

The vest-pocket box is 10 cents. The month-treatment box 50 cents. 12,000,000 boxes sold annually. 825

All Classes of Servants Expect Huge Tips for Services.

London, May 8.—To tip or not to tip, is the question confronting all classes of society in England just at present. The habit of exacting tips has grown so what it fed upon that now the givers of tips are raising an outcry against tip-grabbers throughout Europe.

Traveling Americans are held to be directly responsible for this situation. Their lavish expenditure in this direction has simply demoralized Europe. In many places millionaire Americans who desire to demonstrate that they "possess the rocks" have allowed their desire for notoriety to exceed their judgment. The consequence is that when the next person, more moderately endowed, makes his appearance he meets the contumely of the upturned nose and the reversed hand.

Tipping in Country Mansions.

At railway stations, big hotels, restaurants and theaters the habit of tipping is more or less an unassailable custom. And though it has long been the custom for tips to be freely given—and more freely expected, perhaps—at English country mansions, the domestic bandits have recently grown even more rapacious. If one is invited for a week-end visit, it is almost as costly as putting up at a first-class hotel. Every servant—even though he only hands you your cane or umbrella—expects not less than $5 on your departure. Recently, at the end of a few days' shooting at a well-known country house, the departing guest offered the gamekeeper $10 in the form of two golden sovereigns. The mingling of the guuroom turned his back on the proffered gift with the cool remark: "Sir, this is a paper house," meaning that nothing less than a $5 note should have been tendered.

Chauffeurs Worst "Bandits."

The most exacting adepts of the tip in country places are the chauffeurs who drive you to and from your destination. Unlike old-fashioned family coachmen, who were satisfied with a modest reward for such service, the chauffeur regards himself in the light of a privileged functionary. If you fail to tip him both going and coming he does not hesitate to let the fact be known. Doubtless he regards himself in the light of a species of lifesaver and considers that he is entitled to a reward for not running his car into an obstruction.

The treatment of an invited guest at a country mansion is governed by the chauffeur's manner toward you on arrival. The other servants can tell at a glance whether or not you have "opened up" in a way equal to expectation. If not, a hundred and one embarrassing little things are likely to happen before the end of your visit, and you can congratulate yourself if you don't have to fetch your own hot water in the morning.

It seems that there is a tendency to revert to the times of old, when tipping in great houses almost amounted to a species of blackmail. It was customary for servants to "line up" in the hall and to expect $5 for every article handed to the departing guest. On one occasion a man refused to take his own gloves from the hand of a servant because he did not consider them worth the price expected by way of a tip.

New York, May 8.—Twice during the past year John D. Rockefeller, to whose genius Standard Oil owes its present rank in the business world, has responded to a call to take the active leadership of that corporation. Though in frail health for many years, he appears now to be stronger physically than the lieutenants to whom he gave up the command when he retired from business in the '90s. In those days Henry H. Rogers and William Rockefeller, brother of the founder of Standard Oil, were in the prime of life, and John D. Rockefeller appeared to be on the verge of physical collapse. Now the conditions are reversed.

For more than ten years after he gave up the routine of business life John D. Rockefeller did not set his foot inside the Standard Oil building at 26 Broadway. Nearly a year ago, when Mr. Rogers and William Rockefeller were far from being in good health, John D. Rockefeller startled the financial district one day by appearing at 26 Broadway. This was about the time that the government suit against the Standard Oil was being tried, out of which grew the famous $29,700,000 fine. When, last summer, Mr. Rogers was suffering from the effect of a slight stroke of paralysis and William Rockefeller was in Europe, the active head of Standard Oil was John D. Rockefeller. There has not been a day since when he has not been in direct touch with his property.

CIGARETTES MADE NOSE RED.

Oxford, England, May 8.—An undergraduate, aged 19, who had a red nose, recently sought the advice of a doctor on the matter. He was healthy in every other respect, and did not suffer from indigestion. He was much addicted to cigarette smoking, however, and to blowing the smoke through his nostrils. His nose was unnaturally red for a youth.

The only advice the doctor gave him was to moderate his smoking and to discontinue the habit of passing the smoke through his nostrils. The advice was taken, and a great improvement in the appearance of the undergraduate's nose was soon manifest. The doctor told the youth that cigarette smoking would in almost every case affect the skin.

BRAVE SURGEON WINS HEIRESS

Des Moines, Iowa, May 8.—This is a romance of the Philippines—the story of a dashing United States army surgeon who rescued a charming Spanish heiress from a band of bloodthirsty insurgents, nursed her back to life and who now will become her husband.

Dr. L. A. Woodring, since the Spanish war a Des Moines surgeon, is to marry Senorita Maursia Tretanciae, the heroine of the tale, on June 15, and the Spanish maiden is preparing even now to start from Manila on her long voyage and to journey to Des Moines, where she will rejoin her rescuer.

Nine miles south of Manila the United States troops surprised a band of insurgents at the wealthy plantation of Casso Deliasco. The insurrectos had burned and pillaged the plantation and had killed all of the family except one 18-year-old girl, who was wounded. The natives were driven off, and Dr. Woodring, after dressing the girl's wounds, placed her on his horse in front of him and carried her to the city. There he nursed her back to life.

A few weeks ago Senorita Maursia Tretanciae came to America, where she received $200,000 from the United States for her father's plantation, which had been confiscated. By merest accident she met the doctor. And now their wedding is announced to be followed by a wedding trip throughout the East. The bride is an accomplished musician, born in Spain and the daughter of a colonel in the Spanish army.

RULE DAVIS DID NOT KNOW.

Johnston of Alabama Has Fun With the Arkansas Senator.

Washington, May 8.—Senator Johnston of Alabama, had considerable amusement at the expense of Senator Jeff Davis of Arkansas, the other day. Johnston is considerable of a "kidder." He knew that Davis had been neglecting his official duty for the past sixty days or more to campaign in Arkansas. A few days after Davis returned from Arkansas, Johnston while talking with Davis, casually remarked that he (Johnston) was in trouble.

"What's the matter?" asked Davis.

"Oh, this thirty-day rule knocked me out on a couple of local bills that my people were greatly interested in."

"What is that rule?" asked Davis.

"It simply provides that if you don't call up any bill you introduce within thirty days it is dead," said Johnston "And I forgot about it and let a couple of my bills die."

Davis became very nervous. "Why, I didn't know anything about that rule," said he. "Do you suppose my anti-trust bill is dead?"

"You certainly arranged to have some senator call it up during your absence didn't you?" asked Johnston, in great astonishment.

"I did not," said Davis. "By the Gods, Senator Clarke (Arkansas) knew how deeply interested I was in that bill. He also knew the rules. And I intend to make him answer to the people of Arkansas for not looking after my bill during my absence."

A moment later Clarke drifted into the senate chamber and Davis tackled him. Clarke didn't know what Davis was talking about. Finally when Davis explained Clarke told him that someone was simply joshing him. Now Davis refuses to warm up to Johnston.

When pain follows physic you are doing the bowels an injury. You are wrecking the stomach, too.

Then the bowels cease to supply their own laxative, and you have constipation.

Harsh physic also inflames the stomach, and the result is dyspepsia.

Constipation and dyspepsia are generally due to salts, castor oil or cathartics.

You can get the same help without the slightest danger of injury.

Cascarets are just as effective. Yet they are gentle, acting in Nature's way.

No pain, no griping, no irritation. Take one daytime or night-time—whenever you need it. Correct the trouble at the start.

For Cascarets are curative. Their action is to set the bowels right.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Only His Most Rabid Supporters Are Holding Out.

Some of the Bryan Men Showing Themselves Poor Losers.

"We have 'em licked, by hek, if they don't buy us," seems to be the firm conviction of the Bryan leaders in St. Louis county, if T. T. Hudson is correctly quoted by that able exponent of the Peerless Leader, the News Tribune.

After the result of the primaries had been determined Wednesday night, Mr. Hudson refused to announce the names of the Bryan delegates, stating that he feared the potency of the Johnson money," naively remarks the News Tribune.

"He frankly stated that he feared money might be used by the Johnson crowd to buy up Bryan delegates," it continues, and in another place it states that "T. T. Hudson, Bryan leader, admitted yesterday that the Peerless Leader had been worsted here, but said the rest of the county would make up for the defection in Duluth."

The Bryan organ also admits the charges of trickery made by The Herald, in the following frank confession: "It was known before the primaries that there was a considerable intermingling of candidates, with opposite leanings on the delegate lists, and the Bryan men claim it was due to their strategy. Enough of the so-called Johnson delegates are Bryan men, it is claimed, to practically equalize things, when the lineup is made at the convention."

It is believed that this confession was made by the News Tribune without due consultation with the Bryan leaders.

As nearly as it can be estimated today, the Bryan faction will have between forty and fifty delegates in the county convention when it is called to order at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. This will be about one-fifth of the total number of 228, and they will stand no show whatever.

"We have nothing to gain from bribery or trickery," said Fred L. Ryan, one of the Johnson workers, today. "Even if we wanted to resort to such methods, there would be no reason for doing so. Governor Johnson's friends will be in an overwhelming majority at the county convention, and all we want to do is to get a fair expression of the convention's sentiment. If there is any trickery or bribery, as the morning paper intimates, it will certainly not come from the Johnson supporters."

The political death of T. T. Hudson of Duluth is forecasted by the Minneapolis Journal as a result of the caucuses Wednesday. The following is taken from the Journal:

"Every congressional district will be controlled by the Johnson men. This insure sthe election of twenty-two Johnson delegates to the national convention. It means that Fred B. Lynch of St. Paul, manager of the Johnson campaign, will succeed T. T. Hudson of Duluth as national committeeman.

"The result last night makes it certain that John A. Johnson's name will be presented for the presidency at Denver, no matter how tightly William J. Bryan may have the nomination in his grasp. Congressman W. S. Hammond of St. James will head the Minnesota delegation and make the speech placing Johnson in nomination. The 'big four' will also include A. C. Weiss of Duluth and T. D. O'Brien of St. Paul. The Hennepin member will probably be Swan J. Turnblad, but there is some talk of Ed J. Conroy, who managed the local Johnson campaign."

The county convention Saturday will elect twenty-nine delegates to the state convention at St. Paul. They will undoubtedly be all strong Johnson men, and the delegation will vote as a unit for an instructed Johnson delegation to the national convention in Denver.

The Minnesota delegation to Denver will consist of twenty-two delegates. Four of these are delegates at large and there are two from each congressional district. The delegates to the state convention hold congressional district caucuses during the state convention, and the delegates from each congressional district elect two delegates to the national convention. The two men most prominently mentioned from this district are Martin Hughes of Hibbing and John Dwan of Two Harbors.

What action the Bryan faction will take at the county convention tomorrow is somewhat of a problem. All but the most bitterly partisan workers, those who have political grudges to settle, admit frankly that they are beaten and are willing to fall into line for Governor Johnson with the best grace possible. A few of the Bryan fanatics, however, who have knives sharpened for the governor, take the defeat very bitterly, and they may make an effort to cause trouble tomorrow. The Johnson men will be on their guard against the bogus credentials which were used two years ago, however, and any attempt to manufacture credentials for delegates from outlying districts, will result disastrously.

The Model Clothing House

"In answer to your question why we sell and recommend the Gordon Hat, will say that for the past four years we have handled this hat extensively.

It has given the best possible service under all conditions and under the hardest wear.

We have never been troubled with our trade coming back with hats showing defects and very seldom have had a hat returned even for inspection."

CEMETARY ELECTS OFFICERS.

George H. Brown Dead and Other News From Brainerd.

Brainerd, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Evergreen Cemetery association has just held its annual meeting, re-electing officers as follows: President,, J. T. Sanborn; secretary and treasurer, C. M. Patek; actuary, Sidney Hockridge. A committee was selected to revise the by-laws.

George H. Brown, aged 73, and the father of George H. Brown, a cruiser in the employ of the Northland Pine company, is dead in this city. He had been a sufferer from dropsy for several years.

Mrs. Joseph Keibler, Sr., aged 89 years, is lying at the point of death as the result of a fall down through a cellar door. It is supposed she was taken with a dizzy spell, to which she was subject, and fell through the trap door. She was badly cut and bruised and because of her advanced age, it is not thought that she can recover.

DOGS AND LIBRARIES.

Literature as a By-Product of the Love of Canine Pets.

A tradition of Massachusetts is connected with this bromidion out of the country newspaper man's handbook which gets into print frequently in this season when town meetings abound: "The dog fund was voted to the public library."

Rosalind exclaims in one of her moods that she hasn't a word to throw at a dog. She might have shown less scorn for dogs and their relation to words, printed words, at least, if she had been a New England girl dependent upon the town library for her light fiction, says the New York Sun.

For the libraries of some Massachusetts towns are supported in part by the dogs. To be sure it is the duly licensed and therefore respectable dogs that have their being in the interest of libraries, and in view of this fact Rosalind could no doubt have cast a waste word to a wandering cur without setting astir any scruples in the thought that she had wounded the feelings of a benefactor.

Dogs that live under the law in Massachusetts are licensed annually by the city or town clerk upon the payment of a $2 fee. Twenty cents of this is allowed to the clerk for issuing and recording the license. After collecting the fees and deducting his share the clerk turns the money over to the county treasurer, who keeps a dog fund out of which all claims for damages caused by the dogs of the county are paid upon the order of the county commissioners.

The fifty-nine cities and towns of Worcester county gathered over $35,000 in dog license fees in 1907. The total claims and expenses footed $4,138.38 or about 11 per cent of the receipts, leaving 89 per cent of the original remittances to be returned to the fifty-nine cities and towns.

The sums returned cannot be merged in the cash assets of the various municipalities, but in accordance with a state law must be expended for the support of either public libraries or schools. In the cities one seldom knows for which of the alternative objects the money has been used, unless he has curiosity enough to look into the official reports, which would be a deal of curiosity indeed in a city. In the country one is less likely to escape the matter, for year after year in the yard long warrant for the annual town meeting there appears the item or article:

"To see what disposition the town will make of the dog fund the ensuing year."

As the schools call for a definite appropriation, it is usually found convenient to select the library as the recipient of the fund. Some towns make other official provision for their libraries, but in others where no little Yankee sentiment—or lack of sentiment—prevails and where there is a tendency to be tolerated, and not at all as a necessity to be classed with stone bridges, a storehouse for the road scraper, the salaries of the selectmen and other accredited bulwarks of the body politic, even the dog money is handed over begrudgingly, as far as some citizens are concerned.

Now and then a worthy of a Massachusetts town will be heard to declare right before the assembly in the village store at mail time that "the library is a darned nuisance anyhow," for hasn't he gone home many time after reading one of those profitless library books and no supper on the table, not even the tea being hot?

Even in the crabbedest New England towns one hears now no religious objection to the libraries as a means to novel reading, although now and then some middle-aged woman of unimpeachable rectitude conceives it her duty to have some new novel barred by the library authorities, in order to protect others from the immoralities she has found in it. And as the authorities are usually quite as respectable as she, the book is likely to be "out" when it is asked for thereafter.

IN THE CITY OF PILLS.

There is one city in the world today which bears an absolutely unique distinction, and that is Detroit—the "City of Pills." So writes J. Oliver Curwood in the Technical World Magazine. This year it is estimated that Detroit manufacturers will make three-quarters of the world's supply of pills, or over 6,000,000,000 pellets, of all sizes, shapes and colors, and intended for almost every ailment of human kind. In that city are made over 2,000 different varieties of pills, and if a single season's crop was made of some deadly poison there would be enough to depopulate the entire globe twice over. To look at it in another way, if this annual harvest was strung, like popcorn, the rope of pills would reach three times around the earth at the equator.

Today America is the greatest pill consuming nation on earth, for, while Detroit pills find their way to every conceivable cornor of the globe, from the frozen regions of the Artic to the deepest fastnesses of tropical jungles, not more than one-third of the total production leaves this country, the average consumption being something like sixty pills per capita per year.

A National Prosperity association has been organized in St. Louis, and efforts are to be made to spread it all over the country.

Its purposes are these: to keep the dinner pail full; to keep the pay car going; to keep the factory busy; to keep the workman employed; to keep the present wages up.

All very worthy objects, these, and the National Prosperity association is therefore a very worthy organization. Let us hope that it will have a wide spread, a quick growth, and abundant success.

But when you analyze the situation, it is the most absurd thing in the world that a prosperity association should be needed in this country. Though certain things that could be accomplished by legislation would give a greater assurance of permanence to prosperity than it has under present conditions, the country has every vital element of prosperity at this moment, except the element that combines all the others into an effective whole—the element of action.

We have plenty of money, we have plenty of men, we have plenty of wealth developed and undeveloped, we have plenty to do to give employment to labor. We have not stopped work because there is nothing to do, for there is a world of things to do; we have not stopped for lack of money, because the country never had so much money; we have not stopped work because of any tangible reason, but only because capital, scared by the results of its own excesses, is timid.

The prospect for a good crop was never better at this season; the panic is over and almost forgotten; the shortage of money supply which created it or brought it to a head no longer exists. Why, then, don't we resume all along the line?

Because everybody is waiting for everybody else to start; that's all. If the National Prosperity association can get everybody to pluck up courage and start business again, it will serve its purpose.

Just now the only thing that makes for hesitation is politics, and it is perfectly ridiculous that it should interfere for a moment with the resumption of activity. Speaking generally, there is no doubt about the outcome. Neither party can or will nominate a reactionary candidate who will try to undo the glorious work that the people have accomplished in the few years of their great awakening. Neither party can or will nominate a man who can or will accomplish any harm to legitimate business. The people have burned their bridges behind them, and while they are bent upon no disastrous burning of the barn to kill the rats, they are bent upon exterminating the rats, and they are going to do it. That much is settled beyond doubt, but it has absolutely nothing to do with the resumption of legitimate industrial activities.

The way to resume is to resume. There is not a single valid excuse at this moment for a failure to resume immediately the industrial activity that prevailed a year ago. Everything that imperilled that activity them—extravagance, over-exploitation, shortage of money—has disappeared. Everything that was then needed—good crop prospects, demand at home and abroad for our products, and a restoration of sanity to the conduct of business—has since been provided.

Let's get busy.

THE LAKE MOHONK CONFERENCE.

War is wasteful, wicked and wanton. Commonly it is a sacrifice of precious lives, a waste of useful energies, a squandering of wealth and blood for a sordid cause. Its menace ties up millions of producers in the days of their strength when they should be wresting wealth from the soil, the mine and the factory, and keeps the people's money idle in armies and navies, in forts and battleships, when it should be providing education, recreation and comforts for the many.

Therefore every movement in behalf of worldwide peace is good; every advocate of disarmament and arbitration worthy of support; and every gathering for the promotion of better understanding between nations and for the inculcation of the love of peace deserving of the widest sympathy.

All of which is preliminary to the statement that the Lake Mohonk conference at its meeting this month will devote special attention to setting forth the results of the second Hague conference. As the real facts are becoming available, it is beginning to appear that the pessimistic views prevailing in many quarters at the close of the conference were not entirely well founded. The Hague conference was not a legislative body or one in which a majority ruled; had it been, we would now have a general treaty of obligatory arbitration, an international court with a permanent bench; perhaps even an agreement on the limitation of armaments.

But forty-five nations were represented, and substantial unanimity was required to adopt any proposition. This was difficult, almost impossible, at a gathering where racial and temperamental differences were so marked. Considering these things, it is remarkable that so much was done.

The Hague conference gave to the world a decree that henceforth an offer of arbitration must always precede the use of force for the collection of contract debts; it provided for an international prize court; it resolved that a third conference, in about eight years, should take up and continue its work under international directions; it gave to either party to a controversy the right to ask publicly the services of The Hague tribunal, thereby forcing its adversary to arbitrate or to admit publicly its fear or its unwillingness to do so, thus doing away with the former incongruous requirement that two nations on the verge of war must first agree to ask for arbitration; it extended the work of the Red Cross to naval warfare; and it greatly improved The Hague conventions of 1899 by making mediation, good offices and commissions of inquiry more easily offered or invoked.

If for nothing else, the Lake Mohonk conference will be interesting and profitable because of its development of the gains made at The Hague. And besides, it is a movement for universal peace, and should have the sympathy of everybody who regrets the horror, the anachronism and the waste of war.

DELEGATES ARE PUPPETS.

Though Minnesota has adopted the direct primary system for the nomination of most of its public officials, it still clings to the practice of nominating state officers and delegates to national conventions in state conventions, and though there is hardly one of these conventions that does not leave a bitter taste in the mouths of the publicspirited citizens who attend it, the convention system still persists, and the legislature refuses to change it.

The Anoka Union, discussing the recent Republican state convention for the selection of delegates at large to the Republican national convention, pictures the conditions that prevailed there, and that prevail at most state conventions, clearly and suggestively. It says:

"Oh, isn't it nice to be a delegate to a state convention? A real snap, so to speak. You arrive in town, hasten to the hotel headquarters, and stand around, irrigate occasionally if you are so minded, shake hands with personal acquaintances, are introduced to scores of delegates and others, asked 'who is to be the next governor?' Talk confidentially to some fellow and have another butt in. Hear stories of vulgar hue, smoke poor cigars, get the glad hand from the different candidates, and act the fool generally.

"While you are doing this, assisted by about nine hundred or more delegates, a few who run things get together in some room and fix up the slate. Occasionally one of these big guns appears in the hotel lobby, grabs a delegate, and they disappear. When convention time comes you walk to the meeting place, file in and take a seat in the space allotted to your county. Some delegate is recognized, previously agreed upon, and makes a motion, and so it goes to the end, the whole convention being run along these lines, and the nine hundred or more delegates acquiesce in everything like a lot of sheep following the bell wether, this large majority having no more to say than a mute. A delegate with the average amount of intelligence feels as cheap as a copper cent."

That is the feeling that all intelligent delegates to conventions, either county or state, must take away with them. The description is typical of state conventions. There are nine hundred sheep and half a dozen bell wethers. The bell wethers do the business, and the nine hundred nod acquiescence and wonder what they are there for.

And back of a state convention so conducted are a myriad of county conventions conducted in the same way; while back of the county conventions are the primaries, where a few voters go out to vote for delegates about whom they know nothing. These delegates have been picked in a back room somewhere, and the entire process, from the caucuses up to the state convention, is controlled and manipulated.

Occasionally this program is varied by a hard fight within the party, but the only difference then is that instead of one bunch of bell wethers there are two, and the position of the delegates is no more dignified or useful. Besides, this condition produces nasty fights that make politics hateful and fearsome to the average voter, that split parties wide open, and that as often as not yield more corruption and disgrace than "harmonious" conventions manipulated quietly by the bell wethers of the "interests."

All this could be avoided by the extension of the primary election system, which gives the people something to say about these matters.

A MUNICIPAL REFERENCE BUREAU.

Chicago is considering a plan of forming a municipal reference department, similar to those which several states have formed for the convenience and information of their legislatures, notably Wisconsin, which has a legislative reference bureau which is a model for other states. The plan is meeting with wide approval, and there is little doubt that the ordinance which has been introduced into the Chicago council providing for it will be adopted.

This is a plan which all other cities should adopt. Every city should have a municipal reference department equipped with all the available information relating to municipal affairs, and as Duluth has justification for the claim that it is one of the most up-to-date communities in the country, it should have one, too.

The scheme is an outgrowth of the state legislative reference bureau idea, of course. In Wisconsin, where this plan has had its greatest and most useful development, a skilled man is employed to gather from every possible source all sorts of information likely to be of value to the legislature. Copies of bills, copies of laws, constitutions, codes, reports of departments of state government, everything that pertains to the administration of a state, is grist for this mill. So complete has the Wisconsin reference bureau become that a lawmaker who has it in mind to draw up a bill covering any particular subject has only to apply to the bureau to secure a large variety of bills and laws on that subject proposed or adopted in other states. He can profit by the failures and successes attending similar legislation in all parts of the country.

The plan of the municipal reference bureau is precisely the same. Such bureaus will vary in elaborateness, of course, with the size and resources of the communities adopting them, but in every case they will provide a collection of ordinances, reports and other documents of municipal interest that will be as complete as possible. In Chicago it is proposed to have a commissioner of information and publicity, a deputy, a librarian, a chief statistician and a force of expert investigators. This is too elaborate and expensive for most communities, of course, and cities of Duluth's class would have to content themselves with a single official, who could, however, if he is properly equipped and duly diligent, make himself worth many times his cost to his community.

The value of such a service is obvious. For instance, if a smoke ordinance or a building ordinance were under consideration, a well-equipped reference department would supply not only a complete collection of existing laws and proposals on these subjects, but a valuable fund of information regarding the results—the failures and successes—of attempts made by other cities to regulate these matters.

Most cities now have some official who makes an attempt to gather such information, but as a rule the work is voluntary and unprovided for by law or by suitable appropriations, and it is therefore desultory and incomplete.

The malignant actions of some of the so-called friends of Mr. Bryan in Minnesota have gained him no fresh support from the people of this state.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

It was a sweet pastoral scene. Two boys were idly amusing themselves by shooting at a target that was nailed to the walls of a square frame building. Down in the gulch, not more than 500 feet below, a gang of more than 100 men were breathing unconsciously on the brink of the river where the old ferryman of lost souls presides. They were nearer eternity than they had ever been before—yet they sang, chatted gayly and shouted out with the pure joy of living—for the day was fine and the world seemed indeed a happy place.

Every crack of the two rifles might have precipitated one of the catastrophes of the decade. Why?—Let us look into the square frame building. It contained 40,000 pounds of powder, most of it No. 1, which means that it was 90 per cent glycerine. That was the background of the target the boys were firing at. And they weren't very good shots at that. So you see the boys were not only flirting with the grim old handler of the time sythe, but those workmen down in the gulch were so near either heaven or the other place that they were either unconsciously happy or depressed—as fitted their destination point.

The above thrilling incident occurred at Granite, Idaho, in the days when Western road construction was at its height. George Prescott, formerly in the employ of the Northern Pacific in Western construction work, was telling the story at the Lenox hotel. Mr. Prescott was at the camp at the time when the boys were caught in the act of shooting at the target attached to the wall of the powderhouse, and he was also one of the men who speculated upon what would have been found of the material remains of his personality had one of the bullets happened to start something.

The conversation turned to the dangers in handling high explosives. Mr. Prescott was telling of the carelessness of the powder men in the early Western days. "Now, for instance," he began, "they used to have crimpers with which to clinch the fuse into the giant percussion cap. If the cap should explode while a man was clinching the fuse down next to the cap with these crimpers, it is improbable that he would loose more than one or two fingers of a hand. But these fellows would invariably throw away the crimpers and clinch the cap together with their teeth, thereby running the risk of losing their whole thinking apparatus.

"It wasn't so long after the incident of the boys shooting at the target nailed to the powderhouse that another incident occurred that will serve to show how really indifferent to danger, or recklessly unconscious to any danger were the men who handled the high explosives.

"One winter much of the powder in the powderhouse was so frozen that it had to be thawed out before it could be utilized. For this purpose we had put up a sort of tent, about 16 by 24 feet, with board sides and canvas roof. Two great stoves were kept going night and day, and the powder was brought in from the powderhouse as its use required.

"Upon the morning of the incident, or accident, perhaps, would be a more fitting word to describing the event, the man who had charge of the stoves was late with his work. The fires were almost out and the powder was not nearly thawed out for the day's work.

"About 125 men filed by the thawing tent on their way to the cut. They did not walk more than twenty feet from the tent.

"Had not the man in charge of the thawing tent been late in his work it is probable that these men would have been blown to distant parts of the camp. He was in the act of getting his fires up when the men filed past the tent on their way to work in the railroad cut. Just as they wound their way down into the declivity, that served as a wall between them and the scene of the explosion, he opened the doors of one of the stoves and began to stir up the fire. He must have exercised even less caution than usual, owing to the lateness of the work—although it will never be known exactly how the accident occurred—for he either didn't wait to close the spark guard or neglected it in his hurry to get the heat of the tent up to the required temperature. Anyway, the explosion occurred, and by some kindly act or fate, it occurred just two minutes after the workmen had passed behind the protecting hill.

"The tent was torn into pieces as small as snow flakes. Trees measuring over a foot in diameter were uprooted and thrown down the sides of the cliff. A transit standing not far from the scene of the explosion was not even upset, which was one of the peculiar things of the whole episode.

"The man who tended the fires was literally blown to atoms. Not a trace of his body was ever found. A torn fragment of his boot was the only thing that was ever found to mark his fate. The powderhouse, half a mile distant, was shaken to its log supports, the living shanty was blown away like a ship in a terrific gale. About everything around the camp but that engineer's transit was blown to pieces by the explosion, but kind fate or the tardiness of the man who had charge of the fires in the warming house was alone responsible for the saving of the lives of those 125 men who filed by the warming tent, just a few second before the spark ignited the 400 of 500 pounds of powder.

THE WEATHER.

It was gloriously beautiful this morning. The sun rose in a clear and brilliant sky, the breeze was mild and the temperature was mounting. Last night was mild, the lowest temperature in Duluth being 36 degs. against yesterday's maximum of 51 degs. The weather man says there will be fair weather tonight and tomorrow, without much change in temperature, and that fresh northeast winds will continue.

The sun rose this morning at 4:40 and sets tonight at 7:27, making 14 hours and 47 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The storm in the east remained about stationary over Ohio. During the past twenty-four hours it caused further rains in the lake region, Ohio valley and North Atlantic states, very heavy rainfall occurring at New York city. Temperatures are somewhat cooler over Tennessee, the Carolinas and Florida. The barometer continues high over the Red River valley and off the Pacific coast. Light frosts occurred last night in the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas. A low pressure area extending from Alberta southward to Nevada is causing warmer weather over the eastern slopes and rains in Alberta, Washington and Oregon. A continuance of fair weather is indicated for the Head of the Lakes tonight and Saturday.

JOHNSON, THE WINNER.

Detroit Journal: Wondrously the John A. Johnson, presidential paean swells in volume and harmony of sweet sounds. The local Democracy, a week ago discordant and mutually hair-pulling, is animated by the single and overpowering impulse to add its variously pitched voices to the Johnson anthem.

The creation and demonstration of sentiment that immediately followed Governor Johnson's very brief visit to Detroit constitute a really remarkable political phenomenon. It is made even more remarkable by the fact that he came here not to organize, to build political fences, to rally Democratic loyalty and to sound the depths of Jeffersonian patriotism, but simply to make a nonpartisan speech in the cause of education. He didn't denounce the party in power. He didn't draw a dolorous picture of the country's future. He didn't make any golden prophesies. He merely comported himself as a modest, able, well-poised and perfectly contained American gentleman would be expected to comport himself under the same rather trying circumstances. He merely let himself be seen and briefly heard. Evidently that was quite enough. He has left behind him a really extraordinary impression on the popular mind, regardless of party principles and prejudices.

A week ago the available information about Governor John A. Johnson was scant. The country knew that he was being widely advertised and pretentiously eulogized by various New York interests that do not usually inspire popular enthusiasm in the West. It was known that that he is an editor in a very small town in Minnesota, which is a state up near the Canadian border somewhere, largely populated by Swedish-Americans and American Swedes. It was also known that Governor Johnson had done some unexpected things to a normal Republican majority in his state and that in spite of their contemptuous remarks and complacent claims the Bryanites in certain quarters are distinctly nervous. That was about all we knew or cared to know here about Governor Johnson a week ago. And today we are by Governor Johnson as completely obsessed as we have been in times past by Teddy-bears and the Gibson sofa cushions. What manner of man is he to have a personality so potent and responsive?

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Being a hero is mostly having an extra good opinion of yourself.

The average man who sets out to make money ends by thinking he is lucky to cut down his losses.

The reason a girl gets mad with a man for kissing her is she would get madder with him if he didn't want to.

What a woman likes about going to a reception is she can fib about all the important people she met there.

The most important thing about coming home late at night is to be able to remember the next morning where you told your wife you had been when you got in.

Don't put it on the list, for it surely would be mist.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

D. J. Knox of Aitkin has announced that he is not a candidate for re-election to the legislature this year from the Duluth district.

Capt. C. D. Hibbard and the little steamer, W. H. Brune, are doing a rattling ferry business between the end of Rice's Point and West Superior.

Two hundred Republicans turned out to organize the West End Republican club. Alderman Harry Armstrong acted as chairman of the meeting and Cashier Siverts as secretary. Speeches were made by Dr. Magie, M. A. Hays, G. G. Hartley, H. C. Kendall, Dr. Achorn and others.

Victor Bergren is expected back from California this week.

Edward Bailey, a member of the large grain and flour exporting house of Rice, Quinby & Co., New York, is in the city looking after his firm's business in Duluth spring wheat.

The Mesaba club last night adopted resolutions indorsing the wise and economic course of President Cleveland and earnestly requesting that he give thoughtful attention to the Duluth public buildings bill, which awaits his signature.

J. De La Vergne, the veteran drummer, is on his last trip to Duluth but one. He has accepted the office of secretary and treasurer of the Traveling Men's association and will be located in St. Paul permanently. Mr. De La Vergne is the oldest commercial traveler in the Northwest and has furnished Duluth dealers with spices, etc., for many years.

While Dr. G. W. Davis was visiting a patient's house on Eighteenth avenue west last night, his horse stepped upon a loose plank lying in the gutter and slipped. The horse fell upon his side, overturning the buggy and firing the doctor out over the sidewalk into a vacant lot. He was considerably bruised, but no bones were broken.

James Porter of Porter Bros., the West end butchers, was walking along Superior street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues west, at 9 o'clock last night, in company with Alexander Hamilton and James Bohen, when an unknown man suddenly stepped up and struck Mr. Porter a terrific blow with a rock just over the left eye, felling him to the ground. The man disappeared behind the Haller house and, although pursued by Mr. Bohen, escaped. The motive of the assault is a mystery.

The city council last night ordered the improvement of First street from Twenty-eighth avenue west to Harrison's addition in the East end. The estimated cost is $506,000. George H. Claypool, A. M. Longstreet and J. B. Scoville were appointed commissioners to condemn property abutting the proposed extension of Michigan street from its present terminus to Third avenue east.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Aitkin Age: A member of a wholesale grocery firm of this state said a few days ago that nearly one-half of all the money paid his house during the past year by the country merchants was for tobacco, cigars and snuff. What do you think of that? Nearly as much money as is spent for sugar, coffee, canned goods, and the hundred other things that go into the family larder. But when you come to think of it, our vices and luxuries outstrip necessities and comforts two to one.

Cloquet Pine Knot: Some of the congressmen who are supporting Speaker Cannon in his highhanded methods of retarding needed legislation will find out ere fall that the people have been sitting up and taking notice of things Washington towards. Up in this section the voters do not seem to be crying their eyes out for the Aldrich currency bill, but they do want to see postal savings banks established, and it may be up to some of the dear friends of the speaker to do some pretty plausible explaining as to why the former measures is given so much consideration while the latter is tabled unceremoniously. There are other things as well that will need explaining, and some of the explanations will cause more than one congressional brow to be bedewed with cold sweat.

Aitkin Republican: Some people object to the newspapers devoting so much of their space to politics. Politics should be a business in campaign year with everybody in Northern Minnesota. It is largely through political action that this part of the state must look for its development. If we ask for nothing we will get nothing, but if we keep on making a noise like a politician, we are bound to attract notice, and sooner or later we will get a hearing.

Austin Transcript: Dust means dirt, dirt means disease and disease means death. That is what scientists teach. In California they have dustless oiled roads. In Minnesota we have dustless roads just after a rain.

Hawley Herald: The great American game of politics appears to be getting dirtier every year. After looking over the exchanges each week we are almost led to believe that every candidate for office should either be in the asylum or the penitentiary.

Walker Pilot: Indiana is solid for Fairbanks. Indiana should thaw out.

St. Peter Herald: It's going to be hard for congressmen to win re-election on records made at this session.

Appleton Press: The good things said about Taft are paralleled in mediocrity, sameness and lack of fervor by some of our conventional hymns. We repeat them because it is expected of us, not because the performance warms us.

Warroad Plaindealer: Is it significant to you that not as many as one man in ten knew or cared when the Republican caucuses were, nor when the county, congressional or state conventions? Do you recollect how little figure party lines cut in the last election? Does it suggest anything to you?

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

Brainerd News: A man confined in a Duluth jail was found dead after having eaten a cake of soap and consumed a magazine. The fault cannot be laid to the soap, but the magazine articles may have been too strong for him.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: If Mr. Johnson does not land the presidency it will be no fault of the Duluth Evening Herald.

Crookston Journal: Duluth has one of the largest Commercial clubs in the country, having an active membership of 982. The public affairs committee of the club is preparing an exhibit of the agricultural products of St. Louis county and Northern Minnesota to be put on exhibition at the state fair this fall. A good move.

Mower County Transcript: A Duluth man claims to have been fleeced out of $5,000 in a card game. We have no sympathy for such innocents. Keep out of cards and you keep out of danger of losing your money.

Princeton Union: We are proud of the fact that Mille Lacs county is part and parcel of the great district of which Duluth is the capital. Let us more firmly cement the ties that bind us to Duluth, and let it be understood that when a blow is aimed at the interests of that city it will be resented by the people of the entire district.

Eveleth Star: The Duluth Evening Herald takes an occasional hard rap at Uncle Joe Cannon. The Herald is right and the one regretable feature is that more congressmen do not sit up and take notice of The Herald.

Biwabik Times: Duluth's two excellent newspapers, the News Tribune and The Herald, are giving increased importance to news from the range. If the two worthy publications would only consent to county division, all would be well.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Perhaps if Duluth were to swing into line with a candidate for governor, either party, it might put a crimp in the influence the Twin City machine holds over the remainder of the state. There are a number of men in Duluth who are big enough to be the governor of the biggest and best state in the Union.

Aitkin Age: The Duluth Commercial club is said to have over 900 members and a working fund of $16,000 in the treasury. It's a wise bunch of business men that will work together in this way, and the results are going to tell on the old town.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Biwabik Times says that Duluth is trying to hog everything political in the county. Trying?

Lake Crystal Union: The Duluth Evening Herald has passed its twenty-fifth year of publication. The Herald improves right along. We notice that it talks out in church quite often, and this is a pretty good sign. It has a good record behind it and before it a bright future.

THE DOG IN THE MANGER.

Minneapolis Journal: When so-called political leaders consent to do the logical and sensible thing, they usually have no trouble with the people. It is when they attempt to turn logic upside down and deny the right of reason that they find themselves leaders without any army.

The Democratic primaries are a case in point. The reasonable attitude of the party in this state appeared to be that, if Governor Johnson had a chance for the presidential nomination, his own state ought to be back of him without division. Governor Johnson did become convinced that there was enough of a call for his name to justify him in allowing it to be used.

The next step naturally should have been for the Democrats of the state to fall in line about as was outlined in John Lind's statement in the Journal yesterday. It should have elected a delegation favorable to Johnson as long as he had a chance, but in no measure hostile to Bryan. By so doing, the Democracy would have saved itself a lot of trouble and a good many "leaders" who are now groveling in the dirt would have gone to their respective county conventions.

But it didn't happen that way. In becoming a candidate, Governor Johnson crossed the path of the sacred white bull of the Democracy. He denied the divine right of Bryan forever to dictate. This was a heinous offense. It was resented by the worshippers of the bull. The bull itself apparently snared that resentment. Mr. Bryan never lifted a hand to smooth the path of Johnson in his own state. He failed to rise to the dignity of Taft when he said that he would not contest New York with Hughes. He let the fight go on.

The fight went on and Johnson has won it. He has won it hands down. It may not amount to anything more than a compliment to Governor Johnson; but if it does not, the fight was well worth making to demonstrate that the Democracy is not entirely prostrate. There is one corner of the Union where Mr. Bryan does not overshadow everything else labeled Democracy.

TICKLING THE FUNNY BONE.

Baltimore American: Detective—So you saw the escaping prisoner. What kind of a coat did he wear?

Witness—I didn't notice particularly, but I judge it was some kind of a cutaway coat.

Philadelphia Press: Citiman — You ought to know something about flora and that sort of thing. Tell me, what is a "forget-me-not?"

Shubbubs—Why it's a piece of string that your wife ties around your finger when you go in town on an errand.

Washington Star: "So you don't believe in the story of Jonah and the whale."

"No," answered Mr. Meekton thoughtfully.

"How do you suppose it originated?"

"Well, I suppose Jonah had been away from home for some time and had to tell his wife something."

Philadelphia Press: "Your husband smokes his pipe in the house, does he? I suppose there is no way of getting the odor of tobacco out of the rooms, either."

"Yes, there is one way—but I hesitate about resorting to it. Our house and furniture are only partly insured."

Catholic Standard and Times: Mrs. Popley—for goodness sake! What's the matter with Tommy?

Mr. Popley (from the bathroom)—Oh, he wants the earth.

Mrs. Popley—Wants the earth?

Mr. Popley—Yes, at least that portion of it that I'm trying to wash off his hands and face.

"We are sorry," said Japan, "to have offended your honorable representative in Manchuria."

Uncle Sam bowed affably.

"It was the bad policy of a subordinate," continued Japan. "He should have refrained until we had acquired the power to throw out your honorable representative neck and crop as you say in your so pleasing western vernacular."

"Eh, what's that?" said Uncle Sam; but Japan hung up the telephone.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

FIRST LOOK AT THE SOX

Northern Leaguers Defeat Kelleys by 8 to 2 in Slow Game.

Morrow's Men Bunch Hits With Errors of the Semi-Pros.

The White Sox celebrated their homecoming and the dawn of real spring weather yesterday by administering a sound drubbing to the Kelleys on the home lot at Athletic park, by a score of 8 to 2. It was the fans' first chance to see the team that is to represent Duluth in the Northern league race, and, because the chill winds and low temperature of the past two weeks had frozen the baseball fever from their souls, only a small company of them took advantage of it.

Stiff and sore from playing a few games with the mercury turned away down low, the Sox couldn't give up their best, but what they did give was plenty good enough to suit everybody. One single misplay, and that only half an error, was their only slip and the couple of dumb plays they put in were only natural at this stage of the game and didn't do any damage. They took right heartily to the service of Brownlee and Cook and the ten hits were nice healthy raps, only one of which failed to figure in the score column.

The Kelleys delivered themselves up to the slaughter with becoming meekness and took the interest from the show with a collection of bobbles decidedly amateurish in color. In the first and fifth, they went to pieces completely and the timely raps of the Socklets did the rest.

Morrow used three pitchers, as nobody was quite ready to go the route. Francis, a youngster, who joined the squad here, started the game and went for three innings. He broke away badly in the first inning, with a base on balls and a piece of dumb fielding, but a spectacular stop by Baker held a man on third while the side died. In each of the other two innings, he started off with a pass, but a double play was worked in each of the sessions, and he got out of it with a clean slate in both the hit and run columns.

Our own Josie Krick was sent in for the next three innings and was all to the good. A couple of very scratchy hits were all the Kelleys could find in his assortment and they never had a chance to get a man across.

Murray worked the last three innings and was the fall guy on whom the Kelleys averted a shutout. A single and a double in the seventh looked dangerous, but didn't do the business. In the eighth, a passed single, a double steal with a bungled short throw and another single sent only two men over the rubber. Murray just started to settled in the ninth and only three men faced him. He had pitched the day previously and he didn't have very much yesterday but the signs of pitching ability.

The Kelleys broke away badly in the first inning, four errors, a pass, a double steal and two singles setting Brownlee a sidewheeler, in a hole three runs deep. Another was added in the third on a single, an error, an out and a passed ball and in the fifth three more were scored on Ness's double, O'Brien's infield hit, Koepping's single and errors by E. Olson and Potter. Brownlee left the box after the fifth and Cook took his place. The three hits off the high school boy came together in the seventh inning and sent one man across with the final score.

The detailed score follows:

Notes of the Game.

Francis is the boy who came North to play with Brady's Hibbing team and thought the Northern league looked better. He pitched for Wooster (Ohio) college last year and claims to have won all of the fourteen games he pitched.

"Doc" Voss played the bench and warmed up the pitchers. He will do most of the catching when the team gets into the season.

Rorabaugh pulled off a fine double in hte second inning, robbing Pepper of a hit and catching Potter off second base. Koepping duplicated it in the third, with E. Olson and Brownlee as the victims.

The Kelleys didn't get a hit until the fifth inning, when Pepper drew one on a very scatchy grounder that took a bad bound as it neared Koepping.

Baker played a sensational game at third all the way through. In the first inning he cut Black off of a nice hit and in the eighth he delayed the Kelley's first score by knocking down Potter's hit as it journeyed toward right field with hot irons whirling.

Bernston played a nice game at third for the Kelleys. His one hit was a two sacker against the fence in the seventh inning. He came after Sutter's single, but failed to score him and the next man fanned.

Josie Krick unloaded one hit yesterday and 'tis feared he now has only one or two more for the real season.

Jimmy Ryan, who was bound for Virginia to join Carey's team, sized up the Sox from their bench. He says he's fit enough to go right into the game and make it a go. He jumped a Rockford contract to play independent ball.

Jimmy Leighty was on the bench, but not in uniform. He has secured his release and will probably sign up with Brandon.

Morrow didn't get into the game, but directed the team from the bench. He's pretty strong on weight yet, but moves around with a frisky gait and has continual doses of ginger on tap. He and Haney on the coaching line kept things pretty lively.

Potter, who is not a first baseman, essayed to play first for the Kelleys and wasn't there. He helped the Sox roll up the score and the Olson brothers had a very bad day to help matters out.

The Sox left for Virginia this morning, and this afternoon they open a series of three games with the crowd of semi-pros just gathered together there.

S.S.S. CURES BLOOD POISON

In no other disease is a thorough cleansing of the blood more necessary than in Contagious Blood Poison. The least particle of this insidious virus will multiply in the circulation and so thoroughly contaminate the blood that no part of the body will be exempt from the ravages of this powerful disease. Usually the first symptom is a little sore or ulcer, insignificant in itself, but soon the blood becomes so contaminated that the mouth and throat ulcerate, glands in the groin swell, hair and eye-brows come out, copper-colored spots appear on the body, and frequently sores and ulcers break out on the flesh to humiliate the sufferer. S. S. S. cures Contagious Blood Poison by purifying the circulation. It attacks the disease in the right way by going down into the circulation, neutralizing and forcing out every particle of the poison, and making this fluid pure, fresh and health-sustaining. The improvement commences as soon as the patient gets under the influence of S. S. S., and continues until every trace of the disease is removed from the blood, and the sufferer completely restored to health. Not one particle of the poison is left for future out-breaks after S. S. S. has purged and purified the blood. Book on the home treatment of this disease and any medical advice desired free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Well, the fans had their first look at the Sox and, although only a few took advantage of the chance, they'll have one more opportunity before the boys leave for Winnipeg to open the season. Those who did sit through the rather tedious game at Athletic park yesterday can vouch for the team. With very few changes, that crowd should go through the season and win a majority of its games, unless the other teams of the league are a whole lot stronger than they appear on paper.

There is a certain crudeness in the work yet. All during the training trip they have encountered just the kind of weather Duluth has been having for two weeks. The six or seven games played constituted the entire practice secured and the men couldn't hope to work the winter stiffness out of their joints and remove the gauze from their batting eyes in that time. Given some weather, they will get into pretty good fighting trim by next Thursday and every one of them is hoping for the best.

Morrow is satisfied with the looks of things. He has harmony and willingness in his squad and half of the battles are already won, if those two aids to victory can be retained. The boys are as full of enthusiasm and optimism as a lemon is with juice. They know it's up to them to go right out for a pennant and make a showing at the jump-off, if they are to retain the affections of the fans and, if they can get away in every department as they did yesterday, nobody will send up a howl.

An analysis of the strength of one performance is a rather risky proposition. Certainly, nobody had an "off day," but some of them may have had an "on day," and it doesn't do to jump at conclusions. But, with the exception of a couple of places, where better headwork would bring out different plays later in the season, the whole team worked pretty nicely.

Speer behind the bat is a youngster picked up at Madison. He needs some coaching all right, but is full of promise and has a pretty nice wing. The work of the box men was average, but good at that. They didn't let themselves out very much, as, considering the little work they have had, the training trip is still young. Krick doesn't appear to have lost anything during the winter, and Murray is a big fellow with speed to throw away and nice style on the hill.

Ness, the big first baseman, looks like a comer. He has a nice way of swinging at the ball and his two-sacker was a pretty hit. He picks them right on the nose and doesn't step away. He needs a little coaching on footwork around the bag, but has the idea and the rest will come with a few games.

"Darby" O'Brien, who has played in many leagues and many towns, blossomed forth on the second sack and looks good. He was secured from Grand Rapids of the Central league and has played in the Western league. Three I and a good many other circuits. He hasn't done very much work this spring, but his work around second shows that he isn't on strange ground and he looks pretty safe.

Young Koepping at short is speedy and sure. Leighty is lost to the team and, though his fielding was pretty swift, the Illinois youth would run him pretty close in the season, and is a much better hitter.

Baker is a surprise. He grabbed off nearly all the sensationalism there was in the show, with a couple of blistering stops and beautiful heaves to first base. He is sore and stiff, but his arm is good and he may not be a gap in that corner after all. He rapped out a near-hit that Ernie Olson plucked in the bud and otherwise didn't show anything at bat.

Rorabaugh, who is supposed to fill Bill McCormick's shoes and make them move more swiftly than they ever did before, couldn't connect for a safe one, but he has the form and nobody need worry. He stands at bat as though he meant it, and it's certain that every board in the fences on the circuit will not be whole when he goes through a season here.

Pagles, who was transplanted in the center flower bed for the time, didn't let the weeds choke him up. He fielded the position nicely, rapped out two hits and legged it around the bases in good shape.

Jim Haney was on the job in right field, with an extra act on the side lines. On the side lines is where Jim gets the spotlight. The team needs him for his life, and the fans want him for his winning ways. Whatever Jim may be as a pitcher, he doesn't need to worry about a job. He can field some and bat more, but mostly he can coach with originality and good natured humor that isn't wasted on baseball-loving people. Jim didn't pull off anything sensational except on the coaching line, but that was enough to suit the crowd.

Besides the four pitchers who worked in the game, Jacobson, Brandt and Schmeller were out in uniform. Morrow doesn't intend to unload any of them yet, although ultimately, two and possibly three will be forced to take the degree of Tin Can. The boys haven't had a chance to show what they are really worth. The training trip was a succession of chill breezes and downpours of rain, and Morrow isn't taking any chances on turning loose a diamond in the rough and retaining a paste substitute that glitters with false luster. Every twirler will be given a thorough try-out, and in a week or so a more intelligent selection can be made for the regular staff.

STRONG LINEUP FOR VIRGINIA

Fans of Range Town Put Up Money for Good Team.

Virginia, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The baseball season in Virginia opens this afternoon, when the Duluth White Sox will open a series of three games with the men who have been gathered together here. The Virginia squad is in a bad way to go against the leaguers. The men have just reported, and haven't had an opportunity to work out together. The pitchers have had very little work, and it will be some time before they will be throwing in proper shape.

Virginia will figure strongly in the race for the semi-professional championship of Northern Minnesota this year. The backers of the team have put out money to get good men, and if those already secured do not fill the bill, there is more coin to be spent in securing others. The team that is sent into the field this spring will remain throughout the season, so that there may be no excuse for beating Virginia out of the championship next fall on the plea of "two-week contracts."

For the Duluth series the line-up will be about as follows: Catcher, Billings; pitchers, Grogan and Tredway; first base, O'Hara; second base, Roxie Walters; third base, Cox; shortstop, Fred Olmstead; outfielders, McDonald, Schraub and Ryan.

TRAIN FOR FIELD MEET

School Boys Prepare for Interscholastic Events May 23.

Entrants in Different Events Will be Picked From Squads.

Every school boy in the city with a leaning toward athletics is working hard for a chance to compete in the interscholastic field meet to be held May 23. Physical Director Albert Olson of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. has the boys in charge and he has been getting them out for practice regularly during the past two weeks. He says there is splendid material and the records of last year should go tumbling.

The squads of the different schools are quite large now, but there will be only one entry from each school in each event. Trials for the squads will be held in a few days and the winners will be selected to represent their respective schools in the several events. The boy selected for an event will train on that particular event until the day of the meet so that he will be in the best possible shape.

The squads appear to be pretty evenly matched and keen rivalry is being developed between the schools. The day of the meet will find the students out en masse to cheer their favorites and there will be a wonderful display of colors and pennants. School spirit is being encouraged and organized yelling, under the charge of a yell master, will be the rule.

MANY ERRORS BY HIBBING

Brandon Northern Leaguers Easily Win the Second Game.

Hibbing, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Brandon Northern leaguers rapped Gilligan and Johnson for only six hits yesterday, but they defeated Judge Brady's Colts by a score of 10 to 2. The fielding of the home boys was fierce. They booted, heaved and muffed until every ordinary play, successfully completed, was greeted with cheers as an achievement. The Brandon crowd mixed their hits nicely with the Hibbing errors and had no trouble rolling up the score.

Fay and Dalgren held the Hibbing men safely throughout and a shutout was averted only by Jimmy Fagin's homer over the fence in the sixth inning with a man on base. Sam Menelce injected the other batting feature into the game with a swat outside the enclosure. The detailed score follows:

MINNEAPOLIS MAN IS PEEVISH

Objects to Wholesale Kidding of His Bush Ball Team.

A. J. Ritchie, who slings slang for the sporting page of the Minneapolis Journal, is peevish.

When a scribe who poses as la dernier cri on sporting matters picks a team as a pennant winner, and when that team develops into an aggregation of hitless wonders, and trails hopelessly in the wake of even the despised Apostles, it is enough to make said scribe kick the furniture and accumulate a healthy grouch.

And when every sporting writer in the country begins to have his little fling at the Millers, said scribe is not responsible. The Duluth papers took their turn, and Mr. Ritchie, who is never uninteresting, comes back with this yawp:

"Now cometh the worst part of baseball defeat. It is bad enough to have to put up with the chortling of the town I-told-you-so-liars after our gladiators take a walloping, but the pastime has become so chronic that even the long-haired brethren of the juniper press association have tumbled, and are snorting rudely at us.

"Up in Duluth the yap sport scribes are entertaining the agrarians by funny cracks at the Minneapolis team. This is the blow that kills father. It is bad enough to be kidded by a man with creased trousers, but when the yokels with hay in their hair and pants in their boots get into the chorus it is time to call a halt.

"We do not object when a man who knows enough not, to climb trees when he sees an automobile kids us, but we do get peevish when the bush leaguer of the newspaper game adds his coarse haw-haw to the chorus. We can stand a little chaffing from the champagne-burners' delegation, but when the hard cider delegation breaks in we are ready to start something. We can take a little jolt from Dick Meade or Harriet Miller of Toledo and Columbus respectively, without becoming at all vexed, but we rile when the Mrs.-John-Jones-visited-Mrs.-Bill-Smith-Chuesday sort of sport writers get on the job and start to make Proctor Knott look like a funeral procession.

"These Duluth Carlos and Neros will please go right back behind the kitchen stove and go to sleep with their paws in the woodbox. We refuse to be barked at by them. If they keep it up we shall get real miffed and say something nasty to them—something that will make them bite themselves. We hast spoken."

BURIED TWENTY-FOUR SONS.

Series of Unnatural Crimes Credited to Spanish Couple.

Seville, May 8.—Throughout last Saturday afternoon the judicial authorities, with medical experts and a gang of gravediggers, were engaged in making excavations in one of the houses inhabited by Felipe Molina nnd Francisca Herrera, who, as previously reported, are accused of illegally burying the bodies of their sons, instead of interring them in the cemetery. Instead of twenty-two sons, it has now been found that twenty-four were buried. Four skeletons have been unearthed, which, according to the medical experts, represent children of 6 months, 8 years, 15 years and 18 years of age, respectively. As the parents had declared that the children were merely infants, and the declaration of the father differs from that of the mother, the idea of a repugnant and atrocious crime has been aroused among the judicial authorities and the populace, and the latter endeavored to lynch the prisoners. The police, after great efforts, succeeded in protecting the pair, who assumed a most cynical attitude.

Further excavations will be made in other houses inhabited by the accused. The judge says that the affair is the most terrible in the annals of criminal history. Never before, he remarks, have a father and mother killed twenty-four sons, burying them in their own houses. The depositions of the witnesses tend against the prisoners, and it is believed that the medical examination after the unearthing of the other bodies will prove very damning. According to the doctors, the skeletons disinterred must have been buried about fifteen or twenty years ago. When the prisoners arrived at the jail and alighted from the prison van an enormous crowd gathered round them and demanded their death.

CRITICISES CO-ED SYSTEM.

London, May 8.—A writer in the Times, who is furnishing an interesting series of articles on a year among Americans, seriously criticises the American system of co-education. A girl matures earlier than a boy, and at the age at which the two are educated together her power of concentration is greater. Thus it happens, he says, in many classes that the nature of the teaching is determined by the requirements of the girls, and as there is an irrepressible tendency for the minority to imitate the majority, the boys become an inferior copy of the girls, acquiring the girls' gentleness and sensitiveness, but not the proper strength of either sex. Eventually the boys are irreparably wounded in their dignity and lose faith in themselves.

The coal miners and operators of the Butler-Mercer coal field, reported an agreement at a joint conference held at Grove City, Pa., Thursday, and the miners decided to resume work under the old scale, pending a final adjustment of wage scales by a meeting of the miners' delegates and operators. WAS ENEMY OF BAD MEN

Turner Turnbull Lived in Blood and Died in Peace.

Was Law Unto Himself and the Slayer of Evildoers.

Muskogee, Okla., May 8.—Turner Turnbull is dead at his home east of Caddo, in the Choctaw nation, and the man who made his Winchester the law and scattered graves of horsethieves all along the valleys of the Blue and Bobby rivers in what he believed to be a righteous war of extermination, went to his final rest an honored man in his community.

For many years, dating back into the early '70s, the name of Turnbull was interwoven with the history of the Choctaw nation, a terror to outlaws and thieves who claimed the country as their own. There were three of the Turnbull brothers, Turner, Simon and Daniel, two of whom were killed by outlaws. They had always lived near Caddo and the bones of many outlaws and cattle thieves are lying in shallow graves between the Blue and Boggy rivers, unmarked and unknown, sent to the grave by these brothers and their sworn confederates, who, in the days of the Indian courts, generally took the law into their own hands. They hated thieves above all criminals and made "short shrift" of them when they got a chance with their Winchesters.

This Pastor Once a Horsethief.

One time a bunch of horsethieves had been captured near where the postoffice of Blue is now located. Three of them, all Choctaw Indians, were killed on the spot. The other, a mere boy, was tied to a tree and whipped into insensibility. He wears the marks of this terrible whipping to this day. He became a minister and is now pastor of a church near Ardmore.

Frank Long was a member of the Turnbull rangers. His wife was a Choctaw and he frequently took her with him on long trips through the Choctaw nation, she acting as interpreter while he traded with the Indians. Two negroes robbed Long's house and one day they came back to Long's and there the Turnbulls found them. They took the two negroes out and hanged them. A few days later a party of negroes organized and went to Long's place. He saw them coming and slipped away, notified the Turnbulls and they returned surprising the negroes. A running fight ensued in which Sam Boyd was killed at Buffalo Hill and the rest chased them to Double Springs and the entire bunch killed.

Thirteen Years As a Fugitive.

For this they were indicted by Judge Parker's court at Fort Smith and for thirteen years Turner Turnbull was a fugitive. He was finally captured and acquitted of the charge. While he and Frank Long were under arrest, they escaped with shackles on at Atoka. Frank Long was never recaptured, but later was killed by Tandy Folsom, a deputy marshal.

While Turnbull was in hiding a Choctaw Indian took a horse from Harris Cairns at Caddo. Turnbull and another man trailed this Indian into the mountains on the old Antlers road, before the town of Antlers was built, and overtook and killed him.

Had Shot a Lochinvar.

This was one of their serious mistakes, for it developed later that the Choctaw had not taken the horse as a theft, but was eloping with an Indian girl and only took the horse to get away from her people and return it. The girl was with him on the horse when he was killed. She was sent back to her home.

In the early '80s the Turnbulls and three other men started after a gang of thieves that had stolen several horses in what was then Atoka county. A fight came on and two of the outlaws were killed, but in that fight Daniel Turnbull was shot through the lungs. As he lay on the ground he swore that no horsethief should have the honor of killing him, and drawing his six-shooter, he put a bullet through his brain, killing himself instantly and before his brothers could prevent it. The man who shot him was hounded day and night by the Turnbull crowd and was finally riddled with bullets.

This Gang They Exterminated.

The chase of this band was never given up until it was completely wiped out. The last member was caught and was shot at Wilburton by the executioner of the Choctaw Indian court.

The days when these wild scenes were enacted were before there was any law established by the white man in this country. The only authority was the federal court at Fort Smith and the Indian tribal courts.

The former was 150 miles away and only occasionally a deputy marshal and his posse came through. The Indian courts exercised jurisdiction over the members of their own tribe only.

Where honest white men settled they had to protect their lives and their property with their Winchesters, and leaders always came to the front. The Turnbulls were such men. After the federal courts were established in Indian Territory and the horsethif, the rustler and the murderer was wiped out, these pioneers settled down to a peaceful and prosperous life.

When Turner Turnbull died he was a man of wealth, whose word was as good as his bond, a director in Bokchito National bank, a Mason and a respected citizen. If he ever regretted the bloody part he took in the outlaw warfare of the lawless days, he never made it known.

THE PRESIDENT WILL APPROVE

The Rainy River Water Power Measure Under Certain Conditions.

Washington, May 8.—In a letter to Representative J. Adam Bede of Minnesota, made public at the White House yesterday, President Roosevelt expresses his willingness to sign a bill for the completion of the Rainy river water power dam, a measure which he vetoed a short time ago, droviding two additional provisions are inserted—first, that the concession to the company be limited to ninety-nine years, and, second, that a charge be made by the government on the company for the concession. The president makes it clear that he was not in possession of information when he disapproved the bill to the effect that the project has been more than half completed under grant of congress. He discusses, in his letter to Mr. Bede, the question of federal control of irrigation projects and waterways generally, reaching the conclusion that no doubt exists as to the authority possessed by the federal government for such control and that the only question is one of policy. It is his belief that the federal government should exercise control.

BAY STATE DELEGATES.

Boston, May 8.—The delegates-at-large chosen by the Democratic state convention are George Fred Williams, District Attorney John B. Moran of Boston, Former Mayor John W. Coughlin of Fall River and Daniel J. Doherty. The alternates chosen are J. P. Kane, William A. Davenport, Thomas P. Kenny and Edward W. Gallagher.

The main contest came on the selection of four delegates, and principally over the name of George Fred Williams. A roll call on the question of the choice of the delegates by acclamation was finally carried by a vote of 408 to 152. Previous to the meeting of the convention there was a spirited contest in the committee on resolutions over the instruction plank. A compromise was effected and, while the plank was retained, it was modified so as to apply only to the four delegates elected at the convention.

INDIAN POLICE HOLD UP DRIVERS AND ROB THEM

Calcutta, May 8.—An extraordinary outrage is reported from Rangoon. One evening recently, Mr. Turner, managing partner of Messrs. Whiteaway, Laidlaw & Co., hired a ticca gharri at the railway station and drove to his home in Churchill road. On alighting he offered the driver his fare, but the man declined to take it, saying he would call the following day at the office for the money, as he was afraid he would be stopped and robbed by policemen on the road. Mr. Turner, who had had many similar complaints, drove back in the gharri for some distance, sitting in the well of the vehicle, so that he would not be observed. Close to the corner of Cemetery road and Lake avenue the vehicle was stopped by a Mohammedan police constable, who demanded money from the driver, while three or four well-dressed men blocked the way and one of them grabbed hold of the pony. Mr. Turner jumped out, struck two of the men, one of them the man in uniform, who received the blow in the right eye. Turner then knocked down the man holding the pony. They at once decamped and the driver went on toward Rangoon. Turner, after taking the name and number of the policeman, proceeded to walk back toward his house, and when passing an aerated water shop in Bahan road was waylaid by the men. A soda water bottle was thrown at him, striking him on the bridge of the nose and exploding. Mr. Turner believed he had been shot, but pursued his assailant till he became faint from loss of blood. He was, after a time, found lying at the roadside by passers-by, who picked him up and conveyed him to his house. Fortunately he escaped serious injury to his eyes and is now progressing favorably. The constable was arrested and, on conviction, sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment for blackmailing the driver.

DIAMONDS IN CANADA?

A Returned Kimberly Miner Finds Field of Gems in Quebec.

Toronto, Ont., May 8.—Uncut diamonds, worth more than $8,000, were seen and examined yesterday at the home of John A. MacKenzie's sister. Mackenzies, who says he has discovered a diamond field on the Nottaway river, in Quebec, about 400 miles north of here, refused to indicate its exact locality, but considers the fields vastly richer than the South African mines. He was once a diamond miner at Kimberley.

SLOT MACHINES BARRED.

Banished by the New City Government at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 8.—Slot machines were removed from all cigar shops, drug stores and what not, upon orders of Commissioner Mamery yesterday, and today there is not a slot machine running in the city. This is another of the reforms accomplished since Des Moines passed into the hands of five councilmen.

Incidentally the orders of Commissioner Hamerly developed a clash in authority between Chief Marshal Hume and Secretary Lyman, Hamerly's police captain. Hume refused to order the machine out unless orders which he had not signed were first presented to him. Hamery sustained him, and the orderse were reissued.

Slot machines have been ruled out before, but this time it is predicted they will not return.

DESTROY 4,000,000 OYSTERS.

Havre, May 8.—Four million oysters were destroyed at Cancale by infuriated fishermen the other day. This immense cargo arrived in a vessel from St. Malo, which anchored off Cancale. The local fishermen immediately held a council of war, at which it was decided that forcible measures should be adopted to protect the market for their own products. Indignat speakers declared that profits were already almost at vanishing point, and that this importation would absoultely kill their trade.

A body of 200 fishermen were thereupon selected to capture the unwelcome steamer and destroy her cargo. They put out in boats and surrounded the steamer. Clambering aboard, they took possession of the vessel and brought her alongside the jetty. The sacks of oysters were then handed out, emptied by the crowds on the jetty, and pounded to powder on the stones. Not a single shell was left intact, and the efforts of the police to get near the scene of operations were frustrated by fishermen specially told off to keep them away. There were fierce struggles between these men and the police, some of whom were badly injured by stones and sticks wielded by the fishermen. The owners of the oysters have issued summonses for the destruction of their property.

SANCTION REFUSED.

Berlin, May 8.—The emperor has refused his sanction to the monument to Prof. Virchow, which it was proposed to erect in the Carlplatz, close to the Charite, where the famous physiologist worked for so many years. His majesty is said to be dissatisfied with the design for the memorial, which emanated from the sculptor, Fritz Klimsch, and which was unanimously selected from the proceeds of an open competition by a committee representing the municipality of Berlin, medicine and art. The sculptor has already been six months at work on the monument. The monarch's aversion from certain products of the modern school of art has not infrequently resulted in a good deal of dissatisfaction among its devotees. A recent instance of his preference for the more old-fashioned technique was found in the case of Prof. Tschudi, director of the national gallery, who is now enjoying a year's "leave," believed to be the result of his expenditure of a considerable sum of money on works by the most celebrated modern French artists.

A BUDAPEST TRAGEDY.

Girl Killed by Lover, Who Then Committed Suicide.

Budapest, May 8.—A remarkable love tragedy occurred at Serenja as the sequel of a snapshot. Peter Begesh, a military inspector, had been out in the country taking photographs, and on his return called on his fiancee and gleefully told her he had discovered another romance in the village. He had seen a friend of his walking with his arm around the waist of a girl, and had snapshotted them as they went by.

He explained that he did not identify the girl, but that when he had developed the plate he would send it to her. His fiancee asked him to destroy the plate, as it might cause trouble, but Begesh replied that he could not miss such an excellent joke, and went home.

Later in the day he rushed back with a revolver in one hand and a photograph in the other. Before his fiancee could say a word he shot her through the heart. He then turned the weapon against himself and committed suicide. The photograph showed that his fiancee had taken advantage of his absence in the country to go out with a male friend.

CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL FINISHED BY HOUSE.

Washington, May 8.—After ten days' discussion consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill was completed by the house yesterday, but before putting it on its passage a recess until today was taken. The bill carries a total of $106,866,369, or $1,241,000 more than as reported by the committee.

The principal discussion of the day related to the salary and wage scale to be paid in the construction of the Panama canal. The committee had inserted a provision providing that such salaries and wages should not exceed 25 per cent in excess of salaries and wages paid in the United States for similar work. The provision was defeated 10 to 101.

In the course of the debate on another section of the bill, Mr. Sulzer said that the supreme court was unable to have any printing done because of its decisions affecting labor, but Mr. Wilson of Pennsylvania declared that the Typographical union was ready and willing to do all the printing for the government or any part of it.

NEW N. P. TANK CARS

Brainerd, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northern Pacific shops have turned out five new oil cars for the use of the store department. They are tank cars, each containing four tanks, two for engine oil and two for lubricating oil. These tanks will prevent much of the wastage heretofore caused from leakage in shipping in barrels, while saving much heavy lifting for the men in charge.

WRECKED NORTHERN PACIFIC TRAIN AT AITKIN

The train left the rails through a partly open switch while entering the yards at a high rate of speed. Had the engine, in leaving the main track, gone to the other side it would have carried the coaches down a forty-foot embankment into the river. As it was, the tender turned end for end and telescoped the cab of the engine as it turned over. Fireman Stram was buried under the coal and received severe bruises and cuts. The postal clerk and baggagemen were thrown into the end of the car with the contents, but were unable to finish the run on the relief train.

DIFFERENCE IS NOTICED

Cement Sidewalks in St. Paul Cost 8.2 Cents a Foot.

In Duluth Walks Cost 14 to 15.4 Cents a Foot.

Cement walks in Duluth this year will cost the property owners 15.4 cents east of Twelfth avenue west and a fraction over 14 cents a square foot west of Twelfth avenue west.

In St. Paul this year, cement walks will cost the property owners only 8.2 per foot according to the new contracts, or 20 per cent less than it cost to build the walks in that city last year when the lowest bid was 10 cents a foot.

Cement walks to the extent of 25.2 miles were built in St. Paul last year at a cost of $87,000 where the cost this year for the same amount of walk will be $7,000. This means that on a 40-foot lot in St. Paul the cost of a walk this year will be only $22 as compared with $36.40 last year.

The lower cost of the walks in St. Paul this year is being attributed to the demand for work, the lower cost of cement and labor.

Property owners in Duluth who have learned of the lower cost of cement walks in St. Paul are very much interested and are inclined to think that the cost of the cement walks in this city is too high in spite of the climatic conditions which the city engineer claims makes the cost of walks here nearly double that in the Twin Cities.

City Engineer McGilvray recently made the statement that Duluth winters are hard on cement walks and that such conditions, together with the fact that the city is built on a hillside makes walks a great deal more than in other places. It is claimed that the extra expense is incurred in making more extensive preparations for the drainage of the water that creeps in from the hillsides and causes frost which upheaves and cracks the cement. It has been stated that in the Twin Cities cement may be laid directly on the ground, but some of the local people who are said to have made an investigation of this claim deny it.

GOING AFTER THE RECORD

Duluth to Minneapolis by Auto in Eight Hours.

Three Duluth Men Will Try for Fast Trip.

Charles W. Fitzgerald is out for the automobile record between Duluth and the Twin Cities and will start tomorrow noon in his high powered Pope Toledo roadster to lower it. He will probably be accompanied by his brother, Grover Fitzgerald and William White, Jr.

A record of 8 hours and 45 minutes is said to have been established by A. C. Wagner of Duluth in a Peerless machine last summer and Mr. Fitzgerald says he can make the distance in eight hours flat. He claims that his machine is good for twenty-five miles an hour over any reasonably good road and allowing for delays and stops he is satisfied that his car can put Duluth and Minneapolis eight hours or less apart. The distance by road is said to be about 189 miles. By rail it is 152 miles and the fastest trains make it in about five hours. The dust will fly when Mr. Fitzgerald's roadster hits the highway, and the farmers along the way will have their eyes opened to some fine exhibitions of speed. In case either Grover Fitzgerald or Mr. White is unable to go, Mr. Wagner, who established the former record will make one of the party.

ART IN SPANISH BANK NOTES.

To baffle the counterfeiters, who are both numerous and cunning in Madrid, the Bank of Spain has pursued the policy of changing its notes with great frenquency and retiring each issue as fast as possible, says the New York Sun.

The bank has now determined on a new plan. It has placed an order for a series of notes with an English concern, and it will rely for safety upon a special color process. In addition the notes are to present pictures of well known buildings in Spain, executed with a perfection that will defy counterfeiting.

"The pictures are to be so beautiful that amateurs will be tempted to frame them," says one Spanish newspaper. "Hardly," rejoins another, "the cost of the set will be 1,675 pesetas, you see." To the Spanish mind $338.50 is a great deal of money.

WEST END MAY FORM BOAT CLUB

West Enders Have No Place to Keep Their Launches.

Many Boats Have Been Stripped of Fittings by Thieves.

Efforts are being made to organize a boat club in the West end. Many new launches, belonging to West enders, will ply the waters of the harbor this summer and interest in boating is very keen.

Most of the launch owners keep their boats at the foot of Twenty-first avenue west and this spot has been suggested as an admirable one for the erection of a little clubhouse, with facilities for housing the boats of the members.

As it is now every boatman has a little launch house of his own. Most of them are flimsy affairs and during the summer, some of the gasoline enthusiasts go down to the water to find that miscreants have broken into their boat houses and tampered with the engines and stolen brass and other fixtures.

This has been annoying, not to say expensive. The promoters of the club scheme argue that for a comparatively small sum from each member, a West end boat club could maintain a boat house, ample to house all the craft, and would offer a rendezvous.

Al Blewett, William E. Cummings and Ruben Johnson are among those who are working for the organization of a boat club for the West end. It is not designed as a real rival of the other water clubs of the city but is to be regarded as a sort of co-operative, mutual protective association, with clubhouse attachments.

Mr. Blewett is building a new thirty-foot launch, which will go into the water about the first of June. Mr. Johnson is also building a new thirty-footer, having disposed of his other boat last summer.

Mr. Cummings' new twenty-two foot "Red Wing" will soon be ready for use. Herman Hawkins has completed repairs on his boat, the "Anna H," and it will go into commission immediately.

BUILDING BOOM.

Many New Structures Going Up in the West End.

There seems to be no curtailment in West end building. Several new structures are under way and others are being projected.

Work has started on the new flats Dr. Oredson is erecting on Third street near Twenty-third avenue west. They will be of modern brick construction.

Joseph Silvole is planning to build a double brick flat building at Twenty-second avenue west and Third street. The new structure will have two floors and a sub-basement and will be completed about the first of September, it is expected.

Only the interior finishing remains to be done on the Sundeen & Johnson flats on Twenty-seventh avenue between Second and Third streets.

David Adamis has purchased a tract on Second street between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues west and will erect a handsome residence there, for his own use. Work will be started as soon as possible.

DO NOT WANT SEWER.

Garfield Avenue Propertry Owners Opposed to the Improvement.

The Garfield avenue property owners who want a sewer constructed from No. 500 to 1100 Garfield avenue, were greatly in the minority at the mass meeting held last evening in the city hall, which was presided over by the council's committee on streets, sewers and sanitation.

About three men wanted the sewer constructed and the other vigorously opposed the project. They want, instead of a sewer, better water facilities, for drinking purposes and better fire protection. They lay much of the illness on Rice's Point to a lack of good drinking water.

The committee will make a report on the proposition to the council Monday evening.

RECEPTION FOR SAUER.

Assistant Pastor of Synod Church is Guest of Honor.

Members of the English Lutheran Synod church gave a farewell reception in honor of their assistant pastor, Rev. H. O. Sauer, Wednesday evening, in the church parlors. A handsome present was given the pastor as a token of appreciation for the services rendered the congregation during his stay here. Refreshments were served and games were enjoyed until a late hour, when all bid the pastor farewell and wished him success in his new charge. Mr. Sauer leaves this week for Towner, N. D.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Klippen, Lars Klippen, Mr. and Mrs. Koefod, L. Ouse, Dr. and Mrs. Green, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Haug, Mrs. E. Moen, Mr. and Mrs. E. Olson, Rev. H. M. Norman, Rev. Leuck, Rev. E. Wulfsberg, Fred Hjermstad, N. Klippen, Mr. Aspelund, Misses Emma and Lena Aune, S. May Move to St. Paul.

A. Thoren, who has just returned from the annual convention of the North Star Benefit association at St. Paul, says that the gathering decided to make an effort to secure the transfer of the head offices of the lodge from Moline, Ill., to Minnesota. If the change is made, the offices will probably be located in St. Paul or Minneapolis.

The delegates to the grand observatory were instructed to work for this change.

Mr. Thoren was chosen an alternate delegate to the national convention.

Annual Meetings.

The annual mission meetings of the First Swedish Methodist Mission church will begin in that house of worship, at Twenty-first avenue west and Second street, this evening. Rev. Constantine Olson of Minneapolis will be the preacher tonight.

There will be the regular services at 10:45 and 7:45 Sunday, and in the afternoon at 3, a special service. The mission conference will conclude Sunday evening.

LOVERS—AND THE MOON.

Joel Chandler Harris in Uncle Remus' Magazine: The moon is indeed a friendly companion of the world at large, taking time in her leisurely revolutions around the earth to fix a gentle and a tender eye on all lovers, happy or disconsolate, who have a mind to seek consolation or to whisper their vows under the influence of her pale radiance. Her mild beams are responsible for more than half of the romantic notions that infect humanity, and for that she should be thanked, for these romantic notions are responsible for a large part of the happiness of those who lead healthy and well-regulated lives. In the cold light of day, we can perceive that most of our thoughts are illusions, but they cease to be illusions under the friendly light of the moon. John Dumpling, fat and practical, ceases to be a genuine lover in the dark of the moon, much to the astonishment of Ethel B.; but when the moon changes, and when he has bowed nine times to her the first night she appears in the West, a mere thread of silver, he is something different—so much so that Ethel barely has time to comb her hair after the evening meal before the footsteps of the pudgy rascal are heard on the front walk. But when the moon is shedding her mild light on China and the islands of the sea, John Dumpling has such an accumulation of business that he can hardly stand up under it, stout as he is.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The request made by the Women's Council to Mayor Haven for the appointment of one woman inspector as assistant to the health officer will be complied with, and Mrs. M. R. Baldwin will be named during the month, and her duties will begin by June 1. The Council has been interested in securing a cleaner city, and greatly desired that the women's clubs of the city do all in their power to help the work along. The request for the naming of one woman as inspector was favorably considered.

Mrs. Baldwin served as a health inspector several years ago, and her services were valuable, and the club women of the city are especially gratified at her appointment. Mayor Haven is desirous that Mrs. Baldwin devote her time especially to educating the women of the city in the part that each housewife may do to secure cleaner premises and more efficient service. There is much delay and extra work caused by the fact that many housewives will not keep the ashes and garbage separate. This one matter, if observed by the women of the city, would do much toward making the work of keeping the city clean much easier.

ANNIVERSARY BANQUET.

Palestine Lodge Members to Be Hosts at Large Affair.

The thirty-eighth anniversary of Palestine lodge, No. 79, A. F. and A. M., will be celebrated at the Masonic Temple, Friday evening of next week, at the Temple, by a banquet and musical program. A series of toasts will be given and among the speakers will be one or more of the grand lodge officers from out of the city.

The reception committee will consist of E. K. Coe, worshipful master, and Messrs. J. H. LaVaque, W. B. Patton, Lyonel Ayres, H. G. Gearhart, C. A. Bronson, A. P. Cook, H. Van Brunt, W. E. Covey, H. The Cecilian society will devote the next year of its study to the symphonies of the masters, beginning in October. There will be eight meetings during the year and the works of eight of the great composers will be considered.

The annual meeting of the society was held yesterday afternoon at the studio of Miss Josephine Carey. The election of officers took place, and those who will serve during the year are: President, Mrs. A. M. Gow; vice president, Mrs. Charles D. Ostergren; secretary, Mrs. G. Herbert Jones; treasurer, Mrs. Harry C. Strong, and librarian, Miss Theresa Lynn.

ENJOYABLE AFFAIR.

Last evening the children of St. James' orphanage appeared in an entertainment at the Cathedral auditorium, which was enjoyed by the large audience which completely filled the auditorium. The little ones appeared in a series of recitations and musical numbers, which displayed not a little talent and great patience and much drilling on the part of the sisters of the orphanage, headed by Sister James. Little Rose Burnett, who was heard in two recitations, astonished the audience with the ability displayed, and she was enthusiastically applauded. The program concluded with an address by Bishop McGolrick, who spoke of the duty that society owes to these little orphaned ones who are left to the care of charity. The evening was a successful and delightful one.

SUMMER SUITS.

Severe and Elaborate Models Are Offered For Choice.

The new modes are more likely to please the American than the Parisienne. The latter desires constant change, striking novelties. In this she will be disappointed, for no revolutionary measures have been introduced. The American, on the contrary, knows when she is well suited and has no desire to change assured styles for those that may prove less becoming, says the Delineator for May.

In the tailored gowns that will be affected by both the American and the Parisienne, there are two distinct classes—one is characteristically English, severe, but irreproachably tailored; the other is quite as distinctly Parisian.

The English suits, as one might call them, are very smart, very well turned out, rather on the order of the riding habit. They employ checks and stripes in light-weight serges, cheviots and broadcloth. Homespuns also are prominent, showing a great deal of black against a somber background.

The cut of the coat is quite severe—the cutaway most affected by the ultra-smart. Sometimes it fastens with three buttons, again with one, and quite often it can hardly be said to fasten at all. It simply meets at a point high on the bust.

Sleeves vary to some extent. One sees both the one-piece shoulder and sleeve that preserves the flat-shouldered Japanese effect, and the plain coat sleeve practically without fullness at the armhole.

With the severe tailleur one will find either the gored circular skirt or the plaited skirt, quite noticeably full at the bottom, but fitted to the waist by gores or plaits.

On Friendship.

The way to have a friend is to be a friend, says Lillian Whiting in exchange.

Life is made up to most of us of little things, and many a friendship withers through sheer neglect.

Hearts are alienated, because each is waiting for some great occasion for displaying affection. The great spiritual value of friendship is the opportunity it affords for service, and if these are neglected it is only to be expected that the gift should be taken from us.

Friendship, which begins with sentiment, will not live and thrive on sentiment. There must be loyalty, which finds expression in service. It is not the greatness of the help or the intrinsic value of the gift which gives its worth, but the evidence it is of love and thoughtfulness.

Attention to detail is the secret of success in every sphere of life; and little kindnesses, little acts of considerateness, little appreciations, little confidences, are all that most of us are called on to perform, and they are all that are needed to keep a friendship sweet. Such thoughtfulness keeps our sentiment in evidence to both parties.

If we never show our kind feeling, what guarantee has our friend, or even ourself, that it exists?

If there has come to us the miracle of friendship, if there is a soul to which our soul has been drawn, it is surely worth while being loyal and true. Through the little occasions for helpfulness we are training for the great trial, if it should ever come, when the fabric of friendship will be tested to the very foundation.

New Lingerie Ideas.

One sees a number of new features in dainty lingerie this season. For instance, a new material, or rather an old fabric put to a new purpose, is dimity, made up into snowy garments that women delight in.

Then, too, only the very sheerest quality of goods is used, which at first might seem impractical for general wear, but the little thread that runs through the fabric—or bars it—makes the weave quite substantial for the purpose. It is said to be much cooler than the plain materials, such as batiste, nainsook, etc., usually employed, and it will wear equally well.

Another marked feature is the combination of two materials in one garment. For example a corset cover may be of fine nainsook, hemmed or trimmed with dotted swiss or dimity, and not embroidery or lace—the conventional idea.

Organ Recital.

Prof. Claude Landi will appear in an organ recital before the teachers of the city Saturday, May 16. The affair will be given in the auditorium of the Masonic temple.

Church Meeting.

The little girls' society of Bethesda Norwegian Lutheran church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. A. Moe of Tenth avenue east.

BEAUTY EXPENSIVE

Living in these days is not the simple, inexpensive thing it was for our grandmothers and great-grandmothers. It doesn't matter how economical one is, if we follow the path laid out for us, we must pay the toll. Simplicity in dress we may have, but dress is not the only item that makes the dollars disappear, says an exchange.

The average woman who tries to keep pace with the times and retain her looks must pay the piper. Her Turkish bath once or twice a month costs her $1 for the bath and then if she gets an extra rub the tip is 25 to 50 cents, unless she absolutely hasn't got the money. It is one of the times when she gets her money's worth and to no one else would I so willingly part with a tip.

The bath is but a starter for, she must then have her hair shampooed, and, of course, it needs clipping—it invariably does need it, my experience has taught me—and next she must get a scalp treatment for her hair in falling out, which is another trick of hair. After the treatment she must have it waved to give it the necessary fluffiness, and when she gets up from the chair to pay her bill it is, shampoo, 50 cents, singeing, 15 cents, scalp treatment, 50 cents, waving, 50 cents, and, of course, she has had a face massage, which rests the muscles, strengthens them, etc., and that means 50 cents more, a total of $1.90 at the hair dresser's. Her bath and tip came to $1.50, or in all $3.40 for feeling that she is properly groomed—I mistake, for I forgot to mention 35 cents for manicuring, which makes a total of $3.75 for grooming.

Aside from these expenses, there are creams and lotions, fine soaps, toilet waters and perfumes that must all have their place toward the woman's toilet of today. Brushes also are demanded, and her diet must be considered and certain waters drank to keep away or cure rheumatism and other evils that have a way of seizing upon the unsuspicious. Oh, no, living is not a mere matter of the best gown, the second best, and the house gown any more. I wonder what the great grandmothers would think of us could they come back and watch us getting groomed? True, they washed their faces with buttermilk and wore gloves to sleep in and oftentimes sunbonnets to shut out the faintest bit of sunshine, while we fairly love the sunshine and let it burn us brown if it likes, then we take a treatment for freckles every few days or for tan, but we manage to spend money on ourselves many times more than our grandmothers spent.

Far be it from me to say that this is wrong. On the contrary, the only wrong thing I can see about it is the fact that this nice grooming is positively out of reach of those who need it most. The rich women do not have as many cares to bring wrinkles and sap the life of the hair, while she may take treatments to her heart's content, but the woman who struggles—well $5 is $5 and she dare not spend it on herself while her whole being cries out for the benefit it would do her.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Asparagus, in Roosevelt family size, 50 cents a bunch.

Mushrooms, 60 cents a pound.

Tennessee strawberries, 18 cents a box.

Pineapples, 20 cents each.

Cucumbers, two for 25 cents.

Peas, two quarts for 25 cents.

Head lettuce, two for 25 cents.

Spring lamb, $2.50 a hind quarter.

Lobster, 50 cents a pound.

Flank steak, 15 cents a pound.

The spring market is becoming more attractive with each advancing day and the luxuries of early spring are beginning to have a more wholesome and less forced look. Spring lamb and green peas offer perhaps the most attractive combination of the market. Tennessee strawberries are the best looking that have yet come to the market and also taste more like real strawberries than any yet received in the local market. Cucumbers are especially long and green, and the fresh vegetables make a combination salad particularly delightful.

GARBAGE ORDINANCE.

Mayor Will Have It Ready for Council Monday.

Mayor Haven's garbage ordinance will be ready for the council at its regular meeting next Monday evening. The ordinance provides for a more systematic collection of garbage than is at present in use.

One provision is that garbage shall be kept in water-tight receptacles. Every household will be expected to have such a receptacle, although it will not be necessary for all to be of the same design. Everybody will be expected to keep their ashes separate from the garbage. This will not only mean a saving in the expense of hauling away, which will benefit the householder, but it will help matters at the incinerator, for garbage mixed with ashes will not burn.

Saturday, Grand Opening,

With music, by an expert dispenser. The only sanitary innovation soda fountain in the city. Kugler, your druggist, 108 West Superior street.

BUSY DAY

Put in by the Conference of Charities and Corrections.

Richmond, Va., May 8.—The several sections of the national conference of Charities and Corrections got to work promptly today, and at the meetings of all of them there was a large outside and interested attendance.

In the section of statistics, Miss Kate Halliday Claghorn, statistician of the tenement house department, made the opening address. Frederick L. Hoffman discussed state aid to aged people. General discussion followed, in which a number of speakers took part. In the division of public health, Mrs. Harriet Fuelmer of Chicago made the opening address.

To advertise your real estate twice as much as another man advertises his does not indicate that you are twice as anxious to sell as he is—but that you know twice as much as he does about how to sell.

MONEY GOES TO BOTTOM

Bulgarian Refused Admission and Loses Coin in Water.

Brother Makes Poor Cast From Dock to the Boat.

Polco Penchoff had all kinds of hard luck this morning. He arrived from Port Arthur on the steamer America, filled with anticipations of a reunion with his waiting brother, from whom he had been separated for several years, and hopeful of prosperity in the land, of which wonderful tales of prosperity had penetrated to his native home in Bulgaria. First, he was refused admission on account of being afflicted with trachoma and then, to complete his list of misfortunes, his entire store of wealth, consisting of $55, sank in the waters of Lake Superior.

After Penchoff had been rejected and placed in the bow of the boat to await deportation on the return trip, he carried on a long distance conversation with his brother on the dock. He threw his pocketbook, containing $45 to his brother, who slipped $10 more into it and essayed to return it through the air. His aim was poor and instead of landing in Polco's waiting hands, it struck the side of the boat, splashed into the water, and sank from view.

There was a wail of grief from the two brothers, but the money went to the bottom. Be scurrying among his friends on the dock the brother raised about $25 more for Polco, but he didn't try the air route to get it to him. One of the ship's crew took it up and gave it to the man of misfortunes.

Penchoff and Mihal Craleff, another Bulgarian, were rejected, with Moses Dubovsky, a Russian Jew. All had trachoma.

THE COED.

New York Sun: Those who read the college publications are not slow to realize that their editors are unfriendly to coeducation, in the institutions where that system exists. Even in some cases in which the girls have a representation on the editorial board things are written and published that are not kind.

The heads of the institutions go to some length to declare at times that coeducation is a success, and that the male students really like it, but they are not borne out by the facts, apparently. The girls in some of the Middle Western universities which are coeducational realize keenly this feeling against them.

They take their part in college activities and on occasion help out the athletic associations. They are made to feel sometimes, as one Michigan girl expressed it, that the men want to know them only when they are after their money.

There was a lot of aplause for some girls in Wisconsin last spring when they raised money to help to send the crews to Poughkeepsie for the regatta, but apparently that has been forgotten, to judge by some of the things that the Wisconsin girls complain of.

Few of the Eastern universities have coeducation, and most of the men in them are ungallant enough to say that they are glad of it. It would take a deep psychologist to explain why there is that opposition to education of the two sexes together.

As one man who went to a man's college in the East says: "I'll bet ten good-looking girls could do more for coeducation than a ream of arguments by professors." Yet it is a safe bet that there are many good-looking girls in the Western colleges.

They appear to be resigned out there, but they do not appear to relish coeducation.

Every dollar you spend for unadvertised things may be partly wasted. Not always—but often!

DUSTLESS ROADWAYS

A bulletin issued last July by the Kansas City park board makes the above statement. A year ago during the summer months, the board had its whole force of sprinkling wagons going every day in an attempt to keep down the dust which made the enjoyment of the park drives impossible at times. In a few hours the hot summer sun dried the roads, and every passing motor car left clouds of fine rock dust to settle on the foliage along the drive. Now a motor car passing at the highest speed over any portion of the extnsive boulevard system leaves no dusty trail in its wake. The oil has not only proved much more effective than water, bt is a third cheaper and preserves the roadways as well. One of serious problems here, as in other cities, has been the preservation of the drives from the wear o fthe motor car wheels. The oiled boulevard is also protected frem erosion. Formerly every rainstorm left ragged gullies which took several days to repair. The eye of the most inexperienced could see that something was needed to bind the macadam, to preserve a smooth surface without dust and prevent washouts at the same time. The net savings in the use of oil for the year was $5,535.88 or 34 per cent.

Success Magazine: When E. L. Godkin was editor of the New York Evening Post he was supposed by many to lack a sense of humor. But those in his employ who stood close to him knew better. One morning he sent for his young city editor.

"Last night," said Mr. Godkin, "I read in the Post an account of the suicide of a boy. Your news paragraph reported as the motive that the boy was being resisted at home in a premature inclination to marry. Mr. Blank can you imagine how that father felt when you accused him, for what was no doubt done in a sense of loving duty, of being the cause of the death of his child?"

The young city editor stammered an apology.

"Thank you for your explanation," said Godkin. "But," he went on in a more decided tone, "if anything like that ever happens again, I give you fair warning, sir, that I will leave this paper! I will not work for a paper that says things so cruel!"

RAILROADS

WILL FIGHT INCREASE

Minnesota Shippers Will Protest Against Raise in Rates.

Railroads Plead Lack of Business as Their Justification.

Western and Eastern railway officials are about to enter upon a determined fight for the increasing of present freight tariffs. The increase they will insist upon will amount to approximately 10 per cent. They will extend to all classes of freight.

Poor business and the reduced earnings of the roads, due to the reduced financial returns caused by the reduction in the passenger tariffs, are the reasons advanced by the railway officials in their statement as to why the increase in freight rates is imperative.

In Minnesota, as in other Western states, the railway officials will undoubtedly incur the enmity of the various railway and warehouse commissions, who have in several instances shown evidence that they are of the opinion that some of the present commodity rates are capable of further reductions. Just how the officials of the Western lines hope to evade the vigilance of the various state commissions is not known, but the fact remains that notice has already been sent out over the Western territory that an increase in the present freight tariff is imminent, providing the legal departments of the various roads can conceive of any way to secure the desired increase.

In Minnesota the officials of the Western lines will encounter some very stiff opposition to any progress that includes the raising of freight rates. The various shippers' associations are opposed to any increase and are ready to wage determined war upon any attempt to increase the present rates, in which they are believed to have the sympathy of the members of the state railway and warehouse commission and the state legal department.

Business at the Head of the Lakes, taken as a criterion of the stand of the Western roads in general, is a good example of the feeling of the average railroad man. Business here at the present time is very poor. Railroad men are crying out that under the present conditions the earning powers of the roads have been reduced to a very small margin. The passenger business has been reduced in its earning power, while the general business of the country has reflected a falling off in the shipping of commodities that bring in the earnings to the freight departments of the roads.

This is the point of view of the railroad man. The shipper will look at the matter in an entirely different light. The shippers of Duluth and the Northwest will not admit that the present freight rates are not sufficiently high to enable the roads to reap a good profit. The inauguration of any increase in the present schedule of all classes of freight will be the signal for a protest from the shippers all over the Northwest, and the Minnesota railway and warehouse commission will probably be called upon to act as arbiter in the matter.

ADVANCE IN RATES.

Eastern Railway Officials May Increase Freight Schedules.

New York, May 8.—Presidents of practically all the leading railroad systems east of the Mississippi river were in conference at the Trunk Line association offices yesterday considering the question of a general advance in freight rates. The scale now prevailing, with New York to Chicago as a basis, divides rates into six classes, at from 75 cents to 25 cents per ton. No conclusion was reached today, but the advance most favored calls for an increase to 85 cents as the maximum and 27 cents the minimum.

The entire matter will be left to the traffice officials of the roads interested for solution. They are likely to submit their reports by July 1, but such advances as may be recommended will hardly go into effect before Nov. 1.

WILL ESTABLISH RATE.

W. A. McGonagle Goes to Winnipeg to Confer With George A. Shaw.

W. A. McGonagle, general manager of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, is in Winnipeg in conference with Traffic Manager George A. Shaw, of the Canadian Northern railway, for an interchange of traffic over the D., M. & N. and the Canadian Northern.

D. O. Anderson, secretary of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg, was in Winnipeg recently and conferred with Mr. Shaw relative to an interchange of traffic arrangements over the lines of the Canadian Northern and the D. R. L. & W. railway. As both the Duluth, Missabe & Northern and the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg enter into the through shipping of freight to the Canadian capital, it is necessary that the Missabe road also come to an agreement with the Canadian road that runs from the border to Winnipeg.

The recommendation of the plans of the three representatives, Mr. MacGonagle, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Shaw, will result in the establishment of a through freight rate that will mean much to the Duluth shipper. The rate is awaited by the Duluth jobbers, whose goods will go through to the Western Canadian metropolis.

Steamer Rate Slashed.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic has announced a rate of $28.50 to Naples, Italy. The ocean rate war that is going on at the present time, in the matter of third class passage, has made this rate possible. The rate is $18.50 to New York, over the line of the D., S. S. & A., and $10 for the ocean voyage. The new rate was placed in effect yesterday afternoon.

MANY JOBS IN THE WEST

One Firm There Employs More Than 1,000 Men.

H. M. Johnson of Duluth who has just returned from a hurried trip through North Dakota and Montana says that there is extensive railroad construction work going on in the latter state,and that hundreds of men are being employed by the Great Northern, Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Northern Pacific railroads.

By 9 o'clock tonight 132 men will have left Duluth for Montana, where they will build bridges, do grading work and lay rails. They are paid $1.5 a day and given their transportation. Mr. Johnson says that probably the greatest railroad construction at present in Montana is being done by the Great Northern and Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul roads.

The Great Northern is building a 200-mile branch from Armington to Billings. At the approach of winter they closed down but three weeks ago they started up again. "A. Guthrie & Co., contractors for the Great Northern, are now employing probably more than 1,000 men, though it is hard to estimate accurately how many men are really engaged on the work, for the crews are located for miles along the right of way. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul is of course extending its trans-continental road and is employing a great many men," said Mr. Johnson, "and the Northern Pacific railroad has a big job in the St. Regis cut. There is hardly a blade of green grass in that locality. The plains are brown and barren where they have been swept by prairie fires and only in the valleys is there any sign of vegetation."

Register Engle of the United States land office is hearing the claims of John Rustula and Kate F. Miller to the right of timber and stone entry on section 28-59-10. Ristula originally had a homestead claim on the land, and the woman filed a contest against it. Before the notice of hearing was issued, Ristula sent in a relinquishment of the claim and accompanied it by a timber and stone application. The relinquishment gave the contestant a preferable right of entry, but Ristula claims he didn't know the contest had been filed, and he asked for a hearing on the case. The woman has also made a timber and stone filing on the land.

SOCIETY SKIMPS IN CHICAGO

Chicago has its swollen fortunes, but fewer of them are in society than one would imagine, says The Delineator. It is to the credit of Chicago women that there is comparatively little of the wild and frenzied expenditure which prevails in New York. Chicago women dress well,—at times they dress gorgeously,—yet there are but few women in Chicago who refuse to wear a ball gown a third time. Gloves go the cleaner and so do gowns, more than once or twice or thrice. Children are dressed in the simplest fashion, and young girls wear the plainest of frocks, though the material and cut are beyond all cavil. It is undoubtly true that in Chicago women dress far more correctly than men.

It is all but the exception, striking out the box parties and a few orchestra rows, to see a man in full dress at a theater, enough, and he wears it.

CRIMINAL APPEALS

New English Law Which is Expected to Work Revolution.

Gives Convicted People Right to Appeal, Heretofore Restricted.

London, May 8.—The criminal appeal act of 1907, which took effect April 19 of this year, is expected to work a revolution in the administration of the criminal law.

In addressing the grand jury recently at the last East Sssex quarter sessions, over which he presided, Justice Grantham referred to the change. His lordship said he was that day practically attending in the "last post" of the old criminal law of England. The latter provided that where persons were accused of crime the final appeal rested with a jury of their own countrymen.

On and after the nineteenth of this month the criminal appeal act, 1907 (7 Edw. 7, ch. 23), will become part of the law of this country.

It is an act of parliament which undoubtedly owes its existence partly to the persevering agitation of the press and partly to a slowly increasing popular demand for some means of receiving due judgments that are given in the course of the administration of our criminal law. Mistakes occasioning a miscarriage of justice and inflicting intolerable hardships have been so frequently made that it began to be felt that not only were the best traditions of the law in danger of violation, but even the security of the subject was a matter of gravest concern.

No Remedy For Blunders Heretofore.

Instances of serious blunders which have shaken public confidence occur readily enough to one's mind, and the worst feature of these mistakes has been the irremediable nature of the suffering and distress which they have caused. In many cases the worst results have been prevented by the untiring efforts of the press.

It is the first time in the history of English law that there has been a court which appeal in criminal matters may be made, more or less corresponding in constitution and procedure to the court of appeals which now reviews decisions in civil actions.

The judicature act of 1873, although creating a general court of appeal in civil cases, still retained, by section 47, the rule that "no appeal shall lie from the high court in any criminal cause or matter." This rule has become widely known, generally representing the popular idea of the restricted nature of criminal proceedings.

Restrictions Now Removed.

As a matter of fact, under the same section a right of appeal was reserved for any "error of law apparent upon the record," and a further appeal lay by petition to the house of lords. But unfortunately the procedure governing these appeals did not tend to place them within easy reach of the ordinary individual, since in all cases of appeal under this rule the express permission of the attorney general had to be obtained.

It is interesting to note that by the new act writs of error are entirely abolished.

In addition, there was the court for crown cases reserved, a tribunal of five or more judges of the high court, who considered any question of law that arose at the trial, whether it were "apparent upon the record or not." This court has not, however, been extensively used, the average annual number of cases which it tried being less than a dozen, while in 1900 only six of these appeals came before it.

Three Main Grounds of Appeal.

The outstanding feature of the new act is that, subject to some restrictions, it gives a right of appeal upon questions of fact, although together there are three main grounds of appeal available to a convicted person. They are as follows:

1. On a question of law alone.
2. With the leave of the criminal appeal court or upon the certificate of the judge who tried him:
   (a) Upon a question of fact alone.
   (b) A question of mixed law and fact.
   (c) Any other ground appearing to the court to be a sufficient ground of appeal.
3. With the leave of the criminal appeal court, against the sentence itself, unless it is one fixed by law.

The court to which the appeal may be made is fortunate in possessing the lord chief justice and eight king's bench judges as its members, but the court will be duly constituted for all working purposes if it consists of not less than three or any uneven number of those judges.

Court Has Ample Power.

The court is to sit in London, unless otherwise directed, and has power to increase a sentence appealed against as well as power to decrease or quash it altogether. Appeal must be made within ten days of conviction, during which time execution of punishment is stayed, and where appeal is granted until such appeal has been heard and determined.

The appellant, notwithstanding that he is in custody, shall be entitled to be present at the hearing of his appeal, except where the appeal is on a question of law alone.

The court will have power to assign solicitor and counsel to the appellant in order that his case may be properly conducted, and can exercise a discretion in demanding the presence of witnesses at the hearing of the appeal. The expense which all this involves is, by section 13 (2), made a matter for the attention of the secretary of state.

Stenographers Will Be Helped.

The criminal appeal act 1907, will come as a great boon to shorthand writers. It is enacted that shorthand notes are to be taken of the proceedings at the trial of any persons on indictment who, if convicted, is entitled, or may be authorized, to appeal under this act. This means that a small army of stenographers will be required to attend criminal trials throughout the country, and take note of all that occurs at the various hearings. The cost of the services thus required must inevitably amount to a considerable sum and will have to be met by the treasury.

For the purposes of applications and the like the powers of the criminal court of appeals may be exercised by any one of its judges sitting alone, while the rules upon which its business will proceed are to be settled by the lord chief justice, the judges of the court and a committee for that purpose appointed.

Time alone can show whether the criminal appeal act of 1907 is really a reform or only an alteration. All one can say at present is that for an act consisting of only twenty-three sections the innovations are striking and original.

It has been argued that juries will regard their duties with a sense of less responsibility now that appeals are made possible, but those who have any experience of British juries will repudiate such a suggestion, knowing as they do, the high standard of integrity and probity which jurymen maintain in the fulfillment of their national obligation.

The consequence of most interest to the public is the amount of expense which the act involves, and it remains to be seen whether this extra expenditure is going to be justified by an improved administration of the criminal law.

Do You Like Honest, Square Dealing?

Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines are put out under the belief that publicity is the best possible guaranty of merit, and that the most intelligent people generally want to know what they take into their stomachs, whether it be as food, drink or medicine. Although it was a bold step to take, and quite out of the usual practice of makers of proprietary medicines, yet Dr. Pierce, some time ago, decided to publish broadcast and on all his bottle-wrappers all the ingredients entering into the composition, or make-up, of his celebrated family medicines. A square deal is therefore assured every one using his medicines, for one knows exactly what he or she is paying for when purchasing them, since every ingredient is published in plain English on the bottle-wrappers and the correctness of the same attested under solemn oath. These several ingredients are selected from among the very best known to medical science for the cure of the various diseases for which these medicines are recommended.

The most eminent and leading medical teachers and writers of all the several schools of practice have endorsed each of the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines in the strongest possible terms. The makers of Dr. Pierce's medicines believe that intelligent people do not wish to open their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulp down whatever is presented to them, either in the way of food, drink or medicine, without knowing something of the properties and harmless character of the agents employed. They believe that health is too sacred a heritage to be experimented with, and that people should not take medicines of the composition of which they are kept in ignorance. Dr. Pierce's medicines are made wholly from the roots of plants found growing in the depths of our American forests. They are so compounded that they cannot do harm in any case, even to the most delicate woman or child. By open publicity Dr. Pierce has taken his medicines out of the list of secret nostrums, of doubtful merit, and made them REMEDIES OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. They are therefore, in a class all by themselves, being absolutely and in every sense non-secret.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

There is a badge of honesty on every bottle of Dr. Pierce's medicines in the full list of its ingredients duly attested as correct under solemn oath.

No other medicines put up for general use through druggists can make claim to any such distinction, and none other than Dr. Pierce's medicines have any such professional endorsement of their ingredients. Such professional endorsement should have far more weight with the afflicted than any amount of lay, or non-professional, endorsement, or testimonials.

Of course, the exact proportion of each ingredient used in Dr. Pierce's medicines as well as the working formula or manner of preparing the same, and the specially devised apparatus and appliances employed in their manufacture, are withheld from publicity that Dr. Pierce's proprietary rights may be fully protected from such unprincipled imitators as might be piratically inclined.

The preparation of these medicines without the use of a drop of alcohol, so generally employed and yet so harmful, in the long run, to most invalids when its use is long continued, even in small doses, cost Dr. Pierce several years of careful study and labor, with the aid of skilled pharmacists and chemists to assist him. Naturally, he does not care to give away his scientific and exact processes for preparing these medicines, but he does want to deal in the most open manner with all his patrons and patients, and under this frank, open and honest way of dealing, they may know exactly what they are taking when using his medicines.

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative and healing way upon all the mucous lining surfaces as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as muccus diarrhea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections, it is often successful in effecting cures.

The "Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases only—those peculiar weaknesses, derangements and irregularities incident to women. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine. For weak, worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Cairo, May 8.—Two years of patient excavation by M. Clermont Ganneau on Elephantine island, situated in the middle of the Nile at Assouan, have brought a rich and unhoped for reward in the finding of a portion of a facsimile of the famous Rosetta stone, which, discovered in 1799 at Rosetta, is now preserved in the British museum.

The Rosetta stone contains inscriptions in three different languages—hierachic and cursive Egyptian and uncial Greek. It is the basis of the whole method of deciphering the ancient Egyptian inscriptions and hieroglyphics. The stone now found at Assouan is a third of the whole block, and it is hoped that the remaining portion will soon be discovered.

MAY MARRY AN ACTRESS

Report Current About French Premier Has Not Been Denied.

Something of the Prime Minister and of Mme. Caron.

Washington, May 8.—When the report became current in Paris recently—and was not met with denial—that the prime minister of France, Georges Clemenceau, was to marry Mme. Rose Caron, one of the most popular and gifted of French actresses, there was a new and tremendous sensation at the French capital. Strange to say, there were few expressions of disapproval in Paris. Mme. Caron has been highly regarded for many years by the French people; why should she not worthily fill the high position of second lady in France? Some critics, obviously unfriendly to the premier, merely remarked that in the contemplated alliance the charming actress would be wedding a man of her own calling, namely "a thorough comedian."

No other premier, so far as recalled, has wedded a favorite of the footlights, although a number of French cabinet officers during bygone years have taken wives who were formerly members of the dramatic profession. Much is known in this country of Georges Clemenceau, the brilliant, if somewhat erratic, journalist-statesman of France. If anyone ever won high position and power entirely because of ability and energy, Clemenceau is the man.

Mme. Caron's Career.

Of Mme. Rose Caron not so much is known on this side of the Atlantic. Her recent nomination as a professor of the conservatory was the crowning honor of a long and distinguished career on the stage. Whatever the character she has apeared in, Mme. Caron has left an ineffaceable impression of art upon all who have had the pleasure of seeing her performances. This holds good of her wonderful impersonation of Elsa, the dreamy sweetness of Marguerite, the martial vestments of Brunhilde or the solemn garmenture of Salambo. Twenty years of uninterrupted success at Brussels and Paris have constituted an exceptional claim to favor on the part of Mme. Caron, who has been declared a worthy successor of Damoreau-Sainty and Pauline Viardot.

Recently the actress took charge of her class in the conservatory, in the institution where she was herself for years a pupil, and from which she was graduated in 1852, with the small honor of second prize in singing and an "accessit," or near approach to prize, in opera. This scanty recognition of her ability at the beginning of her career did not affect her subsequent success. After having perfected her musical education with Marie Sasse, she was engaged by the direction of the Theater de la Monnaie, at Versailles. There, on Sept. 1, 1883, she made her debun as Alice in "Robert le Diable." Later she was warmly welcomed by the Brussels public. In her performance of Marguerite in "Faust" she made a specially favorable impression with her pure, clear voice and her perfect diction.

While she was thus engaged, the composer, Reyer, as yet comparatively unknown, brought to the management an opera, "Sigurd," which had cost him twenty years of labor and had been refused at Paris. In this case it secured a more favorable reception. The directors saw in Mme. Caron the ideal Brunhilde which the work called for.

It was put on with her in that role Jan. 7, 1884. Its reception was enthusiastic, and Brussels took to its heart what Paris had disdained. Since then Mme. Saron has known only success. Engaged at the Paris opera, she created Sigurd there in June, 1885. Next she successively and successfully sang Rachel in "The Jewess," Chimene in the "Cid" and Catherine of Aragon in "Henry VIII." Difficulties with the management of the opera caused her withdrawal from that house. She returned to Brussels, where she was again welcomed with transport. Becoming aware o ftheir mistake in allowing her to depart, the directors of the Paris opera made overtures for her return.

On Oct. 13, 1890, she again sang before the public of Paris. This was as Elsa in "Lohengrin," a creation so exquisite that all voices were pronounced in her praise. Afterward she sang Salambo, and her triumph was no less overwhelming. One of the greatest success of her entire career has been in "Iphigenie," which she rendered with such feeling as to conquer every audience.

About M. Clemenceau.

M. Georges Clemenceau has been called the busiest man in France, and one of the least obtrusive. He cares little for show, but has an immense capacity for work. Instead of living in the magnificent palace provided for the one occupying his position, M. Clemenceau prefers to dwell in a modest apartment on the Rue Franklin, which he has occupied for many years. He lieves quite alone, except for a cook and man servant, and entertains only his most intimate friends, which means very few people. The apartmen is on the ground floor and opens on a garden overlooking the Seine and a beautiful planorame of the city. His pets are a handsome white bull terrier and many large birds, such as storks, peacocks and barnyard fowl. Each morning at 5 o'clock, M. Clemenceau gets up and goes through gymnastic exercises, which are followed by a cold plunge. At 7 he has his breakfast, which is his heaviest meal, and consists of about a dozen eggs and some cold meat.

He never drinks anything but water, except when obliged to do otherwise at a banquet. At 8 o'clock he goes to the ministry and begins work. After reading his letters and dictating answers, he scans the newspaper clippings which are brought to him, and selects those dealing with matters in which inspection and reform are needed. At 10 o'clock he receives the persons to whom appointments have been given, and at 12 o'clock goes home to the Rue Franklin and has luncheon, which consists of a soft boiled egg and a glass of spring water. Then he goes to his library or out in the garden, if the weather is fine, and spends an hour reading, preferably old Greek text. At 2 o'clock he goes back to work, visits the senate and the chamber of deputies and the president, and calls upon any important personages with whom he may have business or courtesies to exchange. By 5 o'clock he is back at the ministry, signs the outgoing mail, etc., receives visitors, attends to the business of his office, etc., till 7 or 8 o'clock.

Mr. Clemenceau makes it a point of dining in town as little as possible, and accepts only those official invitations which he cannot refuse. At 10 o'clock he is back again at his office working until after midnight. Clemenceau's first wife was a New England girl.

DIES WITH EYES ON GOLD.

Mortally Wounded Miser Has Officers Spread Hoard on Bed.

Paris, May 8.—A miser named Albert Vanhaege was mortally wounded by a burglar at his house near Dunkirk a few nights since. When the police arrived the dying man asked them to get his hoard from the cellar and spread it before him. They found $1,800 in gold and silver, and spread it on his bed. Vanhaege suspiciously asked the police, "You have not taken any?" Shortly afterwards he died.

CLEANS HOUSE; LOSES FORTUNE

Russian Bonds and $750 in Currency Hidden in Mattress.

Paris, May 8.—Although the ordinary savings bank has its drawbacks, it is also true that it has its advantages over some hiding places favored by frugal wives. This truth has been rather rudely brought home within the past few weeks to Mme. Marguerite Schenk, who resides in a modest apartment in the Rue Leibnitz.

Like the majority of Frenchwomen, Mme. Schenk is the economist of her household. Her husband is all very well, when it comes to earning the money, but it was his wife who held the purse strings and out of his small salary had managed to accumulate a surprisingly large bag of savings. Not having an overgreat belief in the honesty of others, and having a very satisfactory faith in her own care and watchfulness, she kept her savings hidden away in the fold of a mattress.

A couple of weeks ago Mme. Schenk had an attack of the spring cleaning fever. Everything in the little apartment was literally pulled up by the roots and submitted to no end of dusting, beating, wiping and washing. Among the articles thus treated was the mattress, in which lay the family hoard, amounting to $12,000 in Russian bonds and $750 in French bank notes. She hung the mattress out of the window and belabored it.

Next door to the Schenks lived a stonecutter, August Hommet by name, and his pretty young wife. Now it so happened that while Mme. Schenk was walloping her mattress, Hommet was standing directly beneath, day dreaming of the time when he would be rich and live in fashionable apartments. Suddenly there dropped down in front of him, seemingly from the heavens, a fat bag. His eyes fell upon French bank notes to the value of $750 and a pile of Russian bonds. The latter was much the richer prize, being worth $12,000, but to Hommet, who knew nothing of foreign investments, they were merely paper covered with printed hieroglyphics. He hurriedly returned with his find to his own apartments, and told his wife. They immediately packed up their few belongings and moved to better quarters in the Rue Championnet.

In the next few days Hommet gave evidence that poverty had robbed the world of a prince of spenders. He spent the $750 in bank notes with a hand so lavish that it would have made Monte Cristo himself turn green with envy. As a final effort, the couple invited all their relatives who lived near enough to a grand feast.

Meanwhile in the Rue Leibnitz consternation had had its reign, and remorse and regret followed. After completing her cleaning, Mme. Schenk had bethought herself of her bonds and her bank notes. With the pale face of fear and the cold perspiration of apprehension the good wife repaired in a hurry to the mattress, which now reposed once more on the bed. Search as she might in its folds, she could not find the precious bag. She then decided to call in a lawyer. Accordingly, M. Hamard, a well-known Parisian attorney, was sent for.

After a few preliminary inquiries in the neighborhood, Hamard made straight for the swager new apartments of the departed stonecutter and his charming wife. With the delicacy and politeness which makes arrest one of the pleasures of French life, he interrupted the gayeties and took Hommet and his weeping wife off to the nearest police station. There they both confessed, and the former handed over to his captor a 50-centime (10-cent) piece, the surviving portion of the $750. Not considering them of any value, Hommet and his guests had amused themselves by lighting their cigarettes with the Russian bonds.

Hommet has gone to be a guest of the French government for a considerable term of years, while his wife has been set at liberty.

CHARLES BOTTINEAU DEAD.

Charles Bottineau was born at what is now Grand Forks, N. D., in April, 1825. He was the son of Joseph Bottineau, a descendant of one of the French Huguenots who came to this country in the eighteenth century, and who went to the Far West about 1749.

Mr. Bottineau has been prominent in the affairs of his tribe since early manhood. He became a member of the council in 1856, and in 1882 was one of the delegation sent to Washington to negotiate a treaty with the federal government. He had been a frequent visitor to Washington on business at intervals up to 1901, when he came here to fight for the enactment of legislation providing for payment to the Turtle Mountain band for lands they formerly occupied in North Dakota.

His nearest relatives are John B. Bottineau, nephew, and the latter's daughter, Mrs. Baldwin, also residents of this city. Mr. Bottineau's remains will be deposited in a vault in a local cemetery and will be taken to North Dakota later.

THREE CURES OF SEVERE ECZEMA

Michigan Woman Tells of Her Brother's Terrible Suffering with the Disease—Grandchild and Another Baby also Permanently Cured.

CUTICURA REMEDIES PROVED INVALUABLE

"My brother had eczema three different summers. About the same time each summer it came out between his shoulders and down his back, and he said his suffering was terrible. He used different kinds of medicines that were said to be good for that disease, but nothing seemed to do him much good. When it came on the third summer, he bought a box of Cuticura Ointment and gave it a faithful trial. Soon he began to feel better and he cured himself entirely with Cuticura and has never been bothered with eczema since. He also used Cuticura to cure a bunch over his eye and a terrible corn which was so bad that he could not wear his shoe. A lady in Indiana heard of how my daughter, Mrs. Miller, had cured her little son of terrible eczema by the Cuticura Remedies. This lady's little one had the eczema so badly that they thought they would lose it. She used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and it cured her child entirely, and the disease never came back. Mrs. Sarah E. Lusk, 67 Peckham St., Coldwater, Mich., Aug. 15 and Sept. 2, 1907."

LINEN MADE IN AMERICA.

D. T. Pierce in The World Today: A Massachusetts inventor has perfected a process of transforming flax straw into fiber that promises to add millions to the revenue of the American farmer, and to make possible for the first time the manufacture of linen fiber in the United States.

By the laborious process followed abroad, it takes from sixteen to thirty weeks to transform flax straw into linen. There is first the "retting" which, in Belgium, is done by weighing down the flax straw in pools of water exposed to the sun, until the wood or "shive" is rotted away from the fiber. Then comes the "scutching" or beating of the dry straw. After this it is "hackled" by pulling the straw through the coarse teeth of combs for the purpose of removing snarls and tangles. The softening and bleaching processes number twenty-five, after all this has been done, before the finished line fabric is ready for market. Now comes Benjamin C. Mudge of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology with combined mechanical and chemical process that makes linen out of straw in twelve hours. In place of the European method, which consists very largely of leaving the natural rotting process to accomplish the disintegration of straw, Mr. Mudge goes at this work by machinery until the raw flax fiber has been wrested from the flax stalk. Then the chemical process begins, and I can testify from observation that, using three or four chemical baths, Mr. Mudge first degums, then bleaches, softens, and in the end makes a gloss, white and exceedingly tough fiber out of what in the beginning looked like a mass of tangled horsehair.

The European method yields about 170 pounds of fiber from 1,000 pounds of straw and sacrifices the seed crop. The Mudge process secures 250 pounds of straw after the seed has been saved. It converts the "shive," wasted by the European method, into a pulp for papermaking, and also saves the "tow."

TRAVEL TO BE LIGHT

Owners of Passenger Boats Apprehensive of Poor Season.

Package Freighters Are Having Good Spring Rush of Trade.

The generally unsettled condition of business and the disinclination of people to let their money get away from them in unnecessary expenditures during a presidential year, have made the owners of passenger boats wary this season and a late start and light business is predicted for the passenger trade on the lakes.

The Buffalo to Duluth lines depend upon tourist trade for their passenger business, but the tourist business this year is not expected to be heavy and the owners are nerving themselves for a light season. The Anchor line has already set its sailing date a month ahead and will not have a boat in Duluth until June 21. The Northern Navigation company's passenger and freight steamer Huronic, which was expected to arrive today, has cut out Duluth and will not be here on its first until May 17, running between Sarnia and Port Arthur in the meantime.

The North West of the Northern Steamship company is the only exclusively passenger boat running between Duluth and Buffalo and, should the tourist business fall down, it will be severely hit. The Anchor line passenger boats carry package freight also, but the North West depends entirely on the passenger trade. No announcement has yet been made of its sailing dates, but it is believed it will not get into motion until about the first of July and will lay up early on account of the expected light season.

The package freighters continue to move on schedule with full cargoes. Nearly all of those sailing here thus far have taken grain, package freight and shingles out to complete their loads and they seem to have no trouble getting full cargoes in the lower lake ports.

LONGSHOREMEN BALK.

Union Men Refuse to Work on Individual Contract System.

Detroit, May 8.—President Keefe of the International Longshoremen's union says all members of his organization have been advised not to sign individual contracts.

Cleveland, May 8.—All ore loading operations on docks at this port controlled by the Pittsburg & Conneaut dock company stopped at noon yesterday, when thirty hoisters and engineers who had been employed on the machines, quit work. The men are members of the local longshoremen's union, which unanimously voted to refuse individual contracts. They had already signed contracts, but these were returned Thursday morning. They were then dismissed from duty by Supt. Richardson. The hoisters claim they are not opposed to the open shop but will not work under individual contracts, even if the terms are satisfactory.

ENGINEERS TO REPORT.

Boats of Pittsburg Fleet Will be Inpected Next Week.

Cleveland, May 8.—Engineers of about fifty steamers of the Pittsburg Steamship company's fleet to be inspected this month will go to work during the next few days. The boats will not be fitted out yet, and only a half dozen crews of the fleet are at work.

Ice at Buffalo.

Buffalo, May 8.—A heavy rain Wednesday night and yesterday improved the ice conditions materially.

Boats Are Chartered.

Buffalo, May 8.—Some activity was shown in shipping circles yesterday, though there is little encouragement in the outlook. The charters made are for small boats, two of them going to small Lake Michigan ports. Charters: Yale, Chicago, 40; Commodore, Milwaukee, 40; Veronica, America, Lake Michigan ports.

BECKER CAPSIZES.

Boat Becomes Waterlogged and Goes Under Near Sheboygan.

Sheboygan, May 8.—The crew of the schooner R. H. Becker had a narrow escape yesterday when their vessel waterlogged and capsized in the northeast gale off this port. The plight of the Becker was seen by the watchman at the life saving station and the crew put to the rescue in time to save Capt. Charles Greyshot and his men before their ship turned over. The tug Reiss succeeded in getting a line to the schooner and brought her into the piers, where she settled to the bottom. It is probable that the schooner's cargo of wood will be a total loss. The wreck does not block the channel.

Marine News Notes.

The inspectors of hulls and boilers went to Ashland this week and inspected the craft in the harbors there.

Three Anchor line boats, the Lackawanna, Codorus and Wissahickon, were in port together this morning. The Wissahickon is a new package freighter of improved type, constructed last season and the present is her first trip to the Head of the Lakes.

The steamer L. H. Hines and the tow barges, Ashland and Lizzie A. Law, have gone to the Allouez dock for ore. They are lumber boats under ordinary circumstances, but things marine are badly twisted this spring.

The lumber shipments from this port are increasing slightly. The Gettysburg and W. H. Sawyer arrived this morning light, the Gettysburg going to the Alger-Smith West Duluth dock and the Sawyer to the Rice's Point dock.

While leaving Port Edward this week, the Northern Navigation company's steamer Huronic collided with the Duncan coal boat, badly damaging the dock, but escaping uninjured.

The schooner Rob Roy, which broke her anchor chains and drifted ashore in Green Bay April 27, has been declared a total loss. Capt. Hallgren of Milwaukee purchased her for $500.

TROUBLES ARE AIRED

Haburt's Case is One of Too Much Mother-in-Law.

Judge Windom Advises Old People to Quit Interfering.

A husband, wife, two mothers-in-law, an uncle and a father all mixed up in a good old-fashioned, catch-as-catch-can, family squabble before Judge Windom in municipal court yesterday afternoon. To the amused spectators, it looked very much like a case of too much mother-in-law.

The trouble resulted from the arrest of James Haburt of West Duluth upon the charge of non-support. This is the third time he has been arrested upon the same charge, but, after all the evidence had been submitted, Judge Windom expressed the opinion that Haburt would support his wife if given a chance, and advised Mrs. George Baum, the young man's mother-in-law, to quit interfering in the young people's business.

"I am able to work, and always have worked except in hard times," said Haburt. "As I have often told her, I will support her in proper fashion if she will leave her mother and come and live with me. She insists on her mother living with us. I can't get along with Mrs. Baum, and will not live with Edith if I have to live with her, too. She keeps interfering with our business, and is all the time kicking up a row."

"If I leave my mother Jim insists that I live with his mother," explained Mrs. Haburt, who is only 20 years old, while her husband is 24. "I can't get along with her, and won't live with her."

Haburt claimed that he had a job at the Red Cliff mill, but after he had worked five days his wife made an attempt to garnishee his wages, so he quit, and since about April 20 has not been working steadily, except for helping around the West Duluth cemetery. He said he would have gotten work steadily there if his wife and mother-in-law hadn't butted in.

"It appears to me," said Judge Windom, "that the boy hasn't been given what might be called a fair show. I don't see how he can support himself, let alone a wife, if he isn't allowed to work more than a few days at a time. I would suggest that Mrs. Haburt and her mother let him alone for a while, and if he fails to do the right thing on pay day, why then is the time to act.

"There is one thing about it, though, that Mrs. Haburt doesn't seem to take into consideration. It is a wife's duty to follow the husband, and if she does not live with Haburt wherever he wants to live, she has no grounds upon which to bring him into court on a charge of non-support, unless cruel and inhuman treatment can be proven against him. No cruelty is claimed in this instance. I really believe Haburt would do the right thing if given half a chance, and therefore I dismiss the case, with the suggestion that he be let alone until he has an opportunity to show what he can do."

Haburt's mother, uncle and three or four West Duluth young men testified as to the man's ability and willingness to work, and expressed the belief that he could easily support his wife if she would consent to live with him alone.

Haburt's mother spoke very well of everybody concerned, and said she had eight children to look after, which was enough without looking for more trouble by butting into other people's affairs.

"When Edith married James they came to my house to live," said the woman. "Edith didn't have hardly any clothes to her back, and her arm was hanging out of a hole in the sleeve of her dress."

"You're a liar," shouted Mrs. Baum, and jumped excitedly to her feet. Judge Windom said the court couldn't stand for any such interruptions, and advised Mrs. Baum to quiet down. The latter hadn't been asked to testify, but butted in previously of her own accord, and asked for a chance to talk. She quieted down somewhat, but there followed a family quarrel in which the two mothers-in-law, the wife, the husband, the father and the uncle all took part. Young Mrs. Haburt finally complained that she didn't get enough to eat when she was living with her mother-in-law.

"They fed me corn meal mush, fried and boiled, with syrup and a little meat, and made me sleep on the floor," she said. "I was used to having eggs and potatoes, and insisted on having them if I had to earn them myself."

MOTION IS DENIED

Court Says Mr. Cromwell Has Right of Appeal.

George J. Bloedel, who is contesting the seat of James L. Cromwell in the city council, has lost out in his effort to prevent Mr. Cromwell from taking an appeal to the supreme court from the order of the district court denying the latter a new trial.

An order signed by Judge Cant, which denied Mr. Bloedel's motion for an order directing the clerk of the court to enter judgment forthwith on the findings of fact, conclusions of law and order for judgment heretofore made, was filed in the district court this morning.

Mr. Cromwell was denied his motion for a new trial and filed a supersedeas bond in appeal. Mr. Bloedel contended that there could be no appeal from an order denying a new trial in the contest proceedings, on a supersedeas bond, and demanded entry of judgment.

Judge Cant holds that Mr. Cromwell has the right of appeal and that there can be a stay on the supersedeas bond.

The question before the court was whether there could be an appeal from the order denying a new trial and whether, if there may be, the filing of a supersedeas bond stays entry of judgment answers both questions affirmatively.

"So far as possible," says Judge Cant, in his memorandum, "strained constructions should be avoided. The election contest is a special proceeding under the law. An order denying a motion for a new trial in a special proceeding is a final order and is appealable under section 4365 of the Revised Laws of 1905. The statute, therefore, seems to warrant and require the conclusion that the order denying the motion for a new trial in this action is appealable. Any other rule would introduce much confusion. The order being appealable, the usual stay should become effectual on perfecting appeal, as has been done in this case."

GIFTS TO HOSPITALS.

Washington Star: "Many witticisms fell daily from the lips of our late king," said a Portuguese consul.

"The king was, you know, a splendid shot. At a dinner the rather inferior shooting of an English visitor was praised and some one said:

"'And Lord Gadabout, you know, sends everything he shoots to the hospitals.'

"The king laughed, and taking the long black cigar from his lips he said:

"'Naturally, since he never shoots anything but gamekeepers.'"

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Two women seated together on a Superior avenue car the other day were telling their troubles to each other.

"Well," says one in a tone of deep disgust, "your husband can't be any lazier than mine. He stays home all day long and sleeps—just sleeps and sleeps."

"I don't see how he manages to support you at all," sympathized the other woman. "Doesn't he ever work?"

"Oh, yes," admitted the first one. "He works if you'd call it work. He's a watchman at a factory, but all he has to do there is just to sit around all night with a lantern. Then he comes home and sleeps all day."

CAUGHT BY A LETTER.

Telltale Missive May Land Murderer of Sam Delick.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A scrap of a letter bearing a few words may lead to the capture of Proke Ognjenovich, who killed Sam Delick at Holman, Itasca county, March 21, last.

The sheriff's office was not notified of the crime for two days after and no trace of the guilty man could be found. Finally a letter, torn in fragments, was picked up and upon being put together it was found to be from Lorain, Ohio, and was believed to have been written by the man wanted. Sheriff Hoolihan corresponded with the authorities at Lorain and as a result a suspect is now held in the Ohio town who answers the description of Ognjenovich in every particular. He was once arrested at Bovey for running a blind pig and the sheriff knows him quite well. Sheriff Hoolihan left Tuesday morning for the Ohio town.

BRYAN MEN CARRIED BUT SIX COUNTIES, DAY SAYS

All Talk of Contests and Rival Convention is Simply a Bluff.

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supporters of John A. Johnson for the Democratic presidential nomination, following their apparent victory at the Minnesota caucuses Wednesday night, are today making their plans for the state convention, which will meet in St. Paul May 14.

Chairman Frank A. Day of the Democratic state committee, who is the private secretary of the governor, today ridiculed the threat of the Bryan men to hold a rival convention and send a contesting delegation to Denver. Chairman Day says that the Bryan men have probably carried six counties, with a total of fifty-nine delegates, and that in no event will they have more than 100 of the 953 votes in the state convention.

A conference of the Bryan leaders will be held Saturday.

F. A. Pike, secretary of the Minnesota Bryan volunteers, said there would be contests from Polk and Wasca counties, and probably from Hennepin and St. Louis counties. He added that a rival state convention was more than probable.

At noon today Chairman Day, speaking for the Johnson men, said: "The convention is ours, and that is all there is to it, and they can claim all they want. This talk of contests and a rival convention is simply a bluff, and is for the purpose of covering up a failure.

"The Bryan leaders spent $20,000 in this state, and I know it, and now with defeat staring them in the face they are trying to make those who furnished them with the stuff believe that they were defrauded. I never saw such a campaign of defamation and debauchery of voters as was carried on by this same crowd.

"Why they spent $10,000 in Hennepin county alone. What they did is without record in the history of Minnesota politics. They told people that Johnson's defeat in Minnesota would end the whole thing and now that they have failed they are crying fraud. In half the counties of this state there was no fight. There was only one ticket and that was Johnson.

"We are going to Denver with a Johnson delegation and the Bryanites can do what they please. That is all there is to it. We will not recognize them in any way. If any of their number are in the convention and shown to be entitled to a seat they will get courteous treatment."

EULENBERG ARRESTED

Former Intimate Friend of Emperor Charged With Perjury.

Said to Have Letters Which Would Cause Sensation.

Berlin, May 8.—Prince Philip zu Eulenberg was today placed under actual arrest. The crown prosecutor took this step as a result of the testimony given by two men at the prince's bedside, yesterday, to the effect that Prince zu Eulenberg had been guilty of wrongful actions with them twenty-five years ago.

Prince zu Eulenberg was involved in the court scandal in Berlin that grew out of the charges brought by Maximillian Harden, editor of Die Zukunfit, last summer. At the second Harden trial the court declared that all the charges made by Harden were absolutely without foundation. After the conclusion of the Harden case the public prosecutor started proceedings against zu Eulenberg, and the arrest of today is the outcome.

DARTMOUTH TALE REVIVED.

A while ago an item started the rounds of the college papers, beginning, it appeared, with the Daily Illini, at the University of Illinois, and working like a soft-nosed bullet both ways through the college publications. The story was about what was called a recent happening at Dartmouth. It detailed how the tax assessor of the district of Hanover, N. H., decided recently that the students of Dartmouth college ought to pay taxes. Thereupon the students decided that if they could be taxed they also could vote.

So, at a town meeting the students, who far outnumbered the other residents, united in support of two projects. One was to have erected a schoolhouse 500 feet long and one foot wide, and the other to have laid a boardwalk from Hanover to Lebanon, about five miles away. Immediately thereafter the tax assessor made up his mind that the students need not be taxed.

"Well," said a Dartmouth '95 man, when he was told about the anecdote, "that used to be a favorite story when I was in college. I wonder who started that up again."

REGISTRY TAX IS CONSTITUTIONAL

Supreme Court Affirms Verdict on Tax for Filing Mortgages.

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A decision of the supreme court was filed today affirming the constitutionality of the mortgage registry tax law, known as Chapter 328 of the General Laws of 1907.

The hearing before the supreme court was on the appeal of the Mutual Benefit Insurance company, a foreign corporation, from the order of the district court of Martin county.

The insurance company held a mortgage dated April 15, 1902, and payable April 1, 1907, as security for a note for $2,500. The company entered into an agreement July, 1907, by which the mortgage was extended five years, and on the same day the extension agreement was filed for record with the regsiter of deeds of Martin county.

Payment of the registry tax was demanded by the county official and denied by the agent of the company and as a compromise the agent agreed to pay the tax on condition that the county official would record the extension agreement as "exempt from the registration tax."

This was done and then the insurance company applied to the district court for an order requiring the clerk to whom the money was paid to refund it. The district court ruled against the insurance company and now the supreme court affirms the order of the district court.

RETURNS NINE INDICTMENTS

One Assault, Two Burglary and Five Grand Larceny Charges.

Nine indictments were returned this afternoon by the grand jury. In the case of Joe Antenuci, who is charged with having shot Frank Williamson and Joseph Gulla at Mountain Iron with a revolver on April 2, an indictment of assault in the second degree was returned.

George Conway was indicted for burglary in the second degree. Conway is charged with having broken into 527 West Superior street on March 29. In the Andrew Halberg burglary case, an indictment of burglary in the third degree was returned. Halberg is said to have entered 615 West Superior street on the night of April 11.

John Arka and John Doe of Chisholm were indicted for having stolen a quarter of beef weighing 150 pounds on March 17 at Chisholm. Grand larceny in the second degree was the charge.

Accused of having stolen on April 1 $16 from Fred Stein of Duluth, Albert Brooks was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. Charles Erickson, who is charged with having stolen $80 and a watch from Peter Myer, was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree.

JEWELRY OF CHARACTER

When jewelry is gaudy-showy—without displaying neatness or skill in execution, it is a safe conclusion that workmen, not artists created it—that it is characterless.

Such jewelery is excluded from the stocks of this establishment. Jewelry of character is first conceived in the mind of the designer, then transferred to paper from which design, craftsmen—artists in the true sense—form the jewelry. Jewelry of that nature is to be found at this establishment.

SCRAPS OF LIVY'S HISTORY.

Reason Why New Found Pages Make a Literary Sensation.

Dr. H. Fischer, a German scholar, was turning over some very old manuscrips, in the Carmelite Cloister in Pamberg, recently when some scraps of paper so wasted by time that they easily broke into pieces fell to the floor. He carefully gathered up the fragments, says the New York Sun.

He observed that the copyist had used the uncial characters, very good proof that the manuscript was produced not later than the eight or ninth century of our era. The pieces were placed in the hands of Dr. Ludwig Traube, an expert in old manuscripts, and after days of work he patched enough of them together to make three pages from Livy's Roman history.

He found that each page belonged to a different book of the history. Then he wrote a long and learned description of the pages, which was printed with protographs of two of them in the Transactions of the Imperial academy, Vienna.

Not long afterward Dr. Fischer found in the same monastery two complete pages of the Livy manuscript. They were complete because they had been pasted on the first and last leaves of another book, evidently to re-enforce them, as the book had lost its wooden covers.

They were very skillfully removed, and Dr. Fischer wrote an account of them which fills sixteen pages of the last report of the Munich Academy of Science. A photograph of one of them is also given.

All these five pages are in printed books and the learned world has been reading them for hundreds of years. Why it is that so much ado is made over the discovery of a few sheets of paper on which some monk had copied pages from Livy's history?

It is because it has been said for 200 years that there was no longer hope that any of the lost books of Livy would ever be recovered. We have been told that before the end of the seventeenth century all th libraries had been ransacked in vain for the lost treasure.

Livy spent more than forty years writing the 142 books of his history from the supposed landing of Eneas on the shores of Italy to his own time. It is known that the entire history was in existence for four or five centuries after the Christian era dawned.

But after that time 107 of the books were so completely lost that nothing has ever been found of them except a very few fragments. Only thirty-five books of Livy have been saved, and the lost books unfortunately include all the later volumes, in preparing which the author had adequate material at his command.

Whenever a bit of an old Livy manuscript is dug out of the anciet libraries some scholars think that the search for the missing books, after all, was not so thorough as it might have been, and that in some monastery or other repository may yet be found the lost treasurers of the great author. This is the reason why so much interest is shown in the fragments occasionally recovered from old Livy manuscripts.

DOCTOR CURED HIMSELF.

Dubuque Correspondence Des Moines Register and Leader: Dr. F. J. Hilger returned to this city some three months ago—returned, his friends said, to die. And yet he has cheated the grim visitor. A tent, especially constructed, was procured. A house in the hill districts was rented, and Mrs. Hilger, together with the doctor, drove to the proposed dwelling place followed by an expressman with the tent.

Into the airy dwelling the doctor, then seemingly face to face with death, was placed. Soon the effect of the treatment was manifest. Living in the tent, his meals brought to him from the residence hard by by his wife, the oxygen began to build up the diseased tissues.

At night, with no protection save the canvas roof above, the doctor sleeps in his open air house, and gradually the strange life began to put a bloom on his cheeks that had been foreign to them for over a year. His breathing seldom was stopped by the hacking cough as it had been prior to the trial of the open air treatment.

The cure is regarded by his medical associates as well as the general public as marvellous. Plenty of sleep, strict attention to diet and the careful nursing of a devoted wife, together with undiluted and unstinted fresh air, are making Dr. Hilger a new man.

In his few months' life out of doors he has gained almost twenty-five pounds in weight. No vestige of the cough now remains. He is coming into his own. He will be in condition to resume his practice in a few months. What all the nostrums known to medical sceince were powerless to do the ozone of the Iowa prairies has accomplished.

THE YOUNG WOMAN REPORTER.

James L. Ford, in Success Magazine: That it is easier to rob a woman through an appeal to her sympathy than in any other way is a fact that is well known, not only to the blind beggar who owns the tenement house in which he lives, but also to every one of the vast metropolitan horde that stands ready to take advantage of her helplessness or ignorance. I cannot speek too strongly in regard to this jagged rock against which innumerable beats and sponges and swindlers will endeavor to steer the ship of the inexperienced young woman, caring little whether or not she founder, provided they serve their own miserable ends.

It is beause of the presence of this rock in the very heart of Park Row's much traveled channel that we seldom find a woman occupying a chair of musical, literary, or dramatic criticism, or, indeed, filling any other position that is liable to make a fatal call upon her sympathetic emotions. Even when she is absolutely honest in her financial dealings she sees no harm in making use of her office as critic or writer to puff some singer, actress, or fame seeker to whom she has taken a fancy. There is not a woman before the public who has not found this out long ago and who does not try to attract to herself all the writers of her sex with whom she comes in contact; feeling perfectly sure that forever after they will work for her while she sleeps, printing her name whenever it is possible, sounding her praises in type and by word of mouth, and sometimes even forfeiting their hard-earned positions through the zeal with which they use their pens in her service.

INGRATITUDE TO EMPLOYES.

Orison Swett Marden in Success Magazine: It is a pretty serious thing, Mr. Employer, to vent your spleen upon those who are really doing their best to help you succeed. Did you ever think that your success depends very largely upon your employes, that they are really your silent partners, that you could not possibly get rich without them?

Did you ever think that many of those working for you might, given opportunities as good as those you have had, be vastly superior to you?

You would better be a little careful how you treat those young people who are working for you, Mr. Employer, because even without superior advantages and opportunities they may some day be employers themselves in your line and you may be obliged to look up to them for advanced ideas. They may, some time, become your superiors.

How often have I seen employers humiliated in after years in meeting those who had once worked for them, and who had been humiliated and abused a thousand times by them, but who pushed to the front and were in positions of power, often above those of their former employers!

Many employers do not praise, upon principle. They think it is bad for the employe; that criticism is much better than appreciation. Nothing is falser than this idea. Some people are so constituted that they live upon appreciation and praise.

WEALTH IN WATER.

By adopting a constructive policy with regard to the waterways of the state, Illinois has made a tardy, but still timely, admission of the fact that its water highways are assets as valuable as its land highways.

The people of the state, keenly alive to the worth of their public franchises in general, have been content that their officials should ignore the wealth-producing water properties which must be regarded as essentially and inherently the properties of the whole people and, as such, improperly posesssed by a few to the dispossession of the many.

As carriers of commerce and as producers of power, the streams of Illinois have a value which even now is but vaguely comprehended. As producers of power on turbine wheels the rivers, thus far considered by engineeers as available, are rated, by rough estimates, as representing an investment of $176,500,000.

In the project of river reclamation, upon which the state has entered, dealing with only two of the streams, potential values representing, by a conservative estimate an investment of $69,200,000, or by a not unreasonable estimate, an investment of $86,500,000 are involved—they being capable of returning to the state from $3,400,000 to $4,000,000 annually.

An important article by Governor Charles S. Deneen of the state of Illinois, opens thus, as the leading feature of the Technical World Magazine for April. Governor Deneen deals with Illinois' great water-wealth in a way to open the eyes, not only of Illinoisans, but of citizens of other states, to possibilities that are nothing less than astounding.

Northern Pacific Planning Improvements in That Town.

Moorhead, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald)—Agent L. T. Stodder announces a change in plans as regards the proposed increase in the yard and trackage facilities of the Northern Pacific at this point. It was first planned to fill in the big coulee sufficiently to allow a line of track extending from Eighth street to near Fourth street. It is now announced that the big coulee will be entirely filled in from Sixth to Eighth streets, and that loading tracks will be laid. This will add largely to the yard facilities of the local station, an addition which the business of the station demands.

OAKES SECURES NEXT MEETING

North Dakota Modern Woodmen Hold Their State Camp.

Mandan, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state camp of the Modern Woodmen of America was held here this week. Several important matters were attended to, among them being the selection of delegates to the supreme camp meeting at Peoria, Ill., June 16. Oakes was selected for next year's meeting.

W. O. Joos of Wimbledon was elected state consul and P. J. McClary of Devils Lake was elected state clerk. The delegates elected to head the camp were: H. F. Meeker of Jamestown, who was made chairman of the delegation, and H. L. Landblom of Fargo was made secretary. The other delegates are as follows: M. W. Day, Grand Forks; James Mahoon, Cando; W. H. McConnell, Michigan; Charles Hein, Hankinson; M. K. Kelly, Logan; L. A. Olson, Knox; J. P. McCosker, Bowbells, and I. N. Steen, Mandan.

Brainerd Deadbeat Catches Local Boarding House for Bill.

Brainerd, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. Randolph E. Simpson, who posed as a horse doctor, having his office in Purdy's livery barn, and who left for Duluth with many mourning friends, returned Wednesday under the escort of Sheriff Erickson. He had been sent for at the request of P. M. Johnson, who was out over $60 on a board bill. Mr. Simpson was up in the municipal court and pleaded guilty to the charge of jumping a board bill, and Judge Allbright gave him forty days' free board in the county jail in lieu of a fine of $60, which he was unable to pay. According to current reports, Mr. Simpson left a landlady in Duluth in a similar manner to his departure from the National.

ATTEMPTED INCENDIARISM.

Stevens Hotel at Flaxton, N. D., is Set on Fire.

Flaxton, N. D., May 8.—An attempt was made to burn the Stevens house at this place Wednesday night about 12 o'clock. Kerosene was scattered about the kitchen and a fire started, but it was extinguished before much damage was done. One woman was made unconscious by smoke and gas from burning oil.

Had the fire once passed beyond control the whole business portion of Flaxton would have been burned. No arrests have been made. Citizens have subscribed $250 for evidence leading to the conviction of the incendiary.

WESTERN WILD ANIMAL HIDES ARE PALMED OFF.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 8.—State Game Warden Pierce and Deputies Ash and Frost claim to have unearthed evidence of a wolf bounty bunco game in Chippewa and Luce counties, which overshadows any other affair of the kind that has come to light. As charged, it is simply the maintenance of a system for securing coyote scalps from the Far West, where coyotes can be killed as easily as rabbits in this country, and presenting them for the wolf bounties at the offices of the county clerks here. It is believed that the plan has been worked for some time, and that the two counties have been thus defrauded out of considerable sums of money.

CATCHES ACTRESS' GLOVE.

It Was Thrown From Stage, Now They're Married.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Bessie Moulten and Paul Mills, members of the High Jinks company at the Star theater this week, were married by Judge Halsey, having received a special dispensation. This is the culmination of a romance in which the two met while engaged with different companies in New York, when Mr. Mills caught a glove thrown from the stage by the young woman. At the first opportunity he joined the company with which Miss Moulten was engaged and won her love.

MOTHER GRANTED WRIT.

Wins First Round in Battle for Possession of Child.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Charles F. Templeton has issued a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Mrs. Laura Story against the North Dakota Children's Home, of Fargo, in the action brought by Mrs. Storey to recover possession of her child of 10 years. The writ is returnable next Wednesday before Judge Templeton, when arguments will be made by the attorneys in the case. Young Richardson was sent to the children's home a few months ago, following the death of his father, a victim of burning. Mrs. Storey had been separated from Richardson and had secured a divorce and remarried. Richardson had possession of the children at the time of his death. The children were left without means of support and were cared for by the Pembina county commissioners.

TWO PIONEERS DIE.

Preston, Minn., May 8.—Peter McCracken of York township is dead. He was one of the pioneers of Fillmore county, settling here in 1856. He practiced law until a few years ago, and was a representative from this county two sessions of the legislature. He was 79 years old.

POSTMEN'S WALKING FEATS.

Westminster Gazette: There must be few, even among "men of letters," who, like Joseph Hunt, a Lincolnshire postman, can claim to have tramped a distance of, roughly, 240,000 miles, not much less than the equivalent of ten journeys around the earth.

Not long ago George Thompson retired from service as postman in the Langrick district of Yorkshire, after covering on foot 125,000 miles in twenty-six years of letter carrying, a service fourteen years shorter than that of his Lincolnshire rival.

In thirty-four years Orme M. Brown walked 111,000 miles as postman between Cupar and Kilmany and Logie—a distance, as was stated at the appropriate presentation to him of an easy chair, nearly equal to half that which separates the moon from the earth.

John Simmonds of Henley-on-Thames retired with a record of 181,000 miles of fair "heel and toe," the result of forty years' tramping; while most amazing of all, Thomas Phipps, a postman in the Chipping Norton district, was credited with an aggregate journey of 440,000 miles between the years 1840 and 1898.

AL FIELD IS A BOOMER

Says the West is Rapidly Swinging Into Line.

"Tell you about what I have heard about Johnson? Well, rather!"

That was the response of Al G. Field to a question by a Herald reporter as to what expressions of sentiment the minstrel man had heard in his travels over the country. His answer was spontaneous and hearty, too. It was none of the cut and dried press line of talk. It was from the shoulder, and from the way Mr. Field punctuated his utterances, with body blow arguments and earnest statements, it was obvious that he has the utmost faith not only in Governor Johnson's nomination, but in his election as the next president of the United States.

"Almost every business man I have talked with during the past six weeks," said Mr. Field, "has told me that he believed that Johnson stood a far greater chance of being elected than did William Jennings Bryan. I have talked with all kinds of sound, conservative business men, and they want to see Johnson get the nomination—if they are Democrats. If they are Republicans, they want to see Bryan get the nomination. Why? Because the Republicans know that Johnson stands a great deal better chance of defeating the Republican candidate than does Mr. Bryan.

"Now, for instance,"—here Mr. Field began to warm to his subject—"you can't find a Bryan supporter who will declare that Bryan is sure to carry the doubtful states. They will say perhaps, and they may claim that he will carry New York state. But he won't. He not only will not carry New York, but he won't carry any of the doubtful states that his admirers are claiming for him.

"In New York the business men are decidedly opposed to the nomination of William Jennings Bryan. They have no faith in his political stability, nor are they sure that his nomination or election would result in the return of business confidence. Moreover, they don't believe he can possibly be elected. They think that Johnson can be elected, and that conviction is growing.

"In traveling over the country and meeting the greatly divergent class of men that a man in my profession necessarily comes in contact with, it is only natural that I should have an opportunity of ascertaining the sentiment of the people. I think I have, and I tell you candidly and sincerely that the people of the West, with whom I have talked within the last five weeks, are of the firm opinion that Johnson is not only the man to lead his party to victory, but that he is a sound, conservative man, with statesmanlike views; a leader who has the confidence of his own people; a man whose striking personality is rapidly gaining the confidence and belief of the people of the West; and whose cause is gaining thousands of adherents.

"Bryan would not have secured the indorsement of Ohio, were it not that the indorsement came in the nature of a compromise to a bitter faction fight. The voters of Ohio are not disposed to believe that Bryan can possibly be elected, should he be so fortunate as to secure the nomination.

"There is a feeling that Bryan has set his aim on the presidential chair, and that all other claims are left out of consideration. How different is the attitude of Johnson. He had repeatedly stated that he would be a candidate if the people so wished, and, furthermore, that he would heartily support any other nominee. Personally, I don't believe that Mr. Bryan has the slightest chance of being elected, should he be nominated at the Denver convention.

"The Johnson progress will bear watching, too, for, like the fellow who got his first good look at the bear, he has only begun to run."

An Emphatic Fact.

FARGO NORWEGIANS TO HAVE BIG CELEBRATION.

Fargo, N. D., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The coming of May 17 on Sunday has caused the local Norwegian celebration to be fixed for May 16, and the event is to be made a memorable one in Fargo because of the elaborate program prepared by the committee. Strenuous efforts are being made to secure Bishop Bang, the primate of the Norwegian church, now in this country. It will not be definitely known for a day or two whether this can be done. F. H. Gade, Norwegian consul general in Chicago, and Prof. Kildahl, president of St. Olafs, will be the chief speakers in the Norwegian language, while President Worst of the agricultural college and Former Congressman M. N. Johnson will speak in English.

THE GOOD WILL HABIT.

O. S. Marden, in "Success Magazine:" The habit of holding the good will kindly attitude of mind toward everybody has a powerful influence upon the character. It lifts the mind above petty jealousies and meanness; it enriches and enlarges the whole life. Wherever we meet people, no matter if they are strangers, we feel a certain kinship with and friendliness for them, greater interest in them, if we have formed the good will habit. We feel that if we only had the opportunity of knowing them, we should like them.

In other words, the kindly habit, the good will habit makes us feel more sympthy for everybody. And if we radiate this helpful, friendly feeling, others will reflect it back to us.

On the other hand, if we go through life with a cold, selfish mental attitude, caring only for our own, always looking for the main chance, only thinking of what will further our own interests, our own comforts, totally indifferent to others, this attitude will, after a while, harden the feelings and marbleize the affections, and we shall become dry, pessimistic, and uninteresting.

Try this year to hold the kindly, good will attitude toward everybody. If your nature is hard you will be suprised to see how it will soften under the new influence. You will become more sympathetic, more charitable toward others' weaknesses and failings, and you will grow more magnanimous and whole-souled. The good will attitude will make us more lovable, interesting, and helpful. Others will look upon us in the same way in which we regard them. The cold, crabbed, unsocial, selfish persons finds the same qualities reflected from others.

If seven-tenths of the people who are looking for a place to live should read your ad. in The Herald would it not "help some?"

COLERAINE MEN SUED

Western Federation of Miners Escorted From Town; Seek Damages.

S. G. Plummer and Others Are Defendants in Civil Action.

During the labor troubles on the range last summer, two representatives of the Western Federation of Miners were evicted from Coleraine by a party of citizens of that place, and the anger of the pair over the reception accorded them on the Western Mesaba finds expression today in a suit for $2,500 damages against S. G. Plummer, et al, of Coleraine.

Mr. Plummer is in Duluth today. He does not seem to be greatly worried over the case, for he does not think that the Western Federation men have any just right to extract $2,500 from him and the others of Coleraine against whom the action is being brought.

Maxwell Scott is another well-known and reputable resident of Coleraine who figures as a defendant in the case. It will be heard at Grand Rapids, as Coleraine is in Itasca county.

Eugene Decenso is the Western Federation man who is seeking the damages. He is very wrathy over the conduct of the Coleraine people upon the occasion of his visit to the Western Mesaba.

It seems that Ceecenso and another man visited Coleraine during the miners' strike on the ranges, with the intention of securing recruits for the Western Federation and its cause. About that time there were disturbances at Ely, Hibbing and other places in the iron country and the Coleraine folk did not take kindly to the mission of Decenso and his companion.

A committee of citizens took matters in their own hands and escorted the two men from the limits of Coleraine and Bovey and intimated to them, so it is said, that their continual absence from the locality would be greatly appreciated.

SOME EVERYDAY HOODOOS.

Antics of Inanimate Objects That Make Workers Fear Them.

Every day something happens that seems to justify the superstition of workers who find that certain machines are dangerous, certain tools contrary, certain engines little better than man killers, says the Chicago Tribune.

At the present moment there stands in the car barns of the Union Traction company at Elston avenue and Addison a half-wrecked street car, that is given up as hopelessly hoodooed. There is not a man in the barn who would take the hoodooed car out on a run for any money you could name.

The motormen say the hoodooed car has always been a "bad actor" and a "track jumper." It was as finicky and notional as a coquette. Sometimes for days or weeks it would run along like any other car, safe, sane and reliable. Then the demon of contrariness would get into it.

It was this car that killed Motorman Meyers a few weeks ago. His regular run was from the limits barns out Belmont avenue to Milwaukee. One Saturday night a few weeks ago the hoodooed car was buzzing along West Belmont without a passenger inside. It was going no faster than usual, the track was clear and there was no hint of danger.

At Sawyer avenue the car suddenly jumped the track and ran off into the curbstone and turned over. It went off just as easily as if there had been a switch there, and when the stillness came after the shock it was found that the motorman was badly hurt. The word passed along Belmont avenue that there was "a car off the track at Sawyer," and Mrs. Meyers, who lived only a few blocks away, was one of the first to go.

Meyer was taken to the hospital, where he died. After they buried him the car was fixed up and put back into service. The inspectors, it is said, gauged the track and "tried out" the car and could find nothing wrong. It seemed just as true as any other car on the line.

Two weeks later, on a Saturday night, the same car jumped the track at the same spot. It ran out and struck the same curbstone and turned over in the same position. The motorman was not hurt, but the conductor was cut by the flying glass.

Now the hoodooed car is back in the barn, and they say the company will not try to use it again. The men would like to see a bonfire made out of it in order to make sure. The inspectors may find it "all right" and "O. K." it as much as they please, but who would want to stand up at the controller and take the car on its journey? And who, as a passenger, would not wait till "the next car," even if it made him late to work, rather than ride in the "hoodoo?"

Some automobiles are said to act in a like contrary and malevolent way, and all railroad men speak of dangerous spots on the track, of runs that are precarious and often fatal, of engines and cars that are "tricky," to say the least of it.

A cutlery company will make a hundred razors from the same piece of steel by the same process, and part of the razors will be good and part of them bad. It may be fifty of one kind, or seventy-five or twenty-five—nobody knows. The maker doesn't know, the buyer doesn't know. Barbers say that even the price doesn't seem to make much difference. You may get a good razor for a quarter or a bad one for $5. And the same razor will get a contrary edge today, so that you can hardly shave with it, and tomorrow, without additional sharpening, it will work like a charm.

One tap will go on a bolt easily and stay there. Another tap will hardly go on at all. A third may be screwed on tight and snug, and yet keep coming off in spite of all that can be done. One tool will break at the first using, another will do the same piece of work a thousand times and suddenly give way; a third will wear itself down to the handle and never fail you.

Sometimes men that work with machines have a premonition of coming disaster, as do the men that sail on the seas or thread the winding paths of the big woods. Nature as well as pieces of mechanism seem able to communicate to man when they are in a calamitous and threatening mood.

The other day the news dispatches told of a countryman who was in the woods with his son and another man, near Elkhart, Ind. They had been cutting down trees and sawing the trunks into certain lengths.

"Let's not cut this tree," said the countryman as he passed before a big oak. "Let's go home. We've been unlucky all day. I'm afraid of this tree."

The son and his companion laughed at this superstitious fear, and attacked the tree with their axes. The older man, with a troubled look on his face, went off a little distance and sat down on a log, as he said "to sharpen a saw," but really, as the others thought, to get away from the tree he feared.

Without any warning and as deadly of aim as if it had been seized and hurled by an invisible arm, a dead limb broke off the tree and fell upon the old man and killed him.

All these things and a thousand others that happen daily under the eye of the worker, embracing everything from a small annoyance to a disaster, may be mere coincidences. They may be silly superstitions. Still, I would not like to ride in that hoodooed street car—even if it always seems to wait till there are no passengers aboard before it jumps the track and runs into its favorite curbstone.

A WONDER HOUSE.

Along the boulevards and in the cafes of Paris, Francs gossips, with their keep scent for whatever is new and bizarre, are just now talking of the wonder house which M. Knap has built for the use of himself and family and for the goggle-eyed astonishment of his friends. So writes Henry M. Hyde in the Technical World Magazine. One must take the train for Troyes to visit the Villa Feria Electra, where the necromancer—who also happens to be a famous electrical engineer—lives in handsome, as well as entirely unusual style.

The villa stands in a beautiful park, planted with trees and shrubbery and surrounded by a wall. Approaching the arched entrance gate you press an electric button, and at the very start step at once into a country full of wonders which are calculated to take the breath of even the most hardened of Parisian boulevardiers. Almost at the instant you ring, there comes to you, from apparently nowhere in particular, the sound of a voice inquiring your name and the purpose of your visit. Instinctively you answer—speaking to the iron gate in your usual tone—that you have called with a note of introduction to M. Knap. The voice answers that the master of the villa is at home and will be glad to receive you. Forthwith, apparently of its own volition, the great gate swings open for you, and you proceed along the curved walk, which leads to the house. In the most mysterious way the voice which greeted your ring of the bell seems to follow you as you walk through the park. It is the average normal voice of a gracious host bidding you welcome, and possibly calling your attention to various rare and beautiful flowering shrubs, which you may happen to be passing at the time. It is difficult to realize, without actually experiencing it, the weird effect of holding a somewhat prolonged conversation with an absolutely invisible person, who seems to keep perfect pace with you, no matter whether you may be walking slowly or at a rapid gait.

"SPEAKIN' OF LOVE—"

Joel Chandler Harris in Uncle Remus' Magazine: "Speakin' of love," said Mr. Sanders, although no one had spoken of it—not even the pretty young stenographer, who scorns to deny that she knows something of the feeling, and who is always ready, if approached in the right spirit, to show a cherished photograph of a very young man with his hair parted in the middle and plastered down on each side—"why in the nation does it come on in spring? Ain't it jest as good for cold weather? Does the fust frost kill it? An', ef so, why don't somebody patent a flannel-lined box that'll keep it whilst the big freezes is a-gwine on? That's what pesters me. Ef its the most precious thing that the world knows anything about, why don't we have speshually contrived hothouses for it, so's we kin take it out on pleasant days an' see ef it's swivelled or swunk sence the last time we handled it? I ain't speakin' for myself, the Lord knows! I've seed an' heern too much endurin' the last fifty year or so to be bothered much. It's the youngsters I'm a-thinkin of; I want 'em for to feel good when the sap ain't a-risin' in the sweetgum trees; I want to see 'em sittin' in front of a big hickory-wood fire, roastin' taters, parchin' goobers, an' holdin' hands when the old folks is lookin' t'other way. Accordin' to my way of thinkin', winter is the time for reel true love. Anything that can't stand superstitions. Still, I would not like to ride in that hoodooed street car—even if it always seems to wait till there are no passengers aboard before it jumps the track and runs into its favorite curbstone.

GOVERNMENT REPORT SENDS WHEAT UPWARD

American Markets Show Big Bulge Over Previous Day.

About Fifty Loads Worked for Export in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 8.—With the issuance of the government crop report shortly after 11 o'clock today, the wheat market, already firm, took a big spurt and closed at the top level. The active options closed more than 2 points over yesterday in Duluth.

The government report was expected to be rather bearish and when it did not prove as much so as expected, prices began to soar. Shorts scurried to cover and there was a wild attempt from all sides to get on.

The foreign demand was very firm, about fifty loads of wheat being worked by local exporters. Counting the seaboard, there were about 85 loads of wheat worked for export today. This included No. 1 northern, durum, Manitoba and hard winter wheat.

The Argentine shipments were small and cables were firm. Estimates of the world's shipments, exclusive of North America, are 4,400,000 bushels.

Liverpool closed 1⅛d higher to ⅛d lower, Berlin 1⅞ higher and Budapest 3⅜c higher.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat as a result of the firmer American cables yesterday and the fact of the lighter Argentine shipments with a decided firmness in the spot situation caused light offerings and prompted heavy covering of shorts which resulted in an advance of ½d to 1d. During the morning July continued to be well supported and further advance of ¾d with sellers few and the demand urgent. At mid-day, the market was firm and from ½d to 1⅛d higher than Thursday.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Expectation of Bearish Government Report Gives Wheat Easy Tone.

Chicago, May 8.—The expectation of a bearish government report later in the day caused an easy tone in the wheat market at today's opening. Liverpool cables were slightly higher, but the fear of the forthcoming report offset this factor. July wheat opened ⅜@½c to ⅝@⅝c higher at 99⅞@99c and sold off to 90⅝@⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 223 cars against 167 cars last week and 505 cars one year ago.

The government crop report instead of showing a better condition of the crops as had been expected by a majority of the traders, showed a decline in condition as compared with the last report. The result was a big bulge which carried July wheat up to 93¾c. The close was strong with July 3¼c higher at 93½@⅝c.

May corn opened at a new record for the season today, selling at from 74c to 75c. The market, however, in general was quiet and firm. Trading was not heavy. The constant wet weather in the corn belt at present dominates all other influences. July corn opened ⅛@⅜c to ¼@⅝c higher, at 64⅝c to 64¾c and sold at 64½c. Local receipts were 89 cars, with 5 of contract grade.

The market became strong along with wheat and July sold up to 65¼c. The close was strong with July ⅝c higher, at 65½@¾c.

The oats market was steady and quiet. July oats opened ¼c higher at 47½c and sold at 47⅝c. Local receipts were 124 cars.

The provisions market was dull, and trading was light. July pork was 7½c lower at $13.52½. Lard was 2½c lower at $8.50. Ribs were 5c lower at $7.27½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.05¾; July, 93½@⅝c; September, 88¾@⅞c. Corn—May, 74c; July, 65½@¾c; September, 63½@⅝c. Oats—May, old, 65c; May, 55c; July, old, 48c; July, 46½c; September, 37⅝c. Pork—May, $13.50; July, 13.65; September, $13.90. Lard—May, $8.42½c; July, $8.52½c; September, $8.70. Ribs—May, $7.12½ to $7.12½@$7.15; July, $7.35@7.35½; September, $7.60. Rye—Cash, 81c. Barley—Cash, 65@74c. Timothy—Cash, $4.25. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.03@$-.04½; No. 3 red, 97c@$1.03; No. 2 hard, $1.01½@1.06; No. 3 hard, 97c@$1.04; No. 3 spring, 98c@$1.06; others, nothing doing. Corn—No. 2, 74c; No. 3, 72½c. Oats—No. 2, nothing doing; No. 3, 53c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Prices Advance Quickly on Receipt of Government Report.

Minneapolis, May 8.—The government report was awaited today with the greatest interest. Cables were up at the opening, and that gave the market a strong start, but pending receipt of the government figures traders hesitated. Minneapolis stock will increase about 150,000 bus for the week. Minneapolis got 169 cars against 278 a year ago, and Duluth 6 against 197. The government condition report will not be considered so bad. Prices advanced quickly to new high points for both May and July delivery. July opened at $1.08⅛; high, $1.09⅜@⅝; low, $1.07⅝; closed, $1.09⅝; September wheat closed at 93½c; May wheat closed at $1.11.

The cash wheat market was better and was ½c over July for No. 1 northern and ½c over for No. 2.

The millers were buyers of the best grades.

Close: No. 1 northern, $1.11⅜@⅞ spot, $1.11⅛ to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.099 spot, $1.05⅜ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1.02⅜@1.07⅜.

No. 3 yellow corn 68¼@68c; No. 3 white oats, 52⅝c; barley market was a shade better than yesterday. Nearly everything on sale was feed barley. Close: 56@67c.

Cash flax firm and in good demand at 1c under the Duluth July with locals busy buying. Close: $1.21¼.

Bran in bulk was quoted by millers at $21.75@22.00 and very strong at the figures. With a good demand.

The flour market was very strong and while the millers did not put their prices up they said that an advance would follow if wheat retains its present tone and higher price level. Demand was better and a good many flour buyers that had been holding off closed their orders on the advance in wheat. Shipments, 46,285 barrels. First patents, $5.50@5.65; second patents, $4.35@4.50; first clears, $4.20@4.60; second clears, $3.50@3.60.

THE NEW CACTUS.

Botanical authorities are discussing, with lively differences in opinion, the actual utilitarian importance of Luther Burbank's recent production of a spineless cactus. So writes E. S. Merriam in the Technical World Magazine. One California physician, Dr. Landone of Los Angeles, is reported as having tried the experiment of living and workin gtwo weeks on a diet consisting almost exclusively of the new plant. He felt well, gained half a pound in weight, and celebrated the end of the experimental fornight by giving a cactus dinner to a party of brother physicians. The soup was of cactus and celery, followed by an omelet of cactus and green peppers. Fried cactus came next, then a salad of lettuce with cactus fruit, sherbet of cactus fruit, and a drink made of cactus juice completed the remarkable menu.

All this is suggestive as to what may be done in a cactus growing region when orginary supplies run low. The main interest of the situation lies, however, more in its relation to the food of four-footed folks. Some agricultural authorities see in this new possibility of producing a cactus minus armor the promise of an additional forage crop to fill the present painful lack in desert regions. Others believe that the cactus, once disarmed, so to speak, would, in these regions where it is most needed, be promptly destroyed by hungry animals, and the result would be its entire disappearance. It is an interesting question, but it probably cannot be settled by academic discussion. Practical experiment alone can demonstrate whether the magician of Santa Rosa has actually in creased the world's food resources or only "done a stunt" in fancy horticulture.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

But the Close Was Somewhat Feverish and Irregular.

Lackawanna Rose Forty-Two Points and Then Lost Twenty.

New York, May 8.—Canadian Pacific, General Electric and National Biscuit advanced 1 in the opening dealings in stocks today and Ontario & Western ⅝. The movement otherwise was irregular and with some points of depression amongst the metal stocks. American Smelting preferred declined 1.

There was a uniform decline after the opening dealings which brought prices to a level that induced new buying. The demand was keenest for St. Paul, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Canadian Pacific among the high priced stocks and Rock Island preferred in the lowest.

Union Pacific's rise of 1⅝ through 140 was a stimulating influence on the whole market an dprices were lifted steadily to the extent of a point or more for active issues. Bonds were firm.

Profit taking sales were without effect on prices until 1 o'clock when the active stocks ran off about half. American Express jumped 10 points.

An active demand for Reading gave a new impulse to the market but the response generally was slight outside of the coalers. Reading touched 111⅛ at a rise of 2¾. Central Railroad of New Jersey improved 3½. Pittsburg, C. C. & St. Louis fell 2. Westinghouse Electric, 1½ and Toledo Railways, 1⅜.

The market closed somewhat feverish and irregular. Reading forged upwards again, an extreme 3¼, the second preferred 2½, and the first preferred 1¾, and Deleware & Hudson 4½. Lackawanna ran up 42 in 5 to 15 point jumps and then fell back 20 points. Later St. Paul rose 2⅛, the preferred 3. There was selling to take advantage of the sustaining effect of these advances.

Stock Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Union and Southern Pacific were the leaders today and carried the others along with them. General sentiment is very bullish and we find that there has been a large amount of public buying the past few days. The short interest has been largely elliminated and I look for a temporary reaction from this level. I think money can be made by selling for a turn on the next bulge.

AMERICAN MONEY IN EUROPE.

Boston Globe: How much money American travelers leave annually in Europe is being discussed in newspapers and magazines more earnestly than ever. The total sum, it is generally admitted, has been growing enormously within five years. Writers in foreign newspaners are astonished at the increased output of American dollars in Great Britain, France, Switzerland, Italy and other countries, and prominent bankers aver that the millions of dollars expended represent a very large portion of the revenue of some of the countries in question.

A conservative estimate places the number of American travelers to Europe this year between 125,000 and 150,000. Another estimate based on the all-the-year-round travel from the United States indicates that at least 300,000 Americans cross the Atlantic and expend $700 a head, exclusive of steamship tickets, or $228,000,000 in all. Call the total figure even a little over one-half of that sum, or $125,000,000, and it is seen that foreign countries must profit immensely from the tourists.

Butte & Superior should be bought at this price, for in a few months they should reach the big vein on the 1,200-foot level and should then get rich ore in big quantities.

Shattuck is one of the big mines of the country and is one of the best buys on the board.

WHY HE DIDN'T COME.
Washington Star: Capt. Pritchard of the Mauretania said the other day of a strange sea custom:
"All of us have our customs. We Welsh have certain customs, you Americans have certain others, and if ours seem strange to you, why yours seem strange to us.
"Strangest of all were the customs of a young Abyssinian prince who once sailed with me.
"The passengers liked this young man, and at the end of the voyage they arranged a dinner in his honor in London.
"It was a smart dinner—orchids and champagne no end—but—the prince never turned up!
"Reproached the next morning by the chairman of the committee, asked indignantly why he had not come to the dinner, the prince answered, simply and calmly:
"'I was not hungry.'"

WILL SPEND $60,000 TO MAKE MINNESOTA "DRY"

Prohibitionists Planning Energetic Campaign for Next Fall.

Every Town and County in State Will be Organized.

J. E. Wilkinson of St. Paul, one of the heads of the Prohibition movement in Minnesota, who is in the city today, says that $60,000 will be raised as a political campaign fund in this state this year, for the purpose of electing Prohibitionists to the legislature. He expects that twenty Prohibition legislators will be elected in Minnesota next fall.

Mr. Wilkinson is one of the most enthusiastic men in the movement in the United States today. He is in Duluth for the purpose of arranging details in connection with the coming visit of C. N. Howard of Rochester, N. Y., who will speak on temperance at the Pilgrim Congregational church on May 31. Mr. Howard is said to be the man who made Birmingham, Ala., go "dry."

"The Prohibition movement has got such a start now that nothing can stop it," said Mr. Wilkinson, today.

"We are organizing in the same fashion as the regular political parties, and will have our work down to a fine system. We are planning on putting 106 workers into the field in this state to get prohibition legislators elected. Every precinct will be organized, and these 106 active workers will be scattered all over Minnesota. No part will be neglected. We already have engaged eighty of these workers, and in the list have some excellent material. We are not having any difficulty in getting men of the right kind, and in a very short time will have completed our list of 106.

"In connection with the campaign for prohibition, we are asking 500 men to contribute $100 each to help the movement along. One hundred and fifty of these contributions have been made now, giving us $15,000 to work with, and it doesn't look as if we were going to have much trouble in getting the additional $15,000. We intend to raise $30,000 more in other ways, so you see we will have a working capital of $60,000 cash. We should be able to accomplish a good deal with this amount, and with the force of workers at our command.

"At the last election we were able to land three prohibitionists in the legislature, and 1,200 votes more would have been sufficient to elect ten more. We want twenty legislators this year, and I am confident we will be able to get them. The prohibition movement is spreading rapidly, and interest in it at present is greater than ever before."

Mr. Howard will speak in Superior the afternoon of May 31.

TESTIMONY ON DRUNKS

Sergeant Gillon and Woodsman Do Not Agree on Subject.

Would-be Suicide Allowed to Go Under Suspended Sentence.

How far under the influence of liquor does a man have to be before he can properly be called drunk?

Expert testimony was introduced on this subject before Judge Cutting in municipal court this morning. The testimony was at variance. John Carpenter, who tried to commit suicide in the Joliet hotel, 715 West Superior street, yesterday, was the reason for bringing up the question. The court was trying to ascertain whether Carpenter was drunk or not, at the time he tried to shuffle from the world.

Sergeant Gillen, after careful consideration, thought the man could hardly be called drunk, but Louis Belden, a French lumberpack, who seemed to have some knowledge of intoxicating liquor and its influence on human beings, said there was no question but that Carpenter was drunk. Carpenter was allowed go under suspended sentence.

"I could smell liquor on the man's breath when I was four feet from him," said Sergeant Gillen. "He was unquestionably under the influence of liquor to a certain extent, but I wouldn't want to say positively that he was drunk!"

"You have had considerable experience in arresting men under the influence," interposed the court. "You should be able to say positively whether he was drunk or not drunk."

"I don't know exactly where to draw the line between a sober man and a drunken one; it is a delicate question," responded the officer.

"Was he drunk or wasn't he at the time of his arrest?"

"He wasn't drunk," said the sergeant, after wrinkling his brow in thought for half a minute.

Judge Cutting put the same question to Louis Belden, one of the witnesses in the case.

"He was drunk, yer honor," asserted Belden, without hesitation. "There are different kinds of drunks. One man can carry an awful load, maybe walking straight along the street, without staggering a bit, and still be awful drunk. Another may take a few drinks and fall over in a stupor. It all depends. There are drunks and drunks. Carpenter was good and drunk, but he carried the load well, like the gentleman he is, and put up a good front. Any one who didn't know his ways might think he wasn't really drunk."

Carpenter is French, and when questioned through an interpreter, admitted he was drunk when the attempt at suicide was made. He said he had climbed out of the slough of despond, and no longer felt like entering the spirit world. He promised to be good and seek work. Testimony showed that he was a hard-working man, and that his reason for wishing to die was that he didn't want to "sponge" off his friends. He is about 60 years old.

Carpenter was dead broke. As he left the court room, Judge Cutting slipped him a dollar, saying it might hold him over until he got a job.

About a dozen drunks were included in the police court grist this morning. Dave Hunter and Ralph Di Gregorio were in for assault. Hunter admitted kicking his wife, but said he had good cause, and pleaded not guilty to the charge of being drunk. His hearing was set for this afternoon. He said she was associating with other men on very familiar terms, and that she deserved some form of punishment.

Di Gregorico also pleaded guilty to the charge of assault, and was fined $1 and costs. He said Pete Monteleone talked about him behind his back, and called him bad names to his face, and expressed regret that he hadn't administered even a more thorough beating for the insults offered.

Chorus Girls Wrestle.

A match between wrestlers who stop to fix their hair just as they are about to secure a fall was the spectacle offered to the audience at the Metropolitan last evening. It was chorus girls' night and two of them went on for a burlesque of the Gotch-Hackenschmidt affair. They got first prize all right, for their act proved a shout.

They spent about three-quarters of their time fixing their hair and one-quarter of it wrestling.

DIVORCE COURT STILL GRINDING

Children Cry While Their Mother Testifies in Court.

Four divorce cases were heard in the district court this morning, one judge attending to the hearings. Decrees were granted in two cases, one was continued and the fourth was not finished by noon. Louise Shay was granted a divorce from Vincent Shay, and John Baron from Annie Baron. When the case of Mary Deraja against John Deraja was called for trial, shortly before noon, the two small children of the plaintiff were so frightened at the sight of their mother going on the witness stand that they started a loud and persistent duet in the crying line. The noise was too much for the court and the youngsters had to be removed to a remote part of the building, so that the proceedings could go on.

HE MADE A WISH.

"Chicago News: "The same old grind again;" sighed the bill clerk as he hung up his coat. "I wish I didn't have it to do. I wish I had a million or two and could just let work go to thunder."

"A very natural wish, Johnny," said the cashier. "As a matter of fact, you do let your work go to thunder, more or less."

"That's right; begin to knock," said the bill clerk.

"I didn't mean to knock," said the cashier, mildly. "Censure was far from my thought. I was stating an incontrovertible fact without any supplementary or superfluous—"

"Wait till I get to my desk and find a pad. I want some of them words," said the bill clerk.

"Comment," finished the cashier. "But you hardly expect to be able to draw your salary without giving some attention to your duties, do you?"

"No," admitted the bill clerk. "I'm not as smart as you are."

"I thought not," said the cashier. "Why, no, of course you are not as smart as I am. You aren't to blame for that, though. However, we will let that pass. You admit that your salary is to a certain extent dependent upon your exertions?"

"Sure thing," said the bill clerk.

"And that you have no other pecuniary resources?"

"Nothing but my watch," said the bill clerk.

"Possibly you have a rich relative?" suggested the cashier. "An uncle, for instance, at whose demise you may reasonably expect to inherit the million or two that you speak of?"

"If I have it escapes my memory for the moment," said the bill clerk.

"Possibly you have an idea that by exercising good judgment and by the investment of an insignificant amount to begin with you can easily acquire a couple of the millions that the bookkeepers are holding in trust for the wise?" hazarded the cashier.

"I may be some kinds of a sucker, but I'm not that kind," replied the bill clerk.

"I rejoice to hear it, Johnny," said the cashier. "Then you don't think you will be able to get your two millions?"

"I'd allow a pretty good discount on my chances," said the bill clerk.

"How about a million?"

"I'll knock something off that for cash, or part cash and secured long time notes for the balance," said the bill clerk.

"What's the prospect for a comfortable income—say $2,500 per annum—and a savings bank account that will stand any ordinary amount of wet weather? Do you think that by unremitting industry and ordinary frugality you could attain to that?"

"Why not?" asked the bill clerk. "Anybody ought to be able to make that if he wants to work hard enough and wait long enough."

"Then wish for that," advised the cashier. "Don't waste time wishing for millions and luxurious ease. Set your pins for the $2,500 per and begin to work. The waiting will take care of itself. When you've got it then you can do some more wishing, but in any case you can't get out of the working and the waiting. I don't say that you should not hitch your wagon to a star if the star comes within hitching distance, but as long as it's where it is and you're where you are I'd take something closer. Me, for instance."

"When you get some kind of a drag I'll think about it," said the bill clerk.

Provided, that no preferred stock which shall have been issued in exchange for outstanding bonds pursuant to the provisions of the by-laws of this corporation, shall be so redeemed without the consent of the holder thereof prior to May 1st, 1916. Provided, also, that in the event of the liquidation or winding up of the affairs of this corporation the preferred stock, if any shall then be outstanding, shall be paid off at par, with all accrued dividends, from the assets of the corporation before any payments therefrom shall be made upon the common stock of the corporation, and after such payment of such preferred stock it shall not be entitled to any further share in or payment from such assets.

PHYSICIAN SAYS THE BODY FOUND IN RUINS OF FIRE IS NOT THAT OF MRS. GUNNESS

Autopsy Shows Remains to be of Some Other Woman.

Strange Coincidences Are Noted in Burns on Children's Heads.

Looks as Though Skulls Were Crushed Before the Fire.

Laporte, Ind., May 9.—Dr. H. H. Long, one of the physicians who performed the autopsy on the body of the woman found in the ruins of the Gunness home, after the fire, today made a statement that the body is not that of Mrs. Gunness. His statement is as follows:

"In my opinion the body of the woman found in the house is not that of Mrs. Gunness. A strange coincidence is that the foreheads of all the children were burned at the same place. This is extraordinary. A skull crushed by a blow at any point, and then subjected to fire, would be more likely to burn away at that point than at a sound place, as the heat and fire would reach the bonev structure and thus attack the cartilages from both sides. The theory that her head had been entirely burned away is disproved by the fact that being subject to the same intensity of heat and flame, and being harder, it could not have burned away as easily as the skulls of the children.

"The body at the morgue is not that of Mrs. Gunness, because it is not correctly proportioned. It is that of a rather plump woman, of the same general contour of Mrs. Gunness, but weighing between 150 and 160 pounds. Mrs. Gunness was literally a succession of billows of flesh, and weighed fully 225 pounds.

Knew Nothing of Manicuring.

"The arm that was burned off was found beside the body and is well formed. The fingers show evidence of careful manicuring, and that was something that Mrs. Gunness knew nothing about.

"Basing my statements on the statistics and figures of eminent physicians of this country and Great Britain, I find that the body at the morgue is almost five inches shorter than the body of Mrs. Gunness would be in under similar circumstances. The fire would of course cause the body to lose weight, but the general physical outline of the woman would remain.

Mrs. Gunness was a woman of unusual appearance. She was large, boney, powerful looking, with square jaws and black eyes.

She was a woman who would attract attention anywhere from her lack of womanly characteristics. She wore a large fur coat during the winter, and her long strides, together with her remarkable countenance and her generally vicious appearance, gave her an aspect that was almost terrifying.

A sharp contest between the prosecution and the defense in the case of Ray Lamphere, who is accused of having

GOVERNOR WAS LATE

Burke of North Dakota Promised to Talk to Manufacturers.

Thought Date Was for Evening Instead of Noontime.

Chicago, May 9.—Four hundred manufacturers, who had a luncheon at the Grand Pacific hotel yesterday, were disappointed by the failure of Governor John Burke of North Dakota to appear with his address.

It was planned as a "good cheer" luncheon, for the purpose of restoring confidence and renewing prosperity. The "Good cheer" was unexpectedly put to flight by the non-appearance of the speaker.

Two hours after the meeting had adjourned, Governor Burke strolled into the hotel and asked for a room.

"Why, the manufacturers have been looking for you in every place," said the clerk.

"You were to make a speech, were you not?"

"Yes," replied the governor. "This evening is the time, and I have a nice speech all ready in my grip, but it is to be delivered this evening, not this afternoon."

When told that the meeting had been held, Governor Burke opened his grip, looked at the speech fondly, and then remarked:

"When does the next train leave for Washington?"

An examination of the correspondence inviting the governor to make a speech revealed the fact that all of the letters used the word luncheon without naming the time of day.

ICE BREAKER ON THE BOTTOM

Quebec, Que., May 9.—The Canadian government's ice breaker, Montcalm, valued at half a million dollars and the finest steamer in the government fleet, is beached at Hackett's Harbor, where she lies today almost completely submerged, as the result of a collision with the Canadian Pacific railway steamer Milwaukee, in the St. Lawrence river yesterday.

The Milwaukee arrived here from London and, after discharging part of her cargo, was leaving for Montreal, when the Montcalm, which was steaming up the river, attempted to cross her bow. As the Montcalm passed the Milwaukee struck her amidships and rent a great hole in her side. It was found necessary to beach the vessel.

By the time the Montcalm reached the shore the water had made its way to the engine room and the crew hastily abandoned her. The work of raising the steamer will be a difficult task.

Andrew Nelson, Strong Johnson Supporter, Elected Chairman.

Chosen by Over Two to One Over Charles d'Autremont.

Feeling that the vote of 121½ to 60½ for Andrew Nelson for temporary chairman proved beyond a doubt that the Johnson faction controlled the Democratic county convention, Charles d'Autremont moved to make it unanimous for Nelson, and the motion carried amid tremendous applause.

The motion came after a stormy and strenuous session at the Armory this afternoon.

The vote on temporary chairman was the test of the strength of the two factions. Andrew Nelson was the candidate of the Johnson men, and Charles d'Autremont the candidate of the Bryan faction. Every step was fought out by the Bryan men, and efforts were made to seat contesting delegations, but when the vote was finally announced by the chairman, W. E. McEwen, the Bryan men saw that they were hopelessly defeated and Mr. d'Autremont showed that he was a good loser, by immediately rising and making a motion to have Mr. Nelson's election declared unanimous. The motion carried amid tremendous applause, and Mr. Nelson then made a brief speech thanking the delegates for the honor conferred upon him.

The delegates began to assemble in the city hall shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon, and it was soon seen that the building would be entirely too small to accommodate the crowd. An

THE QUESTION OF CALLING STRIKE

Is Being Voted on by Employes of Chicago Street Railway.

Chicago, May 9.—Five thousand employes of the Chicago Railways company are taking a referendum vote today on the question of calling a strike on the north and west side lines. The trouble arises over the company's retention of men who have been suspended from the union for non-payment of dues.

For several weeks union committees have been waiting on President John M. Roach and urging him to have the delinquent members pay their dues to the union or be discharged. Mr. Roach asserts that he has no right to take a hand in the affairs of the union and refused to act. The ordering of the strike ballot was the result.

MAN AND WIFE ASPHYXIATED.

Chicago, May 9.—Patrick Lanergan, a watchman employed by the Grand Trunk railroad, and his wife, Johanna, were found dead in bed in their home at 4934 Marshfield avenue, today. Death was due to asphyxiation. It is thought the gas jet was accidentally left open.

OVERCOME BY CHLOROFORM

Mother and Daughter Found Unconscious at Minneapolis Home.

Minneapolis, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. G. R. Swenson and her daughter, Miss Minnie Swenson, were found at their home, 2621 Colfax avenue, Thursday evening, lying unconscious in bed. They seemed to have been overcome by the fumes of chloroform.

Mrs. Sandbery, who lives on Hennepin avenue, tried to get the Swensons by telephone, and finally went to their place. She found them unconscious. The mother was revived, and the daughter was taken to the city hospital. The daughter offered the explanation that she and her mother had been cleaning clothes with chloroform, and had been overcome in that way.

The daughter has been an invalid for some time, and the family is in poor circumstances.

JOHNSON'S BIG VICTORY GROWS MORE COMPLETE WITH THE LATE RETURNS

Little Prospect of Bryan Men Holding Rump Convention.

Elected So Few Delegates They Would Appear Foolish.

St. Paul, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—"I told you so" may be a trite expression, but the Johnson people can use it truthfully regarding the result of the primaries which were held throughout the state during the past week. A review of the results of the caucuses last Wednesday shows that the managers of Johnson's campaign had almost exact knowledge of the situation, and the summary and predictions published in The Herald a week ago were proven very close to being correct. There is nothing left of the Bryan following in this state now except in six or eight counties, plus the little bunch that holds a rump convention in Ramsey county today.

Johnson's political friends had tabulated the situation before the primaries, and a comparison of the returns from the caucuses shows that they were almost exactly correct, although in some cases they classed counties as for Bryan or doubtful which on Wednesday elected Johnson

DULUTH AFTER CONFERENCE

Baltimore, Md., May 9.—Dr. Clemans, presiding elder of the Duluth district, is trying to secure the next general conference of the Methodist church for Duluth. He is secretary of memorials and petitions at the conference.

Joseph S. Ulland of Fergus Falls was elected a member of the committee prohibiting polygamy. Dr. Matt Hughes, recently of Wesley church, Minneapolis, will likely become bishop, as he has a strong organization backing him.

Judge Pollock of Fargo was appointed chairman of the committee to visit congress with a resolution against the interstate traffic of liquor.

Giving advancing years as his reason, Rev. J. M. Thoburn, missionary bishop of Bombay, India, has asked the general conference to retire him from active service.

Rev. Charles Lenhert, the Minneapolis delegate to the German conference, says that the German Methodists are united for a German clergyman as bishop. Prof. Neutson, financial agent of the German theological institute at Evanston, is a favorite. He was once presiding elder in Norman county Minnesota.

STABBED BY NEGRO

St. Paul Hotel Clerk Badly Cut by Unknown Man.

St. Paul, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Michael Gavin, night clerk at the Grand hotel, Eighth and Robert streets was stabbed by an unidentified negro at about 2 o'clock this morning, because he ordered the negro to leave the hotel. The negro escaped and has so far managed to elude the police.

The negro had been lounging around the Grand hotel, sleeping in a chair, for several nights. He had no money and could not pay for lodging, and, when Gavin finally ordered him out of the place, became abusive.

Gavin started towards the negro, intending to put him out forcibly, and as he did so the negro drew a knife and attacked Gavin. The first stroke of the knife laid open Gavin's face to the bone, and the second stroke drove the knife deep into Gavin's abdomen. Gavin released the negro, who made for the front door and disappeared. Gavin shouted for help and succeeded in attracting the attention of one of the roomers.

The police ambulance was called and Gavin was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where it was found the wound in his abdomen is a very serious one. This morning the physicians are hopeful of his recovery.

BOTH FACTIONS CLAIM CONTROL

Stalwarts and Insurgents in North Dakota in Close Contest.

Fargo, N. D., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Stalwarts 293, Insurgents 111, contested delegates 42 is the claim made here today at the Stalwart state headquarters as to the strength of the Republican factions at the state Republican convention. In Burleigh, McKenzie and Ranson counties conventions are being held today.

The Insurgents claim 230 delegates and include all contested counties in their claims, crediting the Stalwarts with about 180 and Hansbrough with the remaining. Large delegations of Republicans from the southern counties are preparing to assemble here Tuesday to start for the Minot convention, headed by the First regiment and other bands.

OUTLAW IS CORALLED

Officers Have Mosney Penned in Cave Near Arrow Creek.

Lewiston, Mont., May 9.—Sheriff Martin and Deputy Sheriff Morgan, now in the field after the notorious half-breed outlaw, Mosney, have the desperado corralled in a cave near Arrow creek. John Walsh rode in from there yesterday and brought this news. He says the officers got onto the trail of their man and finally penned him up in his retreat, from which he cannot escape only through surrender, as it will do him no good to fight, all the advantage being on the sheriff's side. Walsh said it was expected when he left that there might be a termination of the affair at any moment.

SOLDIERS ARE UNDER ARREST

Four Fort Sheridan Men Charged With Assaulting Police Officer.

Waukegan, Ill., May 9.—Four soldiers of Battery F, Fourth United States Artillery, stationed at Fort Sheridan, are under arrest here on the charge of making a murderous assault upon Policeman Benjamin Neely.

The four soldiers were noisy and disorderly in the street shortly after midnight, and when Neely directed them to cease their conduct, one of them struck him on the head with a stone. Another ran up behind him and held his arms while another took away his club and beat him in a vicious fashion over the head. The men then ran south, leaving Neely unconscious in the street. Other officers boarded a trolley car, overtook the men one and one-half miles south of here, arrested and brought them back. They gave their names as B. Y. Howard, James Gurbay, Arthur Read and Patrick Shea.

CLAIM SIMON'S FIGURES WRONG

The Panton & White Company Files Answer in Civil Case.

The Panton & White company, which has been sued by D. Simon, former manager of its paint and wall paper department for a balance alleged to be due him, under an agreement about contract work, has filed an answer, in which it makes a counter claim of $2,037.83 against Simon, and asks judgment for the same. The company claims that in the summer and fall of 1907, Simon, who was working for the company at a set price, represented that there was $5,350.70 due on various contracts, and that according to the agreement the company either paid him that amount, or to his order, for labor, etc. It is alleged that instead of $5,350.70 being paid to the company on the contracts, the total receipts were only $4,299.04, so that it paid out $1,051.56 more than it took in, and for which Simon is held responsible. Another claim of $1,000 is alleged to cover a bill of goods sold Simon in December, 1907.

MAY CAUSE FRICTION

Opposed to Renewal Granted the North Star Agency.

Mayor Haven will have a communication in at the council meeting Monday night asking for a reconsideration of the action in renewing the license of the North Star Employment company, located on Sixth avenue west, at the north end of the viaduct.

At the last meeting of the council the mayor requested the council not to grant an employment license at that location, but despite this request the renewal asked for was granted.

The Northern Pacific road and Mayor Haven are doing what they can to make the approach to the viaduct more attractive. This spot is one of the first seen by the thousands of tourists who come to Duluth by boat during the summer season, and the shack of an employment office, with thirty or forty laborers hanging around and overflowing the viaduct, make anything but a favorable impression. The office is located there in violation of law, anyway, for it occupies a portion of the avenue.

Alderman Moore's famous curtain ordinance may also come up for consideration again next Monday evening. Nothing has been done regarding it for the last two weeks, but Mr. Moore is said to be still intent in having the ordinance adopted. It provides for the removal of all curtains and other articles obstructing a view of the interior of saloons from the street after 11 o'clock at night, and on Sundays and election days. There is likely to be a warm debate in regard to the matter.

The matter of building line easements in different parts of the city, but principally in the First ward and in West Duluth, will come up, and lines will be established where necessary.

The Garfield avenue sewer will come up for final disposition. At a meeting of property owners interested, held at the city hall Thursday night, thirty out of thirty-three people present were opposed to the construction of the sewer. In view of this fact, it is considered likely that the improvement will not be made.

This is sidewalk season, and a number of sidewalks will be ordered built.

Keeping Faith With the Cubans.

The world has seldom witnessed anything finer in history than the relations of the United States with Cuba, and some of our ablest statesmen urge us to continue our faith with them by withdrawing from the island at the appointed time and allowing them to establish a government of their own. Seldom, if ever, has the record of cures made by the famous Hostetter's Stomach Bitters been equalled during its 54 years' experience. It has kept faith with the public by proving all the claims made for it, and if you have never tried it, do so today. It cures and prevents poor appetite, belching, flatulency, sour stomach, costiveness, dyspepsia, indigestion, liver and kidney ills and malaria, fever and ague. DULUTH CONCERN FILES ANSWER

Claiming that Charles Elg, a Grantsburg potato shipper, got all that was coming to him, and that he has no case against it, the Duluth Grain & Produce company, through Frank Starkey, its president, has filed an answer to the action for recovery started by Elg.

Mr. Starkey says Elg shipped a carload of potatoes to the Fitzsimmons-Palmer company early last January, but the tubers were of such poor quality the consignee refused to accept them. It is alleged that Elg then requested the defendant company to take the potatoes and dispose of them on his account, that he requested the car be opened the following day as the weather was very cold. When the car was opened the larger portion of the potatoes were found to have been frozen. Elg, it is said, requested that the merchantable potatoes be sold and that a claim be filed against the railroad company for the loss. The defendant company claims that it paid Elg $132 in full for 379 bushels of good potatoes taken out of the car and filed a $55 claim against the railway company, which it assigned to Elg.

Gillen, who has been made defendant in a divorce action started by Elenora Gillen, has filed an answer to the complaint, in which he admits the allegations as to the age of the parties, date of marriage, etc., but he denies that he ever used any stronger language toward his wife than to term her a "D—— fool."

Proposals will be prepared and the contracts let this season. This is the largest single order of the kind ever placed.

Since March 1, this year, the company has applied for surveys on 9,779,000 acres of its land in this state, all of which, with the exception of that in today's order, has been contracted, and is now being surveyed.

In the case of Robert Altvasser against the Duluth Crushed Stone company it is alleged that the defendant was hurt through his own negligence; that he knew the risks that he assumed.

In the case of Cake Vavanter as administrator of the estate of Charles R. Cavanter, against the Drake & Stratton company it is alleged that Cavanter came to his death through accident by his own carelessness, knowing all the risks and dangers of his job on the dump train at the Fayal mine. It is alleged that the decedent represented himself as upwards of 18 years old and presented a written statement, or request, purported to have been signed by his parents and requesting that he be given work. It is also alleged that the young man carried $1,000 life insurance, which amount was paid his parents at the time of his death. The mining company claims that, by reason of insurance, his parents have suffered no pecuniary loss by the loss of their son before he was of age.

In the case of John Vojvodich against the Drake & Stratton company it is alleged that the defendant had a finger crushed under a car that tipped over June 10, 1907, and that in October of the same year, for a valuable consideration, the plaintiff signed a statement releasing the defendant from all liability.

WOOL GROWERS TO POOL 1908 CLIP.

Salt Lake City, May 9.—In furtherance of a movement to defeat the alleged capacity of middlemen, the leading wool growers of the state will meet at the Commercial club and pool their 1908 clip. Through a committee they have arranged to borrow upon all wool stored in Boston warehouses sixty per cent of its market value. The initial loan will run fo six months and will draw a low rate of interest. The sheep men expect to sell directly to manufacturers and save the large percentage of profit, which they claim has been absorbed by brokers and buyers.

Utah's wool deposit this year will be about 10,000,000 pounds. Sheepmen in other states of the west, approve the plan and the storage and direct sale system may become general.

RANCHMAN MURDERED IN FIENDISH MANNER.

Albuquerque, N. M., May 9.—Juan Valdez, a ranchman, living at Cabeso, N. M., a small town northwest of here, was murdered Wednesday night in a fiendish manner, the victim's head being severed from his body with an ax as he lay asleep in bed with his two children. The murderers wrapped the body in the bedding, buried it in an arroyo and escaped. Authorities are searching for two Mexicans believed to be guilty of the crime.

So as to be present at the trial of her son, Henry Wilson, who brutally murdered his wife on the morning of March 27 and who is awaiting trial in the county jail, Mrs. Wilson arrived last evening from her home in Saginaw, Mich., and will stop at West Duluth until the jury has returned a verdict in her son's case.

UPSET ROWBOAT.

Five West Duluth Boys Had Long Swim to Shore.

In a friendly scuffle, Munyon Craven, Micky Cleanch, Jack Cleanch, Tom Devers and Henry Anderson, all West Duluth boys, upset the boat in which they were rowing yesterday afternoon on the St. Louis river, about opposite the Zenith Furnace company.

Fortunately all of the boys could swim, and, though they were much impeded by their clothes, managed to paddle their way through the icy water to the shore. Fortunately none of the swimmers got cramps, as they had to swim some little distance before their feet touched the bottom. One of the boys lost his coat and the rest their hats. Otherwise, besides a good duckling, they are none the worse for the accident.

BURGLARS ENTER STORE.

Thieves Get $6 From John Peterson's Candy Store.

The candy store of John Peterson, 224 North Central avenue, was entered Thursday night by unknown parties and $6 in change taken from the cash drawer.

The store breakers entered the place from the rear, it is thought, some time after midnight. Nothing else was reported by Mr. Peterson as missing, and things were left in general good order about the shop. The West Duluth police are working on the case now, and if they have discovered any clues they are keeping it secret. People who are familiar with that neighborhood say that they believe that it is the work of a local gang of young toughs, who have been making life unbearable in that end of the city for some time.

DOCK IS USELESS.

Ramsey Street Structure Can be Used Only by Launches.

An effort will probably be made at the next meeting of the city council to secure an appropriation for dredging a channel to the Ramsey street dock, constructed during the past winter.

When the appropriation for the dock was made, no provision was made for the dredging work, and now the dock is constructed, and is accessible only to motor boats and other small craft. The excursion season will open soon, and if the pleasure steamers plying the bay and river are to use the dock, the work must be done.

It is estimated that $1,500 will be necessary for the work, and there may be a howl from the council. The appropriation is regarded as necessary, however, and will undoubtedly be secured. Men are now at work repairing the damage done to the approach by the recent northeast storm. At that time the rip-rapping on the fill was badly torn and some time will be taken in replacing it.

The shore line, near the foot of Ramsey street, will be well supplied with docks before the end of the present season. The Northern Dredge company expects to begin work soon on a dock near Ramsey street, and the National Iron company is said to be planning the construction of a dock near its plant.

NEW LAUNCH.

C.H. Petruschke Has Boat That Will Make Eighteen Miles Per Hour.

C. H. Petruschke of West Duluth will launch his new 23-foot motor boat Sunday afternoon, from his boathouse at the foot of Fifteenth avenue west.

Mr. Petruschke has named his new launch the "Doman Pearl." She carries a 10-horse power Doman engine, and is built for speed. The boat is said to do eighteen miles an hour, and Mr. Petruschke expects to cut circles around most of the launches on the bay and river this summer.

SEEKINS SAYS FRAUD WAS USED

Claims Duluth Bedding Company Got Lease by Misrepresentation.

W. W. Seekins, who has been made defendant in a civil action brought by the Duluth Bedding company, to enforce a lease for the rear basement of the new building controlled by the florist at Third avenue east and Superior street, has filed an answer in the district court, in which the court is asked to cancel the lease, on the ground that it was acquired by the bedding company under false and fraudulent representations.

Mr. Seekins claims that when the bedding company first wanted to rent the basement of his new building, he objected, on the ground that the bedding and mattress business would make a hazardous risk on the building for fire insurance, but was assured by the bedding company representatives that it would not make a particle of difference in his insurance rates. The lease was made and one month's rent, $50, was tendered and accepted.

Thereafter Mr. Seekins found that he could not get any insurance on the property by reason of the business carried on in the basement by the bedding company. He claims that he cancelled the lease, and made a tender of the $50 already paid, but it was refused. The bedding company is still occupying the quarters described.

If seven-tenths of the people who are looking for a place to live should read your ad. in The Herald would it not "help some?"

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, obtained by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially, and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy, and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

LABOR

WOMEN AS DELEGATES

Representatives of Label League Admitted to Trades Assembly.

Unions Will Work for Repeal of Anti-Trust Law.

For the first time in the brief history of the Women's Union Label league, No. 230, authorized delegates were sent from that organization to the Trades Assembly last night. Credentials were presented by the following delegates: Mrs. K. J. Dempsey, Mrs. Mary MacInnes and Mrs. Margaret Peters. Credentials were also received from the following delegates from local unions: W. H. Vernon, Painters' local No. 106; D. J. Drelian, Switchmen's union No. 28, and George Penn of Superior.

Mrs. MacInnes spoke a few words on the growth and the work of the women's organization. She said that they were making every effort to increase their membership and were succeeding well. "For the last five evenings I have not been at home," said Mrs. MacInnes. "I have been attending the different meetings of the unions. Last Monday evening we had a large meeting in Columbia hall. Rev. J. A. Lumley addressed the meeting and was voted an honorary members of the league."

A communication from the state of Oklahoma was read and approved. In the communication it stated that Governor I. C. N. Haskell "in the interest of the government rendering equal and exact justice to both rich and poor had proclaimed Thursday, May 7, a legal holiday in Oklahoma, so that the people can assemble and confer together on a certain set of five proposed amendments to the constitution to be presented to the Sixteenth congress."

The object of the amendments is to do away with such laws as the anti-Sherman trust law, which the unions claim are unconstitutional. The communication urged that all union laborers assemble in their halls and add their petition to that sent to congress.

Another communication, which caused quite a little discussion at the meeting last evening and which was finally referred to the organization committee, was a communication from the Chicago Typographical union, No. 16, asking all union members of the Methodist Episcopal church to sign their names to a petition to the Methodist Episcopal conference now meeting in Baltimore. It was a petition advocating that steps be taken towards restoring the relations between the M. E. book concern and the union prior to the inauguration of the eight-hour day. The M. E. book concern had allied itself with the opposition, opposing this action four years ago. When finaly the eight-hour day was established in 1906, the union men who had inaugurated the move were not allowed positions with the firm.

Following the reading of the communications, several outside union men were called upon to speak. P. P. Reagan, authorized representative of the United Hatters of North America, spoke of the effect that the adverse decision of the supreme court, in its construing of the Sherman law in the hatters' case, would have on the members of that union in the state of Connecticut if a like decision should be handed down from the circuit court, in which court the case would be tried on its merits next November. Mr. Reagan said that, owing to the supreme court's decision, money to the amount of $340,000 in property and bank accounts of the members of the union in Connecticut had been attached. Mr. Reagan said that he was not in Duluth to solicit financial support from the unions, but to promote the hats which bear union labels. "By buying such brands you can aid materially the hatters in their fight," he said.

Thomas L. Edwards, delegate from the Superior Trades assembly, spoke on the open shop movement lately inaugurated by the builders' exchange of Superior and asked the support of the Duluth assembly. He also mentioned the strenuous effort that is being made by the carriers of both the coasts and the lakes for the open shop.

Frank Fisher, president of the district council, spoke strongly, urging all the unions to stand together in their fight against the open shop. Mr. McDonald of the Labor World, though not a union man, addressed the assembly, complimenting the Women's league on its work. He said that any cause that had the entire sympathy of its women back of it could not lose. History, he said, proved this statement. He said he was surprised at the splendid manner in which the unions were weathering the lockout storm.

O. G. Lason of the steam fitters' and plumbers' union spoke of the relief fund and the good that it is doing. Harry Perrault, president of the trades assembly, gave a strong address, urging that every union send one or more delegates to the state convention, to be held in Winona June 8.

JOHNSON'S BIG VICTORY

In the First district the Johnson people conceded Olmsted to the opposition, and Olmsted was all the Bryan people got in that district. They were conceded Jackson in the Second, and that was all they got there. Pipestone might have been considered doubtful, but it is for Johnson. In the Third district, McLeod and Carver were in the doubtful column and the results of the primaries indicate that they may still be for Johnson.

In the Fourth district the Bryanites knew they had no show, so they used an error in the call for the county convention as a pretext for calling a county convention of their own and held caucuses at a different hour from the regular caucuses. Each side elected its own delegates and two county conventions will be held here today. But the Bryan caucuses were in many cases a farce, for it is reported that in many precincts no one attended the caucuses and in other precincts there were only two or three or a half dozen present. The Johnson caucuses were well attended.

Hennepin, the Fifth district, was always claimed for Johnson, although a possibility of a Bryan victory was conceded. But the victory for Johnson was complete. Now some of the Bryan leaders over there are talking of a contest on the ground that Republicans voted at the primaries. But most of them see the futility and absurdity of such a contest, and it is more likely that the matter will be dropped. While it may be true that in many precincts a number of Republicans did vote, it is also true that they voted for Bryan just as well as for Johnson, and as both sides had judges of the election, neither side has any complaint.

In the Sixth, Morrison had been conceded to Bryan without a fight, but since the primaries it has developed that many of the delegates to the county convention are Johnson men and that they will oppose instructions for Bryan today. The delegation will come to the state convention uninstructed and, as no other name than Johnson's will be mentioned, they will vote for Johnson Wright was doubtful, but Johnson won there. Stearns, another doubtful county, went for Johnson, and so did Wadena, another doubtful county. It was reported that Melrose and Torah were the only two precincts in Stearns that went for Bryan, but later reports say that even Melrose elected Johnson delegates.

In the Seventh district, Lyon was given to Bryan without a fight. Grant and Traverse, which were considered doubtful, are for Johnson, and Renville, which was considered a Bryan stronghold, is now doubtful.

In the Eighth district, Carlton, Mille Lacs and St. Louis were in the doubtful column, but they are for Johnson since the caucuses. That makes the Eighth unanimous for Johnson.

In the Ninth district, Norman was conceded to Bryan, but is now in the doubtful column, while Beltrami, which was considered doubtful, elected Johnson delegates by overwhelming majorities.

At first the Bryan supporters figured up the few counties they carried, together with the doubtful counties and those where they had a pretext for a ground for a contest, and thus secured about half the delegates to the state convention. They proposed to present their contests to the state convention and when these were thrown out to hold a rump convention and send their delegates to the national convention, figuring that if Bryan had a bare majority of the convention and needed a few more very badly he would seat the delegates elected by this rump. They talked this pretty strongly on Thursday, but yesterday, after they had had a little more time to think it over, they saw that the counties or precincts where they had a pretext for a contest were so few, anyway, that it would make them look foolish, and it is likely that they will crawl into their little hole and keep silent.

The contest which is just closing shows plainly one thing—that the Bryan management saw clearly that Johnson spelled danger for them and that they must crush him as soon as possible. Therefore they concluded that if they could do it in his own state it would be most effective. They concentrated their forces here in Minnesota and spent much of their money here. That $10,000 was spent to carry Hennepin alone and that a like amount was spent to carry the rest of the state is freely charged, for there has been lots of work done, and work of the kind that costs money.

The result did not surprise the friends of Johnson who had been keeping track of the situation. It was almost exactly what they predicted and expected. But it did surprise many of the people who had judged merely by the talk and bluster the Bryan people had been making, which led many people to believe that there really was a contest for the delegation from this state.

Another notable thing about this campaign is that neither in this state nor in any other state have the friends of Johnson said an unkind thing about Bryan. They have pointed to Johnson's popularity and his availability and urged his nomination on those grounds, but they have always tried to maintain a friendly attitude towards Bryan and they will be for him if they cannot nominate Johnson.

The St. Paul city election proved a glorious victory for the Democrats and turned out very much as expected. The day before the election, Senator J. C. Hardy, in charge of the campaign, predicted Dan Lawler's election by 4,000 and the informal count from the official returns gave him 3,968.

The victory is largely due to Lawler's personal popularity, and the confidence which the people have in him and in Democrats in general. It is also due to the fact that he had with him experienced political advisers and had as counsel the best citizens of the city. It is also an expression of satisfaction at the rule which the Democrats have been giving this city, and dissatisfaction with the political methods of the Republicans. There are a few political would-be leaders in the Republican party who control the nominations, but they never present a candidate that is satisfactory to all the Republicans.

But while the victory is largely due to local causes, the general dissatisfaction which the people feel against the Republican rule of this country is also to some extent to blame. The tyranny with which Speaker Cannon rules congress and by which he entirely destroys the substance and semblance of representative government, and the willingness with which the Republican congressmen acquiesce in his tyrannical rule and obstruction policy, have made the people dissatisfied with Republican rule in general and it will take more than Roosevelt's personal popularity to quiet the demand for a change.

The Republican state situation is getting more acrimonious every day, and the feeling between Young and Jacobson and their friends is getting more bitter. Bob Dunn, in this week's paper, intimates that Young, through his vote against the gross earnings tax measure, cost the people of the state over a million dollars. All in all, the situation in the Republican party in this state makes a Democratic victory more and more certain.

LASTING CURES OF MEN

Wrought Scientifically by Progressive Medical Specialists. Most Complicated Diseases Give Way to Their Method.

If you want to see the revelations of science used in the service of suffering humanity, you must see the Duluth specialists. Among citizens of Duluth and Superior the reporter today found in the crowded offices men from Bergland, Mich., Cloquet, Calumet, Mich.; Ballard, Wash.; Chicago, Bemidji and Aurelia, Iowa, with Tumors and festering Cancers, Gall Stones, crippled from Rheumatism, ulcers of legs and the most rare diseases. Their fame has reached far beyond the borders of our state and crowds their office almost daily.

There are people who bear the mark of pain and suffering from diseases of long standing, and, asked why so many men suffer, they explained that constipation and stomach troubles cause self-poisoning. To relieve this trouble, men are forming drug habits and become slaves to it, although they know very well relief is only temporary, and their condition is worse than before. If you feel tired in the morning and you detect your skin to be sallow, your tongue coated and you have a feeling of fullness in your abdomen, you may know that your intestines are diseased and they cannot perform the work of digestion.

You are getting pale and losing flesh and your feeling tells you that you are a sick man. You have started the process of self-poisoning, your blood is diseased and your blood vessels harden, which slowly but surely prepares your grave and your suffering is a long one.

Rectal Piles cause cancer and many other diseases. The bad and stagnant blood is forming piles, and these in turn result in a train of other diseases, as cancer, constipation, rheumatism, sciatica, pain in the back, kidney trouble, heart and liver diseases and nervousness. These specialists are most wonderful in curing all these diseases, and also Bright's disease, catarrh and lung trouble, bronchitis, blood poison, rupture, pelvic and bladder trouble, eczema and all skin diseases. If you have any ailment and you want to know all about it you are invited to consult the Progressive Doctors. Consultation is free. These doctors can cure your disease for they have studied in the best universities here and in the old country. They are well professioned in the science of healing chronic diseases of men. Offices are corner Superior street and Lake avenue, Duluth.

POLK FOR GOVERNOR

Crookston, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic county convention, after a bitter fight, in which the Bryan forces were led by W. W. Brown of McIntosh and P. J. Carry, with State Committeeman Martin O'Brien leading the Johnson forces, today elected a solid delegation for Johnson, with instructions to vote as a unit and to stand for John A. Johnson for president at the St. Paul convention first, last and all the time.

The sensation of the convention was the arraignment of Register R. J. Montague of the United States land office and Postmaster Elias Steenerson as the chief Bryan boomers by Martin O'Brien, who, in a red-hot speech, claimed that the Republicans of Minnesota were anxious to get Johnson out of the race for president. The convention also indorsed Martin O'Brien and P. L. Shirley as delegates to the national convention from the Ninth district.

The delegates to the state convention are: Martin O'Brien, Alexander Thompson, Frank Hamel, John Rassmussen, Ed Erickson, W. Lemen, John O'Leary, Hugh Dunlevy, John Fogelberg, Tom Murray, W. R. Stoughton, Ing Larson, M. Driscoll, George J. Cannon, Remi Fortier; alternates, Dan Hughes, A. J. Kirk, T. R. Johnson, J. E. Morrisey, S. K. Sorenson, D. H. Miller, Otto Pascal, Henry Gies, Gus Nordel, Dan Ryan, T. P. Hirschberg, G. K. Chambers, J. Enright, J. F. Creamer and W. E. Black.

BELTRAMI SOLID FOR J. A. JOHNSON

Delegates to State Convention Are Instructed for Governor.

Bemidji, Minn., May 9.—Special to The Herald.)—The Democratic county convention here this forenoon elected delegates to the state convention instructed to vote as a unit for delegates to the national convention favorable to John A. Johnson for president. The convention was harmonious up to the time the motion was made for the delegates to vote as a unit, when there was a stormy session for a few minutes, but the motion was adopted. L. F. Johnson of Bemidji was elected permanent chairman of the Democratic county committee.

SUBJECT FOR FOOL KILLER

Guest at McKay Hotel Has Wild Ride in Elevator.

A practical joker, who, by the rarest of good lek, was left for future operations of the fool killer, sent the elevator in the McKay hotel running wild about 7 o'clock last evening, resulting in the breaking of a water pipe and the flooding of the basement of the building.

The man, according to the stories of the hotel attaches, stepped into the elevator, pushed the boy out and sent the car upward to the top of the building at uncontrollable speed. He was unable to stop it at the top floor and it struck the bumpers, reversing the motion and sending it down again. Fortunately, the cable did not leave the sheaves, the automatic clutches worked and the car did not strike in the basement with force sufficient to smash it. The car struck the water pipe in the basement, smashing it and flooding the entire basement to a depth of several inches.

The water ran through the alley and out on Fourth avenue in a stream. The barber shop, Turkish bath rooms and saloon were flooded, and for some time nothing could be done to check the flow of water. The damage amounted to very little. The joker escaped uninjred and left the elevator chastened in spirit for the time, at least.

THAW MAY HAVE HIS CLOTHING

Judge Refuses Order for His Other Personal Property.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 9.—Justice Morschauer refused today to sign an order directing Dr. Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of the Matteawan asylum, to turn over to A. Russell Peabody, as next friend and personal attorney of Harry K. Thaw, all the personal property taken from Thaw when he was received at Matteawan on February 1, and since then in the possession of Dr. Baker.

The judge amended the order as sumbitted by Mr. Peabody to only apply to Thaw's wearing apparel. Before doing so the judge sent for District Attorney Mack and informed him in open court of Mr. Peabody's request, which was accompanied by an affidavit that $734.82 in money, one gold watch chain, seal, one pair of scissors and wearing apparel are in the custory of Dr. Baker.

The district attorney was opposed to Thaw having anything but his wearing apparel. He contended that he is still nominally an inmate of the Matteawan institution, although brought here in the custody of the court while the habeas corpus proceedings are pending. After hearing Mr. Mack the court amended the order to apply only to Thaw's wearing apparel.

District Attorney Mack stated this morning that Dutchess county will be spared a heavy bill of expenses through Justice Morschauser's willingness to hear the relator's case in Poughkeepsie and the people's case in New York. The relator, Thaw, will pay his own witnesses and the bill for the people's experts will fall on New York county.

The Salmon, Idaho, Recorder of April 30, said: "Development work at the Queen and Crescent group of the Copper Queen company still continues with more satisfactory encouragement as depth and following the lead progress. Extra men are being put on as conditions will permit.

"Recently, a representative of this paper secured inside information as to the result of the work being accomplished in ore bodies and values that we are actually afraid to publish. For the present it suffices to say that it is firmly believed that the Copper Queen company has one of the greatest gold mines in the state of Idaho, which the future will demonstrate. Investigation and the formation of the country have convinced many of the old prospectors and mineral experts that the Tin Doy, Copper Queen, U. P., Gold Flint, Gold Ridge, and Italian mines are in the center of a mineral vein which traverses the country and can be followed for a distance of from eight to twelve miles, and which, there seems to be no doubt, is the source of the rich placer mines which have produced nearly $30,000,000 in gold.

"During the past week a large contract has been let for running a tunnel on the Starlight group of claims which adjoins the Copper Queen property. The Starlight group is controlled by stockholders of the Copper Queen company, and is in the same mineral zone as the Queen of the Hills, Queen and Crescent and U. P. groups, and there seems no reason why it should not contain as valuable ore after a little depth has been obtained."

NEW TOWN FOR RANGE

Will be Located on Embarrass Lake Near Biwabik.

About 300,000,000 Tons of Ore Have Been Located There.

The Mesaba range is to have a new town, situated on Embarrass lake, between the towns of Biwabik and Aurora. As yet it is a town without streets, buildings or name, but according to the promoters, the work of surveying and platting the ground into streets and lots will be started soon, probably next week.

W. J. Power, James Geary, P. J. Ryan, Carl Thiel and Victor Power, all Hibbing men, have filed articles of incorporation according to the laws of Minnesota, under the title of the Hibbing Investment company. The capitalization of the new company is $50,000, divided into 5,000 shares.

The location of the new town is said to be in a district which for the last year and a half has been under exploration by the Steel corporation, Longyear, and Pickands-Mather Mining companies, with the result, it is said, that they have located ore bodies estimated to contain 30,000,000 tons. The ore is said to be high grade and contained within a radius of three-fourths of a mile. These discoveries are among the latest made on the Mesaba range. It is expected, due to the ore bodies in its vicinity, that the town, without a name as yet, will be a boom town. L. L. G. Bradley of Duluth has the surveying and platting of the town. The district in which it lies has been explored by Mr. Bradley during the last two years with success, and for this reason he is known on the range as the father of the townsite project.

BRYAN MEN AT ST. PAUL

Forty Bolters Hold Convention and Elect State Delegates.

"On to Denver" Was Adopted as Their Watchword.

St. Paul, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two Democratic county conventions were held in St. Paul, Ramsey county, today. In the official, or Johnson, convention, in Federation hall, the "cut and dried" program was carried out to the finish in the selection of Johnson delegates to the state convention next Thursday. The Bryan convention was held in Hiawatha hall, and there notice was served on the Johnson Democrats that the fight will be to a finish. Bryan delegates to the state convention were selected, and Chairman Pike was directed to appoint a committee made up of one member from each ward of St. Paul and from the country, which shall report at a subsequent meeting, a plan of organization of the Ramsey county Democracy.

The resolutions adopted are identical with resolutions adopted by the Bryan men throughout the state today. They are as follows:

"Resolved, That the delegates to the Democratic state convention, to be held in St. Paul May 14, be instructed to vote for delegates to the national Democratic convention at Denver who will vote and work for the nomination of William J. Bryan for president, first, last and all the time, and to vote for the candidate of the Bryan men for chairman of the state convention. They are instructed also to vote as a unit upon all questions coming before them for consideration, and such of said delegates as shall be in actual attendance upon said state convention be authorized to cast the entire vote to which said county is entitled therein."

There were about forty people, all told, at the Hiawatha hall convention, and the committee on credentials reported seventy-five delegates as entitled to seats. After the preliminary business, B. F. Meek said:

"No Democrat objects to a complimentary vote to Governor Johnson, but we do object to having him thrust upon us by men who betrayed the party in the past. If he does not know the kind of men who are behind him, then he is an ignoramus, and we do not want a mollycoddle for president. It is the duty of every Bryan Democrat to go to Denver and show the people of the United States that the Democracy of Minnesota are for Bryan."

C. J. Buell charged a conspiracy to defeat Bryan and to suppress information of his strength in the country, and then Mr. Pike took a rap at the Democratic county organization. He said that the city and county committee is not a legal organization, and that it is controlled by men who are afraid to go before the voting Democrats on a test of strength. "They represent only themselves and their organized thirst for office," said Mr. Pike.

After the delegates to the state convention had been named, Mr. Pike was asked what might be expected next Thursday. Mr. Pike replied that the delegates might expect to be excluded from the convention by the state central committee, although he said the Hiawatha hall convention was the only legal convention in the county.

Just before the convention closed B. F. Meek suggested that such being the case, there would be no reason for not holding a separate state convention, and he suggested "on to Denver" as the watchword. The watchword was adopted by unanimous vote.

MOTHERS' DAY TURNED DOWN

Senate Refuses to Act and Sends Resolution to Committee.

Washington, May 9.—Senator Burkett's resolution declaring tomorrow, May 10, to be "Mothers' day" to be recognized by the senate and employes of that body, by the wearing of a white flower, was the subject for an extended discussion by the senate today.

The question came up immediately after the senate convened at 11 o'clock and the extra hour gained by meeting at that time was devoted to the subject with the result that in the end the measure was referred to the judiciary committee. The committee failed to take up the subject for immediate consideration and thus indirectly but effectually nullified the resolution, which if it had become effective at all must have been acted upon today.

When the resolution was called up Mr. Kean of New Jersey suggested to substitute the fifth commandment:

"Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee."

Mr. Clapp of Minnesota offered an amendment making the practice suggested annual.

A motion to send the resolution to the committee on the judiciary was made by Mr. Fulton of Oregon, who explained that there had been no invidious distinction against the fathers or the grandfathers, cousins, etc. "Everybody," he said, "will agree to have a day for the mothers-in-law."

Mr. Burkett explained that he had been requested to introduce this resolution by Y. M. C. A. workers, Mr. Kean retorting that he had never heard of it.

Senators Gallinger, Teller and Heyburn objected to the resolution as an improper one. Senator Bacon favored it and Mr. Beveridge appealed to the senate to vote for or against the measure and not send it to a committee. By an aye and no vote, the resolution was referred to the judiciary committee, 33 to 14.

adjournment was therefore, taken to the Armory, and at 1:45 o'clock the convention was called to order there by W. E. McCuen, chairman of the county committee.

Several warm contests developed during the voting, and at times the Bryan faction showed evidences of a desire to find a good pretext for bolting.

The vote in the Fourth precinct of the Fifth ward was a tie, but owing to the fact that the Bryan ticket had three names, whereas, the precinct was entitled to but two representatives, the judges unanimously gave the credentials to the Johnson delegates, acting under the general election laws of 1905, which make such action compulsory.

Gordon O'Neil, one of the Bryan delegates, declared that Fred L. Ryan had induced the judges to reopen the ballot after the result had been determined, and give the credentials to the Johnson delegates. Mr. Ryan denounced the statement as a lie.

The contest between the Floodwood delegation also caused a hot dispute, and for a time it looked as if the Bryan men would withdraw. Bert Fesler and Frank Crassweller, heatedly declared that it seemed impossible to get a fair chance to be heard on the floor.

Both disputes were finally referred to the committee on credentials, however, and the vote on temporary chairman was declared closed.

On motion by Bert Fesler all contesting delegations were seated, and given half a vote each. This did away with the committee on crdentials.

"Twenty years ago," said Mr. Nelson, "it was deemed impossible to elect a Democrat governor in Minnesota, and any man who would have suggested that a Minnesota Democrat would ever be a candidate for a national office would have been considered a fit candidate for an insane asylum."

Following Mr. Nelson's address Fred L. Ryan moved that Judge F. Lekve be elected secretary of the convention. The motion carried and Charles F. Macdonald then moved that the temporary organization be made permanent. This motion also carried.

The committee on resolutions was then appointed by the chair, as follows: Joseph Reynolds, Emil Tessman, Henry Norman of Midway, J. H. Fleming of Virginia and F. L. Ryan.

The committee to select delegates to the state convention at St. Paul was then chosen as follows: Charles Jesmore of Eveleth, Henry Neff of Duluth, E. Rudberg of Duluth, James Walsh of Duluth and Harris Bennett of Duluth.

After a short recess the two committees reported. The resolutions presented, which were unanimously adopted are as follows:

Resolved, That in this day of party hope and promise, we proudly, gratefully and enthusiastically renew our allegiance to the Democratic party, which has become and is becoming more and more prominently the party of principle, patriotism and morality, everywhere in city, state and nation.

Resolved, That in the administration of Governor John A. Johnson we are afforded a practical demonstration of the governmental capacity, efficiency and honesty of the Democratic party when entrusted with the responsibility of public place, and we believe that our Governor's four years' tenure of office will long remain the standard in state affairs of executive competence, fidelity and success.

Resolved, That we hereby instruct our delegation to the state convention to vote and labor for the election of a delegation to the Denver National Democratic convention pledged to support and further by all honorable means the candidacy of Governor Johnson for nomination on the Democratic ticket for the exalted office of President of the United States, for which office the Democratic Party of St. Louis County in convention assembled, knowing his character, assured of his capability, feels sure of his election, and proud of his achievements, heartily endorses him.

Resolved, That in pledging our adherence to the candidacy of Governor Johnson we do not disparage or overlook the great service to the party, the nation and the world of that great commoner, brilliant orator and fearless reformer, William Jennings Bryan.

Resolved, That the delegation elected by this convention is hereby instructed to vote as a unit on all measures coming before the state convention and that those present and voting in the convention are hereby authorized to cast the full vote of the delegation.

Resolved, That this convention endorses Hon. A. C. Weiss for delegate at large, and Hon. Martin Hughes of Hibbing, Minn., for district delegate to the Denver Convention, and our delegates to the state convention are hereby instructed to support them for those deserved honors.

Resolved, That this convention indorses the principle of initiative and referendum as contended for for the labor interests of the land and as advocated by the Democratic party in its conventions, through its press and from its platforms, and that our delegation to the state convention is hereby instructed to procure a like indorsement of that beneficient principle by the state convention and its platform.

The Democratic party stands as an unfaltering champion of human rights. We point to the record of the party in state and nation, in which it will be found that the sacred rights of man are ever given the precedence over the rights of property. We believe in the fullest protection to the wage-earner of the land and we pledge the party, if elevated to power, to enact an effective "Employers' Liability law" giving labor equitable and ample redress in the courts for injury sustained to life and limb.

The alternates follow: J. Schubiskey, A. H. Eckstein, J. A. Peakes, Charles Beauglet, George Thatcher, Charles Pentiloff, Eveleth; O. A. Oredson, John Mustonen, Floodwood; H. Milbrook, McKinley; William Walkovlak, C. Monroe, Chisholm; E. A. Ribenack, J. E. Backus, Virginia; Joseph Shartell, J. E. Riley, Biwabik; John Gonska, J. B. Connors, J. A. Patchkowski, E. A. Furni, B. E. Wellberg, C. J. Hagberg, C. O. Johnson, Ignatius Byenka, J. T. Dunphy, J. Flynn.

Around the hotels this morning the Johnson "booster buttons" were very much in evidence.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern train brought down a crowd of the range delegates, and before they had been in the city half an hour they were decorated with the buttons. Bryan badges were conspicuous by their absence, and not more than three or four were to be found. They were decorating the lapels of a contesting delegation from Floodwood.

"I know of only three Bryan delegates from the range," said Martin Hughes of Hibbing, who is an enthusiastic Johnson boomer, and who was slated for one of the district delegates to the national convention.

"There is one Bryan man from Eveleth, one from Chisholm and perhaps one from Ely." The other delegations are solid for Johnson, so far as I can find out."

Both factions held caucuses at noon, the Johnson delegates meeting in the St. Louis hotel. Here it was agreed that they would support Andrew Nelson for chairman of the convention, and a set of resolutions was drawn up calling for an instructed delegation for Johnson to the state convention.

POSITION OF PRESIDENT

As Commander-in-Chief Stated by Him to Senators.

Writes Five Letters on Matters Concerning the Army.

Washington, May 9.—Five members of the senate have received from President Roosevelt, within the last few days, letters declaring his supremacy, as commander-in-chief, in all matters referring to the control of the army and navy.

Two letters have created intense feeling in the senate and it is not unlikely that they will precipitate a conference of the Republican members.

The letters are in defense of his course in discharging without honor the negro soldiers he believed to be guilty of shooting up the town of Brownsville, Texas, and his action in banishing Col. William F. Stewart to an abandoned military post in a desert section of Arizona. The third letter came today to Senator Stewart of Vermont.

A few days ago, during the debate of the Brownsville incident, Senator Stewart asked a question indicating that he had doubt as to the wisdom of extending to the president the power of passing on the innocence or guilt of the ex-soldiers applying for reenlistment, as he still believes them guilty. The senator was surprised to receive from the president a letter today bearing on both the Col. Stewart and the Brownsville cases.

Attached to the communication were letters to Senators Rayner and William Alden Smith, the one to Mr. Rayner asserting chiefly the president's right as chief executive to deal with an officer in such manner as he pleased, while the one to Mr. Smith was confined to the Brownsville affair and reiterated the president's belief that he had dealt with the case as conditions demanded.

The president went further still in his letter to Senator Stewart. In addition to repeating much that he said to the other senators, he declared that Senator Stewart, from the question asked in the debate, appeared to be proceeding under a misapprehension of the duties of the president in connection with the army and navy. He quoted the law as he understood it and denied that he was under any obligation to give to the discharged negro soldiers or to Col. Stewart any court of inquiry. Several paragraphs were devoted to a discussion of Col. Stewart's case and the faults of his which have put him in disrepute in army circles.

After this discussion the president wrote, in every community there is found maudlin sympathy with murderers, and the Thaw case in New York was cited by him as an example. None of the senators who received letters from the White House have decided whether they will make them public. All have been asked to do so. Senator Smith of Michigan declines on the ground that it would be improper, and Senator Rayner is preparing to use the letter to him in a speech which he will make to the senate denouncing the action of the president in banishing Col. Stewart to Fort Grant, Ariz.

Senator Stewart showed to several of his colleagues the letter he had received, but thus far has made no disposition of it. Several senators said that the letters would have the effect of complicating the situation in regard to legislation in the interest of the innocent members of the battalion of negroes discharged, owing to the Brownsville affair.

It is generally believed that the Republican senators will call a caucus for the discussion of the question including the letters next week.

TWO WOMEN MURDERED.

Muskogee, Okla., May 9.—Clarence Williams and his uncle, Manal Moore, living on Snake river, negroes, are said to have murdered the latter's wife and his stepdaughter, beating them into insensibility with a shot gun, and then finishing the murder with a razor. Moore escaped, but Williams was captured after being shot through the legs. A mob is now scouring the swamps along Snake river in a serach for Moore.

IS INVITED TO COME OUTSIDE

San Francisco, May 9.—Endeavoring to come to the defense of the prosecution's star witness, who was being subjected to severe cross-examination and accused of having put words into the witnesses' mouths, Assistant District Attorney Heney caused a sensation in the courtroom yesterday afternoon during the trial of Abraham Ruef by retorting "liar" to the accusation of Henry Ache, counsel for Ruef. The assistant district attorney invited the attorney for the defendant to "come outside if they wanted anything." Mr. Heney admitted the charge of Frank J. Murphy, Ruef's assistant counsel, that he was in court armed, and started toward the table of counsel for the defense, moving his hand toward his hip pocket. He was stopped by William J. Burns, the prosecution's special agent. Judge Dooling, after restoring order, stated that only his desire to conclude Ruef's trial as quickly as possible deterred him from sending the attorneys for both sides to jail for a week. The outbreak occurred during the cross-examination of James L. Gallagher, the prosecution's principal witness in the bribery graft case.

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

Two Duluth Students Get Parts in Senior Class Play.

Six Chosen to Represent Minnesota in Next Year's Debates.

Minneapolis, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The trial for parts in the senior class play caused a great rush among dramatically inclined members of the class. The places were hotly contested and it was only after several trials that some of the characters were assigned. Winnifred Smith was one of the committee of three to write the play, and the result of this assignment of parts gave prominence to two other members from Duluth, Murlen Fellows and Margaret Denfeld. The play is to come off at the Metropolitan, Wednesday of commencement week, with an afternoon and evening performance.

Wednesday at chapel time, the Freshmen engineers came out with their new caps, creations in gray with purple numerals. Seventy-five freshmen lined up in front of the Mechanic Arts building and then the Sophomores started things.

After mixing it for half an hour all over the campus, the Freshmen gathered in a close formation, holding a cap up in the center and defying the Sophomores to take it.

This method of doing things did not please the 1910 men, as they were outnumbered four to one. They waited for the Freshmen at chapel time Thursday in order to have a general removing of the lid.

The scrap was renewed at that time ending in a few boxing matches which were a great attraction for the two following hours, when regular classes were due. The crowds broke up at noon hour, both sides claiming victory.

The Donald Robertson plays are attracting exceptional attention at the university, and on this first day of the sale of tickets one third of the house was sold for both performances. Commenting on this remarkable advance sale, an instructor in the English department remarked: "Robertson is going to be the best entertainer at the university this year and justly so for the students have never had a finer opportunity to see classic drama adequately produced. 'The Triumph of Youth' is one of the best done comedies in literature."

The company plays Pailleriou's "Triumph of Youth" as a matinee next Thursday, and Browning's tragedy "The Blot on the Scutcheon" in the evening.

This afternon is the date of the all-university meet. The training of the past week has been strenuous and the meet finds the men in fine shape. This meet will decide what men will take part in the Iowa meet a week later. Capt. Mortenson, Woodrich, Bush and Smily are expected to show up as the strongest men. Mortenson runs the quatrer and hurdles, Bush the half and Woodrich the hurdles. Hill, Williams, Smily and Ertl have shown up well in the dashes. Grimes and Holler are candidates for the longer runs. The inter-fraternity relay is one of the strong features. The preliminaries are to be run today and the finals at a later meet.

Nineteen Minnesota orators contested in the debating preliminaries held in Folwell hall, Tuesday evening, and with difficulty could the judges pick the winners. The question for debate was "Resolved that a material increase in the United States navy is undesirable," and the subject was ably handled by every speaker. The six men chosen will represent Minnesota in next year's debate against Illinois at Champaign and Iowa in Minneapolis. Hal Deering, Clarence Harte and Charles Carlson compose the team to meet Illinois, with Norman Houch as alternate. Iowa will be met by Zenas Potter, Max Lowenthal and John Sinclair, with F. A. Johnson as alternate. Alternates were chosen in order to give the men opportunity of coaching and handling intercollegiate questions.

"O Hann San," a Japanese operetta was put on in chapel Wednesday afternoon by the Girls' Glee club. It was one of the prettiest plays that has ever been seen at the university. The stage decorations were most effective, the scene being in a Japanese garden. The handsome and gay costumes of the actresses added, too, to the beauty. Mr. Moriquchi, one of Minnesota's Japanese students, took the part of the mikado.

The Woman's Magazine appeared this week and it is acknowledged one of the best numbers ever edited. It teems with splendid fiction and has several excellent poems by students and two by faculty members. The dormitory question and the question of more encouragement to musical activities at the university represent the practical part of the magazine.

The Minne-ha-ha came out Thursday and is maintaining the promise made by the first two numbers. The double page cartoon is one of the special attractions and the "dope" is more finished and better selected than ever before. The Merry Widow is in line for a few hard ones. Over one-half of the zinc etchings used were made by the class in photo-engraving of the chemistry department.

The constitutional convention of the Minnesota union was called Tuesday afternoon, with a good percentage of men present. It was evident from the start that there was to be no "railroading" of the constitution through the house. Hardly had the secretary read the first article when half a dozen men were on the floor to amend. These efforts to amend were backed by reason and were successful and many articles were altered.

The article relative to the status of the Y. M. C. A. and other organizations caused the real contention. One of the members was on the floor, moving to strike out the entire section, giving the Y. M. C. A. rooms in the building, before Secretary Sinclair had taken his seat. Then came a series of motions and sugestions advising that the Y. M. C. A. be put in apartments with exit through fire escape only. Eventually the speaker was able to get the question squarely before the house and a motion that "The article be passed as it stands" passed by a large majority.

Thursday a committee of the union, appointed by the president, met the executive committee of the board of regents, to submit the constitution to the regents for official ratification and acceptance of the sections concerning the board.

Mathematics, the bane of the freshman's existence, was discussed in last Saturday's faculty meeting, with an end to its abolition as a required subject in the first year program. Heretofore it has been rigidly required, and no other subject is so cordially hated as "math." More "flunks" and "cons" in mathematics are registered against freshmen than in any other subject. The alternative will probably be History I or II.

KNEW MRS. GUNNESS.

Traveling Salesman Says She Was an Ugly-Looking Woman.

A. B. Davidson of Laporte, Ind., traveling salesman for a Chicago house, who is registered at the Lenox, says he knows Mrs. Gunness, the Laporte murderess, by sight, and has gone by her farm many times.

"The woman was big, fat and red-faced," said Mr. Davidson. "Her cheek bones were prominent and her face wrinkled. She had a large nose, big mouth and a double chin. I only saw her a few times, but she made a sinister impression on me.

"I am of the opinion that Mrs. Gunness is still alive. She was too clever to be caught in any fire trap. It may have been a case of murder on the part of her hired man, but I don't believe it."

SHOWER OF GOLD COINS.

The celebration took place at their home, which was beautifully decorated in gold and white.

The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents, including a shower of gold coins.

In an interview with our representative Mr. McKune states:

"It gives me great pleasure to tell you that I have been using a little of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for medicinal purposes every morning for fifteen years; it has been my only medicine, and I firmly believe it has been very beneficial to me as a tonic stimulant and renewer of youth. I am seventy years of age, and I feel as hale and hearty as I did twenty years ago.

"I cannot say too much in praise of your valuable medicinal whiskey, and recommend it to all those getting on in years who wish to maintain their vigor, strength and happiness."

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom rfom injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It cures nervousness, typhoid, malaria, every form of stomach trouble, all diseases of the throat and lungs, and all run-down and weakened conditions of the body, brain and nerves. It is prescribed by doctors and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

Bad Attack of Dysentery Cured.

"An honored citizen of this town was suffering from a severe attack of dysentery. He told a friend if he could obtain a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, he felt confident of being cured, he having used this remedy in the West. He was told that I kept it in stock and lost no time in obtaining it, and was promptly cured," says M. J. Leach, druggist, of Wolcott, Vt. For sale by all drugists.

ARMY MEN WILL GET INCREASED PAY.

Washington, May 9.—The officers and enlisted men of the army yesterday won their fight for increased pay when the house, after a debate of two hours, agreed to the conference report of the army bill. An appropriation of $7,000,000 was made for the purpose, $5,000,000 of which will go to the enlisted men. Nine hundred and forty-two officers of the retired list also will benefit by the increase. Under suspension of the rules bills were passed placing the Porto Rico regiment of infantry on a permanent basis and authorizing additional aids to navigation in the lighthouse establishment.

ENOUGH TO CURE WHOLE FAMILY OF INDIGESTION

The Following Tells Why Everything Eaten Will be Promply Digested and Not Left in Your Stomach to Ferment and Sour.

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of Indigestion or some form of Stomach trouble, why don't you keep a case of Diapepsin in the house handy.

This harmless blessing is prepared in the form of 22-grain Triangules, and are eaten like candy, but they will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and regulate a sour Stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily see why they cure Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, and prevent at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of Sour undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other Stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion with the common every-day cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe their's is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which putrefy the entire digestive tract and intestines and, besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to get a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin.

One Triangule taken after eating will promptly digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood 3,000 grains of food, and is so absolutely harmless and pleasant that no one could realize they were taking such a blessing.

THE LIFE OF MR. GILBERT

Took an Active Part in Many Civic Matters.

Giles Gilbert, whose funeral was held yesterday at the family residence at Sixteenth avenue east and First street, had been a prominent and respected resident of Duluth for many years. At The Herald's request, the following biography of Mr. Gilbert was written by a friend:

"Giles Gilbert was born Sept. 7, 1840 at Pike, Wyoming county, N. Y. His grandfathers were both Revolutionary soldiers and lived at Canajoharie and Cherry Valley in the Mohawk valley. His father early emigrated to the Genessee valley in Western New York, taking a claim on what was known as the Holland patent. Mr. Gilbert was the youngest of a large family and his early educational facilities were meagre. He attended school during winters and later managed to enter Pike Seminary, then the leading school in Western New York. His studies were interrupted by the outbreak of the Civil war, but later, in 1864, he went to Schenectady and was preparing for Union college, when the state of his health compelled him to abandon his cherished desire for a college education.

"When Lincoln made his first call for troops, Mr. Gilbert joined his home company with rank of lieutenant but, learning that the chances of prompt, active service were remote, proceeded with several friends to the neighboring town of Wyoming and enlisted in a company which was assigned to the 17th New York Volunteers as Company "K". This regiment, better known as the "Westchester Chasseurs" was one of the famous early fighting regiments. It was the first regiment to pass through Baltimore after the riot, was on patrol duty at Alexandria during the first battle of Bull Run, but later saw hard service in many battles, and was decimated at Second Bull Run. The first gun captured by the Army of the Potomac was taken by this regiment at Hanover Court House.

"Mr. Gilbert served through the Peninsula campaign, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Antietam and Second Bull Run. In this last battle he was wounded twice, and was supposed to be dead, his name appearing in the death roll of his company in the New York papers. He was fortunately paroled upon the battlefield, but was incapacitated for active service for some time and at the end of his two years' term did not re-enlist. He was made first sergeant of his company for gallantry at Second Bull Run.

"In 1865 Mr. Gilbert went West and settled at Stanton, Mich., where, in company with E. K. Wood, he engaged in logging. In 1869 he married Frances Smith of Gainesville, N. Y., by whom his three surviving children were born. In 1880, he started the town of Mecosta, Mich., and built a mill near that point. A. B. Wright of Saginaw, was interested with him in this venture. Here on March 1, 1883, occurred the death of his wife, following shortly after the birth of their youngest child.

"In September, 1885, he was married to Amy Williams Paine at Providence, R. I., who died in 1906, and was beloved by many Duluth friends.

"In December, 1887, Mr. Gilbert moved his family to Duluth, building the present home on East First street. This site was far east of the residence portion of Duluth at that time and many questioned what proved to be his usual good judgment and foresight.

"In coming to Minnesota, Mr. Gilbert associated himself in timber lands and lumber with O. T. Higgins of Olean, N. Y., whom he had known in his school days. Later Frank W. Higgins and his sister, Mrs. Frank Sullivan Smith, succeeded to their father's interests and the connection made in 1887 still continues in the ownership of local mining interests and Oregon timber lands.

"Mr. Gilbert was a man of quiet, simple habits and disliked display and ostentation. His library was his especial delight and close application to his books resulted in a richly stored mind. He took an active interest in civic affairs, was a member of the charter commission vice-president of the first city water board and several times president of the library board. He was in charge of the erection of the Carnegie building, as representative for the board, and took great pride in it. He was a man of great generosity, giving freely and quietly to what he considered worthy charities, and he aided numerous young people in securing educations. While not a member, he was a constant attendant of the Congregational church, both in Michigan and Duluth, and, in company with his wife, took an active interest in the welfare of Pilgrim church of this city.

"He was an unselfish man, caring little for himself but always thoughtful and solicitious for the welfare and happiness of his family and friends. He was a man of sterling integrity and frank and open in his business dealings.

"Mr. Gilbert went to Southern California in February with his daughter Grace, wife of Carroll Graff. He was attacked with heart trouble at Catalina Island but improved somewhat and came north and visited his sons, Wells Gilbert of Portland, Or., and Frank S. Gilbert of Goldendale, Wash., and their families. His condition becoming serious, he was anxious to return to his home and left Portland last Friday evening. The physician, however, over-estimated his strength and early Sunday morning, near Miles City, Mont., he passed away suddenly and painlessly.

"A man of strong affections, there can be no doubt that his death was hastened by recent griefs, which followed in quick succession—the deaths of his wife, of his close friend and business associate, the late Governor Higgins, and his brother.

AMONG THE PLANTS

One of the most important things in the garden the next few weeks will be the setting of the plants in the flower beds. The beds should be made rich and fine; even our heavy clay soils grow lovely things if they are well broken up and enriched. Good rotted compost, and, better still, a good dressing of bone meal should be mixed well with the soil. A coffee cup full of bone meal to a bushel of earth is about right for both bed and window box. In planting do not break the ball of roots; this is seldom necessary and much injury is often done, but put them in carefully, make a hole a little deeper than the pot ball so the latter can be all underground, then with the hand pull some fine soil around the ball and press it down firmly, leaving a depression into which pour a quart of water. When this has soaked in, cover with the dry fine soil and give no more water for a week. Plants root quicker in dry soil than they do in wet soil, and we generally have rain enough for all the early growing, but stir the top soil lightly every three or four days and then you get a dust mulch, which is far better than watering.

Speaking of watering, it used to be a fad with me to run the water into a cistern and let it stand until the chill was off before using it, but the last two seasons it has been used cold, right from Lake Superior, and the plants do just as well and perhaps a little better than they did before. Perhaps they love a cool drink just as we do. Some people are afraid to water in the sunshine. We have never found any harm come from it; in fact, the roses are only sprayed on sunny days, and if a plant needs water, especially a pot plant, attend to it right away. You give a fern or a rose a good drying out and you have given it a death blow, but don't run to the other extreme and keep them soggy and wet. Always moist, but never drowned is the rule both in the house and the garden, and when some dear innocent asks how often she shall water a plant we ask how often she wants a drink. When I was a kid I had a few plants, and if they did not grow fast enough to suit me I gave them a little more water and the sicker they grew the more they got, and I killed lots of them before I learned that the sicker they were the less they wanted.

It is too early to set out geraniums yet. Only hardy things such as Dollyhocks, phloxes, guillardias, larkspurs, foxgloves and coreopsis, not forgetting the pansies should go out yet, and they are in no hurry if pot grown. In making your garden plans leave room for lots of asters; they don't cost much and the improved kinds bloom early and last all the fall and are far ahead of the old late branching types of a few years ago, and for size and coloring they are far ahead of them.

Some of you failed to get tomatoes last year from your gardens. That was because the catalogues give such glowing descriptions of the kinds that do well further south but are of no use here. The very earliest are the only ones for Duluth.

ALL RESTS ON MEETING

Vessel Owners Will Set Date of Opening Next Week.

Little Ore Will be Shipped Before First of June.

The entire situation on the Great Lakes now hinges on the meeting of the vessel owners at Cleveland next Tuesday, when the time of a general start will be discussed and the date will probably be set.

Nobody can see how the date will be earlier than June 1. It is not believed that 50,000 tons of ore will move before that time, as there appears to be no necessity for it. Vesselmen coming in from lower lake ports say that the ore docks are piled up with last year's shipments, which have moved slowly during the winter. The shipments of ore from the Head of the Lakes this season will go but little over half of the amount moved last season, so that a late start may be made with no possibility of trouble in the fall through lack of time.

The shipments of grain will not continue long and coal will not move from the lower lake ports until the ore movement begins. Boats already loaded with coal at lower lake ports are waiting for return cargoes before they will sail and there are prospects of but few return cargoes before June 1.

The engineers of the Pittsburg fleet have been ordered to report next week to prepare their boats for inspection. There are five Pittsburg boats laid up here—the Cornell, Princeton, Lynch, Mataafa and Black. Two of the engineers have their homes in Duluth, and the others will arrive before Monday morning. The boats will be put in readiness and inspected immediately, but they will probably not get into motion before June 1.

The shipping master of the Lake Carriers' association is expected to arrive in Duluth some time next week to take up his office. For a number of years, the unions furnished crews for the different boats, but this year all the men will be shipped by the shipping masters.

The outlook in the lumber trade is not encouraging and few of the big owners have placed their boats in commission. There is no great quantity of lumber on the docks, pressing for shipment and beyond the first loads, the movement will be light.

HUTCHINSON COMING.

Buffalo, May 9.—Extreme dullness continues in coal shipping circles, but two boats having been placed during the past twenty-four hours. The following charters were reported: J. J. Hutchinson, Duluth, 39; McLouth, Manitowoc, 40.

BREAK AGREEMENT.

Some of Boats Will Start Before the Time Set.

Chicago, May 9.—It was reported yesterday that several boats belonging to owners who were parties to the agreement to keep their ships out of commission for a time had been placed for grain at Chicago. The steamers Rees and Carnegie are said to have been chartered, one for corn and the other for wheat, a week ago to load here. The Carnegie has left Manitowoc and the Rees has cleared for Sheboygan.

FIGURES NOT CHANGED.

Estimated That Small Amount of Ore Will be Moved.

Cleveland, May 9.—Local shippers have not changed their figures on the estimated total iron ore movement for the season and they say shipments will show a loss of 40 per cent compared with last year. This means that the mines will send forward about 25,000,000. This amount can be moved without trouble if a general start is not made until July 15.

SCHULTZ IS AN OLD OFFENDER

Man Serving Sentence in County Jail is Wanted Elsewhere.

George Schultz, who is serving thirty days in the county jail for obtaining money under false pretenses, is an old offender against the law and has served time in different parts of the country, according to information received yesterday by Chief Troyer from the national bureau of criminology. Just now he is wanted at the Michigan state prison.

In 1901 Schultz was sentenced to serve four years in the state prison at Columbus, Ohio, but was paroled before the sentence had been served. June 3, 1903, he was arrested in Cincinnati on the charge of forgery, as Thomas Costello, and was returned to the Ohio penitentiary. He is wanted at the Jackson, Mich., state prison, under the name of Frank Gardner. Probably he will be taken from Duluth back to Jackson, Mich.

Schultz obtained $15 from a Lake avenue saloonkeeper on a worthless receipt for a $500 draft. The local police thought he might be an old offender and sent his photograph to the national bureau at Washington.

GETS BIG FINE.

John Eng was arrested and arraigned in court this morning on the charge of trespass, the charge being preferred by Frank Gardner of 1522 West Michigan street. There were other charges behind the formal complaint, and Eng was given a sentence of $75 and costs by the court, on entering a plea of guilty.

BACK TO REFORMATORY.

Joseph Castiguey is Arrested for Breaking His Parole.

Because Joseph Castiguey, a paroled prisoner from the state reformatory at St. Cloud, became intoxicated, he will probably be sent back to that institution.

Castiguey was arrested by the police this morning on the charge of being drunk. He was known to be on parole, and the officials of the St. Cloud institution will be notified. He was originally sent up for forgery, it is stated by the police.

Whooping Cough.

"In February our daughter had the whooping cough. Mr. Lane of Hartland, recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said it gave his customers the best of satisfaction. ATLANTA WILL BE REBUILT AT ONCE.

Atlanta, Ga., May 9.—Atlanta's business interests will rebuild immediately the three square blocks of buildings destroyed in yesterday's fire.

Practically every owner in the district has announced that modern structures will be erected when the ruins have been cleared. Today found several hundred men at work cleaning out piles of brick and stone, tearing down tottering walls, restoring the streets to traffic, replacing broken telephone and telegraph poles and digging safes out of the wreckage.

The loss stands at practically $1,250,000, with insurance about $900,000.

City officials have begun inquiring into the matter of water pressure, as several streams failed to reach the second stories of buildings.

THEIR DAY OF FREEDOM

Norwegians Will Give Elaborate Program on the Seventeenth.

Will Come From Nearby Towns to Take Part.

Norwegians of Duluth, of Cloquet, Two Harbors and all of the range towns will participate in a grand celebration of Norway's national holiday, the 17th of May, at the Armory, a week from Sunday afternoon, when an elaborate program will be given under the auspices of local lodges of the Sons of Norway.

Congressman Halvor Steenerson of Crookston has been secured by the committee on arrangements as the orator of the day. The subject of his address has not been announced yet, but it will be on some topic touching upon the holiday.

Other speakers will be B. B. Haugan, master of ceremonies and chairman of the general committee on arrangements, and Rev. H. K. Madsen, pastor of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church in the West end.

The Normanna Male chorus, which captured the Carlson trophy by the winning of the last of a series of five singing contests with the Svea Glee club, last Sunday, will sing several of the numbers it gave at the contest. The trophy will be exhibited as well.

The Viking Singing society of Cloquet will sing several numbers and Rev. M. L. Ostager of Cloquet will give a vocal solo.

Miss Laura Frankenfield will read the first act of Henrik Ibsen's Norwegian play, "Peer Gynt."

Flaaten's orchestra will play.

Large delegations are expected from the ranges and other nearby towns and the capacity of the spacious Armory will probably be taxed to the utmost. The Norwegian residents of this city will be out in force.

In the evening, at 9 o'clock, a banquet will be served at the St. Louis hotel. The speakers will be chosen from among the most prominent Norwegians of this part of the state.

The joint executive committee chosen from the membership of Nortun lodge, uptown, and Fram lodge, West Duluth, Sons of Norway, is as follows: B. B. Haugan, Dr. Hovde, John J. Moe, Andrew Angvick, Christ Sundbye, Walter Eng of Nortun lodge, and L. J. Norheim, Christ Frank, George Salvorsen, John Wesenberg and Jens Holth of Fram lodge.

ADDITIONAL SOCIETY NEWS

An old-fashioned social, in which a sugaring-off was the feature, was held last evening at the Pilgrim Congregational church and a large number of the members of the congregation and their friends were present. During the early part of the evening a well-arranged musical program was given by pupils from the class of Mrs. Mary E. Thorburn. Piano solos and duets were given by the young players in a most pleasing manner. Those who appeared on the program were: Misses Ella Johnson, Helen Mahon, Katherine Mitchell, Mendetta Casmir, Winifred Mahon, Margaret and Helen Cant, Daisy Smart and Kathleen Flynn. Other numbers will be given by Misses Myrna Pressnell, Arline Peachey and Madeline Miller.

In one of the side rooms pine boughs and a pot of bubbling maple syrup suggested the old-fashioned sugar camp. Hot biscuits and maple syrup were served. The hostesses presiding in this room were Mrs. H. B. Powell, Mrs. T. J. Davis, Mrs. Alexander Milne and Mrs. Gray. They were assisted by Misses Marion Stanford, Hattie Sampson, Ruth Paull, Clara Bartholdy, Georgia Morey, Bertha Miller, Jessie Shearen, Margaret Cant, Ruth Ericson and Edna Jenks.

At the candy counter, Miss Helen Cant, Miss Ruth Borland and Miss Constance Mitchell presided and the maple sugar cakes were given out by Miss Millet Davis.

Other members of the Mayflower society who assisted during the evening were Marjorie Milne, Dorothy Strong, Anna Jenks, Mary McGonagle and Gertrude Hegardt. The little maids were gowned in Puritan costume and presented a most attractive appearance.

Last evening's affair was the last of a series of social affairs given at the church during the year by the Ladies' union, and the functions have been of more than ordinary charm and originality.

LIBRARY MAKES GOOD RECORD

Cost of Circulating Books Less Than in Twin Cities.

Duluth has good reason to be proud of the record made by the Duluth public library in the matter of percentage of circulation and the amount expended for the library as compared with like figures for the libraries of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Minneapolis has an income of $75,223, and circulated 604,313 volumes during 1907. This as compared to the Duluth income of $14,364 means that they have $60,859 more than Duluth, and circulate 456,189 volumes more. With 19 per cent of that income the local library circulates 24½ per cent as many books.

In St. Paul the amount expended is only $34,604, or $68,240 more than Duluth, and 304,626 volumes are circulated, 229,687 volumes less than Minneapolis. The Duluth record shows that 45 per cent as many books reach the public with only 15 per cent of the money.

Winona is fourth in the list, with an expenditure of $8,451 and a circulation of 100,193 volumes. The other libraries of the state are some distance behind with much smaller incomes.

FIELD'S MINSTRELS.

Splendid Scenic Effects and Some New Songs, Jokes and Dances.

Al. G. Field's Minstrels pleased a large audience at the Lyceum last night with songs, dances and jokes set off with elaborate electrical scenic effects.

Field has a fine collection of comedians this year. Bill Clark, with grimaces and quiet humor, is the hit of the piece, with Doc Quigley's funny legs working in good comedy dances. Bun Granville sings and dances well and Harry Van Lossen is a jokesmith with a funny face. Some of the dialogues are drawn out until they become tedious, but when the point is finally reached, it's a good one, even if a little blunted by age.

Walter Sherwood, George T. Martin and Frank Stanton, tenors, sang well and John C. Dickens, baritone, impressively rendered "The Message of the Old Church Bell" and "My Rosary." Al Field had an opportunity to show his talents as Secretary Taffie in a sketch built around Taft's visit to the Philippines. The scenic effects in the finale, "The Night Before Christmas," are beautifully arranged. The performance will be repeated this afternoon and tonight.

BACK IN PENITENTIARY.

Clever Forger, Who Broke His Parole, is Rounded Up.

Marquette, Mich., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—In charge of deputy Warden Catlin of the Marquette prison there arrived here this morning a man who has left a trail of forged papers behind him in half a dozen states. Catlin's prisoner was Dennis Quinlan, alias Dennis Morris, a paroled convict, once of Chicago, who has been badly wanted at the penitentiary for over a year past.

Quinlan violated his parole in March, 1907, when he suddenly left his employment as a newspaper solicitor in this city. Since then he has been heard from in a dozen different cities, but despite that the middle west state have been covered with descriptions and photographs of him he managed to keep at large until this week. His arrest occured at Bremen, Ind., 100 miles from Chicago, and was brough about by a former convict at the Marquette prison, who "tipped off his identity.

CHIPPEWAS ALL RIGHT.

Various Tribes in Minnesota Devoted to Arts of Peace.

Bemidji, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The Chippewa Indians of the Leech Lake, Cass Lake and Winnibigoshish Indian reservations are progressing nicely these days and each individual Red and the members of his family are pursuing the 'even tenor of their way,' undisturbed by visions of strife and turmoil, which caused considerable apprehension, not so many years ago, in the Leech Lake county," says ex-Senator John T. Frater of Onigum, Indian agent in charge of the agencies on these reservations, who was a visitor in Bemidji last night.

Ex-Senator Frater states that all of the Indians were in the main satisfied with the logging on the reservations, which was done by the companies under the general supervision of William O'Neil of Cass Lake, superintendent of logging under the provision of the Morris Chippewa law. The logs were all check scaled by Pat Kennedy, Edgar G. Greger and E. J. Fulton, official scalers for the Indians of the reserves, and the Indians have every confidence in these men, who have proven their reliability.

The agent states that the recent big forest fires, which raged on the southwestern part of the Leech lake reservation and south of the reservation line, destroyed acres of blueberry vines and obliterated the prospects of hundreds of bushels of berries from one of the favorite Indian berry grounds.

"Old Bug is in good health," says ex-Senator Frater. "Much interest seems to be taken in the condition of the old fellow, doubtless due to the notoriety he attained through his connection with the Indian uprising at Bear Island several years ago. The old fellow goes to Walker occasionally, and is always an object of interest. He has a new house on his allotment at Bear Island, and is as peaceable as a child, but although 70 years of age, his keen eye still retains much of the sparkle of intelligence and gameness."

The many friends and acquaintances of Mr. Euclid Goodchild will be glad to learn through the columns of this paper, of his restoration to health. Mr. Goodchild was a terrible sufferer from rheumatism. His pain was something terrible, he suffered night and day, he could not get relief. He lay awake many a night suffering, and was very much discouraged. Then he got out of bed just barely able to hobble along on crutches, and took the boat to Duluth. While on board he met a Mr. C. B. Smith of Wilson, Minn., who was a former patient of Dr. Mitchell's and knew his treatment to be genuine, and recommended it to Mr. Goodchild very strongly. To make a long story short, Mr. Goodchild left his crutches in Dr. Mitchell's office after the first treatment, and after two weeks' treatment was cured entirely, not an ache or a pain about his body. Mr. Goodchild left yesterday to work for the Oliver Mining company at Colby, Minn., where he will be glad to substantiate this statement. Mr. Goodchild wishes to recommend Dr. Mitchell's treatment to any one suffering from rheumatism, or disease of any kind, for he saw and talked with many patients while treating with the doctor, and found that he was curing all manner of diseases. All diseases are alike to Dr. Mitchell; he cures when all others fail. If you are sick and suffering from any disease and are not getting along satisfactorily under your present treatment, you will do well to consult Dr. Mitchell and obtain his advice free of charge. He will advise you rightly for he does not care to handle incurable cases.

ON THE IRON RANGES

CIVIC PRIDE IS GENERALLY SHOWN

Coleraine, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is doubtful if ever a new town experienced so great an interest in general improvement as is taking place in Coleraine at the present time. Supt. Greenway and Dr. Kean have offered liberal prizes for various lines of civic improvement to property owners and to renters. This together with the local pride if the renters is working a transformation in the appearance of property at this early season.

One of the large improvements is that of the grounds surrounding the office of the Oliver Iron Mining company. Contractor Velke of Bovey has this preliminary work in charge which will soon be completed. The board of education will begin at once to grade surface and seed the commodious grounds surrounding the Greenway school and to surround it with a substantial fence and hedges, trees and shrubbery will also be planted. Private owners and renters are grading, filling and seeding lots and planting trees, arranging window boxes and also planting flower and vegetable gardens.

Unless all of the present signs fail next July and August will see Coleraine one of the prettiest towns in Northern Minnesota. Much credit is due the Commercial Club for this work and the special committee on civic improvement.

HIBBING IMPROVEMENTS.

Range City's Growth is Attracting Attention Elsewhere.

The Improvement Bulletin of Minneapolis, a publication devoted to the growth and betterment of communities in the Northwest, in its last issue, has this to say of the civic improvements of Hibbing:

"Hibbing, Minn. the metropolis of the Mesaba iron range country in Northern Minnesota, is considering a civic group of prominent buildings. Like other cities and towns of recent establishment and construction, Hibbing has heretofore been too busy with current work to stop to consider appearances very much. But the city has reached a size and dignity which makes such considerations appear more essential. It has some very attractive school buildings, and proposes other public structures, which may well be grouped into an attractive assembly."

Mr. Harry is 32 years of age.

The sheriff job has been attracting a great deal of attention from prospective candidates, and two, William Hulbert of Deer River, and T. T. Kelley of Nashwauk, had already filed when Mr. Harry filed. It has been rumored during the past week that E. O. Medicine for Spring

To purify the blood and cleanse the system use Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills.

All winter poisons have been collecting in the system.

Hence the tired, languid feelings of Spring, the indigestion, the pains and aches the discouragement and despondency.

These poisons can only be eliminated by the healthful action of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills promptly enliven the bowels and quicken the liver and kidneys in their work of filtering poisons from the blood.

The blood cannot possibly be purified except by the action of the liver and kidneys—hence mere physics and purgatives do not accomplish the desired results.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills ensure prompt action of the bowels, but do more than this—they restore to healthful and vigorous action the liver and kidneys.

For this reason they are the greatest of Spring medicines and are bound to do you good. One pill a dose, 25 cts. a box, all dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., the famous Receipt Book author, on every box.

ing caused the death of Mrs. Bella Gunness and her three children, was carded for today. H. W. Worden, attorney for the prisoner, said last night that he would file an action in court here today with the object of compelling the authorities to abandon their policy of keeping Lamphere in seclusion. Worden complains that when he went to jail last night he was refused admittance, despite the fact that his client had sent for him.

A possible explanation of the refusal of the sheriff to admit Worden to Lamphere's cell is found in the fact that the former hired man of Mrs. Gunness said yesterday that he was willing to break the silence which he has maintained since his arrest provided that his attorney will agree to such a procedure.

"I want to tell something I know because I know that it will help my case if I do so," said Lamphere. "But my attorney says that I must not talk and I won't talk until he says I can."

Hope He Will Reveal Secrets.

This attitude of the prisoner has given the prosecution hope that he may soon reveal secrets which they have been endeavoring to solve by the slow system of circumstantial evidence. At the same time, it is realized that Attorney Worden will scarcely change his attitude regarding the prisoner's making any admissions concerning relations with Mrs. Gunness and that once the two have conferred on the subject that silence will again enshroud the prisoner.

So if Attorney Worden begins court action against the officers of the prosecution, his movements probably will be resisted strenuously.

Yesterday's developments, outside the discovery of one more body on the farm centered mainly about Lamphere's possible connection with the deaths. Many more witnesses were interviewed by the prosecuting officers and at least two were subpoenaed formally. This brings the present list of witnesses to twenty-one. The most important of the evidence secured yesterday was the trunk which Lamphere left at the farm of John Wheatbrook, where he was employed since February last. It was secured early yesterday morning, but it was not until well along in the evening that the fact that the authorities had found it became known.

The Wheatbrook farm is in the vicinity of Springville, a hamlet seven miles north of here and in the neighborhood where Lamphere spent his boyhood. His father was formerly a justice of the peace in that township and the earlier habits of Lamphere are to be investigated by the operatives of a detective agency who are aiding Sheriff Smutzer.

Letters from Mrs. Gunness found in Lamphere's trunk, urged him to return to the death farm and to bring his sweetheart with him. These letters were sent to Springville and the investigation to be made there may result in the discovering the "sweetheart" mentioned by Mrs. Gunness. Thus far her identity is unknown.

Work of Digging Resumed.

The work of digging on the Gunness farm was resumed today, only one man, however, being put at work. Up to 10 o'clock no trace of additional bodies had been discovered.

The local authorities are endeavoring to trace a young man named Canary, who, it is believed, may have been one of the victims of Mrs. Gunness. A letter was received this morning from his mother, saying that her son, who was about 20 years of age, has disappeared and that she has had no word from him for almost two years. It is known that young Canary worked for Henry Bigge, who lived about a quarter of a mile from the Gunness farm. He disappeared in June.

Mrs. Canary declares in her letter that the boy was not intellectually bright and says that he at one time burned an empty cottage for the pleasure of seeing it destroyed. It is known that he was around the Gunness place at various times. He rarely had any money with him, which makes it possible that he was not killed.

About one year ago a man arrived in Laporte from the state of New York. He said that he had made arrangements to work for Mrs. Gunness and that she was going to buy a horse and buggy, which he had. He has never been heard of since he went to the Gunness farm and his buggy was today identified while standing in a shed on the Gunness place.

One Story Proven False.

It has been conclusively proven that the story given out by Mrs. Gunness that Jennie Olson went to attend the Lutheran school at Fergus Falls, Minn., was false. A letter received today from the authorities of that institution declares that Jennie Olson was never there and that they never heard of her.

The threatened clash between the authorities and E. B. Worden, the attorney for Ray Lamphere, over his right to see the prisoner was averted today. Mr. Worden having been admitted to the jail, where he talked with Lamphere for more than an hour. Mr. Worden strongly denied the story that any trunk had been found containing letters written by Lamphere to Mrs. Gunness, and he also asserted that there was absolutely no truth in the statement that Lamphere desired to confess, or that he had anything to confess.

Mr. Worden is investigating a story that on the night of the burning of the Gunness home, and a short time before it was discovered, a farmer, who attempted to drive past the place, was stopped and turned back by two masked men. The name of the farmer is not known at present.

NOT MRS. GUNNESS.

Woman, Arrested in Syracuse, Clearly Proves Her Identity.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 9.—The police say the woman arrested here is not Mrs. Gunness.

The woman arrested here as Mrs. Belle Gunness of Laporte, Ind., has regular teeth and but one gold crown, which is a molar on the left side. The Laporte description of Mrs. Gunness states that her upper teeth were heavily plated with gold.

The Syracuse police officers took the woman from a train reaching here this morning at 1:38 from the west on suspicion that she might be Mrs. Belle Gunness, the alleged Laporte murderess.

Arriving at the station the woman said that she was Mrs. L. A. Herron and that she was a widow from Chicago on the way to New York to visit her sister. She said that she had been visiting her old home in Franklin, Pa., and that she took the train at Ashtabula, Ohio.

New York, May 9.—Mrs. Charles P. Rockefeller of this city, is a sister of Mrs. L. A. Herron. She said today that Mrs. Herron has lived most of her life in Franklin, Pa., and that L. A. Herron, her husband, was formerly vice president of the Sethness company of Chicago, a concern manufacturing extracts. Mr. Herron died in Vicksburg, Miss., last Christmas, at which time Mrs. Herron was a guest of Mrs. Rockefeller in this city. Mrs. Rockefeller said her sister was on her way to this city to search for employment when she was taken into custody.

If you are out of Hunt's Perfect Baking Powder and Extracts, put them on your list of groceries needed now before you forget it.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Elmo Harvard, 18 years old, a negro, arrested Wednesday at Pulaski, Tenn., for attempted criminal assault, was lynched this afternoon by a mob of 300 unmasked men. The men broke open the jail and, over the protest of the sheriff, carried the negro to a bridge and hanged him.

WORD FROM WHITESIDE

Work on the Whiteside properties is progressing rapidly. The following has just been received from Mr. R. H. Whiteside, Manager:

"We are now down 160 feet in Shaft No. 2 on the Tellurium, and have drift in 20 feet at this level. Values look good to me."

"Expect to get an estimate on mill for Zook about May 23rd. Will take over a crew and make a detailed report to you afterwards. It might be best for you to send the miners and mill men from Duluth."

These extracts from Mr. Whiteside's letter show that active work is the order of the day, and that the earning capacity of these mines is daily drawing nearer.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headaches, languor, why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in. Read this Duluth testimony:

Edward J. Hoppman, mineralogist, living at 422 First street west, Duluth, Minn., says: "The best proof of the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills that I can give is that since using this remedy for a bad attack of kidney trouble, some six years ago, I have not found it necessary to use any medicine at all for my kidneys. At the time when I began using them I suffered from sharp aching pains in the back and loins. The kidney secretions were discolored and the trouble told on my general health. Doan's Kidney Pills brought prompt relief and a final cure, and the permanence of the results thoroughly proved that this remedy can be depended upon in such cases."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

AT THE LYCEUM

Minstrel Maids on Monday, "Brewster's Millions" Tuesday and Wednesday, With Clay Clement in Repetoire Thursday Friday and Saturday.

Cohan & Harris' comedians will present "Brewster's Millions" at the Lyceum on Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and night. This famous comedy is claimed to be the best play of its kind produced in recent years. It is a result of a combination of brains, ability and money properly directed. Originally "Brewster's Millions" was a novel, by that prolific fiction dispenser, George Barr McCutcheon, whose "Beverley of Graustark" had previously been so successful. Messrs. Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley saw in "Brewster's Millions" the possibilities for a great play and proceeded to transplant it from the bookshelf to the footlights. So well did they succeed that their work attracted the attention of Frederic Thompson, of the late firm of Thompson & Dundy, the promoters and conductors of Luna Park at Coney Island. Mr. Thompson being the inventor and promoter of a number of marvelous illusions which were seen at both the Buffalo and St. Louis world's fairs, proceeded to present the play. Its overwhelming success is a matter of recent theatrical record, and that it ran for a year in New York, for half that length of time in Chicago and longer in London is but mute testimony to the perspicuity of Mr. Thompson. The production to be seen here by Cohen & Harris' comedians has not lost its metropolitan appearance. Indeed, scenically, electrically and mechanically it is an absolute reproduction, while dramatically it is interpreted by a cast fully as strong and equally as clever as the original. It is headed by Mr. Robert Ober, who is supported by James H. Montgomery, Louis Haines, James W. Horne, Brinsley Shaw, Edmund Mortimer, George Crossette, John Alden, Richard E. Webster and the Misses June Mathis, Olive North, Ada May Talbot, Ida Lee Caston and Nellie Black.

CLAY CLEMENT.

Versatile Actor Will be Here Three Nights in Repetoire.

Last year the Chicago Press club gave a theatrical benefit for David B. Henderson, the producer of those Arabian Nights operas which were at one time so popular and which brought to the notice, Eddie Foy, May Yohe, Ida Mulle, Nick Norton and a number of other celebrieties. The performance was in the Colonial theater. All the prominent actors in town contributed to the program. Clay Clement, who was away in Kentucky at the time and who is a member of the Chicago Press club, hurried to Chicago and, on short notice, rehearsed and produced his version of "The Old Guard." The theater was packed, and each volunteer actor was given an ovation. When Clement appeared as the old and aged French soldier, his make-up was so good that no one recognized him. As the act proceeded the other actors crowded to the wings and stood intently watching the performance. The house grew very still. The tremulous tones of the old corporal rose and fell quaintly, each word thin, yet distinct and full of reminiscent passion and devotion to the great Napoleon. At the climax of the act, when the old soldier fell dead upon the stage, the house rose to its feet and applauded with hand and voice. In the wings, actors were in tears. "That," said Opie Reed, who stood with a group of other performers, "is the most artistic thing I ever say. Clement is a genius."

Mr. Clement is now starring in a repertoire of plays, comprising several of the great Shakespearean tragedies, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "The Bells," "London Assurance," his own popular "New Dominion" and "A Southern Gentleman." He has also in preparation "Hampton Roads," a Civil war drama, and his own deeply emotional American play, "The Law of the Trail," said by those who have heard the manuscript to be the most verile of the plays of American life. The scenes are laid in Alaska, and the matter for the play was gathered by Mr. Clement at first hand while he carried a pack over the Yukon trail. It is said to offer this versatile actor a new and strikingly strong character, which is peculiarly fitted to him. Mr. Clement will be at the Lyceum Thursday, Friday and Saturday, matinee and night, in repertoire.

The Minstrel Maids.

Since the last season the management of the Juvenile Bostonians has arranged a new and novel performance throughout. In presenting to the loving public the latest offering, "The Minstrel Maids," a bevy of pretty girls in an old-time minstrel performance, followed by a musical comedy, introducing Ruby Lang, Jacque Casad, Edith McClaire, Faye Griffin, Sydney Farmer, Connie West and Tiny Halcoyn Martin, the child wonder, with a beauty chorus. The company comes direct from the Pacific coast, where they have made a big hit nightly. They will appear at the Lyceum Monday night.

Lyceum Notes.

In her forthcoming production, "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," May Robson, one of the foremost character actresses in America will be seen in a role which is said to be one of the best of her entire stage career. L. S. Sire, under whose management Miss Robson is starring, has surrounded her with a strong company, including such people as Nina Saville Grace Parks, Lillian Westner, H. H. Crowley, Francis Herblin, George A. Stevenson and Jack Story. In staging the production, many novel effects will be found, making it an up-to-date comedy in every particular. The same cast and production will be seen here as played in Chicago at the Studebaker theater to crowded houses nightly for three months, and the Garden theater, New York.

When the new college play for girls comes to this city, in the near future, theatergoers will have the opportunity of seeing the first musical comedy drama of its kind. College plays for men are numerous, but this is the first of the kind written for girls. Vassar college, with its class day exercises and Daisy Chain sports is the locale chosen, and the characters found in and around this seat of learning form the dramatic personae. There is a scene up in Vermont that adds spice to the tale, and quaint people of the New England farm give a piquant flavor to the whole play. Florence Gear plays the leading role in this piece.

"Popularity" is surely the sign of "The Burgomaster." Never in the history of this comic opera success has it proved so popular as the present season. Manufacturers all over the country are recognizing the sterling worth of the word "Burgomaster," and salted peanuts, cigars, whisky, chocolates, bon bons, neckwear and shoes and kerchiefs are all named after "The Burgomaster." "The Brugomaster" will be at the Lyceum May 22 and 23.

AT THE BIJOU

The bill of vaudeville offered at the Bijou the coming week should prove one of the season's biggest drawing cards, as each act can be considered a headliner, and it would be hard to judge which act is entitled to the feature position. Among the fine attractions for the week will be Ann Hamilton and company, in "Beggars," a Mexican study. A complete set of scenery is carried for the production of this sketch, which runs twenty minutes. Miss Hamilton is a clever, emotional actress, and she has excellent support with Percy Herbert and James L. Hughes.

The following is a notice from a Memphis paper of recent date:

"Ann Hamilton and company appear in a Mexican study, entitled 'Beggars.' The sketch is elaborately staged, the color scheme being carried out most ingeniously. The picture is that of Mexico, with tints of the most florid type. It is an attractive scene and the act is decidedly clever in this respect. Miss Hamilton appears in the role of a Mexican dancer, her work is remarkable and her support splendid.'

In "Beggars" at the Bijou Next Week.

Patrons who heard the Grand Opera trio, two weeks ago, will be pleased to hear of T. W. Eckert and Emma Berg, operatic stars of a national reputation, who will be one of the week's big features. They will present a musical fantasy, entitled "The Land of Two Moons," produced with their own special scenery. This act will be one of the best opera and musical treats that will appear this season. Both Mr. Eckert and Miss Berg are schooled performers in grand opera, having appeared for long runs at the Royal Opera, Berlin, and the Opera Grand at Paris, as well as at many American opera houses.

A gymnastic feature will be Selbini and Gronin, who are acrobats, jugglers, tumblers and acrobatic bicyclists. A Pittsburg paper has the following notice:

"One of the most remarkable, and by the same token unusual, acts presented in vaudeville in years is that of Selbini and Grovini, who are playing an engagement in the Grand this week. Thousands of people have marveled at the wonderful dexterityl and ease with which the work of this duo is accomplished, and the consensus of opinion is that Pittsburg has been looking at something this wek that is very much out of the beaten path."

A novelty different from anything yet presented at the Bijou will be Anna Brigham, who claims to be the premier whistler of the world. Miss Brigham whistles selections from operas as well as popular airs, and her imitations are said to be extra good. She has a pleasing

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

New York, May 9.—James A. Herne, the author of "Shore Acres," once said of Henry E. Dixey, that he was the best actor in the United States. He was a good authority, and I have often thought of his words in looking back over Dixey's career since his "Adonis" days and the time that New York all but declared a public holiday in honor of his departure for London, in 1886. Yet there are people who see in him only the juggler, the dancer and the laugh maker. He showed them something last week when he appeared as Papa Lebonnard in Jean Alcard's strong domestic drama, which Novelli first made known to the New York public.

In the play he is a good-natured old clockmaker, who is married to a social climber, who, now that they are rich and respectable, tries to marry her daughter to a marquis. But Lebonnard, all serenity and sweetness, has never changed his habits. He still loves to tinker with his clocks, he is supposed to stand in awe of his wife, and he loves Jeanne, his daughter. There is also a boy younger than Jeanne, proud, haughty, arrogant and cut off the same pattern as his mother. Mother and son despise their simple old father.

Lebonnard yields in everything to their superior wills, until they oppose themselves to his desire of insuring Jeanne's happiness by marrying her to Dr. Andrea, a young physician who treated her during a serious illness. The mother is determined to see Jeanne married to a nobleman and makes old Lebonnard's life miserable by her efforts to thwart the marriage with Andrea. When at last she attacks the young man because of his illegitimate birth, a fact already made known to Lebonnard by Andrea himself, the old clockmaker unveils her hypocrisy and shows that for fifteen years he has known that the supposed son is not his own child, but the fruit of a liaison with a count. For the sake of the children he has kept the secret to himself. The woman breaks down under the old man's scathing arraignment, and at that moment the son enters. He sees his mother in distress and turns furiously upon his father to rebuke him; but no sooner has the word "coward" escaped his lips, than the old man's patience is at an end, and all the concentrated wrath of fifteen years is expressed in the venomous epithet of "bastard!" which he hurls in the face of the amazed youth.

It is a great climax and it gives the actor a chance for the exercise of his best powers. But the play does not end here. There is another act, and it is hardly less gripping than the others. Lebonnard is now master of his house. His own sublime exhibition of real temper has stricken terror in every direction. But his old serenity has returned. Robert, the son, is just recovering from a severe shock to his pride; but the experience has wrought a wholesome change. He is going to leave the house and go to America, where his imagined disgrace cannot follow him. Lebonnard demurs, because his humanity is too great to hold the boy responsible for the error of the mother, and when Robert overhears him saying that he has not shut him out of his heart, the boy falls around his neck, and everybody is happy.

Dixey stood the comparison with Novelli well. He lacked something of the broad style of the latter in the part, and occasionally let us suspect that he was not feeling the character in all its finer details; but in the general scope and purpose, his conception was admirable, and that he faltered neither in the serious nor in the lighter moments of the play, was in itself a triumph on which he deserves to be congratulated. His work made a splendid impression on the audience, and only the most cavilling criticism can belittle the artistic success which he certainly achieved in the eyes of all impartial observers.

The role of Jeanne was engagingly played by Marie Nordstrom; Eugene Ormonde appeared as Dr. Andrea; Frank Aiken as the old marquis, and James Spottswood gave a good account of himself as Robert, the son. A vigorous delineation was given by Helen Tracy of Madame Lebonnard, the wife.

I think it is agreed that we may learn from our failures as well as by our successes, and that the person who points out our faults benefits us and is our sincerest friend. I surmise there will be persons mean enough to say that Mme. Komisarzhevsky, the Russian actress, spoke from a feeling of injured pride when she pointed out what is the matter with us as an artistic people before she set sail on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, to return to St. Petersburg. Be that as it may, she discussed her visit in a philosophic spirit and with no trace of complaint.

"You may consider in a way," she said, "that our appearance was a failure, but what sort of a failure? It was not a financial success, as any one may have seen, but I did not come here in serach of American gold, as some persons were kind enough to say of me. It was a failure in the sense that your public did not seem anxious to see what we Russians could do in the way of acting. That is a failure that should be on your conscience. From an artistic standpoint, my conscience is clear. There is an impression abroad that Americans are unappreciative of the best in art, particularly in the drama. I was warned about that on every side, but I did not believe it. I find now that, to a great extent, it is true, although there appears to me to be a small class of persons who can appreciate what is good and what is bad in drama, just as well as the Europeans. I consider the chief cause of the lack of interest in our company to have been the fact that Americans have not yet reached the stage where they can appreciate simplicity in art. What is simple appeals to them as uninspired."

And by way of a parting shot she told the New Yorkers that their town is horrid. "It is a monster city," she exclaimed; "when I arrived I was almost frightened. I noticed at once, however, that there was very little art in your architecture or pride in the appearance of the city."

After that Mme. Komisarzhevsky will do well to avoid New York, for we shall remember all she has said of us this time.

You who are not so happy as the rest of us, because you do not live in New York and cannot bask in the white lights of theatrical Broadway, do not know to what alien fate your horoscope has consigned you. I am taking the New Yorker at his own estimate, and you will pardon him, as I do, for fondly believing that Broadway is the bridge that connects the two unknown shores of eternity, the whence and the whither. So you must not be surprised at his harmless delusion that nothing in the theatrical line is is standard-gauged and double-proofed unless it has the hall mark of Broadway. A complacent smile of sympathy will pass over the face of your wise Broadwayite if you presume to extol genius that has not yet stood the fire test of the great white way, for is not Broadway the crucible of reputation? And he will say to himself in the fullness of his sublime contentment: "Pshaw! If your unknown genius amounted to anything we would have discovered it long ago! New York is the Athens of today, and all the others are Boeotians."

"THE HOUSE OF MIRTH."
LAST SHOW OF ALL TONIGHT!

All this apropos of what one may witness every day on this same wonderful Broadway, right in the center of the great theatrical district, within 300 feet of the Empire theater, the home of Maud Adams and John Drew, and the Metropolitan opera house, the temple of Caruso and Emma Eames. Flanking the great opera house on one side is a converted store whose windows are plastered over with dingy bills and cracked oil cloth signs. "Four of the Greatest Horses in the World!" is the blazing legend running across the entire front of the buildings. Four barkers stand at the door and call out to the passing throng that "now is the time to enter to see these marvelous animals, four of the most wonderful equines ever bred in captivity," or words to that effect. And for good measure they exhibit the cow with a human skin. This country fair exhibition has been advertised for weeks and is holding its own nobly in competition with Wagner's "Siegfreid" and "Goetterdammerung." Needless, therefore, to say that this barnyard show has the unqualified indorsement of Broadway, of which no doubt the proper use will be made when these fellow artists of Komisazhevsky go on tour.

Equidistant from the temple of the muses in the other direction is a gaily decorated booth with blazing electric signs where a sale of ten cent music is conducted on a sensational scale. Not far away is the Broadway theater, where "The Waltz Dream" is running. A few blocks around the corner "The Merry Widow" is playing. The American rights of both works are in controversy, and this has afforded rival publishers an opportunity to throw their publications on the market in opposition to the licensed music publishers.

The booth is a small store space, brilliantly lighted within. One man stands at the door and calls the attention of the public in a loud voice to the cheap sale of popular music from the standard operas, including many of those given at the Metropolitan, and the popular airs of the day from the music halls. Within a piano is mounted on a high platform, with a man sitting at the cracked instrument and pounding away for dear life all day, giving you a free sample of the dulcet strains of the works which you may acquire for the small sum of 10 cents. A little further away is a moving picture show, combined with a shooting gallery, a fortune teller, a palmist and a chiropodist, all thrifty and prosperous under the official, the sacred, sanction of discriminating Broadway.

If with such evidence one is not profoundly impressed with the dictum of a Broadway success it is hopeless. Every year the great thoroughfare is more and more becoming like a permanent midway plaisance, more and more like a county fair with its live stock and side shows.

From all accounts "Way Down East" has not won the expected triumph in London that was confidently relied upon when William B. Brady and Joseph Grismer took the play, together with Pheobe Davis, over the waters a short time ago, fancying that since London went into ecstacy over "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," it must perforce capitulate straightway to its rival. Both present an exaggerated portrait of American rural life, and it can hardly be claimed that London refused to be entertained by "Way Down East" because it did not understand it. Neither did we on this side of the pond, but it afforded good amusement for all that, and it was accepted without cavil.

I wondered at the attitude of London until an Englishman made it clear to me by explaining that the English metropolis accepted "Mrs. Wiggs" from purely patriotic motives and not from any regard for its merits. Madge Carr Cooke, who plays the title role in the play of Kentucky rural life, is an English woman, and it was on that account that the noble Britains rose to the occassion, consenting to be amused by something that would have bored them horribly if Mrs. Wiggs had been played by an American actress.

Henry Miller will not be deterred by the failure of "Way Down East" from sending his associate players over next spring in "The Servant in the House," with some assurance, however, that he will have something to offer them that will appeal to Londoners on artistic as well as patriotic grounds. The entire company, as well as the author and Mr. Miller himself, is English, and therefore reasonably assured of a respectful hearing. Rann Kennedy's new play, I hear, is not to be tried out until next fall. It is called "The Winter Feast," and is considered too heavy for summer. It will alternate with "The Servant of the House," and if successful, will be followed by another new play by the same author, the third of a series of seven on which he is engaged.

"The Wolf," Eugene Walter's new play, which was removed from the Bijou after only one week to fill a breach, was well received at the Lyric. The house was good and the enthusiasm great. It was taken to the Lyric, managed by the Shuberts, as a stop-gap to close the vacuum created by the retirement of Julia Marlowe, who was to have followed E. H. Sothern, but is now at her mountain home for a long rest.

One of the best one-act comedies I ever saw is "The Van Dyke," a Parisian importation which Arnold Daly admirably played at the Berkeley Lyceum last fall. The piece has been acquired by Martin Beck, to be used as a curtain-raiser to Katherine Grey's performance of "The Reckoning" on the road.

The Friars, the booming organization of press men connected with theaters all over the country, have succeeded in inducing Weber and Fields to appear jointly at the benefit for the Friar clubhouse, which has been arranged to take place at the New York theater May 14. The comedians will probably appear in "The German Senators," a sketch which they played in vaudeville about twenty years ago. Of course, this will be the first time of their playing together since their separation several years ago.

From London comes the news that Charles Frohman has secured the rights to the latest German comic opera success, "The Dollar Princess," and that he will send it to the United States next year with May De Sousa, who is now playing in Berlin, after making a big hit at the Moulin Rouge and the Comedie Francaise in Paris, in the principal role.

Anna Laughlin of "The Wizard of Oz" fame, and now a dainty feature of "The Top of the World" show, is to be starred by the Shuberts next year in a musical comedy, and the announcement is made that Victor Herbert is at work on the book which Henry Blossom has been getting ready for Fritzie Scheff, for this is the prima donna's last New York appearance in "Mlle. Modiste." Miss Scheff is playing at the Academy of Music and incidentally looking after her domestic affairs, getting a divorce from her husband, Lieut. Von Bardeleben.

That the season is over is noted by the turning toward Europe of many managers and players. This week A. W. Dingwall and Edward Cooke sailed for England, and after the early season in London, go on to Paris to meet Joseph Brooks, who is now en route. Messrs. Brooks and Dingwall brought out two new plays last season, and both proved successful. The late Denis O'Sullivan's comedy, "Peggy Machree," they will send out next season with another star in the principal part. "The Right of Way," with Theodore Roberts and Guy Standing, will go out again, having proved a sure winner on the road. A new play will be found for the use of the joint stars the following season or later in this coming year, after the open territory is played with the dramatic version of Sir Gilbert Parker's great novel.

Bertha Galland, who has been in retirement for two years, owing to ill health and the inability to secure a suitable play, has found the required vehicle for next season, and, her health permitting, will return to the boards. Miss Galland has hit upon a dramatic version of George Eliot's "The Spanish Gypsy," which was made by William N. Young. It is called "Fidelma," and unless Miss Galland should be forced to change her mind she will star in it next season.

Martha Morton will be represented in London soon with two plays that were adapted for the English stage by her. One is from the German play, "The Bell of Liberty," that has had a success in paris and Berlin. It will be produced in London, and Henry B. Harris has the American right for next season. "The Prisoner," another play by Miss Morton, is to be done in New York soon, and then it goes to London.

Louis Klaw, aged 60 years, a brother of Marc Klaw, of Klaw and Erlanger, died at his home in New York city last week. Mr. Klaw had been associated with his brother's theatrical enterprises for many years. His home was originally in Louisville, Ky., and from there he went to New York to go into theatricals. Deceased had been in failing health for some time. Marc Klaw, who has been enjoying his vacation in Europe, was notified, and, cutting short his stay abroad, is now on his way to this country.

George Arliss, for several seasons an important member of Mrs. Fiske's supporting company, has secured the American rights to a new play in which he will undertake to star next season. It is called "The Devil," and is from the Hungarian play of that name by Molnar Ferenc. William Trowbridge Barned of New York Life made the adaptation for Mr. Arliss. The story is essentially modern, with the scenes laid in Budapest, and has created a furore on the continent.

Paul Liebler, of the theatrical firm of Liebler & Co., has taken over Lee Arthur's newest play, "Undesirable Citizens," for his own investment next season. Mr. Liebler will organize a company and bring out the story. It is a treatment of graft and politics and deals with modern society in general. The piece was recently given a tryout by the Peyton Stock company in Brooklyn and made such a hit that it was quickly snapped up by Mr. Liebler.

George Brennan, who saw the dramatic possibilities in Rev. Tom Dixon's two other books, "The Leopard's Spots" and "The Clansman," and made a fortune out of the play which he vested with the latter title, has taken over the author's stage ideas of the last of his trilogy of Ku-Klux Klan stories, "The Traitor." Brennan will produce it next fall in Norfolk, Va., where "The Clansman" was launched upon its remarkable career.

Marguerita Sylva, the American prima donna, who deserted comic opera to go abroad and continue her musical studies, has again made a big hit. In "Faust" recently at Berne, Switzerland, Miss Sylvia sang the role of Marguerite, and the word from there is that she created a positive sensation in the part. From vaudeville to grand opera at Berne is traveling some in a few short seasons.

Eddie Foy drifted into vaudeville for a spring cleaner last week, opening at the Orpheum, in Brooklyn. Foy will do a monologue of songs and funny sayings, and fill out five or six weeks at that before turning to his vacation. Alas, poor Hamlet!

Boston has apparently a keener liking for Ibsen than the country in general, for, having recently enjoyed the annual engagement there of Mrs. Fiske, in "Rosmersholm," it welcomes her successor in the Norwegian poet's Russian exponent, Nazimova, who is playing to big business in the same theater vacated by Mrs. Fiske. Nazimova is to present "A Doll s House" and "Hedda Gabler" during her stay in the Hub.

Having successfully launched his newest production, "The Yankee Prince," in New York, George Cohan is now at work upon his new piece, with which Cohan and Harris expect to open their New York home, the Gaiety theater, about the middle of August. J. Fred Zimmermann has been selected as resident manager of the new theater. Cohan, in addition to this work, is now rehearsing with his sister Josephine an original sketch which they will do at the benefit of the Friars' Festival, the 14th of this month.

America will send over two very good actresses to Australia for this summer. Margaret Anglin has closed her long run as Ruth Jordan in "The Great Divide," with Henry Miller, and after a week in the East starts for Australia, where she is to appear in a repertoire of her past character hits. Louis Nethersole will look after the business details of Miss Anglin's engagement in the Antipodes. Meanwhile her part in the Miller performances will be played by Edyth Oliver, an English actress who arrived from London last week and joined the Miller company in Chicago. Henry Kolker, now playing in stock in Kansas City, will go to Australia as Miss Anglin's leading man.

The other American actress booked for Australia is Miss Ada Dwyer, lovingly remembered for her great character work with Eleanor Robson the past several seasons. Miss Dwyer is to head the cast in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" when it is introduced to that country.

Benjamin Hapgood Burt is now loafing on George Ade's farm at Brook, Ind. Here they will work jointly on the musical version of "Artie," to be produced next season by Cohan and Harris. Mr. Burt will write the score and lyrics.

Frank Worthing, aftter a brief sojojurn in Arizona, is again in good health and has rejoined Grace George in "Divorcons." H. Reeves Smith, the English actor, who took Mr. Worthing's place during his retirement has gone back to England.

Leonard Glover, Sr., who is looked upon as the veteran of all old-time show managers had a big benefit in Brooklyn last week and netted a sum from the Sunday performance that showed how thoroughly he was esteemed. Some of the best known people on the legitimate and vaudeville stage took part in the performance. Long before the war Glover went into producing and theater managing and has been actively in the field ever since.

Anna Held has been doing so well in New York that instead of closing with "The Parisian Model" last Saturday night she was induced to play three weeks more in and around New York, and starts the preliminary season in Brooklyn this week. A wonderful record in the face of the anxiety generally shown by others to cut short their seasons. The change gives Charles Bigelow a chance to come back into his old part of the husband and will finish out the season. Bigelow and Ziegfeld have again patched up their differences and he returns to the Held company for three years.

Edwin Stevens is heading a stock musical comedy company that is to run all summer in San Francisco. During his stay there he will try out several musical novelties which will likely be turned into vaudeville later. One is the new skit, "Burning to Sing and Singing to Burn." The original ideas for this were written by George Ade when he was doing daily newspaper stunts in Chicago. The story was copied by the New York Sun, and scored a hit in the East also. If successful Stevens will likely use it in vaudeville himself.

The Columbia Amusement people last week took over the Grand Street theater in New York city, thus adding a third house to their string in the metropolis. When Sullivan and Kraus went over to the Empire circuit two seasons back the Eastern people were without a house in their own city. By two deals they secured the Murray Hill and the Hurtig and Seamon house, and now with the Grand Street will have a trio. The latter house has been a Yiddish theater for some years, as the company headed by Jacob Adler was long installed there.

James J. Corbett has been doing so well out West that he will remain in that section most of next season, playing the higher-priced theaters, under the management of John Cort. He has a new play in mind that will be entirely suited to his style.

Manager W. A. Brady has secured a new play called "The New Generation," which he is said to have booked in order to introduce Louis Mann as a star in the same next season.

C. S. McLellan's newest play, "A Matter of Money," will be brought out in this country next season by Liebler & Co., most likely with Eleanor Robson in the principal part. The title of the story does not suggest the inspiration under which Mr. McLellan wrote the piece, it is said.

Heinrich Conreid, who has given up most of his American holdings in operatic and theatrical ventures, sailed for Berlin last week. He will repair at once to Baden, a suburb of Vienna, where the impresario says, his health permitting, he will take up the work of writing his memoirs. They will start in 1878, the year of his arrival in this country, and cover the field of his activities up to within a few weeks back, when he surrendered the reins of management at the Metropolitan opera house.

The success of Ethel Barrymore in her new play, "Her Sister," has been so unexpectedly emphatic, everywhere the play is given, that at Miss Barrymore's urgent request Charles Frohman has added eight weeks to her season, bringing it up to the last of July.

The Scot, J. M. Barrie holds, is an eternal surprise to the Englishman and the Englishman to the Scot, and the new Barrier play will be a "hopeless attempt" to make them understand each other. Mr. Barrie's latest piece deals with the greatest of all the "social problems," "which is the right woman to marry?" Should a man know her well before marriage, or wait to know her afterwards? But is there a case on record of his ever knowing her well at all, and if there is one such case—namely, the gentleman of the Barrie play—would he not have been more comfortable had he, like the usual mortal, remained in ignorance?

A new comer in the dramatic field is William Trowbridge Larned, whose adaptation of the Hungarian comedy, "The Devil," has been accepted by George Arliss for production in the fall. Mr. Arliss, for several years leading man with Mrs. Fiske, and one of the foremost portrayers of character parts, is to head his own company next season. He has been anxious to find a play which would exploit his abilities, and he is entirely satisfied that Mr. Larned's adaptation of "The Devil" meets his peculiar requirements. This play by Molnar Fernac was first put on in Budapest, where its success was so pronounced that it is now on view in Berlin, Rome and Paris. Mr. Larned, who contributes the "Literary Zoo" to Life, made his adaptation from a translation direct from the Hungarian by Alex. Konta, now a stock broker and capitalist of New York. The character of "The Devil" is semi-supernatural and the cynicism and ironic malevolence of the part are exactly suited to Mr. Arliss' powers of expression. The play itself is uncommonly original in theme and development.

THE NEW METROPOLITAN

Mr. Conreid's Successors---Long and Fluctuating Contest Between German and Italian Interests and the Situation It Has Developed.

W. J. Henderson says in the New York Sun: The official announcement of the conclusion of the arrangements for a new management at the Metropolitan opera house can hardly have contained anything to astonish the readers of this paper, for the nature of this action was foretold in these columns some time ago. The new regime is to be so constituted as to arouse wonder in many minds. Why must the opera house have two managers, one of Teutonic and one of Italian origin? The answer to this must be sought among the most substantial patrons of the house, or perhaps rather among those who make its existence possible at all.

There long has been among these people a feeling that the term artistic has for too many critics, artists, conductors and music lovers spelled German opera. Now it must not be forgotten that some years ago the Metropolitan was a German opera house, and that it was at times given over to the performance of some of the cheapest products of the Teutonic music factories. In the season which terminated the reign of German opera, we had the misfortune to hear not only the incomprehensible "Asrael" of Franchetti, but also the wearisome "Vassal of Szigeth," and finally the stupefying "Diana of Solange," composed by the duke of Saxe-Coburg.

This last ton of lead broke the camel's back. The patient occupants of the boxes, the stockholders of the opera house, decided that as they were engaged every season in paying a deficit, they would, if that must continue to be necessary, pay it for a kind of opera that gave them some amusement or entertainment for their money. So they incontinently kicked German opera into the street and invited Abbey, Schoeffel and Grau, who had conducted the first season of the house, to return and try it again. This brought Italian opera once more into the seat of power, but owing to the Gallic affections of Mr. Grau, French opera in the French language became a part of the plan of the new management. Consequent upon this was the engagement of singers acquainted with both Italian and French.

It was not long before Jean de Reszke, with that fine feeling for the artistic proprieties which always dwelt in his mind, declared to Mr. Grau that if Italian and French operas were to be given in Italian and French operas in French, then it was illogical to continue performing "Lohengrin" and such operas in anything but German. Mr. Grau at first held out against this proposition, but a highly successful season of opera in German, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, convinced him that there was still a strong public demand for performances of this kind, and he yielded an assent to Mr. de Reszke's proposal. The result was the restoration of Wagnerian drama in its correct text to the repertory.

Thus polyglot opera became the kind given at the Metropolitan, and it was given with great success as long as the manager was able to obtain for the German works such singers as the two Reszkes, Nordica, Ternina, Schumann-Heink and Brema. The sensational success of Jean de Reszke in the great Wagnerian roles brought the imposing music drama of Balreuth once more into a position of command in the operatic world of New York. But since the retirement of several of the great artists of the "international" school (the singers of Italian, French and German roles) their places have never been filled to the satisfaction of the general public nor to that of the men who control the Metropolitan Opera house. Despite this fact the struggle to keep German opera in its old position of command has never ceased.

Mistaken views of the situation have centralized effort on the conducting and the scenic presentation, whereas the element wanting in the performance—in so far as public interest has been concerned—has been singers. We have had good singers, to be sure, but none great enough to counteract or equal the enormous influence of Mr. Caruso in fixing firmly in the general affection the works of the Italian list. Even "Faust" fell into disuse till this adored tenor learned to sing the hero's part. What the most influential people in the clientele of the Metropolitan Opera house have desired to see in the plans of a new regime was a provision that the repertory affording the largest field to the most popular singers now before the public should not be in danger of sacrifice of the desires of Teutonic "artistic" conductors with admirable ideas of interpretation and stage management, but contemporaneous German notions about singing.

Fear of the predominance of Teutonic methods was the force which battled for the recognition of Italy in the new management. When the business of preparing to make a change of management was begun there was a strong party in the house in favor of turning the matter over entirely to the young representative of a Milanese publishing house. It was the knowledge of this influence which caused the publication in this paper in August last of an editorial article advocating the selection of Andreas Dippel as the most available man for the post, the man most likely by reason of his tastes and acquaintance with all schools to satisfy all demands. At that time, too, the movement to secure the services of Mr. Mahler was under way, for it was felt that his catholicity of feeling and his ability in conducting such works as those of Mozart, Charpentier's "Louise," and the spectacular operas of Meyerbeer would fit him for such a post as that of musical director at the Metropolitan. But Mr. Dippel is a Viennese and so by long residence is Mr. Mahler. That was enough to arouse fear in the minds of those who were determined that German opera should never again be in the ascendant at the Metropolitan.

The battle between the advocates of the Italian publisher and those of the Viennese contingent has resulted in a compromise. Mr. Gatti-Casazza of La Scala is regarded by many as a tolerably acceptable representative of the publishing house alluded to. We shall probably hear many of its operas. Able and vigorous as this Milanese manager is in Milan, he will, of course, be quite strange to the unique conditions which prevail here. Furthermore, it is altogether likely that he will need some time to learn that the New York public is a vastly more complex organization than that of the Italian musical capital.

For these reasons it is probably a fortunate thing for the Metropolitan opera house that Mr. Dippel has been chosen as the associate of the manager of La Scala. Mr. Dippel is known to the general public merely as one of the lesser lights of the company, a singer who rarely appears unless called upon to fill the place of some one suddenly indisposed. But he has been in New York for seventeen years. He has been a student of American life, of financial and social conditions and of the special tendencies of our people in musical art. He is a keen and practical business man, as more than one Wall street flancier can testify. In addition to German, he speaks English, French and Itallan, whereas Mr. Gatti-Casazza has only his own language at his command. He is thoroughly acquainted with operatic conditions, customs and methods in London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna.

Mr. Dippel knows the art of all the leading singers of Germany and France. He is familiar with the achievements of all the "international" singers. He has a trained German musician's understanding of the requirements of the orchestral department of an opera house. He has a practical knowledge of the mechanics of the stage. He is thoroughly acquainted with all the operas in the repertory of a working opera house, and he is a musician who can study the score of a new work. He is fruitful in ideas. The inclusion of a pension fund in the new plans for the opera house must be credited to his suggestion. He understands singers and knows how to deal with them. If emergency calls for it he can take the stage management into his own hands. And finally he is an amiable, patient and politic person, who will be able to meet the many troubles of an impresario's career with equanimity and firmness.

In the statement issued by the Conried directors there is some ambiguity of terms. The wording states the engagement of Mr. Gatti-Casazza as "general manager" and Mr. Dippel as "administrative manager." If these descriptions are to be accepted in their European sense the arrangement will in all probability not fulfill the expectations of its makers. The term "administration" is used throught Continental Europe as applying only to the business department. If Mr. Dippel is to be merely an "administrative" manager in the European sense he will have no voice whatever in the artistic government of the opera house. But if that had been the intent of the Conried company there would have been no reason whatever for Mr. Dippel's engagement. In another paragraph of the official statement we find these words:

"At Mr. Gatti-Casazza's side will be Mr. Dippel, a man thoroughly conversant with the traditions of the Metropolitan opera house, long known and liked by the New York public as a sterling artist of remarkable musical ability and vast experience, tactful, resourceful, enjoying universal esteem and sympathy as an artist and a gentleman."

The meaning which lies behind this paragraph seems to be that Mr. Dippel is to have a position equal in authority to that of Mr. Gatti-Casazza, and that his artistic knowledge and training are to play an important part in the formation of a policy. At any rate it is safe to say that the business men who are making the new arrangement will see to it that the contracts with their managers set forth in no doubtful terms the powers, prerogatives and privileges of each. It would be a sorry day indeed for the Metropolitan opera house when a Milanese manager secured entire control of its fortunes.

SOX WIN IN EXTRA TIME

First Game at Virginia Goes Ten Innings to 5 to 4 Score.

Both Teams Play Good Ball With Score Tied.

Virginia, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia's newly organized semi-professional team took on the Duluth White Sox of the Northern league to open the season here yesterday and gave the leaguers a good argument. Duluth finally won out, but it was only by going ten innings, the score being 5 to 4.

Considering the fact that Duluth is only on training trip and the Virginia players played their first game together, the exhibition was a good one. Misplays were infrequent and there was snap in the work of both teams. From the fourth inning until the tenth, the score was tied and the element of uncertainty made the contest interesting.

Wix Tredway opened up for Virginia, and he got away nicely until the fourth inning, when the cogs slipped and he ran wild. Before he settled down, the leaguers had scored four runs. Brandt, who started for Duluth, allowed Virginia to score one in the first inning, and, after his team had taken their lead in the fourth, he broke loose and Virginia evened things up in its half.

Jacobson and Grogan went up to the hill for their respective teams in the fifth and they had a pretty battle. Sharp fielding behind saved both men several times, and finally, in the tenth, Duluth got to Grogan for a couple of timely hits and the winning run.

The game was the first of a series of three, and Virginia will be strengthened for the other two by the arrival of three players from Rockford, Ill. They will include Roxie Walters, a versatile ball players, who will be station at second, and Jacobson, a pitcher.

Following is the detailed score of yesterday's game.

Gotch, under the terms of the agreement, was to throw Lundin three times within an hour. He won the first in twenty-six minutes and the second in nine, whereupon an injury to one of the Swede's ankles rendered him unable to try for the final fall.

WOMEN TO CAMPAIGN

West Will Send Large Representation to National Golf Tourney.

Western Championship Events to be Held at St. Louis.

Chicago, May 9.—It was announced today that the opening "practice day" of the Women's Western Golf association will be set for early in June. The schedule is now being prepared by the executive committee of the organization of which Mrs. Wallace L. de Wolf of Onwentsia is the president.

The women's association intends to carry on a vigorous campaign during June, July and August, prior to the western and national women's championships in order to work up enthusiasm among the players in the district with a view of bringing out record-breaking fields in each event. Mrs. de Wolf is particularly eager to have many attend the western championship, which will be held over the links of the St. Louis Country club, as it will be the first time in the history of the organization that the championship has been awarded to a club outside of the Chicago district.

As the team contests will be repeated this year as a curtain raiser for the national championship, which will be held over the links of the Chevy Chase Country club at Washington, D. C., the directors are hopeful that the west will be represented by the pick of its best players. Also it is the desire to send a large team in order to reciprocate for the large representation which the east had at Midlothian during the national event last year.

Chicago women golfers have received the information from abroad that Miss May Hezlet last week retained the title of golf champion of Ireland. This again gives the young Irish golfer possession of both the ladies' and the Irish ladies' championship cups. As at Newcastle in the ladies' championship, so at Portrush in the Irish ladies championship, her antagonist in the finals was her sister, Miss "Jackie" Hezlet. Of the four semi-finalists at Portrush three were sisters Hezlet. At an earlier stage of the tournament no less than five members of the Hezlet family succeeded in winning matches in the same round. In the last ten years, beginning with 1899, when she first acheived the honor, Miss May Hezlet has won the Irish ladies' championship cup five times and now takes the lead of Mrs. Cuthell, who, as Miss Rhona Adair, won it four times—all four in succession. Miss Adair competed at Philadelphia in some of the important open tournaments while she held the title. The only other Irish lady golfer able to snatch a victory from these two brilliant exponents of women's golf is Miss F. Walker Leigh, the holder in 1907.

Contestants in the national junior championship, which is the title given the event which will be held at Westward Ho this year, will probably have one of the best young golfers of Scotland to defeat according to a member of the sports and pastimes committee today. The name of the young golfer is withheld for the present until it is definitely learned as to whether he will arrive in time to play. He will come to Chicago from St. Andrews to take up a course in dentistry here.

Whether the young Scotchman competes the tournament will have an international flavor as several Canadian youngsters will come on for the competition, and two of Willie Smith's proteges from the Country Club of Mexico are also expected. Plans for the tournament are now under consideration and will be announced within a fortnight with the schedule for the season.

BASEBALL SUNDAY

Fitwells vs. Superior

ATHLETHIC PARK

Game Called at 3 p. m.

When a gang of ball players begin to yell about the deal they are getting from the umpires, it's a 10 to 1 shot that they are getting roundly trounced and want to lay it on somebody, so they choose the poor unfortunate target for every arrow that was ever shot out of a bow on the diamond. The just kicks are few in number compared to those inspired by soreness, or no umpire, especially in the big leagues, can pick out a team and consistently give it the small end of his decisions.

A yell from the Chicago Cubs, then, causes a buzzing in the ears. Frank Chance and his world's champions are very sore on the umpires all along the line and they've been emitting constant yelps. Now they strike Chicago with a story that the Pittsburg Pirates used a ridged base line on the Pittsburg grounds, holding the bunts of those in on the know in the diamond. The gag is an old one used by the Baltimore team in years gone by and one can hardly believe a major league capable of resorting to it in the present day.

The Cubs have been trimmed pretty regularly by the Pirates of late and that fact may account for their position. It's hardly necessary for them to complain of umpires and venerable tricks. They can take five or six teams of the National league out on the lot and beat them almost at will.

Up in Brandon, they're making big preparations for the opening of the Northern league season. This year Brandon takes its first plunge into professional baseball. For years, the amateurs have been feeding the good American sport to the Canadian populace, but it was hardly the real thing.

The mayor of Brandon has declared the afternoon of the opening day a holiday, and all the fans for miles around are going to journey to the Wheat City to see the Fargo Browns take bitter medicine from the minions of the duke of Manitoba. They're baseball crazy in Manitoba and Artie's team is one that can keep the craze right on the jump following their movements. Brandon was a good acquisition to the Northern league and if the other towns will only show the same enthusiasm, everybody will be happy at the end of the season, even the owners.

Down around Chicago way they have been having rain and wet and moisture and the baseball fans have been sucking half-burned cigars and dreaming. Driven to desperation, William O. Phelon of the Chicago Journal wandered into satire and reeled off the following:

"Once before ruin turned the country into a gigantic Venice a game called baseball was extremely popular in the United States, and especially in the neighborhood of Chicago. Where the great west-side canal now carries the commerce of the world, thousands of people formerly assembled to cheer this interesting pastime, and on the very spot where the Great Wentworth reservoir now stands, a hero named Comiskey is said to have entranced the whole city through the skill and daring of his men.

"This gam, evidently a sport which involved courage, strength, endurance, and sagacity, seems to have held Americans as loyally bound as was the case with the Greeks and the old Olympic games. It was, however, a physical impossibility to play this game in the water. When the floods covered the whole country, baseball had to be abandoned, though old legends tell of daring players who persisted in their national diversion till the floods had submerged the highest mountains. A painting of the time, now in the Causeway museum, represents a party of athletes playing baseball on the top of Pike's peak, while many enthusiastic people are seen watching the battle from balloons and aeroplanes

"It is believed quite possible that this ancient and noble game could be revived by the building of immense floats. Large enough to support the players and their audience, and the archives are now being searched for copies of the rules of play."

NO SULLIVAN MONEY.

Odds of 10 to 7 Are Offered on Stanley Ketchell.

San Francisco, May 9.—An utter absence of Sullivan money, together with a flood of coin to be placed on Stanley Ketchell under the instructions "at best odds obtainable" forced betting last night to 10 to 7. In addition, bets are offered at even money that Ketchell will win inside of twenty-five rounds.

The men will weigh in this morning and they must not tip the beam at more than 156 pounds. There is a weight forfeit of $2,500 to guarantee that neither will be over weight. The men must be in the ring at 3 o'clock and the bout is scheduled to go thirty-five rounds. Billy Roach will referee the fight.

CHANGE IN PRIZES.

Itinerary of New York to Paris Race Altered by Committee.

Paris, May 9.—The committee having in charge the New York-to-Paris automobile race has decided as a consequence of the modification made in the route by the abandonment of the run through Alaska and the crossing of Bering Strait, not to present a cup for the feat but instead to give three prizes, $1,000; $600 and $200.

The owner of the French car today cabled his driver at Tokio to withdraw the car owing to the modification in the itinerary, it having covered the Pekin-Paris route last year.

Protest in School League.

There will be an investigation of the Washington school team of the Interscholastic league as a result of protests lodged by other teams. It is claimed the Washington school is playing ninth grade men on the team, and, if the charges are substantiated, the results of the games already played will be reversed and the offending players barred. The Washingtons have won all three games already played.

FREEMAN IN GOOD SHAPE

Chisholm Judge Holds Northern League Team Securely.

Nelson Weakens in Eighth and is Easy for Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Freeman of Chisholm held court in Hibbing yesterday afternoon and passed sentence of defeat on the Brandon team of the Northern league, which had soundly walloped Judge Brady's colts on the two proceeding days. The leaguers couldn't see Freeman with a set of binoculars. In the first inning, with Summers and Meneice on the sacks, Wagner lifted one out of the lot for three runs, and after that it was all Hibbing and Freeman.

Nelson, the South Dakota wonder, was all to the good for six innings. He couldn't go the full pace, and in the seventh the Hibbing men began to find him, scoring one run. In the eighth they fell on his output for a series of healthy drives that won the game. The fielding of the Brandon crowd couldn't stop the bombardment, and after it was all over, the score was 8 to 3, with Hibbing holding the big end.

Fagin opened the seventh with a single, and went to second on an error. Head hit for two sacks, and Fagin scored. The next two men were downed.

In the eighth Moynihan drew a pass for two basse. Fagin singled and Carfor two bae. Fagin singled, and Carroll scored. Summers dropped Head's fly, and Booth registered. Head scored on Calligan's single, and Calligan crossed on Freeman's two sacker. Geiselman singled and Calligan completed the circuit for the final run.

BEGIN REGULAR SHOOTS SOON

Third Trap Will be Set Up on New Grounds of Gun Club.

The Central Gun club will be settled on their new grounds at the foot of Sixty-third avenue west by one week from tomorrow and then the regular shoots will begin and continue throughout the season.

The two traps, which were formerly on the grounds at Duluth Heights, have been moved to the new location and one of them was in use last Sunday morning, when the club held a practice shoot. Tomorrow the members will be engaged in setting up the other trap, which will give the club three traps with which to work, an addition of one to the number of last year.

The members of the club are enthusiasm itself this year. The membership has grown considerably and as soon as the shoots begin, it is expected there will be a further increase. The new location is much better than the old one on the hill, as there will be no trouble on account of the wind, and it is expected the scores will be considerably improved this season.

CONFER ON ATHLETICS.

Representatives of New England Colleges Meet in Boston.

Boston, May 9.—An important secret meeting of representatives of New England colleges was held last night at the Parker house to discuss questions relating to intercollegiate athletics. All the New England colleges with the exception of Yale, Boston college and Boston university, were represented. Dean Briggs of Harvard was chairman of the conference.

The invitations to the conference stated that its purpose was to discuss the questions of summer baseball, restriction of athletic schedules and other problems relating to the intercollegiate athletics.

It is understood that no definite action was taken on any of these matters at last night's meeting. The conference meets again today.

Handicap Pool Match.

A handicap pool match will open at the Central billiard hall Monday evening between M. Canfield, manager of the hall, and Charles Nolan, one of the best of Duluth's pool players. Canfield is to make 1,000 balls before Nolan scores 750 or forfeit $20.

MEN WHO WILL REPRESENT BRANDON ON THE BALL FIELD

Hitters of the first water, fielders of speed and accuracy and men with brains and the knowledge of how to use them, make up the Brandon team of the Northern league, which has been sojourning at Hibbing this week.

The team that wins the pennant this year must beat Brandon. That fact is settled. The team that beats Brandon must be a mighty good one, and the fans may settle down to see real baseball when the boys of the North city line up against the Sox at Athletic park.

This is Brandon's first year in professional ball, and the backers of the enterprise went out to get a team that would command the support of the fans and convert the people of the Wheat City as a whole to the great American game. They landed Artie O'Dea, and Artie did the rest. At present one may only judge the team from spring training games and the past performances of the men as individuals. That is enough to form a good impression in the mind of any followers of baseball. If the Brandon team goes wrong this year, the course will be against all the "dope" and the traditions of the game. Brandon has hitters, and hitters win games.

Brandon's selection of a leader was well made. Artie O'Dea is well liked in Duluth. The fans have seen him play for several years and he never failed to make good. Around first base, nobody has anything on him, and dire disaster lurks in his big club.

Three Duluth boys are on the team in Sam Meneice, Frank Summers and Frank McGraw. Meneice has been out of professional ball for one year, but he hasn't lost any of the hitting ability that placed him at the head of the league two years ago. Summers and McGraw are both fast outfielders and they can clout the ball.

Louie Livingston and Jimmy Leighty are almost Duluthians. They have played ball here for several years and the fans know what they can do. Leighty isn't a whirlwind at the stick, but his fielding is great. What Livingston can do at the bat is a terror.

Wagner, the big third baseman from St. Paul, is taller than Sam Meneice, a streak in the infield and a literal giant at the bat. Custer and Mills are neat catchers, with hitting ability.

O'Dea is well fortified in the pitchers' box with Smith, Nelson and Dalgren, all of whom have shown surprisingly good form in the ante-season games. He has others on tap, and getaway day, next Thursday, will see Brandon racing for a pennant. The other teams will have a merry time leaving O'Dea's infants in the rear.

TEAMS TIED FOR FIRST

Fitwells and Bankers Must Roll an Extra Match.

Clothiers Win Two Out of Three Games in Final.

The last match of the regular schedule of the Duluth City Bowling league was rolled last night, the Fitwells defeated the First National bank five, two out of three games and created a tie for first place. The extra match necessary to decide the tie vill be rolled next Thursday night.

A large crowd saw the games last night, which held more than usual interest on account of the possibility of the tie. It was up to the Fitwells to win three straight to win the championship and the Bankers had only to win two of the three games. The Fitwells won the first and the second games, but in the third, they fell down with a series of splits and the Bankers retained their chances to gain the league honors.

C. R. Berini of the Fitwells rolled the high average of 208, and Paul Schultz of the same team had the high score of 227.

The end of the season finds the Big Duluths at the head of the list in team average, with 918, the Fitwells following with 915. Sam Olson retained the individual championship, with an average of 193, McLean being his nearest competitor, with 189. Following are the averages:

AMONG THE SEMI-PROS

Fitwells to Play First Game Against Superior Team.

Meeting of Commercial League Will be Held Thursday Night.

Duluth will have one big semi-professional ball game tomorrow, when the Fitwells and Pittsburgs of Superior will line up at Athletic park. It will be the first game of the season for the Fitwells and the supporters of the team are taking considerable interest in it. The selection of men for the team this year has been made carefully and Manager Jacobs believes he has a lineup, which will successfully compete with all of the independent clubs of Northern Minnesota.

Cummings and Arsenau will form the pitching staff for the season and both are good. Cummings has been pitching high school ball for two years and last season he pitched successfully for the Fitwells against Hibbing, Virginia and other strong clubs. Schaeffer, who captains the team, played for the Kelleys last year and was one of the mainstays of that club in the field and behind the bat.

The teams will line up as follows tomorrow:

Fitwells—	Position	Superior—
Cummings, ...
Arsenau	p	Cadatte
Schaeffer	c	Hennessey
Scurm	1b	Horton
Winters	2b	Ehrhart
Deetz	3b	Ellis
Fenton	ss	Taylor
Wentlandt	rf	R. Rooney
Nelson	cf	Lemieux
McCauley	lf	Hudepahl

The Kelleys will go to Cloquet tomorrow and open the season there. The fans of the sawdust burg have collected a strong nine this year and the Kelleys will probably have a hard bite to chew. Ziegler's men have had the advantage of three hard games and are now in pretty good fighting trim. Ernie Larson will pitch and Wegman will be behind the bat.

• • • •

The meeting of the new Commercial league, which was called for Monday evening, has been postponed until Tuesday evening on account of the inability of some of the delegates to attend. At the meeting the committee on rules will report and it is also expected a schedule will be adopted.

• • • •

The team, which is to represent the Wolvin building in the Commercial league, will be chosen from the league squad this afternoon. The men have been out every night this week and some fast men have shown up. Manager Ryan will have a hard time making selections, but he will pick a squad of about a dozen of the best and further selections will be made later. A practice game will be played this afternoon between two nines made up from the entire squad.

FILIPINO WINS.

Macomb, Ill., May 9.—Camilio Osas, a Filipino student of the Tri-State normal of Macomb, won first place for Illinois in the interstate normal school oratorical contest last night. Vernon Horner of Kansas was second, and Jennie Hogan of Wisconsin third.

HATCH FOR OLYMPIAD

Chicago Man is Among Best of Marathon Runners.

Lacks Physique, But He Knows the Science of the Game.

Chicago, May 9.—Sidney Hatch, the Chicago runner, who won the M. A. C. Marathon Saturday, should certainly be chosen as a member of the American team of athletes to compete in the Olympia games in London this summer. The race was sanctioned as the A. A. U. Western trial to select a candidate. However, the West quite often is euchred out of "plums" in the athletic line, and Hatch may be overlooked when J. E. Sullivan's pets are being chosen.

Hatch has demonstrated that he is one of the greatest of the Marathon runners. He doesn't look like an athlete. He is the last man probably in a hundred that would be looked on as a 25-mile runner. But he is just that, and a good one, too. His form is not perfect. He swings his legs in a careless manner, but manages to get there.

He has the strength, courage and has studied distance running till he has become a great judge of pace-making. Hatch knew the "class" of Saturday's race, Habig, the Central Y. M. C. A. runner, started out at a record-breaking clip. Hatch didn't tag on to him, as he knew that Habig would be unable to keep up the pace. He was right, just as he was in 1907, when he failed to hang on to Forshaw, who was setting a terrific pace.

This year Hatch stayed with Forshaw, Corey, Thibeau and Jackson, who, as was proven, were the best in the event. Forshaw took the lead near the finish. Hatch took his time and remained within hailing distance. When the proper time came he put his reserve strength into working and won a cleverly gauged race.

Hatch also proved that he is a runner of equal worth on a fast as well as a muddy road. Many held that his victory last year was due to the fact that Forshaw was no "mudder," and as a result was compelled to drop back, which enabled Hatch to go to the front. This year, however, Hatch showed that he has speed on the dry as well as on the mud.

Forshaw's performance was a good one. He ran a nice race the entire distance. The only difference between his work and that of Hatch is that Forshaw had no steam at the finish. It has ever been the case with Forshaw. In his mile, two-mile and five-mile races he has always relied on his strength to give him a good lead at the start.

Jackson, for his first time out, ran a good race. But the distance was new to him, and his short, choppy stride—some say it is graceful—will hardly make him a successful distance runner; in fact, he seems to be convinced as to this, as he says he has run his first and last Marathon.

REV. DR. HILL TO BE CHAPLAIN AT CHICAGO.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 9.—The Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill, pastor of the Metropolitan Temple in Manhattan, formerly pastor of the Fowler M. E. church in Minneapolis, has been appointed chaplain of the Republican national convention, which opens in Chicago on June 16.

Dr. Hill is one of the militant order of clergymen who believe in active participation in politics. He first gained prominence by stumping the state of Ohio for McKinley. He also gained wide prominence in the field of clerical politics inside the Methodist church. Dr. Hill's appointment was made at the personal request of Secretary William H. Taft.

BEWARE THE DREAD CUCUPIRA

It is a Green-Footed Brazilian Monster, and Feeds on the Flesh of Man.

"I had not been in Brazil twenty-four hours before I heard of the cucupira," said a man who had been in out-of-the-way parts of Brazil, to the Washington Post. "At Para you can enter the primeval forest in a three minutes' walk from your hotel, and so it happens that one may lie in bed and hear the prowling denizens of the woods giving their nightly concert. I was told, even while there, that any particularly frightful cry was made by the cucupira.

"Just what the cucupira was no one pretended to know. I was going up the river 600 miles to visit an old friend, and before going I read up what I could about it.

"Prof. C. F. Hartt of Cornell, in 'The Mythology of Brazil,' wrote: 'One of the most important among the myths of the Indians of Brazil is called in the Tupi language the cucupira. In all parts of the country one hears of this evil spirit of the woods, but no good and exact description of it exists.'

"C. F. B. De Souza, in 'Valle do Amazonas,' wrote in 1872: 'I believe it is certain that the Indians believe in the existence of a spirit or demon which appears in the woods and is called the cucupira.'

"Mr. Bates, the naturalist, is quoted as saying: 'The cucupira are of both sexes and have children.'

"At the plantation of my friend, Capt. Manuel Valdez, I heard the same vague accounts of the creature. Almost every night at sunset, when the nightly concert begins, some one among his thirty employes would smilingly say as he heard some particularly unearthly cry: 'That is a cucupira.' Beyond this I could get nothing which it was intended I should believe.

"Like all large planters in Brazil, Capt. Valdez employed a hunter whose sole duty was to keep the household in fresh meat. Jose was a middle-aged, full-blooded Indian, fearless by daylight, a good shot, and, like all his race, could no more get lost in the woods than a cat.

"Whenever we hunted, Jose was sure to plan to get home before nightfall, but I got no idea of his reasons until I asked Capt. Valdez for permission to take him to the cornfield at night to lie in wait for deer which had entered it from the surrounding woods and done great damage.

"'Permission?' the captain said; 'nothing would please me better; but neither you nor I have money enough to hire an Indian to spend a night up there.' To my puzzled inquiry for the reason he simply shrugged his shoulders and said, 'Ask Jose.' The answer was that the cucupira is roaming about at night.

"To do justice to these people one must forget the impressions of tropical forests which he got from school geographies. Along the outskirts of the streams birds, butterflies and flowers are everywhere, and there is an incessant chatter and chirp of small birds, though they are songless. Go but a short distance and all is changed.

"One may walk for hours without seeing a living thing, and the silence is only broken by the harsh cries of macaws and parrots as they fly over or feed on the surface of the canopy of green, nearly 200 feet overhead. The forest is like a deserted cathedral, and until sunset the silence is oppressive.

"But the moment the sun drops this silence is broken by sounds like the crash of a great orchestra. Even an educated man will feel that hidden all about him are creatures of which he can form no conception save by the frightful cries they utter.

"In these solitudes, when the light is beginning to fall, and remembering the mightly pandemonium, it is not so hard to understand the origin and influence of the most absurd stories one has heard. For instance, a lost Indian hunter who had shot a large monkey lay down to rest and fell asleep. He was awakened by a strange creature, who turned out to be a cucupira.

"'What is the matter, brother?' the cucupira asked, and sitting down beside him added: 'I am hungry. Give me a piece of your heart to eat.'

"Secretly reaching behind him the hunter gave him the monkey's heart to eat.

"'That is good. Now your liver,' said the hungry demon.

"'I, too, am hungry. Give me your heart and liver.'

"The cucupira, seeing that the man was uninjured, and not wishing to be outdone, took the hunter's knife and slashed out his organs and fell down dead.

"Another hunter found a curious skeleton at the foot of a hollow tree. From the skull he removed one of the teeth, which was green, for a souvenir. Straightway the skeleton assembled itself and was clothed with flesh and stood beside him, a horribly human dwarf, and said:

"'Thank you, brother. I have been waiting a long time for some one to break the spell that bound me by taking a tooth.'

"And he walked off on his reversed feet.

"These are fair examples of the stories one hears everywhere on the lower Amazon.

"One evening, shortly before the close of my stay, Jose and I were sitting on Capt. Valdez's piazza chattering about the many hunts we had enjoyed together. Every one of the plantation knew that I was going away, not to return, and probably because he did not fear any results of his confidences Jose spoke far more freely than ever before.

"I mentioned that I was disappointed in not being able to get a description of a cucupira from one who had seen it. To my astonishment he replied, 'I have seen one,' and without hesitation he related the following story:

"'About two years ago, while hunting down below the mill, along the creek, I followed a deer for miles, trying to get a shot, but failed and started home. It was sunset and I was nearing the mill when I ran into a band of black monkeys feeding along the treetops. I secreted myself and waited for one to come within shot and fired.

"'Though he did not fall, but made off with the others, I knew that he was hard hit and followed, knowing that he could not go far. At last I heard him come tumbling to the ground and went forward to find him.

"'It was growing dark, though I could still see well enough to find him.

"'I had got to within fifty feet of the spot when I heard a sort of murmuring, a singsong voice, like some one muttering to himself. I dropped to my knees and reloaded my gun, putting in a slug instead of a shot, not knowing what I might meet.

"'Then I began to creep forward, keeping a sharp lookout. At last I saw a slight movement, and, looking through a slight opening, I could see quite plainly a spotted creature, which I supposed to be a jackal, licking blood from the fallen monkey's head. Jaguars sometimes do steal upon the game the hunter had shot and I thought that this one had been following the same band of monkeys that I had and seen him fall.

"'I was near enough to give me a sure shot, and very glad that I had a bullet in my gun instead of shot. I took careful aim and fired. I distinctly heard the ball strike him with a sharp spat, like the sound of a bullet striking a rock.

"'I sprang to my feet, when, instead of the death struggle that I had expected to see, a queer little creature rose to its two feet, stepped to a more open space, and began to examine the place where the bullet had struck his side. It looked like the spot made when a bullet strikes a smooth rock. He made no effort to learn where it came from, and never looked once at me.

"'I could see him perfectly now. He was about three feet in height, his body so fat that it was almost round; his arms and legs were short, and his feet turned backward instead of the way he was facing. He had long hair, but no beard, and wore no clothing.

"'His mouth was very large, but whether his teeth were green, as they say, I could not see in the dusk. There was no hair on his body; it looked like a shell, and was spotted like a jaguar, and must have been hard to stop a bullet. He kept up a mumbling sound, but nothing like words, though they say cucupiras do talk to hunters sometimes.

"'I was angry to lose my monkey, and as the creature had paid no attention to me I reloaded my gun. It did not seem quite right to shoot a creature which stood up like a man, but I hoped to drive him away, at least.

"'But the result was the same. The bullet struck him with the same sharp sound as before, and left another mark, which he carefully examined without the slightest apparent curiosity to see where it came from. After looking at and feeling it for a moment he dropped to his knees and resumed licking the blood from the monkey and making that murmuring, mumbling sound.

"'I did not try to take my game away from a creature with a shell that would stop a bullet, and it was dark before I got home, and no one would go back with me at night. I went there the next morning, but found nothing but some blood stains on the leaves. Something had eaten or carried my monkey away. Our people say that it is a bad omen to meet a cucupira while hunting, and so I have never told of this to the people here.'

"'Thus, if I didn't meet a cucupira myself, at least I had a description of one.'"

CAN'T CATCH COLD IN ARCTIC

Doctors Cannot Give an Explanation Why You Catch it Anywhere.

Dr. Horace Dobell, at one time senior physician to the royal hospital in London, and a high authority on diseases of the chest, has enumerated what he considers the most common causes of ordinary colds, says the New York World. In 21 per cent of the cases he investigated the cause was a sudden change of temperature. Fogs and damp air were the causes of 19 per cent, draughts of cold air in 16 per cent, cold winds in 10 per cent, getting wet in 14 per cent, and wet feet in 17 per cent. In the remaining 3 per cent the causes could not be traced.

The above statements were made by the patients, who may have been mistaken. For example, a cold may develop after exposure, or after getting wet, when neither the exposure nor the wetting is responsible for it. While other authorities agree with the opinion of Dr. Dobell, yet the question remains. Are these true causes of colds? For one may get wet and chilled through, or he may expose himself to cold winds and damp air, and still not take cold. Those uncomfortable conditions, then, sometimes do, but often do not, produce bad effects. The consensus of opinion today seems to be that colds are sequelae of disturbances of the circulation, brought on often, though not invariably, by exposure to cold and wet, and that these disturbances tend to produce inflammation in the weakest part of the respiratory apparatus.

In the writer's opinion, the chief causes of colds are heat—which is especially dangerous in winter—and sudden changes of temperature. If one could avoid hot rooms and bad air in winter he would rarely take cold. Sedentary employment renders one peculiarly liable to colds on account of its depressing effect on the circulation. When one's occupation necessitates his sitting still for several hours he should not be very heavily clad, and the temperature of the room should be 70 or 72 degrees Fahrenheit; then on going out into the cold he should not only don warm outer clothing, but should walk briskly to quicken his circulation.

As the action neither of the air nor of the water will rust iron, while their combined action will, so are colds caused neither by heat nor by cold, but rather by a sudden transition from either to the other.

While it will be conceded as a well-known fact that a sudden transition from heat to cold may cause a cold, yet the further contention that transition from cold to heat may equally cause a cold, will, in some quarters, be disputed. Nevertheless the latter statement is logical, if it is a fact that colds come from disturbances of the circulation. The vigor of the circulation is proportional within limits to the temperature of the air that adapt themselves to this surrounding temperature, and when it changes suddenly, whether from heat or cold, or from cold to heat, the circulation is disturbed and may produce a cold.

The above theory proved practically true in the following instance: Two men crossed the Atlantic ocean in an open boat. The voyage lasted several months, and during that time storms were encountered and the men, while laboring at the oars, were often exhausted, wet and chilled through, yet throughout the whole of their trying experience, neither caught cold. But when having arrived safe on the other side, they sought shelter and got thoroughly warmed, both developed very heavy colds. The reason that the colds developed after and not during the exposure may have been that when the hot blood, which the cold wind and water had forced back to the internal organs, suddenly returned under the influence of warmth to the so long depleted mucous surfaces, it set up an inflammation that manifested itself as a cold—a striking instance of the effect of a disturbed circulation.

H. W. Gardner states in the Birmingham Medical Review, March, 1898, that Nansen wrote him that neither he nor his companions caught cold while in the Arctic regions, but that all of them immediately took cold when they returned to Norway. A similar communication was received from Kottlitz, who was the medical officer to the Jackson-Harmsworth expedition.

A. Chelmonski concludes from a number of investigations that cold does not in the ordinary sense produce disease, since its effect is but slight, merely preparing the way for micro-organisms. He remarks that the grade of the reaction of the skin to cold indicates whether a person will readily take cold or not, there being no relation between the reaction and the condition of the individual's nutrition or of his temperature sense. From these considerations he concludes that the proper method of protecting against cold is not to wear an excessive amount of clothing, but to stimulate the skin to rapid reaction. All of which is interesting as explaining the why of the notorious fact that children who are swathed in heavy clothing in winter are more prone to cold than are poor children who are more lightly clad.

Regarding influenza, which is nothing more than a heavy cold, G. Gresswell, in the Lancet, Sept. 18, 1897, make the remarkable observation that he has found that healthy persons are more likely to be infected with this disease than are those who have been previously in bad health.

The normal temperature of the human body is, as everybody knows, about 98.4 degs. Fahrenheit, and this temperature must be maintained constantly in both cold and hot seasons. How does the body effect this? Undoubtedly by fluctuations of the circulation. The blood in the body that is exposed to cold is driven back to the internal organs, the skin becomes dry and the pores contract, thus reducing the radiation of heat and moisture to a minimum. Contrariwise, when the temperature of the surrounding air is high or when one by physical exercise makes heat, the blood rushes to the surface, the pores open and exude moisture, and we have a maximum heat radiation, added by the cooling effect of rapid evaporation. The bodily temperature, then, is kept constant, chiefly by the opposite physical effects of cold and heat on the skin and underlying tissue.

There is reason to believe, however, that colds are otherwise caused than by exposure to cold and wet. Whatever depresses pulmonary circulation, such as a weak heart or excessive brain work with deficient physical activity, predisposes to colds. Dyispepsia also and over-eating, which surcharge the blood with impurities, cause a feverish condition that often eventuates in some local inflammation.

In conclusion we may say that the best way to avoid colds is to avoid, whenever possible, those conditions that profoundly and suddenly disturb the circulation; that is to say, we should avoid extremes in temperature, and when we can not do this we can at least modify their effects by proper clothing. Also we should, by systematic and vigorous exercise and care in the diet, keep the blood free from impurities and its circulation active. A general robust health and an ability to recover quickly from unavoidable systemic disturbances explains the immunity some persons enjoy from colds.

Mrs. S. Joyce, 180 Sullivan Street, Claremont, N. H., writes: "About a year ago I bought two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It cured me of a severe case of Kidney trouble of several years' standing. It certainly is a grand, good medicine, and I heartily recommend it." At all druggists.

ROGER C. SULLIVAN, DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEEMAN FROM ILL., MADE FAMOUS BY BRYAN'S ENMITY FOR HIM.

(Copyright, 1908, by the Associated Literary Press.)

Of the 111 men who at present make up the Democratic and Republican national committees, now busy peparing for the big presidential conventions, there is one man who proudly proclaims that he has neither ever aspired to nor held public office, elective or appointive. This member is none other than James M. Guffey—familliarly known as "Col. Jim"—at one and the same time the largest single producer of oil in this country and of ideas for the Democracy of the Keystone state.

That Col. Guffey's record in this respect is unique among the committeemen a cursory glance at the political records of his colleagues and rivals serves imply to show. On the Republican committee there are five United State senators—Crane, Heyburn, Penrose, Ankeny and Scott of Massachusetts, Idaho, Pennsylvania, Washington and West Virginia—and two federal representatives, W. P. Brownlow and Frank O. Lowden of Tennessee and Illinois, respectively. The Democratic committee boasts of one senator—Tillman of South Carolina—and two members in the other wing of the capitol, J. C. F. Talbot and Henry D. Clayton of Marland and Alabama. Among former Democratic members of one branch or other of congress are N. C. Blanchard of Louisiana, now governor of his state; Richard R. Kenney of Delaware, Tom L. Johnson of Ohio, Martin J. Wade of Iowa, John E. Osborne of Wyoming; and among Republicans, J. W. Babcock of Wisconsin and Powell Clayton of Arkansas. Republican ex-governors are Myron T. Herrick of Ohio, Franklin Murphy of New Jersey, Powell Clayton of Arkansas, Murray Crane of Massachusetts, and John F. Hill of Maine; while among former Democratic state executives are "Ben" Tillman of South Carolina and Osborne of Wyoming.

A nice little mayor's association could be formed by Thomas Taggart, Democratic chairman, among his own committeemen. He himself is a former executive of Indianapolis. James C. Dahlman, representing Nebraska, occupies Omaha's chief chair, and Tom L. Johnson, representing Ohio, does the same thing for Cleveland, as all the country knows pretty well by this time. H. S. Cummings of Connecticut, besides marrying the daughter of a former mayor, was mayor of Stamford for several terms. One of Osborne of Wyoming's numerous offices has been that of mayor of Rawlins; while George W. Green of Rhode Island is a former executive of Woonsocket. Being a man of great sociability, Tom Taggart, did he form this little organization, would probably extend an invitation to join to Republicans Levi Ankeny of Washington, first mayor of Lewiston, Idaho, and Robert H. Todd of Porto Rico, until last year at the head of the government of that island's picturesque capital city.

An association of state and county officers, elective and appointive—assemblymen, senators, sheriffs, judges and justices, governors' staffs, etc., etc.—would take in probably 90 per cent of the combined membership of the committees. Harry S. New, of Indiana, chairman of the Republican committee, would be the logical head of such an association; the highest elective public office he ever has held has been that of state senator. Two of his prominent coleagues, Senators Penrose and Scott of Pennsylvania and West Virginia, were state legislators before they were promoted to the national field. Daniel J. Campau of Michigan, the nationally prominent horseman, and Clark Howell of Georgia, would be well known Democratic members, and from the same side of the fence also would come Jefferson B. Browne of Florida, W. A. Rothwell of Missouri and W. B. Gourley of New Jersey.

Among the numerous Republicans eligible to this intercommittee organization are E. C. Duncan of North Carolina, A. M. Stevenson of Colorado, Charles F. Brooker of Connecticut, Pearl Wight of Louisiana and John G. Capers of South Carolina, who, until the first McKinley-Bryan campaign, was a staunch Democrat. In the same campaign Stevenson of Colorado went over to the Democrats, but when the money question ceased to be the paramount political question he returned to his old love and has remained faithful ever since.

The defeated candidates for elective or appointive office embrace about all the committeemen on both sides of the fence not already mentioned, and some already mentioned, as well. Prominent among this corps is J. Edward Addicks, Republican, of Delaware, who made of that state a seething political caldron what years he practically attempted to become a United States senator from it. Another dramatic, but not so long drawn-out defeat, was sustained by John B. McGraw, Democrat, of West Virginia, in 1899, when his rival committeeman, Nathan B. Scott, beat him out by one vote in the race for a seat in the federal senate. W. A. Gaston of Massachusetts has twice been unsuccessful as Democratic candidate for governor. His California colleague, M. F. Tarpey, former president of the Pacific Coast Jockey club, and one of the big racing men of the West, failed of election as lieutenant governor, and Greene of Rhode Island was an unsuccessful aspirant for Democratic gubernatorial honors. Defeated state and national legislative candidates are far too numerous to mention by name; and the same holds true of the disappointed seekers after appointive public positions in state or nation.

From all of which it may be gathered that the national committees are composed largely of men who are veterans in the political game, and that Col. Guffey's non-office-holding-and-seeking record is truly unique so far as these two bodies are concerned.

Picturesque Committeemen.

But the colonel cannot lay claim to being the only picturesque member of the committee, even though the "Southern colonel" hat, pleated shirt and Lord Byron tie form a combination to delight the Keystone State newspaper cartoonists. Col. "Jim's" committee chief is known far and wide as a practical joker, as well as an astute politician and successful hotel proprietor, and stories of his pranks and sayings are told wherever politicians get their heads together. Josephus Daniels, Democrat, is heralded throughout the Carolinas as the stormy petrel of North Carolina politics. Scarcely a week passes that he does not tear out some one in his newspaper, which is subscribed to by many just to see who or what its editor is going to lambast next.

"Ben" Tillman, of course, has been among the topnotch picturesque characters of the land since the day he fought his way from the cornfield to the governorship of South Carolina. Charles R. Brayton, Republican, of Rhode Island, has achieved wide notoriety because Brayton, blind, continues to hold the littlest state of the Union in the hollow of his hand as effectively as ever he did when he had the full use of his eyes. His moves in gas and politics have served to place J. Edward Addicks among the notable picturesque. Mayor "Jim" Dahlman has been nicknamed "The Cowboy Mayor," and Roger C. Sullivan, Illinois Democratic committeeman, showed the picturesque streak in his make-up when, after Bryan's first onslaught against him as national committeeman, he got the state convention to indorse his famous enemy.

Sullivan, in fact, owes his national prominence since the last national campaign to Mr. Bryan's several attacks on him. Contrariwise, Mayor Dahlman of Omaha has been much in the public eye of late years, largely because of the most famous Nebraskan's friendship for him. Both Sullivan and Dahlman are comparatively young men. Each has got up the world's ladder by his own efforts and each is a party boss in his own state. Sullivan shares with John P. Hopkins of Chicago the leadership of Democracy's cohorts in Illinois; and, of course, Mayor Dahlman listens to the councils of Mr. Bryan.

When Sullivan hit Chicago in 1879—he was then 18 years old—he got a job as machinist in the shops of a street railway company. His first political job was that of deputy collector of internal revenue during Cleveland's first administration. By that time he had risen to be a general contractor and had begun to lay away for a rainy day.

The year before Sullivan sought out the Western metropolis, Dahlman, then 22, leaving his Texas home, journeyed to the plains of Western Nebraska, where he took up the art of cowpunching. He graduated from this strenuous to the still more exciting game of politics six years later, when he became a member of the council of the little town of Chadron, Neb. From that day to this his leading hand has been political, and he has sat so successfully in the game that next to Bryan, he is the best known of the Nebraska Democrats.

Dahlman, the politician, has not hesitated to be as unconventional and plainspoken as Dahlman, the cowboy, ever was. When he was mayor of Chadron it was his boast that the town was delightfully wide open. When he headed the Nebraska delegation to New York to welcome Bryan back home from his trip around the world, "Jim" brought along his lariat, and when he spied Mr. Bryan on the tug that brought him up the harbor he swung that coil of rope and the noose settled gracefully about the distinguished traveler's shoulders. Prior to the arrival of the ship the mayor amused himself and numerous natives of New York by playfully lassoing downcast cab horses and proud automobilists.

When Dahlman was running for mayor of Omaha a couple of years ago the Republicans made the mistake of crying out that he had once been a cowpuncher. "Jim" at once let loose this effective bit of political ammunition in the direction of the enemy: "I was a cowboy. I am a cowboy. And when I become mayor I'm going to use cowboy methods to throw and brand the grafters." Then the opposition tacked—and discovered that "Jim" was extremely fond of sitting in the great American game (not politics). Dahlman gracefully admitted the soft impeachment, adding that if any man had played poker with him and didn't know it, he'd like to see what manner of creature it was.

In sheer desperation the Republicans finally announced that Dahlman wrote English as she is often spoke, and tearfully asked if that was the sort of man to head the municipal government. Once again "Jim" admitted that his opponents spoke the truth. Still, he couldn't see where this little matter of grammar came in, durned if he could. "If a bill comes to me to sign that I don't like," he said, "I'm going to write across that bill, 'Nothing doing. Jim Dahlman.' I guess that's grammatical enough for anybody to understand." Omaha evidently agreed with Dahlman, for it elected him mayor by a majority of 3,000.

Sullivan's noteworthy political victory at the polls climaxed his initial race for office. Though nearly all the rest of the Republican ticket was victorious, Sullivan was elected clerk of the probate court of Cook county by 70,000 majority. From that year he has been a growing power in Illinois politics. Slight of stature and wiry is Dahlman, in physique and movements a typical man of the plains. Sullivan, on the other hand, weighs something like 200 pounds and towers a head or more above the Omahan. When it comes to wealth Sullivan could buy out the cowboy numerous times over. Sullivan has run gas and other manufacturing establishments so successfully that he now runs several yachts for pleasure.

Col. Guffey is as rich in dollars as he is in picturesqueness. His fortune, estimated in seven figures, has come to him through lucky strikes in gas, oil and mining. Guffey began humbly enough as a railroad and express clerk down South. The years he spent there gave him his distinctive raiment that he brought back to his native state, Pennsylvania, when he went into the oil fields in 1872 to seek his fortune. He found what he was looking for about the dawn of the '80s.

Finally, however, he carried his pitcher to the well once too often. This occurred just when Western Pennsylvania was awaking to the fact that it had been struck when boring for oil. Guffey, nothing cast down by the fight of his dollars, immediately turned his attention to natural gas. He became a pioneer in piping it long distances to industrial centers and as a result another fortune was speedily his. The part he has played in the development of the Texas oil fields is recent industrial history. Together with his pre-eminence about that time in Pennsylvania politics, it served to call the attention of the nation to him, and since then he has been a national figure.

Self-Made Committeemen.

Dahlman, Sullivan, Guffey—each man has made himself. But they are not the only self-made men on the two committees. It is a fact that the large majority of the members have "got there" through their respective individual efforts.

Chairman Taggart first made the acquaintance of Indianapolis folk as a clerk in that city's union railroad station's restaurant. Senator Tillman has picturesquely described himself as a cornfed lawyer. Clark Howell had to gather a large store of experience as a reporter on the paper of which he is now proprietor and editor. Frank Lowden was the son of a blacksmith and worked as a farmhand until he was 16; in 1896 he married a daughter of the late George M. Pullman. Former Governor Myron T. Herrick of Ohio was born in a log cabin, the son of a farmer who devoted most of his acres to the raising of market produce.

When he was 16 years old Senator Scott of West Virginia was driving an ox team over the ground where Denver now stands. His colleague, Ankeny of Washington, became an emigrant when he was 6, his father taking the family over the Oregon trail and settling in that state on a donation land claim. Refused assistance by his uncle, Representative Brownlow of Tennessee peddled sewing machines and tombstones, fired a locomotive, still later drove one, and after he had thus proven his grit, was given a repertorial job on his uncle's newspaper.

When Franklin Murphy returned from the Civil war with the New Jersey regiment in which he had enlisted, he entered a varnish works in a humble position. Today he heads it, one of the country's largest concerns of the kind. F. B. Kellogg, Republican committeeman from Minnesota and lately famous at the government's chief inquisitor of Standard Oil and its methods, had to study law by himself. Before he moved to St. Paul, in the eighties, and became a partner of the late Senator Cushman K. Davis, he was simply a country lawyer, even though he had been a city and then a county attorney. The fact that M. F. Tarpey of California was brought over from Ireland when he was 7 years old reveals the secret of how he got up.

Before he became city civil engineer of Leavnworth, Kan., in 1859, Powell Clayton, the only former ambassador on either of the committees, spent four hard years as a civil engineer in the West, whither he had gone from his Eastern home. Though he comes from a rock-ribbed Democratic state, which probably wouldn't go Republican even though a certain warm place were to freeze over, Powell Clayton has been an influential member of the Republican national committee for a good many years. Incidentally he has been a member of every national convention of his party held since 1872.

He is the only committeeman who rose to be a full-fledged brigadier general in the Civil war. Brayton of Rhode Island was brevetted a brigadier. Before hostilities began Clayton got the idea that he was pro-slavery, and he used to make little speeches to his friends on the subject. But when Lincoln's call for volunteers came he did not hesitate long before going to the defense of the Union, as is shown by the fact that he raised a company of the First Kansas volunteer infantry regiment. Three years later, because of gallant services in the field, he was given his star. He always was in the thick of the fight, and is the sole one-armed member of the committee. Settling in Arkansas after the war, and becoming a reconstruction governor and United States senator and a capitalist, Clayton played an important part in developing the state industrially. For several years after he became an Arkansan traveling about the state was done almost wholly by horseback, flatboat, steamboat or stage. Gradually, through his efforts, the railroads piereced the tate, thus opening up practically a whole state to commerce.

Quite a few national committeemen have played no insignificant parts in the development of the resources of various states As head of a string of banks and as a transporter to and from the mines, Senator Ankeny has done a man's share in developing Oregon and Washington. John E. Osborne has been one of the big men of Wyoming since the eighties, when he went into the raising of live stock on the open range, eventually becoming the largest individual sheep owner in the state. Col. Guffey, as an oil and natural gas produher, has cut no small figure as an industrial upbuilder in Western Pennsylvania and down in Texas. In West Virginia both Senator Scott and his rival committeeman, John T. McGraw, have been leaders in the wonderful development of that state within recent years.

Of the two men, Senator Scott has had the more picturesque career to great wealth. Brought up in the Quaker community of Quaker City, Ohio, he decided to cut out for himself when he was 16. His eyes were turned Westward—the gold craze was then on—and in the course of time he was driving an ox team over the present site of Denver, his employer being an Iowa man. He led the life of the raw country for a year. Then he returned home, richer in experience but not in pocketbook.

Pretty soon thereafter the Civil war broke out. Young Scott enlisted. His father, being a peace-loving man, promptly took him back home; the boy was under age. For the next few weeks the boy made the father's life miserable with his importunities to be allowed the coveted consent and from then on until the close of the war Nathan Scott followed the flag of his country as a private. After the war he returned home, found employment in a glass works near by, learned the trade thoroughly, went to Wheeling, W. Va., secured a place in a glass factory, soon became foreman and, finally, president. This factory is one of Senator Scott's numerous present-day properties and he takes more pride in it than in all his other enterprises combined.

As would be expected of a man who is proud of the fact that he has worked his way up among the rich men of the country, Senator Scott is democratic, sympathetic and affability itself. His friends say that he has ex-

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Michigan's Output in April Was Largest in the Mine's History---Superintendent W. P. Smith of Quincy Smelter Has Resigned.

Houghton, Mich., May 9.—With the exception that on one occasion, two years ago, a production equally as large was made, the Michigan's output of 197 tons in April was the biggest monthly out-turn of mineral in the history of the mine. Michigan is steadily forging to the front and were the metal market upon a normal basis it would only be a question of a short time when it could be placed upon a dividend basis. With metal at the present price the company is a little more than playing even. The mine never looked more promising than it does today. Operations are moving along smoothly and the policy is to gradually get in shape for bigger things. Sinking is to be resumed in shaft "C" at an early date. Excellent ground is being opened on the Calico lode and good rock is being forwarded to the mill from this shaft. It is down to the eleventh level. Preparations are being made to resume work on the Michigan's mill at Keweenaw bay. B. F. Shearer, formerly superintendent of the Wolverine and Mohawk mills, has been selected as superintendent. It is estimated that it will take at least six months to get the mill in operation. It will be equipped with one head at the outset and will treat from 700 to 800 tons of rock per day. Provision has been made in the building for a second head, but this will not be installed until deemed necessary. Michigan will continue to treat its rock at the Atlantic mill until its own plant is completed.

W. P. Smith, for the past four and one-half years superintendent of the Quincy smelter works, announces his resignation, to take effect Aug. 1. His future actions have not been decided upon and the reasons for his resignation are not given. Mr. Smith, during his service here, has established a record for efficiency in his work and made many warm friends in the locality. Prior to coming here he was connected with the Calumet & Hecla Black Rock smelter near Buffalo, New York. He was connected with the Calumet & Hecla smelting works at Hubbell for about five years.

The best showing of copper yet uncovered in Section 16 shaft of the Atlantic Mining company has been encountered in a crosscut drift on the south side of the twelfth level. With

GLOBE DISTRICT IS ACTIVE

Hoval A. Smith Says Future Vein in Globe Consolidated is All That Was Expected---Another Old Dominion Furnace Blown In.

Globe, Ariz., May 9.—Hoval A. Smith of Bisbee, was here a few days attending to matters connected with his extensive holdings in the Globe Consolidated company. When asked concerning the Future vein which was opened up in the Gem portion of the Globe Consolidated, Mr. Smith stated that from all reports the showing attained was all that was at first expected. He said development work at this point which is located on the 1,200-foot level 600 feet from the Gem shaft, in the direction of the Boston was being steadily prosecuted.

Hovland & Smith are also the principal owners of the Copper Gulf Mining company, which was lately organized and took over the holdings of the Copper Gulf Development company in the Burro Mountain district, together with a large area of adjoining ground. The new company has a capitalization of $500,000, divided into 50,000 shares, with a par value of $10 each. It owns a little more than 1,500 acres of ground in the well known districts of New Mexico.

The old company had developed large bodies of low grade ore in various portions of its property, which averaged between 4 and 5 per cent copper. It is believed that still larger deposits will be opened up, and when this occurs a concentrator of a sufficient capacity to handle the output will be erected on the property.

In regard to the general mining situation Mr. Smith seemed very optimistic, saying that a gradual improvement had been noticed lately, and that he looked for a still further betterment in the near future.

The fifth furnace of the Old Dominion smelter was blown in last week, and the full battery of furnaces is now running day and night for the first time since the slump in copper.

CONSOLIDATION IN IDAHO

McKinley and Great Divide Gold Properties at Jupiter Mountain to Be Combined---The Trade Dollar to Surpass Record.

Boise, Idaho, May 9.—The consolidation of the McKinley and Great Divide gold properties at Jupiter mountain is now a practical certainty, and it is stated that the yield from these two properties alone should be tremendous as a result of the McKinley tunnel penetrating the area of heavy mineralization. The Great Divide property has already produced gold in paying quantities, and is regarded as an important acquisition by the McKinley management. Attention is now being called to the fact that the gold output of Idaho during 1907 showed an increase of about $52,000 over that of the previous year, and that the quartz and placer mines of the Boise Basin contributed heavily to the swelling of this total.

The Trade Dollar, the great dividend payer of Silver City, will, it is believed, surpass its former record this year, as rich ore and larger bodies are now opened and ready for extraction. The mill is running right along with ore enough in sight to keep it going for the next two or three years.

The smelting works in Seven Devils district, Washington county, will soon be ready to receive ore. Owners of large copper-gold mines in that section are getting ready to resume work. Heretofore they could not be profitably worked on account of the long wagon haul and railroad freight charges to Salt Lake or Denver.

A large number of men are now at work on the state wagon road up Boise river to the great Atlanta and Black Warrior districts. Work was commenced on it two years ago, but it could not be completed with the appropriation of $20,000, and now it will be finished with private subscriptions, and a sufficient amount has been raised. Heretofore the districts could only be reached by a wagon road over the high mountains between there and Rocky Bar. The grades are so heavy that it has been almost impossible to take machinery over.

The Monarch mill of fifty stamps has commenced work with the mine in shape to produce ore to keep it going day and night.

Col. Judson Spofford has men at work on all of the eleven claims belonging to the Spofford Mining company in Black Hornet district, and from some of them he is getting good ore. It is his intention to start soon a tunnel to cut the veins at depth. One of them is fifteen feet thick, all the silling being ore.

The strike in the Picket Pin, also in Black Hornet district, which was made ten days ago, grows in importance. A

GOLD FIND IN BULL VALLEY

All Surrounding Country in Utah Located, But Only Forty Men at Work---Strike Out of Ordinary at Bingham-Butte.

Salt Lake City, May 9.—Although all the surrounding country has been located there are only forty men actually at work in Bull Valley, Washington county, where a sensational find of gold ore was reported a few weeks ago. Merrill Kalb of St. George, who has spent the last three weeks in the district, says that there have been discovered twelve ledges or immense iron dykes which carry from $5 to $28 in gold on the surface. Some of the ledges from which good pannings have been had are seven miles from the scene of the original strike. Pulcifer & Farnsworth in the original strike have ore that runs as high as $50,000 gold to the ton. George P. Scranton has paid $3,000 for a one-third interest in the Scranton and Golden Eagle claims. The ore uncovered in these runs 34 ounces in silver and $5 in gold. It is the only silver showing in the camp, though the Emma mine, a silver-gold-copper proposition, is only ten miles distant. Bull Creek placer deposits were successfully worked years ago, but the ledges have never before been porspected.

A strike out of the ordinary in the character of the ore has just been made in the Bingham-Butte at Bingham. It was made in the north drift of the second vein encountered in the working tunnel about 740 feet from the entrance to the mine. When the vein was cut by the tunnel it was about three feet wide. Drifting north the vein has widened to six feet and there is now exposed an eighteen-inch streak of ore that assays 55.2 ounces in silver and $4.40 in gold to the ton, with a trace of lead. These values are found in an iron gangue. The balance of the vein filling is of the regulation silver lead variety, with much of it running around 40 per cent lead and 15 ounces silver. Until more development is done it cannot be determined whether the Bingham-Butte is to be more or less of a gold mine instead of a silver-lead property. The tunnel is being pushed ahead.

An important strike is reported in the Jennie Gold Mining company's property at Gold Springs. The discovery was made in stoping from the 115-foot level when a new vein was broken into. The ore averages $10 a ton in gold and is free milling.

In the Bullock mine in Tintic what is locally known as the Aspinwall vein has been cut in a crosscut from the shaft on the 150-foot level. Four feet of $30 ore has been gone through, with the foot wall still not in sight. In the Aspinwall ground adjoining at a depth of about 80 feet over $100,000 in ore was taken out of the same vein.

The Silver King Coalition company at Park City is undertaking an experiment in mine ventilation. The company has employed an oil outfit to drill a series of holes twelve inches in diameter to the mine workings from the surface. If the drill holes serve satisfactorily as ventilating shafts this method will come into general use owing to its comparative economy.

OUTPUT OF THE BUTTE MINES

Production for the Month of April Showed Increase of 3,403,000 Pounds Over March—Properties of the North Butte Company Are Becoming Richer Every Day.

Butte, Mont., May 9.—The mines of the Butte district produced in April about 21,530,250 pounds of copper, an increase over the March production of 3,403,000 pounds. If the rate of production that prevailed during the last week of April continues throughout May the first of June will see the district at its normal production again. It is therefore probable that May will witness an output, of 27,000,000 to 30,000,000 pounds. For a week while the Washoe smelter was treating some of the Boston & Montana company ore, the output of that plant was the largest in its history.

The various companies contributed to the April totals as follows:

Companies—	Tons of ore.	Pounds of copper.
Boston & Montana	93,000	6,510,000
Anaconda	84,000	5,712,000
Butte & Boston	9,750	633,750
Washoe	9,900	693,000
Parrot	4,500	337,500
Trenton	6,000	366,000
North Butte	37,500	3,750,000
Butte Coalition	24,000	1,968,000
Original	12,000	1,080,000
Miscellaneous	6,000	430,000
Totals	286,650	21,530,250

The following figures show the daily ore tonnage, yield of copper per ton and the daily average copper output:

Companies—	Daily Tons.	Copper a ton.	Daily Pounds.
Boston & Montana	3,100	70	217,000
Anaconda	2,800	68	190,400
Butte & Boston	325	65	21,125
Washoe	330	70	23,100
Parrot	150	75	11,250
Trenton	200	61	12,200
North Butte	1,250	100	125,000
Butte Coalition	800	82	65,600

Totals	9,555		717,675

The properties of the North Butte company are becoming richer every day, and as depth is attained on the Edith May and Jessie veins the percentage of first-class ore—ore that will average better than 15 per cent—is steadily increasing. In fact, it is now a hard matter for the superintendent of the property to keep the percentage equally divided between the first and scond-class ore in making shipments to the smelter. It is understood that the crosscut is now being continued further north, through the Jessie vein to the Berlin, which it is believed will give up equally as rich ore as the Jessie, which is now the richest vein in the camp. The North Butte company is now sending close to 1,500 tons of ore to the Washoe smelter every day.

The fact that the North Butte company paid to its stockholders last year only $2.14 in profits should not be considered discouraging, nor should the fact be charged up to poor management. The company had the very low price of the metal and a nine-month's curtailment to contend with, obstacles which could not be overcome. More first-class ore than ever before is now being hoisted from the Speculator shaft, and it readily can be calculated, even with copper at thirteen cents, the dividend will be in excess of $6 in the future.

The Butte Coalition company is surely getting in line to make a handsome return to its stockholders. Recent developments in the Harus property show that on the 1,700-foot level a vein of solid copper glance, averaging from two to four feet in width has been opened up. The vein is traced for a distance of 600 feet, and the engineers say it has a height of 1,000 feet. Its estimated production will be 240,000,000 pounds of copper, with a gross value, at the present low price of metal, of more than $30,000,000. Drifting has already commenced on the new discovery.

By the first of June it is expected that the new Tramway surface plant will be in operation, and it will be early in the fall that the lower levels of the Minnie Healy will be worked through the tramway shaft at a depth of 1,600 feet. This will add materially to the earning power of the Red Metal company, controlled and owned by the Butte Coalition, and it is predicted that before the close of the year that the present price of $20 a share for Coalition will be considered extravagantly low.

Work has been resumed in the Parrot mine, which has been closed about seven months. A large portion of the shaft has been retimbered and the property is in good condition. About 200 men have been put to work. They are mining an average of about 300 tons of ore per day.

The controversy over stock issues of the British-Butte company has resulted in a suit in the district court at Butte against the company and President Manuel H. DeHora by Paine, Webber & Co., to compel them to transfer on the books 5,000 shares which the complainants purchased from N. J. Lloyd and Burt Adams Tower a year ago. The purchasers of the stock received two certificates for 2,500 shares each but the company refused to make the transfer. The stock was issued by the former officers and the legality of some of the certificates was disputed.

According to C. H. Palmer, general manager of the Davis-Daly Estate Copper company, the Colorado mine is improving with each day's work. All the development work is being done on the 1,000 foot level. A start on a cross-cut at the 800 foot point was made, but not carried far when work was stopped. The cross-cut toward the ore bodies of the Lizzie claim, which have been developed to a depth of 200 feet by lessees, is being continued from the 1,000 of the Colorado. The lessees are taking out a lot of good ore from one of the veins of the Lizzie on the 200 level.

NO DECREASE IN SHIPMENTS

By the Calumet & Arizona and the Superior & Pittsburg Mines to the Smelter—Same Amount of Ore is Being Mined as in the Past Few Months.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 9.—Notwithstanding the various reports that the mining companies of the district are shipping less ore than at any time in the history of the camp, since the erection of the smelters at Douglas, shipments the past two months have been about the same as the months previous. The amount of ore shipped to Douglas by the Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg companies amounts to from 1,200 to 1,500 tons daily. Seventeen to twenty cars are shipped to Douglas every day in the week from the Calumet & Arizona properties, the Oliver and the Irish Mag, five to seven cars from the latter, the rest from the former. The Superior & Pittsburg company is shipping from thirteen to fifteen cars per day. Of this amount, one car a day is shipped from the junction, and six or seven cars are shipped from both the Hoatson and Cole shafts.

The ore shipped from these properties is not all being smelted at present, owing to the inability of the smelter to handle it, on account of the great amount of new work being done at the plant, such as the moving of converters and enlarging of the furnaces. Some of the ore is being piled up at the grounds near the smelter. It will be stored thus until the smelter can handle it.

At the Copper Queen properties the same number of cars are being sent to the Douglas smelter daily, as in the past few months. The storage bins at the smelter are almost filled and most all the ore shipped at present is being smelted.

The copper production at the smelters in Douglas for the month of April was about what it was for the month of March. The Copper Queen produced 7,500,000 pounds and the Calumet & Arizona produced a little more than 4,000,000 pounds, making a total of 11,500,000 pounds for the month. About one year ago the Copper Queen made its record monthly run of 9,500,000 pounds of copper, and at that time the Calumet & Arizona was producing from four furnaces about as much copper as at the present time with five furnaces. The Copper Queen is doing practically no construction work at the present time and a good portion of the plant is idle because of the low price of copper. One year ago large amounts of custom ore was being received every day from many properties, large and small, located in various sections of Arizona, New Mexico and Sonora; a year ago the Shattuck mine at Bisbee was sending 300 to 400 tons of ore daily to the Copper Queen smelter; the Imperial mine was sending 150 tons daily and probably as much more custom ore was coming from other mines in the territory indicated above. The number of men employed at the Calumet & Arizona, at the present time is probably in excess of the number one year ago, while the Copper Queen is working about 20 per cent less force than it was a year ago, owing to the lack of custom ores, the receipt of which now amounts to practically nothing. The force in the smelter proper is about normal, as compared with a year ago, but in the shops and at the sampling works the forces have suffered vital curtailment. At the Queen the large surplus of coke is now being drawn on for running the works and the receipt of coke is now very light. It is not expected that the production at the Douglas smelters will be increased until there is a better price quoted for copper.

The Briggs shaft of the Superior & Pittsburg Copper company is gradually being unwatered. About four or five months ago there was over eighteen feet of water in the shaft, and up to the present time nine feet of this has been raised, leaving between nine and ten feet of water remaining. This work has been done by the Junction pumping plant, the largest in the district, and the pumps have been kept steadily at work on the unwatering of the mine ever since last December, when work was commenced.

As the water is lessened in the shaft, the work becomes easier, and from present indications the mine will be unwatered in the next ninety or a hundred days. At first it was thought that the mine could be ridded of the immense quantities of water, which has ben a hindrance in the operation of the shaft ever since it was encountered, in about ninety days, but the quantity proved to be much greater than was supposed.

Whether or not operations will begin at once after the unwatering of the Briggs is not known at present, but considering the good prospects of this shaft becoming a big shipper, it is presumed that something will be

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Depressed Conditions at Period of Year When Great Activity Usually Prevails—First Shippers of the Season—Removal of Hibbing Village May Yet Be Necessary.

Virginia, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—From the standpoint of the mine operator the present condition of affairs in the iron ore market is anything but satisfactory. Up to the present time but one sale of 50,000 tons has been made this season. Buyers are still holding off with the result that several of the underground mines will be compelled to close down because of lack of stockpile room, if this condition of affairs continues for a week or two longer.

A. B. Coates of this city, who with his associates is engaged in the operation of several Mesaba properties, says that an effort is to be made by the sales agents the coming week to get the furnacemen to place their orders, so that the mine operafors will be able to figure on their output for the season. Mr. Coates says that there is a feeling existing that if the furnacemen do not place their orders in the immediate future and dribble along buying from hand to mouth, many of the mines will be forced to close during the summer months and then along about September and October, when the furnaces will begin to need ore in large quantities, it will be impossible to meet the demand.

The present outlook is that shipping will not be started until about June 1, and that even then it will be exceedingly light unless the furnacemen can be induced to place substantial orders in the meantime.

F. A. Wildes of Hibbing, state inspector of mineral leases, who was in Virginia this week, says that an effort will be made at the coming session of the legislature to have the state erect a suitable building and establish a headquarters office for the mine inspection force some where on the range, similar to the offices now maintained at several places by fee owners of different propertits. Mr. Wildes says that after this headquarters is established it is the purpose to have one man in charge of the office to whom all reports of sub-inspectors will be made and he in turn will make all reports to the state auditor's office. This would systematize and simplify the business, which is growing rapidly. There are now in existence between 250 and 300 leases on state lands, and of these there are over 100 explored, partly explored and undeveloped which are paying a royalty of $100 each to the state annually in addition to the royalties paid by the operating mines. As these properties are developed a considerable increase in the state mine inspection force will be made and the establishment of a headquarters will be an imperative necessity.

Butler Bros., the stripping contractors, are this week setting up their steam shovel which will be used in making the first cut at the Virginia Silver stripping. A telephone line has been constructed to the property and an office, blacksmith shop and other temporary buildings constructed. A water tank has also been erected. It is expected that the work of stripping will begin next week.

Conditions Not Bright.

Sidings filled with idle cars, mines shut down or operating on a minimum scale, few bulk carriers plying the lakes—these are conditions testifying to the depresed state of things existing in the Lake Superior iron region at a period of the year when, with navigation opened, great activity usually prevails. Ore has gone forward to shipping docks from producing properties in various portions of the mining country, but only a few cargoes have been placed and there is no prospect of a normal movement for some time to come. Some docks will, in fact, not go into commission until the first of June, and even later.

Having ample supplies for months yet, furnacemen are not making requisitions for raw material, pending trade developments, and thus mine managers are fairly at sea as to how much ore they will be called upon to furnish. Orders for cars are consequently withheld. Except that stripping work on the Mesaba is almost as brisk as it has ever been, operations continue of meagre volume throughout the ranges. Compared with the forces busy at this time a year ago, some thousands of toilers are out of employment—miners, train hands, shopmen, dock laborers and sailors. There is hope that affairs will turn for the beter shortly; indeed, it is rather expected that the latter part of the shipping season will witness exceptional activity, but as yet there is no tangible evidence that the record-breaking achievements of last year are to be duplictaed, much less approached.

The First Shippers.

The Laura has been the first shipper on the Mesaba this season, the Montreal on the Gogebic, the Ohio on the Marquette and the Baltic on the Menominee. The Iron River district, in which the latter property, a Pickands, Mather & Co. mine, is located, has been particularly hard hit latterly. Half a dozen mines have quit work. Fully 500 men have been made idle since the first of the year, and further curtailment is threatened. The Spring Valley Iron company of Welleston, Ohio, is continuing the development of the J. S. Kinney property, near Iron River, and as far as can be judged from present indications it has a mine there. Ore is being hoisted. A new engine and boiler house is in course of erection. The Spring Valley people have suspended work at the property they have been exploring the past four months in the Crystal Falls

WORK AT THE CANANEA CAMP

Smelter Improvements to Be Completed by the End of May---Date of Reopening Still Indefinite ---Col. Greene Talks.

Bisbee, Ariz., May 9.—When interviewed here a few days ago, Col. W. C. Greene would say nothing definite in regard to the reopening of the Greene-Cananea properties. He was asked if he would state a date at which he could say that the camp would be opened, but this he refused to do, saying that everything depended upon circumstances, the price of copper, etc. About 1,200 men are now at work in Cananea and the smelter improvements which have been in progress will be completed by the end of May. The camp will then be in a condition to resume operations at any time.

A large amount of development work has been done in Cananea since the mines closed, and a 400-foot viaduct built underground, where much trouble has been experienced in holding the ground, which Col. Greene says is one of the biggest engineering feats that has been attempted in this section for some time.

"How about the reports that have been going the rounds of the press to the effect that you have disposed of a large part of your interests in Cananea?" the colonel was asked. "I never pay attention to such reports," he replied. "I sold a large part of my interests in Cananea two years ago to Mr. Cole, but since that time my holdings have remained practically the same. I still am largely interested in Cananea and expect to continue to be in the future."

The Sierra Madre Land & Lumber company, of which Col. Greene is the head, has been running its mills for about a month. Nearly $5,000,000 has been spent in improvements, the colonel stated. The combined capacity of the mills is 600,000 feet a day. Only two of the mills are running at present, and on day shift only, but in the fall it is expected to run at full capacity. About 300 people are now in the lumber camp.

At O'Campo, where the gold and silver mines in which Col. Greene and those associated with him are located, one large stamp mill is running and another is building. At Concheno new mills are being installed and it is expected that in a year mills with a capacity of treating 500 tons a day will be running.

MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY

In History of Nevada Hills Mine---Believed to be Absolutely New Vein---Franco-American Syndicate Acquiring More Properties.

Fairview, Nev., May 9.—What General Manager W. H. Webber regards as the most important discovery in the history of the Nevada Hills mines has just been made on the 400 foot level of the vertical shaft workings. It is believed to be an absolutely new vein. It was cut first on the 150 foot level and there found to carry four feet of ore with one wall exposed. A drift was started on the 200 foot level to catch the vein. The ore is a heavy sulphide, with values up to $600 a ton, two-thirds of which is gold and one-third silver. In the other workings of the mine the values are exactly reversed. The new vein runs at right angles to the original mineral zone. The annual meeting of the Nevada Hills company was held in Salt Lake this week and the old officers re-elected. Reports made at the meeting showed that during the part of last year in which shipments were made 445.5 tons of ore were sent to market. The ore contained 1,632 ounces of gold and 43,554 ounces of silver. The company has paid five dividends amounting to $372,716 and the treasury reserve now amounts to $59,630.

Ely, Nev., May 9.—The Franco-American syndicate is acquiring a number of properties in White, Pine county. The syndicate has bought 320 acres of placer gravel on Weaver creek in the Osceola district. It has also bought the Sunday and Lucky Boy groups of lode claims in the same district for a reported price of $22,500. Good bodies of ore have been developed in these claims that carry gold, silver, lead and copper. The syndicate has also acquired the Duzette group of Lane City for $5,000. The Duzette produced several hundred thousand dollars worth of ore in the past and there is now exposed in its workings much ore that runs from $7 to $14 in gold and from 10 to 27 per cent copper; George William Meyer of New York is at the head of the syndicate.

A second rush of lage proportions to Blaine was started last week by the report of a strike on the Buster mine by Dempsey and Thompson, leasers.

The Exchequer mine at Cherry Creek is to be re-opened. The Exchequer is one of the old mines of the district and sent much silver-lead ore to the smelters in past years. Work is to be begun at once to unwater the 300 foot shaft.

Goldfield, Nev., May 9.—A very recent report from the company's general manager gives information of the encountering of another huge vein in Kansas City-Goldfield ground. This occurred a few days ago in a drift in the C. O. D. lease, and the ore body opened up is undoubtedly an extension of the well-known Gold Bar vein. The report states that already measurements had been taken showing a width of five feet and still no signs of the farther wall in evidence. All who have seen it pronounce the newly encountered ore vein one of the best in the district, and experts do not hesitate to predict the opening up of a rich ore shoot as the outcome of this discovery. The same company has also opened up a fine cross lead in their Velvet lease which pans good values in free gold.

Searchlight, Nev., May 9.—The main shaft of the Quartette Extension company is now down several hundred feet, and the management states that there should be no difficulty in sinking to the level of proven values by early summer. The shaft is a double compartment and substantially timbered.

KELVIN-CALUMET COMPANY

To Erect Five-Hundred Ton Smelter Few Miles North of Kelvin, Arizona---Will Have Stimulating Effect on District.

Phoenix, Ariz., May 9.—There is every probability that within a very few months work will be begun upon the erection of a 500 ton smelter on the property of the Kelvin-Calumet property, a few miles north of Kelvin and adjoining the Ray mines.

Last week three of the head men of the company, all Baltimoreans, inspected the Kelvin-Calumet claims and while they were at the mine a mill test of ore was made. One of these men was Dr. Clark, one of the most famous geologists in the world. He occupies the chair of geology at John Hopkins university, is state geologist of Maryland and chairman of the United States geological survey. The second was J. J. Rutledge, an expert mining engineer of Baltimore and the third A. A. Turner, a big Nevada mine owner. From his properties at Tonopah, Mr. Turner is said to have already made $2,000,000 and is also heavily interested at Ely and other camps in the state.

All three of these gentlemen seemed delighted with the prospects on the Kelvin-Calumet property. Though they did not say so in so many words it was quite evident that they will make a favorable report to the board of directors of the company, which will hold a meeting immediately after their arrival at Baltimore.

The party was shown over the works by Superintendent W. B. Twithell, who seemed quite confident that the gentlemen were sufficiently impressed with the prospects to recommend the appropriation of money necessary to build a 500 ton plant. The directors are willing to put up the money if there is enough ore to make it worth while. It was to be absolutely certain on this point that Messrs. Turner, Clark and Rutledge were detailed to make a close inspection.

This will have a tremendous effect upon activity in the Kelvin district. Already the country is waking up slightly but the actual commencement of work on a smelter would have a stimulating effect equal to nothing else.

ELKHORN MINE GOING AHEAD

Famous Old Mine Was Given Up as Worked Out on Several Occasions---Today It's a Substantial Producer.

Butte, Mont., May 9.—With the general revival of the mining industry and the prospect of fair smelting rates being given to producers, a wide interest is being exhibited in the Elkhorn district located in about the center of Jefferson county and favorably situated in its relation to Butte. The district is proud of the celebrated Elkhorn mine, which in its time was one of the world's greatest producers of silver.

The Elkhorn mine is perhaps the most unique and interesting ore deposit in the state. It was located in January, 1875, and at that time was known as the Holter lode, being named after A. M. Holter, the well-known Helena merchant. The surface ores were free milling and the gold and silver production was high. As the mine was sunk deeper the ore became refractory, and it became much more difficult to save the values, and about half were lost in treatment. In 1881 a depth of 300 feet was reached, and it became necessary to construct a new mill, owing to the changed character of the ore. The property lay idle for a few years, owing to a disagreement among the owners, and in 1883 it passed into new ownership. A new cimoration mill was erected, by the use of which 90 per cent of the silver values were saved, and during the first ten months the revenue from the property was $183,375 in silver and $2,220 in gold. In 1888 there was another change of ownership, London capitalists becoming interested. Eight years later the mine was believed to have become exhausted of ore and preparations were made to abandon it. It was operated for the following three years with fair result, but was then closed down and remained dead until 1906, when the Longmaids of Helena took it up, and since that time it has been producing.

Two grades of ore are now being mined in the Elkhorn, the high grade being sent directly to the Helena smelter, while the low grade is milled and concentrated on the property, and the concentrates are sent to the smelter. The total shipments now reach about thirty cars a month. The shaft is on the incline and has a depth of 2,300 feet. The total amount of silver produced from the time the mine was opened was 8,902,000 ounces and 8,500 ounces of gold, besides 4,000,000 pounds of lead and many thousand pounds of copper.

THE HOPEFUL HORIZON.

It was a timely and encouraging note of optimism which E. H. Gary, head of the United States Steel corporation, struck in the interview published in The Herald last evening.

He does not expect an immediate boom, and it is such a short time since the last boom that everybody remembers how inevitably, under present conditions, the boom period immediately precedes the collapse from over-inflation, and therefore everybody will hope that the "boom stage" will be postponed for a little while.

But he sees no reason why everybody should not be employed, or why business should not proceed this summer about at the normal. "There has been no period in the history of the country," he said, "when the financial, commercial, industrial and transportation interests were in such an encouraging condition, and although freight traffic has fallen off, a comparison between the volume of business handled today and that of three or five years ago will show that the movement of commerce is natural and encouraging. There has been a considerable falling off from the enormous traffic of 1907, but that was unreasonably large, and 1908 will compare favorably with any other year."

We shall probably not be able to appreciate the real soundness of our position for some time, without trying hard, because of the natural tendency to make comparisons with the conditions prevailing in the early part of last year. It is not a fair comparison, because business then was running at a dangerously high speed, a speed which events have shown the country is not yet able to maintain. It was a dangerous condition, for the country was galloping heedlessly on without regard to its capacity or endurance, and collapse was almost an inevitable result, just as collapse is the inevitable result of physical over-exertion.

But the reaction came in time to prevent the collapse from being dangerous. As fatigue warns the worker that he is overtaxing his powers, and thus enables him to stop short of physical bankruptcy, last fall's panic brought the country up with a round turn, and in the intervening winter months it has had time to catch its breath and renew its energies for a fresh burst of speed, profiting by the warning of last year against exceeding its capacity. Now it is ready to start in again, and as Mr. Gary says, "all signs point to a complete restoration of activity and confidence."

Merely saying we are prosperous will not make us prosperous, but it will make men look at the facts and see that there is not the slightest reason why we shouldn't be prosperous. Capital will go to work again—it is going to work again now, as the floating of the Pennsylvania bond issue showed—and that means that labor will be employed and that the life blood of industry will again flow healthily through the veins of the nation. The Pennsylvania borrows money to make extensions and improvements, puts men to work, buys materials, thus putting other men to work, and when wages are being paid and being spent the country is doing business again.

THE MAY MUSIC FESTIVAL.

To the Duluth Oratorio society the citizens interested in the progress of the city along lines of culture and refinement are greatly indebted. During the past several years there has been great protest that high priced concerts of world famous artists and grand opera presented by capable companies have not been so patronized in Duluth that those interested in the financial end of the enterprises would be interested in repeating the experimnt of providing such entertainment. As The Herald pointed out at the time of the latest failure of an opera season to be financially successful in Duluth, recriminations will do no good. The people must be educated and public appreciation of good music stimulated. And it is this education and stimulation that the Duluth Oratorio society is doing much to provide.

The first May festival presented last year in three concerts was a highly artistic musical success. The musical training which the 100 active members of the society received during the weeks of rehearsal was of great value to each individual. The provision which was made to admit the school children of the city to the afternoon rehearsals was a step in the right direction, bringing good music within the financial reach of hundreds of children at a time when hearing such music is of the greatest educational value. This year the chorus training has been carried even farther, as a children's cantata of 100 voices from the High School Musical society, supplemented by 100 voices from the grade schools of the city, will be presented.

Even if the society did nothing more than provide this opportunity of interesting individuality so large a number of young people in good music, it would be worthy of the support of the people of Duluth. It does more, however. A series of brilliant concerts is offered with an assisting orchestra, one of the finest of the Northwest, and imported soloists.

No factor has greater influence than a good festival in stimulating musical knowledge and creating a desire for the opportunities to hear more and more of the best music. The second May festival should receive the enthusiastic support of Duluth's citizens.

But as The Herald has said before, people don't attend such entertainments because they ought to, because it is good for them or because it is good for the community. Indeed, the not unnatural tendency of humanity is to become obsessed of the idea that things which are good for one must necessarily be hard to take and uncomfortable to bear. Therefore it should be added that Duluth does not often have the chance to enjoy such an abundance of good music as will be provided at the May musical festival this month, and that it is not required of anybody to attend out of public spirit or patriotism since the entertainment itself is one that must prove delightfully pleasant and profitable—don't shy at that word "profitable"—to everybody that attends.

MODERATION.

Enthusiasm is a splendid thing, especially when it is tempered by that moderation which hedges it about with practicality.

For instance, the enthusiasm of those who frequently indulge in ardent panegyrics of their pet panaceas, which they guarantee as cures for every ill of body, mind and soul, have plenty of enthusiasm but usually lack the saving grace of practical moderation.

All of which reflections are caused by a bit of very excellent advice which has lately been bestowed upon its readers by the St. Louis Times. Like The Herald, the Times is a great believer in the virtues of outdoor exercise, and particularly of walking, which comes as near forming an ideal combination of physical exertion in the open air as anything that could be imagined. The Herald has often expatiated at length upon the virtues and benefits of walking as an exercise, and has told what pleasures and benefits it brings to body and mind; but the cause is such a good one that it will do no harm to add to what has already been said the pertinent suggestions of the St. Louis paper, not only because it supports this newspaper's views upon walking, but because it points the reflections with which this article begins, regarding the admirable association of moderation with enthusiasm.

"Are you fat?" asks the Times, not meaning to be impertinent; then it hastily proceeds to reply, without waiting for an answer: "Then walk."

"Are you thin?" it continues. "Walk.

"Are you nervous? Walk.

"Have you no appetite? Walk.

"Do you gormandize? Walk.

"Have you lost interest in life? Walk.

"Maybe your poor stomach won't work. Walk.

"Or perhaps your liver has gone on a strike. Walk.

"Cupid may have put a kink in your suffering heart. Walk.

"In short," concludes the Times, "walking seems to be the remedy for all ills, save, perhaps,"—and here it introduces the moderation which associates so charmingly with its enthusiasm—"broken legs."

Now an unthinkingly enthusiastic advocate of walking as a cure-all would never have thought to make this saving exception, which prevents the enthusiasm from overreaching through extravagance. He would have put it flatly that walking cures everything, without stopping to think how absurd it is to imply by that that it will cure a broken leg.

With enthusiasm properly curbed by this exception, however, there is plenty of room left for it to expand in over the excellences of walking as an exercise and as a pleasure. It makes for health, strength, clearmindedness; it facilitates reflection and philosophy; it brings us in touch with nature and the soothing and upbuilding breath of the out-of-doors. It will cure morbid and unpleasant conditions of either mind or body.

A WORD FOR UNCLE JOE.

The Herald, pained at the apparent necessity of continual dislike of Speaker Cannon's methods, has long sought occasion to admire him. It has never known an individual too bad to have some redeeming grace, any more than it has known an individual too good to have some redeeming fault, and with this in mind it has been giving earnest study to the character and conduct of Speaker Cannon, in a hopeful search for something to praise.

It has found it. He is to be praised for his consistency, and for his abandonment of his old pretense of being a "man of the people."

As to the latter, there was a time when this possessor of the most powerful and most shamefully misused public office in Christendom prided himself upon being a man of the people. He affected the homespun attitude, cultivated his real or imaginary resemblance to Lincoln—a real man of the people—and by his plain garb, his bristling speech and his homely wit, posed as a great commoner.

All that pretence has been dropped, now. He is the czar of the house, the holder of the spigot of legislation, the absolute ruler of the "popular" branch of congress, and he is using his power for the protection of the "interests" without any pretense of affection for the people. He is a better man for having abandoned the hypocrisy; a truer man for coming out in his own colors instead of parading in costume.

As to his consistency, that has been shown in the very valuable incidents of the tariff on wood pulp and the sham battle against the paper trust. It having been developed that the paper trust, working under the protection of a tariff schedule, was plundering the newspapers of the country and battening upon a free press, it was desired that the tariff schedule should be abolished. The only man that could arrange that was Cannon, and he wouldn't. But he introduced a resolution providing for a committee to investigate the paper trust—though the department of justice had already taken up that work—and had it passed amid the snickers of the "interests" and the embittered derision of the newspaper publishers.

If that committee of investigation—which he appointed himself—had been one that would have wickedly attacked the paper trust—the same being one of the pet "interests" whose watchdog the speaker has become—the speaker would have stood branded with the taint of inconsistency. But he put over it Congressman Mann of Illinois, who has throughout the hearings assumed the attitude of an attorney for the paper trust, and has thus redeemed his chief from the aspersion of inconsistency. Says the Chicago Evening Post as to Mann: "He has repelled, confused, undermined, wherever and whenever possible, the evidence offered by the newspaper publishers, instead of leaving the work of refutation to the other side of the case. His attitude is not that of an unprejudiced investigator, but the attorney for the defense. That Mr. Cannon has found in Mr. Mann an exceptionally effective instrument for the execution of his transparent use cannot be denied."

The Herald takes pleasure in bestowing this word of praise upon the speaker: he is not a hypocrite—that is, not very much of a hypocrite; and he is not inconsistent—in his attorneyship for the "interests."

THE HILLSIDE ROAD.

A local property-owner, in a communication to The Herald, evidences some apprehension over the fact that the petitions for the easy-grade hillside road connecting Duluth and the farming districts are being largely signed, and that the backers of the plan ask that tax levies be increased to provide for it.

"The road is all right," says this correspondent, "but high taxes are not conducive to the prosperity of a city and are not considered particularly attractive. While the road is good and may benefit the city, they should not proceed to give the city a black eye to get it. These petitions are signed by every one without looking at them."

The plan of building a road that will connect Duluth and the farming district back of the hills by an easy grade is a good one, and some time—as soon as it can be conveniently done—it should be built.

But in the meantime, so far as the city is concerned, there are other matters of vastly more importance. As The Herald has already stated, the construction of proper bridges along the road connecting West Duluth with the site of the new steel plant is a matter of pressing importance, and one that should be attended to before the hillside road is taken up. No proper roadway can be provided, and no street railroad extension built, until new bridges are built.

Another matter of pressing importance is the construction of a city hospital for the care of contagious diseases. The vital need of this institution has been shown again and again, and every day of delay in its construction is exposing the city to great peril.

So far as the construction of the hillside road is concerned, the expense should be shared by the city and the county, since both will benefit from it, but the work should not involve an increase in taxes. The funds should come out of the regular appropriations for such purposes.

The Herald has not the slightest desire to depreciate the hillside road plan; it is important that it should be carried out. But it must insist that other matters of still greater importance should be cared for first.

It is not as though the city had no road now connecting it with the farming districts. It has such roads, several of them, and all of them are practicable. The hillside road that has been mapped out will be better than any of them, it is true, but it is also true that the existing roads will do very well until the city and county are in a position to build the new one without jeopardizing other projects of very much greater importance.

The hillside road plan should be carefully worked out, and kept in mind by the city and county authorities, but they should feel under no obligations to hasten it at the expense of pending projects that are more immediately necessary; neither should they feel that they need cause an increase in taxes to bring it about.

WATER POWERS AND THE PEOPLE.

It is good to hear that matters have been so arranged that President Roosevelt has agreed to sign the bill authorizing the completion of the Rainy river water power project, but it is still better to know that he has made this agreement without abandoning the principle upon which he based his veto of the bill, exercised several weeks ago.

As the bill was originally introduced and passed, it took no notice whatever of the principle which the president had laid down in a message to congress—that the government should retain control and ownership of the water powers of the country, and that when the right to use them was granted it should involve the payment by the beneficiaries of a proper charge to the government for the benefits conferred upon them.

In this form, the president had to veto the bill, and he did rightly. He would not have been justified in abandoning the excellent principle which he had laid down, which is a principle that the government should have adopted long ago to cover all of its natural resources situated in the public domain.

In order to secure the signature of the president to the bill, two additional provisions are to be inserted. The first is that the concession be limited to ninety-nine years, thus recognizing the government's ownership of the water power. The second is that the government is to make a reasonable charge for the concession.

It would have been very unfortunate if the bill had fallen through after the beneficiaries of its provisions had spent a large sum of money in developing the water power, but it would have been still more unfortunate if, after the principle of government control had been established by presidential proclamation, it had been abandoned and a precedent made for further infractions.

Water power is a big factor today, but it is going to be a bigger one in the near future. All over the country thousands of streams possess waterfalls that provide natural power facilities. Every one of these will in time be developed. Most of those conveniently located are either developed now or are being developed, but in time even those now located far from the factories whose wheels they must turn will be put into use. Either the factories will move close to the waterfalls, or a process will be invented for carrying the developed power long distances with a minimum of waste.

Water power is the last remaining natural resource, and the government should keep it in trust for the people.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Wrenshall, a little village on the line of the Northern Pacific, is a hotbed for socialism. They discuss the mysteries of this many-sided movement from early morn until dewey eve, in this town, and the traveler hitting Wrenshall will be impressed with the activity of its inhabitants in attempting to impress their views upon the new arrivals.

The man who is susceptible to the line of talk that the Wrenshallites hand out and is willing to accept all the literature that they eagerly press into his hands, will leave the town laden like a small boy who collects souvenirs at the county fair. They hit you in the face with socialism as you reach their pleasant little village, and they slap you upon the back as you depart. There is no escaping the zealous Wrenshallites; they are on the job at all intervals, and the passenger alighting from the train is speedily made acquainted with the fact that Wrenshall is one of those little hamlets where the thought runs to the consideration of social problems of exceedingly complex nature.

A traveling man at the St. Louis was telling of his experience at Wrenshall. He alighted from the train and began to look the town over. Suddenly a lady approached him with a bundle of literature under her arm. "The Salvation Army," thought the man with the sample case under his whip. Such was not the case, however. She was one of the workers in the cause of a remodeled republic, and she was trying cases on a prospective convert.

"Really, I don't wish for a War Cry," said the traveling man as the lady advanced and held out one of the leafs of reason. "Neither do we," she retorted; "that's just why we are working for the great cause. Now, I want you to read one of these pamphlets and get some idea of the great cause we are interested in. Then I shall explain further to you the idea we are working in the interests of."

This was not an isolated case, explained the traveling man. Every one who goes to Wrenshall becomes cognizant of the strong spirit of socialism that permeates the place. It's hard to talk business with some people in the town before you have heard the tenets of socialism expounded. They have many propagdas, and you are welcome to them all. You can accumulate enough literature during a brief sojourn in Wrenshall to stock a library. They force it upon you, and if you lug away all the appeals to reason they hand you, you would look like an advance agent for a three-ring circus.

But, notwithstanding its tendencies toward the reform of everything from the dictionary to the digging of the Panama canal, Wrenshall is a prosperous and busy little town. You will be well treated there, and if you listen to the arguments in favor of socialism and accept the printed forms of progress they hand you, you will make many friends and undoubtedly leave behind you a very favorable impression as to your intelligence.

Science has come to the fore again, rendering a great service in the elimination of a number of pesky little beasts from consideration in a certain region in the northern part of the state.

Charles Barnes, who lives in the neighborhood of Biwabik, was at the McKay yesterday and, according to the hotel clerk, told of a novel experiment he had worked in ridding the camp of skunks.

The resulting carnage was fearful, but Mr. Barnes stated that the end justified the means, for although nice looking little animals, skunks have but few intimate friends.

Nightly a squad of skunks, old and young, large and small, used to gather around the refuse can of the camp. The word spread throughout skunkland that high living was to be obtained at the drill camp, and the colony that nightly gathered was assuming large proportions.

The clerk says that Mr. Bernes said that he counted 225 skunks gamboling in the moonlight. Shadows are illusive, and perhaps Mr. Barnes didn't count precisely that number. But at any rate there was enough in the bunch to make the inhabitants of the camp exceedingly nervous.

It was while seated on the porch of his cabin, enjoying the fragrant tobacco of his trusty briar, cogitating upon the problems that beset us mortals in this mundane sphere, and idly watching the movements of the advance couriers of the skunks, that Mr. Barnes hit upon the plan to exterminate the colony in one fell swoop.

The next night he proceeded to put his plan into execution.

He ran a wire into the refuse heap, attached a percussion cap to the wire and buried it well under the ashes and garbage. Then to the other end he placed a battery. The battery was placed near the place where Mr. Barns was accustomed to sit and watch the skunks in the shimmering moonlight. When all was ready Mr. Barnes chuckled and waited anxiously for the coming of evening.

Then he lighted his pipe and waited until the ranks of the invaders were swelled to fullness. Finally the psychological moment arrived. He pulled the lever that set the electric spark down toward the percussion cap and the carnage was on.

The mayor of Biwabik was asked to investigate the peculiar effects that followed an explosion that was heard one pleasant evening by the citizens of that little town. The odor permeated the country, but since the one great sacrifice, the dwellers in the drill camp have been troubled no more with nightly gambols of the little black and white animals.

THE WEATHER.

There was a touch of summer in the air this morning that was delightful to every sense. The sky was clear, though smoke from the brush fires that are calling for showers, made the atmosphere hazy. Last night's lowest temperature was 51 degs, and yesterday's highest was 59 degs. The weather man says it will be fair and cooler tonight, that it will grow cloudy Sunday, and that the wind will become easterly tonight, indicating possible showers for tomorrow night.

A year ago today it was clear, cool and fine.

The sun rose this morning at 4:29, and sets tonight at 7:28, making 14 hours and 49 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Low pressure areas overlie New England states, Wyoming and Northwestern Saskatchewan. These disturbances caused rain in the lake region, Ohio valley, North Atlantic states, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, Alberta and Oregon during Friday or last night. Rising pressures from Alberta southward to Arizona are attended by cooler weather, and falling pressures over Colorado, Texas, Lake Superior and New England are accompanied by warmer weather. The barometer is high over the Middle Missouri valley and Oregon. Conditions favor some cloudiness in this locality during Sunday, possibly followed by showers Sunday night."

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

The Prohibition Wave.

Any adequate estimate of the ethical awakening in recent months must take into consideration the growth of temperance sentiment and the expression of that sentiment at the polls. To the surprise of many good people, to the dismay of politicians of the baser sort, this tide of opposition to the legalized saloon has swept along from town to town, from city to city, from state to state until even those indifferent to the moral welfare of the community have been forced to take notice. The temperance cause, instead of being as it was not many years ago, a subject of jest, now commands popular respect. Instead of representing the devotion of a few good women here and there and of groups of children organized into bands of hope, the temperance movement has now laid firm hold of the masculine strength, the brains and the good sense of many a community. It has in some cases as the result of a skilfull organization and effective agitation, held the balance of power in congressional and gubernatorial elections. It has secured the brave championship of many a secular newspaper. Towns and cities which had hitherto been looked upon as given over to rum have, perhaps, for the first time in their corporate history voted to banish the saloon.

Nor is this popular uprising against the open bar confined to this America. One of the gravest questions facing the English ministry today is the wise restriction and proper control of the liquor traffic. Temperance sentiment, it is true, is not so far advanced on that side of the Atlantic as on this, but there is enough to make itself effectively felt in parliament, and it is increasing all the time.

Now encouraging and inspiring from many points of view as is this revival of temperance sentiment we must try to interpret it fairly. It does not mean that everyone is going to stop drinking or that if even everyone did the millenium would be in sight. It is possible it conceive of a community of total abstainers who would nevertheless be narrow, fanatical, impure, censorious, selfish. There are worse crimes than taking a glass of liquor or selling it. Nor is this awakening an effort primarily to deprive any man of what he looks upon as his right to drink or to legislate him into a godly, righteous and sober life.

In other words, the immediate objective in this campaign is the open, legalized, alluring saloon. It is against the business of making money through the debauching of others that the people are now protesting. To be sure, not every man who frequents a saloon is a drunkard, but it is not unkind and unfair to say that most of the money spent in saloons would far better go for shoes for little feet and clothing for little bodies, and a modest token of husbandly affection for the wife. Moreover, much of the money spent in saloons debases the spender of it.

Until the saloon can get rid of its accessories it can never rehabilitate itself in the eyes of the people. Why is it that profanity, obscurity and frequently gambling flourish in so many saloons? Is it not because the business itself is essentially bad, that it brings within its purview the lowest elements in the community? Where do the police look first for the criminals? What are the breeding places of crime? Where would you expect that your boy would degenerate most easily and most quickly?

This is why, with no malice in their hearts, either to the drinker or seller of intoxicating liquor, hundreds of thousands of persons have been casting in recent months their no votes. Many of them do it with the sincerest sympathy for the victims of the cup and sorry, too, that men with the mental capacity which some saloonkeepers possess cannot get a living without pandering to the depraved appetites of their fellow-men. But the business of retailing liquor under the sanction of the law has become such a menace to American life, such a nuisance in itself and in what it leads to, that the citizens have arisen in cohorts and have said "This kind of business which does not deserve to be called by the noble title of 'business' shall go no longer with our consent."

STANLEY AND DALZELL

By SAVOYARD.

(Copyright, 1908, by E. W. Newman.)

SOME three or four weeks ago the agricultural appropriation bill was under consideration in committee of the whole in the house of representatives, and on March 25, Mr. Stanley of Kentucky got the floor and proceeded to reply to a very able speech by Mr. Dalzell, some time earlier, in which the accomplished statesman from Pennsylvania undertook to contrast Alexander Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson, much to the disparagement of the latter, and much to the credit of the former.

Mr. Dalzell got his history of the New England school—the Harvard set—Henry Adams, Henry Cabot Lodge, Theodore Roosevelt, and so on, not to forget William E. Curtis and Edward S. Ellis, and it made the sedate thinker from Pittsburg, ordinarily so wary and so accurate, a very credulous person. We see the somewhat similar effect when the brilliant mind of Gertrude Atherton contemplates Hamilton and Jefferson through the same historic specs.

Owsley Stanley's reply to Dalzell was crushing and conclusive. He painted the two men, Hamilton and Jefferson, precisely as they were, and placed them precisely where authentic history will put them—the Virginian, the wisest of political philosophers; the West Indian the most brilliant of political adventurers. Many of Stanley's political friends tried to dissuade him from the encounter. They did ont know much about Hamilton and Jefferson, but they knew a deal of John Dalzell, whose conclusions they had never embraced, but whose statements of facts they had never challenged.

Stanley did not dare to enter the lists without being armed capaple, and he spent a week at almost ceaseless investigation, night and day. He searched fifty volumes, and drew from manuscripts in the national library and the state department. When fully prepared he could get but half an hour to deliver the speech, though he should have had at least two hours. When he began the Democrats were sanguine and the Republicans confused. Both were astonished. Never before in more than 100 years of history-making had the American congress seen the two great fathers of American politics as they were and as they will be estimated by the future Gibbon or Hume.

Alexander Hamilton was born a subject of the British crown, in the insignificant island of Nevis, in the West Indies. His father was a Scotchman and his mother a French woman. In his earliest youth he gave earnest of the splendid genius with which nature had endowed him. Ere he was 20 he was the first political controversialist in the colony of New York, whether with tongue or pen. His motto might have been:

"Why, then, the world's my oyster,
Which I with mind will open."

As a political writer he was greater than Paine, and little inferior to Burke. As an orator he was, perhaps, second to Henry only of all the revolutionary generation. Had he gone to London he would have been capable of filling a bigger place in English annals than the younger Pitt. Had he gone to France and escaped the Terror he might have been second to Napoleon Bonaparte alone, an honest Talleyrand, a more fortunate Massena.

Instead Hamilton came to America and assumed the role of Mampden. He opposed Lord North, not for the tax he levied so much as for the principle it involved. It was a little bit of a tax, a great piece of folly on the part of the ministry, though not oppressive; but, if allowed to be a precedent, it was in the power of the crown to make serfs of the colonists. Hamilton entered the army and became the secretary of the commander-in-chief and in the field was as daring as he was able in the forum. That arch-flatterer and matchless scoundrel, Talleyrand, declared that Hamilton was greater than Napoleon or Fox, which is all bosh; but Hamilton's eulogists are absurd enough to take what the unscrupulos French miscreant said for his real opinion. Well might the shade of Hamilton pray to be delivered from American history as she is writ.

Hamilton is actually held up as the father of the Constitution, when the one thing for which he had more contempt than for that instrument was the Articles of Confederation which it supplanted. As for patriotism—the real stuff, not the brand described by Walpole—Hamilton had none, and it was impossible for him to have any, having expatriated himself at the age of 16 years. The patriotism that springs from the heart and fills the soul is not a plant that can be carried from clime to clime. The patriot is made of the boy that plays around the spring, gambols in the orchard, reclines in the shade of trees in happy boyhood. It is "catching" in the school room as it is imparted from urchin to urchin, and it is all over and around the playground. Washington and Henry, Adams and Putnam, Rutledge and Marion, were patriots. So were old George Clinton and Philip Schuyler. These were—

"Native and to the manner born."

But Hamilton, an adventurer, was not, and could not be, moved by the sentiments that were naural to these men.

Hamilton made one great speech in the constitutional convention, and then he disappears, but the romancers—one of whom makes him a compound of Aristides, Cincinnatus and Scipio Africanus—say that Hamilton wrought more effectually for the Constitution in the background. True, his writings secured the adoption of the Constitution after Madison, Ellsworth, Sherman and company had made it, but it was not that he believd in the Constitution, or loved it; but that he thought it better than the Articles of Confederation because it lodged more power in the federal establishment.

As secretary of the treasury in Washington's cabinet, he was at his greatest. He had the gift of organization and he brought order out of chaos, but he had too much mental integrity, or mental pride, to pretend that the protective system was not a hardship on the people. And Mr. Stanley quoted from him some language that sounds marvelously Democratic on the tariff question.

Mr. Dalzell made this declaration:

"He is certainly a bold man who, in the face of history, contends today that the permanent policies which have entered into the statutes and character of our nation are not the policies dictated by Hamilton and his followers."

And to that Mr. Stanley retorted:

"Here my temerity may argue more than my judgment, but I deny it. There never was a deduction more absolutely unfounded, hurled defiantly into the teeth of history.

"What were the policies of Alexander Hamilton?

"He would have had a president for life—he is elected every four years.

"He would have senators during good behavior—they serve a fixed and definite term of six years.

"He would have the executive armed with an absolute veto—you can by two-thirds majority annul that veto.

"He would have muzzled free speech—Jefferson opened the deliberations of this house to the naked view and candid criticism of a free and untrammeled press.

"He defended the allen and sedition laws—they are repealed.

"He founded a national bank—It is demolished.

"All his cherished and vaunted schemes are 'gone glimmering in the dream of things that were,' exploded fallacies, they litter the debris of history.

"I challenge the gentleman from Pennsylvania to give me one single solitary policy of Hamilton which was ever crystallized into law that lived. His policies are gone, his followers are dead. There are only left his apologists and his eulogists."

If Jefferson had not come back from France when he did it is more than possible that the colonies would have sought the protection of England, and that would have resulted in a return of allegiance to the British flag. When the French revolution came it was hailed with approval by the best of the intellectual world, including Edmund Burke, Charles James Fox, Thomas Jefferson and Thomas Paine. It was the revolt of liberty against despotism, the long-delayed triumph of light over darkness; but in the compensations of human affairs the atrocities of the Terror were commensurate with the centuries of enormities that privilege had perpetrated in France, and there was a revulsion of public opinion. Even Burke became the most formidable of all the adversaries of the revolution he had applauded, Hamilton agreed with Burke, and so did a far greater than Hamilton—even George Washington.

There was actual war between France and the United States, and numerous battles fought on the water between the two powers. Washington was again appointed commander-in-chief, and chose Hamilton as his chief lieutenant. England and France were in a death grapple. Had war been declared and waged for a year it is morrally certain that British rule would have been re-established in our country. Jefferson prevented that war, and by that act he saved the Union.

Mr. Dalzell had the temerity to challenge the conduct of Jefferson in the acquisition of Louisiana, and asserted that the thing was accomplished in spite of Jefferson. And now it was that the Lord delivered the accomplished Pennsylvanian into the hands of the brilliant Kentuckian. Stephen A. Douglas, in reply to Seward, did not tower above his adversary more gigantically than did Stanley over Dalzell. It was this part of the speech that showed what a genius for research is possessed by the gifted orator from the Second Kentucky district. It is too long to quote. One must read it entirely to get a proper conception of it. It is not at all remarkable that Mr. Dalzell was content to allow that the debate is a closed incident. Every intelligent onlooker in our political Vienna should read Dalzell's speech, and then read Stanley's reply.

When Stanley came to discuss the duel between Burr and Hamilton, he put an entirely new phase on the controversy. Hamilton was a believer in the code. He was on the field as Laurens' second in the duel with Gen. Charles Lee. He sought a quarrel with John Adams that could have been settled, according to his ideas of personal honor, only on the field. He challenged James Monroe, and would have fought him if Aaron Burr had not lent his good offices and composed the differences without a hostile meeting. On the field of Weehawken, he delayed the giving of the "word" till he could wipe his glasses to make his vision clearer, and yet we are told that his intention was to fire in the air. For years he had assailed Burr, and for years Burr held his peace. Hamilton's eulogists tell us that he accepted Burr's call to the field because the standards of those days made it imperative that he should do so. To that Stanley made this inexorable retort:

"I agree that we should not judge the duellist of that day by the standard of this. But there is no logic by which you can pardon the acceptor of a challenge and condemn the sender. By that barbarous code he who was charged with an infamous offense could not clear his skirts by proving his falsity. To prove the charge false, and fail to resent it, was to aggravate the imputation of cowardice, in that day more odious than vice or crime. The same perverted public opinion which necessitated the acceptance forced the sending of a challenge."

Could a retort be more conclusive? If Hamilton was a martyr of the barbarous code when he accepted, it necessarily follows that Burr was also a martyr when it required him to send the challenge.

If there is a weakness in Stanley's speech, it is not in the facts he presents or the argument he constructs, but in the exuberance of his language. He is embarrassed with the riches of his vocabulary. John Marshall, the great judge, and Samuel J. Tilden, the great statesman, were necessitated to grope in the dark for words, and they gathered the simplest. Daniel Webster and John G. Carlisle did not have to grope for speech, but they chose from a multitude of words the simplest, and that is why their speeches are so massive and so convincing. I think it the duty of every parent to require his brigat boy to read, re-read, and read again to the dozenth time, or more, "Robinson Crusoe" and the "Pilgrim's Progress' to acquire a simplicity of expression. Swift is another author that should be thus cultivated, and also King James' translation of the Bible.

But those fond of the brilliant, the ornate, the exuberant, the splendid, can find it in these passages with which Stanley closed his speech:

"For centuries neither the telescope of the astronomer nor the researches of science could solve the mystery of that misty light, that glimmering gossamer encircling the black brow of night; at last the spectrum revealed in this nebula unborn worlds, held in a shimmering gauze; revolving masses of incandescent gas, cooling through the passing cycles of time, growing denser without, shrinking within, forming smoky concentric circles, a whirling luminous fog, congealing into molten rings drawn by their own gravity into rude globes, and these spinning spheres shaped by the plastic hand of Divinity, like clay upon a potter's wheel, into planets and their satellites, new solar systems, swinging for the first time into their orbits in the trackless, fathomless depths above. Thus God peoples the heavens' luminous worlds.

"I have fancied that those daring bands of exiles, forgotten by one world and lost in the dark wilds of another, living and dying in ignorance of the mighty destiny of their children's children, conscious only that they were free—have convicted that He, 'with whom a thousand years are as a day or a watch in the night when it is passed,' saw the unborn and puissant nation through all the mists of misery, persecution and death, through which succeeding generations passed, first to independence, then to the mastery of the land and sea.

"In the vast womb of the wilderness the colonies took form and voice, varying in their orbits and splendor, but they differed only 'as one star differs from another star in glory.' In the hour of destiny each found its own place about the great central power, to which, like the planets, they were eternally bound, yo forever separate. The fathers, I declare to you, heard the voice of God when they covered this continent with states, even as the heavens are bespangled with the stars.

"The same peril awaits the star and the state. The state dissevered from her sisters is lost, even as a planet wrenched from its moorings, comet-like, becomes the wandering vagrant of the skies.

"Either, drawn by the compelling gravity of a central force into its mighty vortex, is annihilated by the power which should have been the source of light and life.

"From the chaos of disunion and the wreck of centralization may He who ordained long preserve this constellation of states.

"Let no new Hamilton arise to disturb or destroy their exquisite balance—harmonious, distinct, indissoluble, they shall remain eternal as the revolving stars."

For years and years the dogmatism of Hamilton's eulogists has dominated American public thought. I only wish that Owsley Stanley would take time to elaborate this splendid speech of his and offer it to some leading magazine. It would carry confusion into every Hamilton camp, and shake the walls of Harvard college themselves.

REMARKABLE ADDRESS BY JUDGE CANT BEFORE THE MINISTERS ATTRACTED WIDESPREAD INTEREST

This Country Has an Appalling Record for Crime.

St. Louis County Has Nearly Half as Many Murders as London.

Some of the Causes for This Unenviable Reputation.

JUDGE W. A. CANT.

The address of Judge Cant delivered before the meeting of the Duluth Ministerial association last Monday, attracted so much attention and favorable comment, that the association requested The Herald to publish the paper in full. Owing to its length, this could not be done Monday evening, but it is given in full this evening, as delivered by Judge Cant, and is recommended for careful perusal, by every minister who heard it.

It follows:

"At the outset, and without the burden of detailed statistics, we may assume, what is well established, that, as compared with any and all other civilized nations, the United States has the notoriety of an appalling record for crime. No other such nation even approaches us in the number and character of serious crimes in proportion to the population, and especially is this true as regards the most serious of all—that of homicide in its various forms. By way of comparison it may be said that in New England homicides are more than ten times as numerous in proportion to the population as they are in London, and that this bad eminence is maintained throughout the country in varying degrees. In California the homicides are seventy-five times as numerous in proportion to population as in London.

Life Cheap Here.

This county of St. Louis, during the past year, with perhaps 150,000 people, has had roughly speaking, nearly half as many homicides as London, with 6,000,000 people; that is, we are about twenty times as lawless in this respect as they. A citizen stands about twenty chances of being killed intentionally by violence in this county as against one chance which he would stand if he were a resident of London. In like manner, a number of those who are guilty of these crimes who are pursued, apprehended and punished is in this country very small, while in Great Britain and the other European countries the offenders are vigorously pursued and speedily punished.

This extraordinary record is especially significant when we consider that we are the followers of English traditions and of English laws, and becomes the more marked when we make comparison of the conditions here with those in other countries having the same ancestry in these respects as ourselves, for, while with us the record is as indicated, across the line in the Dominion of Canada lawlessness is held in comparatively perfect control, and crime, when committed, is promptly and vigorously punished.

What Is the Cause?

"Such being the conditions, a question of great interest and importance is, 'What are the underlying and producing causes of this, our extraordinary propensity to commit crime?

"The trouble is no doubt widespread and affects our national character as a people, so far as that character has been formed and established. If the outbursts of crime were local or during a limited period, specific and temporary causes not affecting our national character might doubtless be discovered and assigned; but for a long series of years our era of crime has continued and during nearly all of that time our propensity therefor has seemed to increase.

"But to say that our national character is at fault is an imperfect explanation of this prevalent tendency now under consideration. What causes have conspired to form such character? What has given our people the impress of those characteristics which permits so large a number, comparatively, to lapse into crime?

"A point of importance to be noticed is this: It is not that we have a large criminal population, so-called—we probably have not. It is probably the multitude of occasional or fugitive crimes committed by those not strictly of the criminal classes which makes our aggregate so enormous. That is, we have an excessive number of those who are of weakened or of unsound moral fiber. They go on unthinkingly and not recognizing restraint. They are morally shiftless; they are always near the point of breaking away. Finally conditions arise where opportunity and inclination coincide, the breaking away occurs and a crime more or less serious is committed.

"The causes before referred to are, no doubt, many in number. They must, of course, be such as are peculiar to this country or such as are specially intensified therein. First, we are a most heterogeneous people in process of assimilation, but with that process hardly well begun. We are of different training and with different and sometimes conflicting standards and ideals. All are thrown together in social, in business and in public life. Of necessity there must be yielding and compromising from the first. This relates to moral questions as well as to those of expediency or judgment. The best ideas suffer some sacrifice and lower standards are recognized. For example, as jurors, not only do men of different training and standards employ different tests and conclude differently as respects the credibility of witnesses, but their views differ widely according to their training as respects the substantive features of the case. What is regarded as provocation by one is regarded as failing far short of it by another; what seems justifiable in self-defense to one is deemed wholly insufficient for that purpose by another. The result is, sometimes through compromises, a verdict which is a discredit to all. These difficulties exist to some extent in what we call a homogenous people; they are intensified when birth, training and standards differ.

Shifting Population.

"Again: Throughout the country we have a large shifting population removed from the near influence of any family ties. Great extent of territory, unity of language and unusual facilities for communication and transportation favor the existence of such conditions here beyond any other country in the world. Many of these people are from foreign lands, many are native born; they rarely remain long enough in one place to acquire the asset of a good name; they have nothing of that kind to guard; there are no friends to wound when they go wrong; the sense of being afloat and adrift soon takes possession of them; personal pride vanishes; a state of semi-vagabondage soon follows, and, when the opportunity arrives, we have crime.

"Another cause which has produced grievous results through a long period of years has been the harmful interpretation so constantly given throughout the land to the sentiment of liberty, rightly guarded with such jealous concern in the early history of our country. What was then one of our chief virtues is in danger through perversion of contributing to our ruin. The early theory of our government and of its founders was that under the law a generous measure of liberty was accorded to the individual. He was at liberty to worship God as he pleased, or not to worship him at all; at liberty to bear arms; at liberty to assemble with others and to petition the government for a redress of grievances; at liberty freely to speak and write his views respecting either matters of governmental or of purely private interest; at liberty to participate freely in the functions of government and to make his personality known and felt no matter how humble he might be. With respect to those and many other matters he was given by the law a large measure of freedom, and it was ardently hoped and believed that the extension of such privileges would strengthen the individual and tend to develop a noble citizenship. But the popular interpretation, and that often seized and enlarged upon with avidity, is not a liberty under or in accordance with or guaranteed by the law, but a new and wild creation regardless of all law and conferring such rights, which are usually wrongs, as the rapacity or ambition or passion of the particular individual may seem to require; it is the liberty of selfishness unrestrained, with the added iniquity of each being his own judge; it takes no account of the rights of others and is understood as conferring freedom of action until the action be overcome by superior force. A man entertaining such views easily becomes a willful and sometimes a dangerous citizen. Any man is incipiently dangerous who fails in a due regard for the rights of others.

Contempt for Law.

"Another contributing cause is the widespread contempt for authority and disregard for law. This, evidently, in many cases, begins in the home, and recruits from that station, surcharged with such error, are found at every turn. In some homes, for various reasons, there are few or no rules and little or no restraint. In some this may do; in others it will not. In the latter the child strays in proportion and to the extent of his natural wilfulness. There is impressed upon him no higher law than that of his own desire; and, untaught in respect to the rights of others, he becomes in time a tyrant in proportion to his opportunity and power. It is another aspect of the false views concerning liberty. Authority is necessary in even the smallest organization. Such children, as they grow up, chafe under the imposition of the reasonable restraints they meet; they resent the aupthority of the police officer who interferes with their depredations; they resent the authority of the teacher who seeks to introduce system into their work, yielding to a superior will; as they grow older, they resent the application of laws which may interfere with the indulgence of their proclivities for drinking or gambling or other forms of vice primarily injurious to themselves; later they grow furious when authority is discovered and invoked to prevent the execution of their schemes for overreaching and plundering others. We have examples on every side, among both small and great. The thought seems to be that the exercise of authority is to be promptly resented; that in this land of equality and liberty, no one has a right to prescribe rules for another, and that each is in reality a law unto himself.

"In explication of this we have instances of petty abuse really agravated in character and acts of vandalism on many sides; we have school children in a nearby city walking out in a body and refusing to attend school because of some grievance, fancied or real. If the grievance was real, that was not the way to effect a remedy, and the insubordination involved in the demonstration of their ill-will was unfortunate to every participant. We have the incident of the man at Cameron Dam, Wisconsin, for a long time defying public authority, receiving some measure of applause from the press and mentioned in the same connection as a possible candidate for an important public office in his county.

Laws Winked at.

"One of the most flagrant examples of this disregard for law, and most flaunted before the eyes and forced upon the attention of the public, has been found in the attitude of many of the executive officers of our cities and villages with respect to the enforcement of laws governing the sales of intoxicating liquors, gambling, and other matters affecting the morals and welfare of the people. They have often seen fit, at will, to suspend the operation of such laws within their respective jurisdictions, with the result that in the face of the entire public a small army of men are constantly violating the law in matters affecting the welfare and happiness of thousands, and this with the sanction of officers whose sworn duty it is to see that such laws are upheld and enforced. The plea in justification is not that any mistake has been made in the law or that the prohibited practices are really beneficial rather than harmful and vicious; in respect to most of them there is not room for dispute; they are confessedly evil and only evil; but the plea is that the people love evil rather than good; that the officers are acting in accordance with what they believe to be prevailing local sentiment on the questions involved. This is an offensive underestimate of public sentiment. Put such questions to the people in simple form, not complicated with other issues, and they will stand for what is right. A noisy and demonstrative few who are the chief exponents of our natural failings would not. They are those who have false ideas of liberty, who are without respect for law, who are without regard to the rights of others, who are chiefly influenced by the causes now under consideration, who create false impressions at home, and who by their example hold us up in a false light before the world. The plea is wholly without merit. The law in these respects is not a local one; it is a state law. The question is not a local one; it is at least state-wide. Whatever the situation in a particular community, the state as a whole has a fixed and wholesome sentiment respecting the large questions which affect the public welfare. That sentiment is expressed in its laws. As against such laws no community upon any false notion of liberty or home rule, may crave the privilege of despoiling its own citizenship. Such community is a part of the state, is under its protection and is the recipient of its aid. The state as a whole has an interest in the welfaro of the people of such locality, has an interest in protecting the weak, an interest in fostering good morals and a direct financial interest in the prevention of crime therein. These laws of the states are for the protection of its people. There is no citizen, be he high or low and in whatever community he may be, but has a right to the enforcement of such laws and to the protection which they are designed to afford, and no community may arrogate to itself the power to exclude the larger public interest and to tyrannize over such citizen by withdrawing from him the rights which are guaranteed to him by the state.

Oaths Violated.

"In this connection also the public is sometimes favored with an exhibition of so-called leading citizens claiming to represent certain alleged business interests in their efforts to induce public officers to violate their oaths and break the laws. These efforts are more to be condemned than the action of the official. These men who make them—these accessories both before and after the fact—sometimes by misrepresentation and sometimes by over-persuasion or threats, break down the will of an otherwise good official. Legitimate business interests are, of course, benefitted by the enforcement and not by the violation of the laws; in the long run it can never be otherwise. Yet all these unfortunate incidents occur, the public looking on, and no one can doubt their effect upon the public mind and conscience.

"There are many other classes of cases involving open and flagrant violations of law and therefore disregard thereof. In all the Western section of our country we have the baneful effects which have come from the administration of the public land laws. Until very recent years perjury and fraund may almost be said to have been encouraged. They were certainly lavishly indulged in ways that were notorious before all the people, and with the effect unquestionably of weakening the public consdence. In this respect the condition in recent years has been much improved.

Violent Strikes.

"Strikes in all sections of the country have been attended with violence of an especially aggravated character. They have served to familiarize the public mind with a form of law-breaking unusually virulent and harmful, for the malefactors in such cases were not compelled by hunger, or tempted by gain, or led on by reckless adventure, or justfied in self defense; they were usually incited by anger and in most cases committed these wanton acts in a spirit of pure revenge. In this same connection one of the most cowardly and demoralizing spectacles has been the impotence of public officials who equally should protect strikers and their sympathizers in the exercise of every right and at the same time should throttle the display of violence at its very inception.

"Throughout the country from time to time we have had scandalous local government of our cities, with frequent and at times almost constant and notorious bribery and corruption. Knowledge of such matters upon permeates the whole community, and, if long continued, the impression becomes more or less fixed that such is a normal and not an aggravated condition of affairs.

"High" Finance.

"From time immemorial in this country we have had manipulations equivalent to rank dishonesty in matters of high finance. The successful execution of schemes designed to plunder innocent people has times without number amounted to keen oppression and brought disaster to thousands. The disreputable tactics employed have been publicly exposed with reference to certain railroads, street railways, insurance companies, trust companies and other agencies, but the demonstration arising from daily observation and experience was long ago sufficient to produce in the public mind the conviction that there was much to condemn and to foster a spirit of indignation that such things could be, and the perpetrators remain at large, while those who committed the occasional and sometimes trivial crime were severely punished. Such conditions constitute the most indulgent parent which anarchy could have.

Human Blood Cheap.

"Passing from an enumeration of examples involving disregard for law to a consideration of other causes affecting our national character, it may be said that everywhere throughout the country we cheapen flesh and blood. With the railroads we slaughter and maim men at grade crossings; we slaughter and maim them by means of collisions and broken rails and open switches and defective bridges; we slaughter and maim a large number in other ways, one by one and day by day, among the operatives of such roads; we slaughter them in great numbers in various other industrial operations of the country, and we kill and main them generously at our sports, in hunting and in football, and even hazing at colleges is not satisfied without an occasional victim. These incidents, or some of them, occur many times each day and are heralded throughout the country by means of the daily press. They range all the way from pure accident through the various degrees of negligence up to almost criminal homicide, and through them the public comes to concern itself but little with so common an incident as the loss of life and prefers not to scrutinize with any serious detail the surrounding circumstances.

Religious Ties Loosened.

"The loosening of religious ties has played havoc with the moral strength of many. Every period is a transition period, and that of the last generation was perhaps more so than any other. Religious views are changing, broadening, clarifying. Revelation is recognized as continuous, but the process of readjustment proves too much for many minds. Their old religion goes and nothing steps in to take its place, and with their religion too often go their principles also. The changes involved in coming to this country from a foreign land and plunging into new activities and among new associates, conduces, among certain classes, to an abandonment of the old faiths and to entailing the dangers usually connected therewith. A deep, religious faith throughout a community or state is a strong preventive of crime. Disregard for ecclesiastical authority and teaching portends disaster for any people.

Rich Men Escape.

"Passing to the consideration of another important element, it is said that those of a criminal tendency in this country in conttemplation of serious crime are justified by past experience in believing that with the aid of a generous supply of funds the chances of their ever being such punishment may be long delayed. Those accused of the less serious crimes and those without means are promptly punished. The contrast fosters anarchy and disrespect for law. These statements are not borne out by our experience locally but are quite true as applied to the country at large. The trouble is at least four-fold; first, with the laws; second, with the courts; third, with the bar; fourth, with the juries and the people.

"The laws go a great length, not alone in securing a fair trial, but far beyond that, in giving substantial advantages to the person accused. He is given a long start in advance, and various obstacles are thrown in the way of his being successfully pursued. He is presumed innocent. He may not be found guilty until his guilt is established beyond a reasonable doubt. He may not be compelled to give evidence against himself. He is provided with counsel, and his witnesses are subpoenaed—all at the expense of the state. All these are wholesome provisions and should never be infringed; but, beyond these, if a defendant fails to take the stand in his own behalf, and therefore keeps himself beyond the reach of cross-examination—a very significant fact—neither the court nor the county attorney may so much as even refer to it in their remarks to the jury, and if they should inadvertently do so, defendant, should he be convicted, would be entitled to a new trial. Defendant is also given a greater number of peremptory challenges than the state. In capital cases he is entitled to twice the number allowed the state. In this state he has the closing address to the jury, and most important of all, if he is once acquitted by the verdict of a jury, no matter how great nor how palpable the errors contributing thereto—whether of fact by a witness or of law by the court— those errors can never be corrected, as far as that case is concerned, and the defendant can never again be called upon to stand another trial.

"There are many other provisions—some merely guarding the rights of an accused person with great care, and others seeming to go somewhat further. The impression one receives from a study of such laws is that some of them might have been framed by men who themselves expected shortly to be prosecuted from crimes of which they really were guilty, and that these laws are precautionary measures in their own behalf. On the contrary, they were in fact framed by right-minded, but zealous men, who, in some particulars, enforced their ideas founded upon ancient fears perhaps too far. Innocence cries out for no peculiar advantages, no immunities, no exemptions. All it wants or needs is a fair trial; every person accused of crime is, at the outset, presumed innocent, and, however, guilty in fact, must be given all the advantages which the most innocent could fairly require. Whatever goes substantially beyond this may be considered as possible defects in the law itself, which play their part in the defective administration which has been referred to.

Courts Criticised.

"The courts have been criticized for much of the fault in connection with the precautions for crimes. Some of this has been self-imposed criticism by the judges themselves and much of it has been fully deserved. But the fault is not with the courts alone, but with the laws, the courts, the bar and the public, as before stated. The courts are themselves fettered by the law and are not at all times free to accomplish what they should. Trial judges should be charged

CLUBS AND MUSICAL

The May Festival.

Monday evening, May 18, the May festival attraction will be the performance of Sullivan's "Golden Legend." In view of the importance of this rendition, the "argument" of the work is here given as an aid to those attending the concert.

Prince Henry of Hoheneck, lying sick in body and mind at his castle of Vautsberg, on the Rhine, has consulted the famous physicians of Salerno, and learned that he can be cured only by the blood of a maiden who shall, of her own free will, consent to die for his sake. Regarding the remedy as impossible, the prince gives way to despair, when he is visited by Lucifer, disguised as a traveling physician. The fiend tempts him with alcohol, to the fascination of which he ultimately yields in such measure as to be deprived of place and power, and driven forth as an outcast.

Prince Henry finds shelter in the cottage of one of his vassals, whose daughter, Elsie, moved by great compassion for his fate, resolves to sacrifice her life that he might be restored. The prayers of her mother, Ursula, are of no avail to turn her from her purpose, and in due time Prince Henry, Elsie and their attendants set out for Salerno. On their way they encounter a band of pilgrims, with whom is Lucifer, in the garb of a friar. He also is journeying to Salerno.

On reaching their destination, Prince Henry and Elsie are received by Lucifer, who had assumed the form of Friar Angelo, a doctor of the medical school. Elsie persists in her resolve to die, despite the opposition of the prince, who now declares that he intended to do no more than test her constancy. Lucifer draws Elsie into an inner chamber, but the prince and attendants, breaking down the door, rescue her at the last moment.

Miraculously healed, Prince Henry marries the devoted maiden, and is restored to his rightful place.

The cantata is divided into six scenes to illustrate the foregoing story. In the prologue the defeat of Lucifer is foreshadowed by an impotent attempt to wreck the cathedral of Strasburg. In the epilogue the beneficent devotion of Elsie is compared to the course of a mountain brook, which cools and fertilizes the arid plain.

In this work Miss Sybil Sammis sings the part of Elsie; Madame Linne, Ursula; Mr. Towne, Prince Henry, and Dr. Schussler, Lucifer.

The argument of Olaf Trygvasson is thoroughly Norwegian. Olaf Trygvasson, a descendant of Harold Haarfager (the first king of Norway) was brought up at the court of Gardarike (Russia) and was baptized in England while on a Viking raid. When he learned that Norway was dissatisfied with her king (a scion of an older branch of the same race) he resolved upon conquering the kingdom and converting the people to Christianity. Richly endowed by nature, the superior of all his contemporaries in bodily and spiritual gifts, and so comely to behold that none had seen his like, he was revered in the middle ages as the noblest example of the race. He conquered more by his personality than by his sword. He commenced his struggle in the Drontheim district and the beginning of this conflict is depicted in the scenes of the drama as set to music by the late Edward Grieg, Norway's greatest composer.

Madame Ragna Linne has been specially engaged to sing the great "Volva" part in this work. The other soloist will be Dr. Schussler. The work was included in the May festival in memory of Grieg, who died last fall.

GYMNASTIC DANCING, A SENSIBLE FAD

Everyone has heard of it. Does every one know the answer? Why is the gymnastic dance? A society fad? Perhaps. But society often takes to a sane whim and this is one. Besides it is monopolized by no particular social set and certainly excluded by none.

In brief, gymnastic dancing is the systematic practice of fancy dance steps for the exercise and development of neglected muscles, thus giving a new and wide use to the clog, fling, buck and wing, skirt dance and a score of others that were formerly considered mere stage accomplishments. And it does the work, too. Just as it develops grace, vigor and health in a growing child, it wakes up the torpid livers and loosens the stiffening joints of his parents.

There are 527 muscles in the human body and when one's hair is turning gray he is apt to lose track of most of them except when the weather changes and then each one is numbered to him with a rheumatic twinge. And again, if (Remember that IF, because if you are a woman no one says you are) —If you are showing just a shade too much plumpness, especially around the hips, something really should be done, and the prescription is gymnastic dancing, taken ad lib.

Seems a frivolous occupation for gray hairs, doesn't it? Yet some of the gray haired ones—men, of course—can doubtless remember when the mighty John L. Sullivan, then champion of the world, was training for one of the important events of career. Having just been through a rather reckless course of living he found himself "fat and scant of breath" and his trainer forthwith put him at the childish pasttime of skipping the rope. It was a success, that foolish little exercise and the trainer, William Muldoon, who adapted it to such use, has since put in his time at his own health resort, restoring jaded statesmen and millionaires.

Of course, many reactionary utilitarians will say "save your car fare, pump a buck saw or do a genuflection over the wash tub and it will do you more good than a hornpipe." But it won't. It will be work and, no matter how useful and productive, work is never as exhilirating as play involving the same physical exertion. In learning and practising dance steps the interest is aroused and the mind put in condition to work in harmony with the muscles, the whole body responds to the exercise and receives the greatest possible benefit. Then, again, it is rythmic. Rythm to music will ward off fatigue and add immeasurably to physical endurance. This is no new discovery. The military band has been used for that purpose for no one knows how long, and ages before barbaric soldiers prolonged their forced marches to the beating of tom-toms and twanging of bow strings.

It is a good and sensible fad and it has come to stay. On with the gymnastic dance!

TO DEFEND ITS TITLE

Will Meet Crack Teams of State Knights of Pythias.

The grand lodge, Knights of Pythias of Minnesota will convene in Minneapolis, May 12, 13 and 14, and all three of the local lodges of the order will be represnted by delegations. The local team won the championship of the Northwest in its exemplification of work in the third rank in a big contest held at the Lyceum about three years ago and to the presnt time its claim to the title has never been questioned. ANNIE JAMES.

WHEN JAKEY CAUGHT THE GHOSTS. BY MAUD WALKER.

A long, long time ago, when people still believed in witches and ghosts, there lived in a beautiful country a youth named Jakey Robins and his aged grandmother, Dame Robins. These two dwelt alone several miles from the village, and their land was very rich. The fertile acres had belonged to Jakey's father, who had left them to his son and old mother with the wish that they never dispose of the land while they lived. And as the boy and old woman were thrifty folk they improved the fertile soil till the entire farm blossomed and yielded forth riches. They had a comfortable though unpretentious house of undressed stone, and everywhere about them smiled peace and plenty. And so, when this story opens, Jakey and Dame Robins were as happy as it ever falls to the lot of human beings to be.

In the same neighborhood was a pretty lassie, Mary Downs, and she and Jakey were betrothed, intending to be married as soon as Jakey should reach his majority. The parents of Mary and the grandmother of Jakey were much pleased at the prospect of the union of the young people, for Jakey was known to be as honorable and thrifty a lad as one could find in all the world, and no fairer or sweeter maiden trod the earth than pretty Mary Downs.

In the same neighborhood there also dwelt a man of envious and grasping disposition, coveting the land of his neighbors and doing all in his power to get possession of it. He had an only son who had inherited his ugly characteristics, and who endeavored to place himself well in the esteem of pretty Mary Downs. But Mary, with the wisdom of an older head, had turned only cold glances on the foppish fellow, by name Daniel Troope.

And so it may be seen at a glance that Daniel Troope and his father had no good feelings toward the more successful Jakey Robins, and had been making him offers for his land.

"This place belongs to Granny and me," Jakey would say, "and it is not for sale." But still did the Troopes, senior and junior, press him, wishing very much to get him out of the county, thinking that by so doing they could break the engagement between him and Mary and induce the latter to receive the attentions of Daniel in the place of the departed lover.

A MAN APPEARED UPON THE SCENE.

Oliver Moore

Now, as was said in the beginning of this story, the people of that day still believed in witches and ghosts—that is, a great many of them did. And among the superstitions was poor old Dame Robins. In vain did her intelligent grandson argue the point with her, trying to clear her mind of such a benighted belief, explaining that so long as she had never seen either witch or ghost—or had had proven to her the existence of such—she should not so blindly believe in them. But the old granny would shake her head, saying credulously: "But there're witches and ghosts, son. There have always been such, and there will always be such. They are evil spirits come to injure us."

And as Jakey was the only person in the neighborhood who dared to boldly refute the superstitious teachings which had held good for so many centuries his arguments against the existence of witches and ghosts had little weight with the old dame.

One evening when Jakey returned from the village, where he had spent the day on business, he found his aged grandmother in a state of great excitement. She ran to the gate to meet him, crying out:

"Son, I've seen a ghost! I've seen a ghost!"

Jakey went into the house, where he found everything in confusion. His grandmother had barricaded the windows and back door, fortifying the place against the evil spirits, evidently. The front door was locked by the key which the old woman carried in her hand, having fastened the door on going to the gate to meet her grandson. There was no fire on the kitchen hearth, and no supper in course of preparation. The old woman had forgotten the time of day in her fright.

It took sometime for Jakey to quiet the old dame and get get a coherent story from her about the exciting incident of the day. At last, with the windows all open to admit the pleasant spring air and brilliant moonlight, and a cheerful fire glowing on the hearth, Jakey, sitting on the corner settle beside his granny, induced her to lose all fear and to talk rationally.

"Well, son, it's this way," began Dame Robins. "Soon after you left home this morning I went to the garden to work among the vegetable beds that are growing so nicely. Well, while I was bout over the onions, pulling the weeds and thinking of yours and Mary's coming marriage, and how fine a couple you'd be, I heard a noise in the hedge back of the pig sty. I looked up and saw something white moving back of the green bushes, and I called out: 'Who goes there?' And what do you think I heard? Nothing but a low wail that curdled my blood. Then the white thing waved long arms and disappeared."

Jakey tried to reassure his grandmother, saying: "Well, if it was a ghost it will return. Then I'll get a look at it. But, Granny, let's have some supper. I'm empty to my boots."

In less than a week's time the story of the ghost spread over the county. It was told that the Robins' farm was haunted. Daniel Troope declared that he was passing the Robins' farm at the hour of the alleged ghost's appearance and had with his own eyes seen the apparition. "It was flying along behind the hedge, moaning loudly," said Daniel. And so the story of the ghost came to be believed by the community, and the people from far and near came to ask questions about Dame Robins' ghost. And that poor old lady grew pale and trembling, looking into corners and behind the hedge at every turn, expecting to see the white thing there waving its arms and moaning.

"Let's sell out and go away," begged the old dame of Jakey one day. "I cannot live here since seeing that ghost. I can't work in the garden and I tremble every time I go near the henroop. Let's go away, son."

"Now, Granny," pleaded Jakey, "this dear old home is all that we have in the world, and if we sell it we'll not find another place so much to our liking. And after Mary and I are married her farm and ours will join. Could anything be pleasanter? As for that ghost—well, dear Granny, let's wait till it comes again. Then is time enough to talk of selling."

But that same evening came old man Troope and his son, Daniel. Again they offered to buy the farm, saying, "Of course, we wouldn't think of living here, since the place has become haunted, but we'd till the soil and turn the house into a cow stable. As it's close to our own farm we'd have no trouble taking care of both places. But—of course, we couldn't pay as much as we offered you last fall, for since then the value of the place has decreased somewhat owing to its being haunted."

Jakey smiled. "Well," he said, "I'm not afraid of ghosts. And this place isn't haunted, either. I'll risk my chances on that. As for Granny—well, she's old and superstitious, and believes many things that she wouldn't tolerate at all if she were younger and had clearer vision."

"Do you mean to say that she didn't see a ghost?" asked Daniel. "Why, I was coming along the road back of your house that afternoon and saw the thing myself. It frightened my horse till he jumped."

"Well, I shall have to see the ghost before I believe in it," smiled Jakey. "And till I see one, this place is not for sale."

The Troopes went away, rather cut up over the way Jakey had talked to them about the ghost. And they held very interested conversation on their way homeward, understanding each other thoroughly.

That same night, and while Jakey and his grandmother slept, they were roused by a strange noise proceeding from the corner of the house. It sounded like a human wail. Jakey leaped from his bed and ran to his grandmother's room, calming her by saying, "Be very quiet, Granny, for I have a scheme in mind to catch the ghosts."

"Catch the ghost!" stammered the old woman, whose teeth were chattering with fear.

"Be calm and listen, Granny," whispered Jakey. "Don't you notice how anxious the Troopes are to get hold of our property? Well, put two and two together, Granny, and you've got four. Well, these Troopes know how strong your faith in ghosts is, and they are playing tricks to scare us from our dear old home. I hadn't any idea they would be bold enough to come here while I was at home, but evidently they are outside the house right now trying to frighten us with their ghostlike noises."

"But, son," shivered the old dame, "suppose it really is a ghost!"

"That must be proven, Granny. And to do this you must act just as I say. Now, when you hear that noise again just go to the door and call to me as loudly as you can, crying out: 'Oh, Jakey, come home, come home to your old Granny! The ghost is here! Oh, why did you go to the taffy-pulling at Brown's tonight and leave me alone! Oh, Jakey, when will you come home?' You see, I want them to think I'm away from the house. Then, being emboldened by my absence, they will hang around frightening you to their heart's content, knowing that to make you afraid they'll gain their point, for they know that I would move away from here were the place really and truly haunted, and you afraid of your shadow. But I'll prove to you tonight, Granny, that your ghost is a very live one, and a very mean one to boot."

Hardly had he spoken when the moaning came again right at the side of the door. Old Granny, trembling in every limb and praying for protection, hobbled to the door and did as Jakey had instructed her. But it was a weak, feeble call she made, one which assured the ears of the ghosts, for they raised their moans—there seemed to be two of them—to a regular screech, crying in a murderous voice. "All who live here will be haunted to the end of their days. We, the ghosts, will haunt them." While this was going on Jakey had crept out of the house by the back door, and had slipped round to the front, espying two white-clad figures close to the gate, wailing and waving their arms. As quick as a flash he had leaped upon them before they were aware of his coming, and had grappled with the taller of the two. He found the ghost a very strong one, for it struck him several blows, while the second ghost came to its assistance. But at this point the gate opened and a man appeared on the scene. He seemed surprised at the strange sight, and stood for a moment aghast.

"Ah, it's Mr. Downs!" cried Jakey, hailing the newcomer. "Here, Mr. Downs, help me to unrobe these ghosts. Ah, here's one undone!" And he pulled the white drapery from the face of none other than Daniel Troope, and turned his attention to the other ghost, who was fighting his way toward the gate. But the instant that Daniel stood exposed the father turned and threw off his own disguise, cursing Jakey with all the venom of his nature. Then, to the music of Jakey's laughter, Mr. Downs' exclamations of wonder, and old Granny's cries of "Well, well, and they were the ghosts," the two disappeared through the gate. "And now," said Granny, "come into the house, Mr. Downs and have a bit to eat and sup. Sure, it's shaking all over with excitement I am."

"But not with fear, mother," laughed Jakey, as the three went into the house.

"I'm on my way to Neighbor Jackson's," said Mr. Downs. "They have a sick child and sent for me, asking me to fetch Dame Robins along."

"And I'll go with you," said that worthy dame, and never a minute must we lose to spread the news of the ghosts. Ah, but those Troopes are a bad pair."

"Yes, and since this exposure of their contemptible schemes the neighbors must not rest till they are driven from the community," declared Mr. Downs. "Jakey, you're a fine lad, and I'm proud of you as a future son-in-law. No ghosts will 'haunt' us with you 'round."

Circus Day.

Little band boys,
Come blow your horns;
The circus is coming to town.
Wear your uniform blue,
With the buttons bright,
To dazzle the eyes of the clown.

Trip lively along
To sound of your tunes;
And let all the airs be gay;
For all must be glad,
And none must be sad,
On the great, glorious circus day.

Florence Nightingale.

Noble Woman Among the Noblest

Florence Nightingale, "Queen of Nurses," was born in Florence, Italy, in the year 1820. Her parents were English, her father being Mr. William Nightingale, of Embley Park, Hampshire, and Lea Hurst, Derbyshire, a gentleman of wealth and position. Her mother was the daughter of the well-known abolitionist, Mr. Smith, a member of Parliament for Norwich.

While still very young Florence Nightingale displayed a deeply sympathetic nature, visiting the poor and sick of her neighborhood and ministering to their wants with her own hand and purse.

The wealth and prominence of her family gave Miss Nightingale a most enviable social position, but the gay life of fashionable London had little charm for her, and soon after her "presentation" she withdrew from the social whirl to devote her energies in behalf of the sick and needy. She made a thorough study of the conditions of the hospitals of London, Dublin and Edinburgh. Then she traveled over the Continent investigating the hospitals, both civil and military, of many countries.

In 1851 she went into training as a nurse in the Institution of Protestant Deaconesses at Kaiserwerth, on the Rhine.

In 1854, when the war between England and Russia broke out, Miss Nightingale was fully equipped for the responsible position she was to occupy during that time of trouble. With a few noble women who willingly sacrificed families, friends and homes to go to the scene of conflict, where their services were so much needed, she hurried to Scutari, there serving the wounded and sick soldiers with a love and tenderness that caused them all to reverence her very name.

Then followed years and years of work on the battlefield and in the hospitals—anywhere, everywhere that she was needed. And though of frail constitution and delicate build, she held up under the dreadful strain, and only old age put a stop to her noble work. She is still living at the advanced age of 88 years.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

ESTELLE'S REWARD.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.

The Daniels family were seated about the breakfast table, when the postman brought several letters. One addressed to Mrs. Daniels was in an old-fashioned hand-writing, which bespoke the writer to be long past middle age.

"From Aunt Lou," said Mrs. Daniels. "I wonder what brings a letter from her? She so seldom writes. I do hope the dear old lady isn't ill."

"Ten to one she's coming to pay us a visit," said Bert, the son of the family. "Well, if she does, I don't mean to take her out in my pony cart as I did when she was here a couple of years ago. She used to catch hold of the lines if I urged old Andy out of a dog trot, and she was forever telling me that I didn't know how to drive. I think very old people like Aunt Lou are a bother to young folks, and they ought to keep to themselves."

"Why, Bert!" And Bert's mother looked reprovingly at her son, saying: "It's very sad to be old and alone, as is poor Aunt Lou, and she enjoys coming to visit us so much, for she says the young life in the house cheers her up. I for one hope she's coming for a fortnight."

"Well, see what she has to say, mamma," suggested Estelle, the older of two daughters. "It's fair to her to read what she intends doing before we discuss it pro and con. It may be possible that she is inviting some of us to visit her."

"Well, I'll decline at the very outset," exclaimed Bert.

"Well, I wouldn't care to spend a week under the same roof with her," said Marie, the younger daughter. "She's always having something the matter with her and wants so much attention. I don't like waiting on old sick people."

"That's a hard thing to say, daughter," said Mr. Daniels, laying aside his paper. "If we live our allotted time, we must become old, and age brings with it many infirmities and much loneliness. We who are still in the heyday of youth, or, like yours truly, in his prime, should do all in our power to make the aged happy and help them to forget that they are walking the downward hill toward the nighttime of life."

"Very good, papa," cried Marie, laughingly. "You speak like a preacher."

Mrs. Daniels gave a severe look to her mischievous and thoughtless daughter and opened the letter, reading aloud: "Dear niece and family: The woman that takes care of my house and looks after me is going away for a week's rest, and I wish one of your girls would come and stay with me during her absence. I've been figuring out that school will close next week and the girls will be free, so I would take it as a favor if one of them would come to me for the week after next.

"I hope you and your dear family are well. I have been rather under the weather for the past month and am hardly able to take my usual walk before breakfast. So I pass many lonely hours and need the bright face and happy laughter of a young person in the house.

"With much affection to you and yours, and hoping to receive a reply soon, I am yours, AUNT LOU."

"Well!" And Bert turned a grinning face on his sisters. "That's sure going to be hard on one of you gals. Glad she didn't ask for Master Bert, esquire. Gee!"

Mrs. Daniels folded the letter. Then, turning to her daughters, said: "I hope you will volunteer to go, Marie, for Estelle is so busy with her music that she oughtn't stop till midsummer. I'm so anxious for her to be ready to enter the Conservatory of Music next fall."

"Yes, it would be better for Marie to go," said Mr. Daniels. "The care of her great aunt will give her a lesson in responsibitly, which she needs."

Marie frowned, pouting her lips. "I don't know why I should be made a sacrifice of. Couldn't Estelle practice her music at Aunt Lou's? There's an old piano there."

"Yes, a piano that came out of the ark," laughed Bert. "I hit one of the keys once and the squeak the thing made was funny enough, I can tell you."

"I'll go," said Estelle, in a calm voice. "So, sister, you needn't make a fuss about it. I can spare one week out of the year to poor old Aunt Lou. As for my music, mamma, I can very well make up in that after I return from aunt's."

"Well, Estelle, you have my sympathy," said Bert, filling his mouth with a piece of waffle dripping with syrup.

"I don't need sympathy," declared Estelle. "I don't think Aunt Lou so trying. She has some queer, old-fashioned ways, but I think them very superior to some of the more up-to-date ways—take some of yours, for instance, brother."

"Whew-w-w!" whistled Bert. "What a sarcastic lady my elder sister is becoming."

Mr. Daniels tapped the table with his finger and gave one look to Bert, causing that young man to finish his breakfast in silence.

That day Estelle wrote to her aged great-aunt that she would be happy to come and remain with her the week during the housekeeper's absence.

The following Monday morning found Estelle aboard the suburban train en route to Aunt Lou's country home, about 15 miles from the city. She found the aged woman very low-spirited, indeed, and it took several hours' reading and bright chatter to bring the smiles to her wrinkled face. In the afternoon Estelle took her for a ride along the country roads and stopped every little while to gather wild flowers. When they arrived home they carried great armloads of fragrant blossoms, with which Estelle began to decorate the rooms. As she watched the process Aunt Lou's face lighted up and she began assisting, winding a wreath for the sitting-room window. "This reminds me of the old days," she said, her eyes lighting with memories of the long ago, "when I was young like you, dear child. We used to give parties and decorate the rooms with wild flowers for the occasions, just as we are doing now. Oh, that was so long, long ago."

"Yes, Auntie, dear," said Estelle, arranging a vase of daisies for the supper table, "and it must be delightful to recall so many years of pleasure. Why, it's delightful to grow old if for nothing else than to fill one's mind with sweet recollections. I'd love to hear you tell of your girlhood days, auntie."

"Ah, dear child, I had never thought of it in that way before. Really, I have a mind stored with very sweet memories; but I've been in the habit of thinking of the wrong side of it during all these years. I never thought to enjoy my recollections; I only grieved to think I was growing old, and that the pleasures of life lay in the past."

"No, not in the past, Auntie, dear," protested Estelle. "Just think of all that you have seen and enjoyed; of the good you have done for those now passed beyond; of the good you can still do for the living who are less fortunate than yourself. Why, Auntie, you're rich in happy opportunities. You are not old—except in experience. And that makes you worth while, you see. Now, I live only in the future, for my present consists in preparation for that time. You have the glorious past, the splendid and ripe present and the promise of a richer future, for you are able to plan it to your own liking."

"You are a little philosopher, my child," said Aunt Lou, enthusiastically, putting down the blossoms to embrace her grandniece. "And you are a dear, helpful, sympathetic girl. I've always thought too much of old Lou Daniels. From now on I shall take others into my life. You are one of a thousand girls, dearie. Bless you, child."

After supper, and while Aunt Lou napped in her chair, Estelle slipped to the phone and got into communication with several of the neighbors. Then she returned to the sitting-room, where she sat reading to Aunt Lou till the clock struck 8.

Just as the last stroke died away the hall door-bell pealed, and the only servant—a woman of all work—announced to her mistress that "a whole parcel of folk was on the stoop wantin' to come in."

"People to see me? Why, what can they want at this time of night?" And Aunt Lou looked inquiringly at Estelle, who had risen quickly and was starting into the hall.

"Your friends have come to spend an hour or so with you Auntie," she replied as she bowed in a dozen ladies and gentlemen of various ages. The callers had responded to Estelle's invitation to give her aunt a little surprise. And a right merry surprise it was, too, for among the guests assembled were four or five aged folk, who, like Aunt Lou, were glad of an opportunity to be young again and to have a chat, a joke and a laugh with those of the younger generation.

Estelle and the servant succeeded in preparing a dainty luncheon, which was served informally in the sitting-room at 9 o'clock. After the sandwiches, cakes and tea the company grew more lively, and Aunt Lou gaily related her first sleigh ride, telling how it was with one of the now aged guests—old Mr. Champion—and how he had purposely tipped the sleigh over in a drift. "And that's why you refused to have me, was it?" asked the old gentleman in question, laughing at the joke turned on himself. "Exactly, sir," declared Aunt Lou, her face radiant with the joy of the bright company.

And so the first half of the night wore away and when at last the guests departed the hall clock struck the hour of 12.

"Why, Estelle, dear, do you see what time it is? Mercy me! How much I have enjoyed this evening. I wonder why I never thought before to invite in my neighbors for an evening's pleasure? Well, they, like me, have grown old and are accustomed to staying at home. But from now on I mean to see more of folks, and what's more, I mean to try to make others happy as well as being happy myself."

"Why, Auntie, making others happy must needs make you happy in spite of yourself," explained Estelle.

And the happiest week in the last 20 years of old Aunt Lou's life was the week that Estelle spent with her. There was no nursing of an old woman—such as had been anticipated, for Aunt Lou became almost young again in the society of Estelle. Each morning they rode round the neighborhood visiting any sick poor that they could hear of, and doing what lay in their power to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunates. In the afternoon they dropped in to have tea with some neighbor, or invited neighbors in to sip tea with them. And three of the week's evenings were spent at parties given in honor of Miss Estelle Daniels, chaperoned by her aunt, Miss Lou Daniels.

At the expiration of the week Aunt Lou's housekeeper returned to find a new mistress. And as Estelle was preparing to return to her home the old aunt declared that she had no words to express her gratitude to the dear young girl who had so willingly sacrificed so much of her time to "make her over," as she termed the service Estelle had rendered her.

"And here is something for you, dearie," whispered the old lady at parting. "I know you've been wanting a new piano for a long time, and your papa hasn't felt able to get just such a one as you want. Now, take one from your new aunt, for that old lady who was eternally in the dumps, that old Miss Daniels, has passed out of existence." And Aunt Lou slipped into Estelle's hand a check for $1,000.

"But, Auntie," began Estelle, "I was repaid for what I did for you by your new happiness. I don't——"

"Not another word," said the smiling old aunt. "You are to have the piano of your choice. And that is little enough, seeing that you have made a happy young woman out of a grunty old one. So, good-by, my dear little angel, for that's what you've been to me."

And when Bert and Marie saw the check for $1,000 dollars their eyes almost popped out of their heads, and they both wished that they had gone to spend the week with "old Aunt Lou."

"People to see me? Why, what can they want at this time of night?"

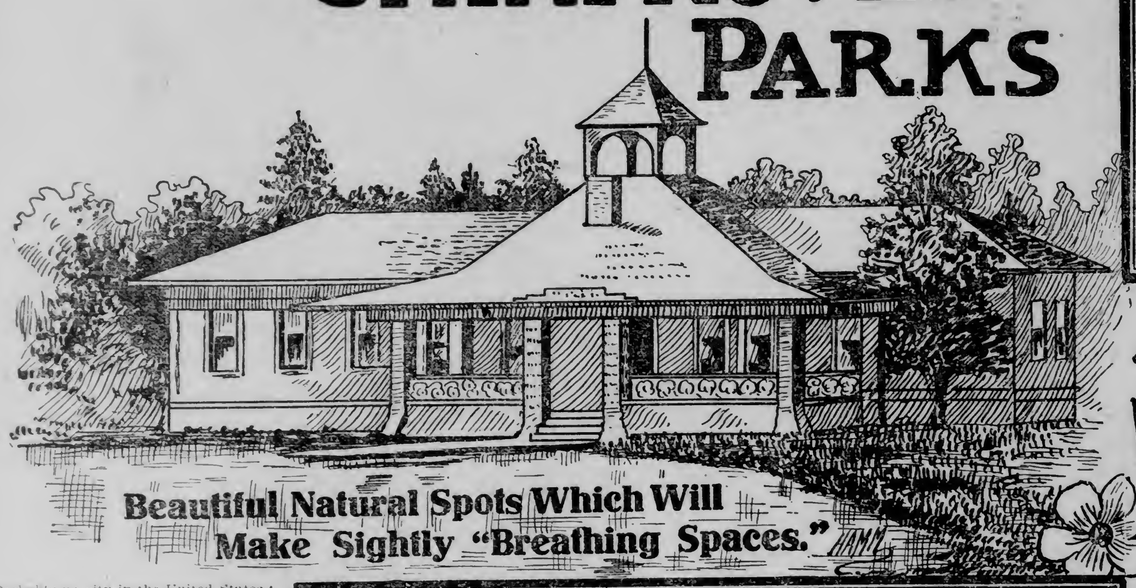
How To Chastise a Bad Boy.

The following story is told by a country school teacher: "On the first morning of the fall term of school a tall, powerfully-built woman came into the schoolroom leading her son by the hand. He was a tall, husky lad, overgrown, and possessing a keen, stubborn eye. The woman advanced close to me and bowed, saying: 'Sir, here is my dear little son whom I have brought to your school. Now, if ever he behaves in a mischievous way you must not lay a hand on him, for he is a delicate, high-strung child, with very sensitive nerves. He is not a bad boy, but sometimes his love of fun gets the upper hand of him. In such cases you will have to chastise him, I know. Now, what I want to suggest to you to do in such a case is to thrash soundly the boy sitting next to him, compelling my little boy to watch the effects of the punishment. That will be a warning to him to not misbehave again soon.'"

DULUTH'S UNIMPROVED PARKS



Beautiful Natural Spots Which Will Make Sightly "Breathing Spaces."

Probably no city in the United States of equal size has so many attractive sites for public parks as Duluth. From one end of the city to the other there are locations which could easily be made into beautiful parks. Some of these have been taken advantage of by the city, and turned into real beauty spots, but there are many others which still remain unimproved.

As ex-Mayor Cullum often pointed out, the time to plan for parks is when the property may be had at a reasonable figure, before it has been acquired for other purposes. It has been the experience of many Eastern cities that the matter of buying park sites has been delayed altogether too long, until the expense of purchase has become almost prohibitive.

Three picturesque sites as yet unimproved are shown on this page. One is located at Twelfth avenue west. This location offers a pretty view and could be made into a very attractive piece of ground. The second is taken along Tischer's creek, where the natural growth of trees would make necessary improvements comparatively light. The third site pictured is along the lake shore, at Twelfth avenue east. This is an especially attractive location, affording a fine view of the lake, and offering an additional advantage in that the lightest breezes from off the lake can be felt on the warm summer days.

If present plans materialize, it will not be many years before Duluth will have one of the most perfect park and public playground system in the Northwest, if not in the entire United States. Aside from the sites already turned into parks, the city will retain in its possession such property as it now has that is suitable for park purposes, and other sites will be purchased from time to time, and improvements will be made as finances of the city will permit.

REMARKABLE ADDRESS BY JUDGE CANT

with a somewhat greater responsibility as respects actual results and they should be accorded somewhat greater powers to that end. The courts are at fault in at least three respects: First, in the length of time consumed in the impaneling of juries; second, in the delays attending litigation; third, in sometimes exalting the technical points at the expense of the substantial justice of the case.

"Occasion for the last mentioned criticism has greatly diminished in recent years. The courts are now strongly inclined to concern themselves with the substantial rather than incidental features of a case. The other grounds of complaint still continue, and the somewhat recent first trial in Chicago of Cornelius P. Shea, president of the Teamsters' union, at which about eleven weeks' time was occupied in securing a jury, is a case strikingly in point. Much of the nonsense in connection with the impanelling of juries should be stopped; that a man who merely has read newspaper accounts of the occurence under consideration, or has heard casual remarks concerning the same, is thereby disqualified, is ordinarily absurd. Generally speaking, a man who has not sense enough after reading or hearing to listen to the sworn evidence and try the defendant fairly, and upon that alone, is otherwise lacking in the necessary mental qualifications of a good juror in any case. There are, of course, exceptions—as where for some particular reason a man has followed detailed publications of the evidence at a former trial, or because of acquaintance has taken some interest in the case, but, ordinarily, mere information without interest should not produce bias.

The Bar at Fault.

"All comments made in reference to the attitude and position of the bar in connection with prosecutions for crime will be made in the spirit of one having a keen, active and appreciative personal interest in that body. It may probably in all fairness be said that the profession as a whole has not fully realized its privileges and responsibilities; it has not fully realized the dominant position it should occupy as a conservator of the public weal in the highest sense. Many individual members have nobly done so, but as a body it has not. The influence of so large a number of trained men scattered everywhere throughout the country—men who know the right and know what high ideals are—should be of incalculable service to the country in respect to the suppression of crime. The trouble is that here and there some are for sale; that a few are willing for a consideration to shut their eyes to what is obvious to others, to take their client's story, though its infirmities be glaring, and then to plunge into a contest, not with the idea of preventing injustice or of exercising all possible diligence in protecting their client in his legal rights and of securing his acquittal, if innocent, but with the fixed determination, by fair means and by foul and at all hazards, of securing his acquittal, whether guilty or innocent. Indeed, the real guilt or innocence of the accused is sometimes hardly considered at all by such men. With them it is the excitement, the game, winning the case, securing the fee, receiving the applause; the merits of the case are of no concern. The fact that it is generally known that no crime is so foul but that counsel of ability, if not of eminence, may be employed to make a desperate defense, has had and is having deadly and disastrous effect upon the morals of the country. Suppose that tomorrow morning it were known throughout the land that all this was changed; that henceforth the service of faithful and eminent counsel were still to be had, but that they were all to use the same variety of sense and of conscience which is employed by the most intelligent men in other fields; that the innocent were to be defended at all hazards, though never by the use of subterfuge or tricks, but that when counsel knew, or should know, as a sensible man—and as often actually occurs—that his client was guilty, his efforts should then be directed and limited to developing every circumstance favorable to such client, to seeing that no advantage was taken of him, that his legal rights should be fully protected, that he should not be convicted except by due process of law and of the lowest degree only as to which he might reasonably be found guilty, and all this without in any way indicating the views which he held as to his client's guilt—this would combine strict fidelity to the client with a proper appreciation of the other duties resting upon every member of the profession and would have a marked repressive effect upon those of a conscious criminal tendency.

Standard Is Possible.

"That such standards are practically attainable is exemplified in the daily lives of many whom we know, and was perhaps especially so in the able and dignified defense which was made for the assassin of President McKinley.

"It is a mistake for lawyers to attempt to justify themselves in approaching the consideration of almost every question with the intense partisanship with which many of them do. Every lawyer should be somewhat of a judge, and, in the interests of justice and as one of its ministers, should insist upon his views, in a measure controlling the passion or zeal or cupidity of his client. The highest privilege of a trial lawyer is not always to win. Emphatically it is to win only when we may do so with right. We ought much more frequently to see the spectacle of counsel practically agreeing as to what the result of the trial should be after the evidence is all in. Before that each may have been, in a measure, misled; but with the story in all its details laid bare by the evidence, trained minds should more frequently see it in the same light. In all these shortcomings, if such they be, the lawyer is but responding to a very considerable popular demand. My view is, however, that in these matters he should lead rather than follow. The popular view of the lawyer's duties should in any event undergo a radical change. Let praise and appreciation, if any, be given to those who reach the heights of professional ethics, not to those who of choice remain on the foothills. In the public esteem let him who notoriously sells his talents in desperate attempts to free the guilty at whatever cost be recognized as an outlaw with them, and let him who aims constantly at the highest standards, who interprets his oath in the light of an intelligence and a conscience, and who with zeal and power presses every point, as far as they both will approve, and no farther, be accorded the highest pinnacle of professional fame.

"And this brings us to the part which the people themselves play in this important matter; for, quite as much as unwise laws, or faulty courts, or designing attorneys, the juries and the public from which they are drawn, influenced by all the considerations heretofore referred to and by many others, are responsible for the unsatisfactory administration of the criminal laws. These causes of demoralization must be banished so far as possible, and a higher grade of citizenship be evolved.

Jury Trials.

"In this county, with occasional exceptions only, we obtain very satisfactory results with jury trials; the grade of service is good; but throughout the country, and sometimes here, juries are returning verdicts that they ought not to return; they are countenancing pleas which they ought to reject; they are upholding defenses which they ought to condemn; the criminally inclined are looking on and are thereby encouraged to believe that with a sharp lawyer and a jury they may hope to escape, no matter what they do. Moreover, the public sometimes seems to approve verdicts which are shocking miscarriages of justice, and showers its applause and its favors upon the successful attorney, irrespective of the tactics employed. All this should be changed. Let the public do a little thinking of its own. Let it applaud the right and condemn the wrong in jury trials, and then sit back and note the results which follow.

"The foregoing matters are all of importance in connection with the increase of crime, but only because of their indirect, though sometimes very important, bearing thereon.

The Drink Evil.

"There is one cause, however, which may be named which has a direct bearing upon the volume of crime and is by far the most potent single factor with which we have to reckon in that connection. It is the excessive use of intoxicating liquors, and to this must be added the inferior and sometimes dangerous character of the liquor consumed. To convince any one of how much of an understatement this really is, he has only to see and observe; at term after term of our district court in this and adjoining counties practically all of what may be called the middle grade crimes are attributable directly to the excessive use of liquor, and often a strangely large proportion of them arise out of violations of the law by the liquor dealers—such as sales to minors, or after hours, or on Sundays. At one term fully two-thirds of all the criminal cases tried developed such features. This is beyond all question the white man's plague beside which tuberculosis, pneumonia, diphtheria and all the fevers are mild disorders.

"There is therefore probably some fallacy in ascribing the prevalence of crime in this country to any one specific cause, as some eminent authorities have assumed to do. The causes, no doubt, are many and complex; nor as between many of them is there any very sharp dividing line. They act and react and serve to intensify each other. Several of what are probably the most important causes have been mentioned here. There are many others. They operate with great force upon the public mind. Many are constant suggestions and incentives to crime and the power of suggestion is very great.

"Such an array of powerful causes in ceaseless operation may impress some with gloomy forebodings. They need not. There are at the same time in operation forces which are powerful in the uplifting of our people. These agencies are more numerous, more efficient and more generously supported than ever before. The adverse influences affect only the more plastic and susceptible minds—a large number, it is true, in this country. But there are and always will be hundreds who live practically spotless lives where one commits a serious crime. Hundreds are practically immune to the suggestions of evil where one yields and falls. Through inaction the morally healthy often fail to register their views and they are little heard. The more noisy element is permitted to be too much in evidence and too often is allowed to speak for all; but our population is of an entirely hopeful character; there is no considerable desperate element; we are simply not under sufficient moral pressure. With that supplied, and with a vigilant prosecution of the guilty when crimes are committed, the United States may reasonably expect in due course to redeem itself from the unfortunate reputation which it now bears."

PSYCHOLOGY OF CAMPAIGN ISSUES

The "Mugwump" Explained by Eminent Sociologist of Brown University---Party Lines Not Breaking Down---New Issues Are Being Raised.

Washington, May 9.—While the politicians are lining things up for the national conventions and the discussion of platforms and candidates waxes warmer every day, there is another important matter that is being settled quietly and almost unconsciously by the citizens at large—the matter of the issues on which the coming campaign will be fought. It is sometimes said that the politicians determine the issues as well as everything else; but as a matter of fact, the rule of the people is much more actual in this country than is generally appreciated, and it is "you, and me, and the man over yonder," who will say what the issues are to be.

Having studied most everything else in human affairs, the sociologists have turned their attention to the scientific aspects of political parties, and they have evolved some interesting conclusions. In a number of the American Journal of Sociology, Prof. Lester F. Ward, now of Brown university, but until recently one of the most prominent scientific men at the national capital, discusses the sociology of political parties in a way that ought to make the average citizen take a more active interest in his own government. The university at Providence long ago made a reputation for its work in the direction of good citizenship, and when Prof. Ward joined the faculty it secured a specialist whose position is even higher abroad than in America. His article is an application of interesting theories, unfamiliar to most of us, that throw new light on his subject for general readers. Incidentally, it reveals the tendency of scientifically trained men to apply their methods of research to very practical problems of every-day life. As a sociologist, who made his reputation by bringing the results of life-long study of geology and biology into the field of human activities, Dr. Ward is, perhaps, better qualified than any other living American to discuss the scientific side of political partisanship. The researches involved in writing such works as "Psychic Factors of Civilization," and "Outlines of Sociology," as well as such considerations as entered into a fanciful study undertaken about a year ago of the probable course of civilization on the planet Mars have been in line with this recent study.

It is often overlooked that political parties which seem strongly opposed to one another are really struggling for the same end. If it were possible to get the same amount of force without a division of the people it might be desirable, but unless there is some opposition to it any course of action is likely to become a centrifugal force, scattering its energy so that nothing is accomplished. There is, then, no progress without opposition. Prof. Ward points out, and so, although they are working for the same end, opposing political parties have come into being under every form of government where the people have any voice in their affairs.

Once the fundamental principles of a party are adopted—as, for instance, when the Democrats set up the proposition that the individual is of more importance than the state, while the Republicans took the ground that everything should be subservient to the national government—the principles on which there is a division later took a settlement of current problems, so to speak, and these are the campaign issues. Evidently they must originate with the people. From among the questions agitating the public mind must be selected first something which is not too much settled—something about which there is a distinct division of sentiment and opinion. If a question is already settled in the judgment of practically all citizens no issue can be made upon it, of course. For example, there are citizens of the United States who believe that the form of government should be changed steadily, but they are so few, and general opinion is so fixed against them, that any party which attempted to make an issue of altering the present scheme would be laughed and sneered out of existence as soon as it showed itself. If a party is to get the support of the voters it must arouse strong feeling, so an issue must be important. Yet it must not be so vital that no one can change his attitude toward it once he has formed an opinion; other wise, one party or the other will be playing a losing game from the start and all the energy devoted to the ill chosen issue will be wasted.

It is this phase of political sociology that has been most interestingly developed in the United States during the past generation. Each time a presidential election comes around there is less absolute certainty of the result unless questions involved are so one-sided that there is no hope of general support for the other side. While prophets of evil foretell the ultimate failure of Republican government, even under the best conditions, the people of this republic are steadily behaving themselves in a way that makes for its permanent success. No other nation has in so short a time developed discriminating intelligence among its people as broadly as has this one. It is only the ignorant who can be misled by demagogues for any length of time. Discriminating citizens are always ready to change their opinions if convincing arguments can be advanced, and, as Prof. Ward shows, these are the people who really carry our elections nowadays. President Cleveland, though a Democratic nominee, was elected by Republican votes, and that the tremendous majorities of McKinley and of Roosevelt were swelled by many Democratic votes everybody knows. The campaign issues and not party principles decided these elections.

This does not mean that party lines are breaking up. It means rather that the people raise their own issues and settle them in their own way. Originally, as the federal party—that is, the party which would keep supreme in all things the powers of the national government — Republicans were naturally opposed to innovations, while the Democrats, standing for individual rights, sought to turn the scheme of government in new directions. The issues which led to the Civil war changed this, however, and for more than a quarter of a century the Republican party stood for initiative action and the Democrats for conservatism. Now the issues arising from the complicated relations of capital and labor in the modern industrial scheme are turning the wheels once more, and the Democracy is becoming the aggressive faction.

The questions best adapted for use as political issues are moral questions, and the more disinterested they appear to be the better material they are. Just what principles either of the great parties will adopt next month as their fighting ground for this year's presidential campaign no body can predict with exactness now. A number are being tried out by the politicians in the preliminary discussion which is always instigated for the purpose before an election, unless public feeling is such that the platforms are self evident. But one thing is certain—and it requires no expert knowledge of sociology to make it certain. The party that selects as its chief issue the most pressing moral questions of the day, and takes the side of the question which American common sense has already decided to be the right one will secure strongest support at the polls, regardless of old fashioned party affiliations.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Work, work, work is the slogan the high school professors are pounding into the heads of all the reluctant students. The pursuit of knowledge must be rapid and strenuous during the next few weeks if the hopes and expectations of the alma mater are to be fulfilled.

Supt. Denfeld made his appearance in chapel on Monday morning and imparted some very-much-to-the-point advice, which made a deep impression on all of the students. Immediately following Mr. Denfeld's address the students tendered a vote of thanks to the Scottish Rite Masons for the musical they gave to the students last Friday at their hall.

The fine weather has produced scores of fleet-footed trackmen, and Coach Heston has his hands full with lively squads of sprinters, hurdlers and weightmen. The class meet is but a week off and rivalry is already strong. Dope fiends figure that the sophomores will capture the first place. The juniors and seniors, who have not many men out, will fight it out for second, and it is believed that the consolation prize will be captured by 1911.

The geology classes, which tripped over to Park Point on Wednesday afternoon on the investigating trip, claim that they brought back enough sand to fill a scow. Beyond this there was little of interest to the class.

Seniors are proving altogether too modest about their vocal ability. They are being coached strenuously for class night music, but many of them are sadly missing from practice room on Wednesday and Friday nights. It is hoped that more class spirit will be shown in this direction or the final recital will lack the enthusiasm and perfection of previous years.

Prof. Crane of Minneapolis made a very distinct hit with the students when he entertained, instructed and advised them in his talk on "Kingbecoming-graces" during chapel period on Wednesday.

The freshies are "tickled to death" and have at last come to the conclusion that the sophomores are quite harmless. They fought a great battle on Thursday afternoon on the baseball diamond at Hunter's park and defeated the 1910 nine by a score of 28 to 25. This is the second victory that the "Yearlings" have to their credit, so their hopes are high for a game with the juniors to decide the school championship.

The annual freshman hop will be held next Friday in the school building. The tickets came out this week and have been selling so well that success is already assured.

Word by an unofficial wire has been received from Washington, stating that Louis Denfeld has successfully passed the Annapolis entrance examinations with which he wrestled so manfully for several days last week. This means that another high school boy will be added to the list of Duluth navy men, and Louis is receiving many congratulations.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Weather Conditions Have Checked Demand in Retail Markets.

New York, May 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Weather conditions have exercised much influence this week on retail trade in seasonable merchandise and dealings at the leading commodity exchanges. Low temperature checked the demand for light wearing apparel in a market that was already backward and heavy rains started reports of damage to the crops, yet there was no evidence of serious injury. Manufacturing conditions show little change, much machinery being idle and new business coming forward slowly.

In some industries there is still a disposition to wait for lower prices, although restricted demand during the past six months must render replenishment of stocks almost imperative. Financial sentiment improves as restrictions are removed from commercial credits, and sales of bond provide funds for structural work. Failures decrease in number, while liabilities in April were smaller than in any month since November, despite several large suspensions of a speculative nature, directly due to the advance in prices of securities. A few more steel plants have resumed, decreasing the percentage of unemployed in this country, but new contracts are placed with great caution, and it is evident that all consumers anticipate more attractive terms.

Confidence grows in the textile markets as stocks of dealers become depleted, and it is known that the time must be near for replenishment. Most interest is naturally shown in quarters where there has been the least response in recent months, but orders are still conservative, although increasing in number, and the recovery in raw material supplies an element of strength among makers of cotton goods. Export trade is better, chiefly to Red sea points. Duplicate business in woolens is very irregular, the best reports pertaining to worsteds, of which there has been a satisfactory distribution of sample pieces. There is a fairly good business with clothiers whose salesmen have made enough progress to determine the outcome of the season's trade.

Shipments of shoes through Boston are now scarcely more than half the weekly figures of last year, and the market is quite uninteresting.

The only activity in leather is supplied by St. Louis shoe manufacturers, several sales being recorded, but Eastern consumers exhibit no interest whatever. Export demand is quiet, and there is little trading in harness or belting.

The Most Common Cause of Suffering

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50-cent sizes. For sale by all druggists.

EMINENT SPEAKERS CHOSEN

For Governors' Conference to be Held at the White House Next Week---List of the Topics They Will Discuss.

Washington, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The list of speakers for the governors' conference on natural resources, to be held at the White House next week, follows: Prof. Emory R. Johnson, Philadelphia, "Navigation;" H. S. Putnam, New York, "Power;" Prof. T. C. Chamberlain, Chicago, "Soil;" R. A. Long, Kansas City, "Forests;" Dr. George M. Kober, Washington, D. C., "Sanitation;" Hon. George C. Pardee, Oakland, Cal., "Reclamation;" Judge Joseph M. Carey, Cheyenne, Wyo., "Land Laws;" Hon. H. A. Jastro, Bakersfield, Cal. "Grazing and Stock Raising;" Dr. I. C. White, Morgantown, W. Va., "Mineral Fuels;" James J. Hill, St. Paul, Minn., "Transportation;" Andrew Carnegie, New York, "Ores and Related Minerals." In addition to these, John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers, will lead the discussion on "Coal Mining."

For the discussion of each topic was selected the most eminent expert known to the advisers of the president, and the man who could give to the conference the most authoritative information. The selections were made without consideration of the experts in the service of the federal government, as it was considered wiser that all information should come from outside and independent sources. All of the men selected have consented to take part.

Prof. Johnson is recognized as an eminent authority on navigation. He is the professor of transportation and commerce in the University of Pennsylvania, and has written several books on water transportation. He was at one time a member of the Isthmian canal commission.

Mr. Putnam is a civil engineer of New York, who has devoted much of his energy and ability to the electrification of railroads. In collaboration with his partner, Mr. Stillwell, he wrote a work on the substitution of electric motors for the 48,000 steam locomotives in use in the United States. This was published in 1907, and is regarded as the most comprehensive work on this subject. Mr. Putnam's firm are consulting engineers in the consideration of the electrification of the New York Central, the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the New York subway.

Prof. Chamberlain is the senior professor of geology in the University of Chicago. He was at one time connected with the federal geological survey. Then he became president of the University of Wisconsin and state geologist of Wisconsin. He is now president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is probably the foremost advocate of the doctrine, now commonly accepted by scientists, that properly cultivated soil gains in richness as the years go by.

R. A. Long of Kansas City, who will speak on the forests, is a prominent lumberman and will discuss his subject from the lumberman's standpoint. He is now cutting Southern pine, and his firm has retail yards in many parts of the Central West. Mr. Long has written papers on the timber question, in which he takes a broad view of the necessity of conservation.

Dr. George M. Kober has been called the most useful citizen of the District of Columbia. He is dean of the faculty of Georgetown university, and was one of the leading promoters of the Sanitary league. This organization has constructed healthful dwellings in Washington and is renting them to the poor at rates lower than were formrly paid for unsanitary hovels. As a member of the commission on water supply improvement for the District, Dr. Kober took a leading part in the investigations and agitation which led to the construction of the Washington filtration plant. He has gone deeply into the relation between a pure water supply and the health of cities and has prepared data for the conference to show how it pays in cold cash to have pure water.

George C. Pardee was governor of California at a period when a great many questions relating to natural resources had come to a critical focus. In his official capacity he was obliged to deal with the friction which developed between farmers and other citizens on the one hand, and the hydraulic miners on the other. Hydraulic mining had been the means of filling the beds of streams and causing floods. In his administration, too, the drainage of thousands of acres of land along the Sacramento was a burning issue, and there was a great deal of agitation for the Iron canyon irrigation project, the fate of which still hangs in the balance.

Judge Carey is known in connection with the land laws for the legislation which bears his name. This was enacted when Judge Carey was a member of the United States senate, and restricted holdings to 160 acres.

H. A. Jastro is president of the American National Live Stock association and is recognized by stock men as a leading authority on grazing and stock raising. He has been actively identified with the development of the West and is one of the West's foremost citizens.

Dr. I. C. White is state geologist of West Virginia and professor of geology in the University of West Virginia. He is recognized as the leading authority on petroleum and natural gas. He was also chosen as a member of the Brazilian coal commission, the Brazilian government having sought the assistance of the government of this country in securing the best American authority on mineral fuels.

James J. Hill, head of the Great Northern railway system, was chosen as the most eminent expert on transportation, because of his broad views and wide experience in both railroad and water transportation.

Andrew Carnegie has an international reputation for his part in the development of the steel industry, in connection with which he became expert in iron ore and in coal as related to the manufacture of steel.

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Mill of Safe Investment Company to be in Operation Soon---Good Find on Snowstorm Property in Bald Mountain.

Deadwood, S. D., May 9.—Active preparations for the resumption of work on the property of the Safe Investment Mining company began this week and it is hoped to have the mill in operation again during the present month. The Safe Investment property is located at Underwood, in the Elk creek district, and last summer employed over sixty men.

The ore bodies are found in the flat formation and are of low grade and fairly well developed. The mill is of the stamp pattern, containing forty stamps and a cyanide annex for the treatment of tailings. It is less than a year old and has never been run to any extent.

In following up a large vertical is already opened up on the Ryan claim across the gulch from the Ben Hur workings of the Mogul Mining company. John Hawgood, owner of the Snowstorm property in Bald Mountain, seems to have located the same vein and is now looking forward to active development. The Snowstorm has at various times given up rich pieces of float that were supposed to have come from this vertical. This was located on the Snowstorm and tapped at a depth of seventy-five feet, where it had a width of eighteen feet. At the 100 foot depth the vein had widened out until it was thirty-five feet in width, and some extensive assaying shows its values to average $45 per ton in gold, found in the phonolite-porphyry character of rock that is usually permanent and in this case is readily amenable to treatment. When enough of it is developed, Mr. Hawgood expects to make arrangements to have it treated at some of the neighboring plants.

The management of the Standby Mining company, operating in the Rochford district, is considering the practicability of enlarging its present sixty stamp mill with the addition of forty more stamps, giving a daily average capacity of 100 tons. Robert Fraser, Homestake sampler, conducted a number of tests of the Standby rock and estimates that a recovery of $2.75 per ton can be gained by plate amalgamation. It is estimated that the total cost of handling by both mining and milling process a ton of Standby ore will be about $1.50. More repairs are being made in the mill, while the mine development continues and the gravity system of handling the ore will be used. Both sands and slimes will be treated in a cyanide annex after the amalgamation process.

THE CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT

New Record for the Camp Established by the April Production Which Reached About $1,425,000---Leasers Working a Hundred Dumps.

Cripple Creek, Colo., May 9.—The April Cripple Creek production approximates 70,000 tons of ore, or $1,425,000. This establishes a new record for the camp.

The Elkton Consolidated Mining and Milling company has disbursed its regular bi-monthly dividend of one cent, also an extra of one-half cent, or $37,500 in all, the April disbursement bringing the company's total to $2,079,640. A like sum will be paid in June, when the annual meeting will be held. The Henley vein in sixth and seventh levels is being worked and drifting in the ninth level is in progress.

Several small but rich pockets of free and rusty gold have been encountered in the Cresson mine. Some of the ore runs $1 a pound. Two shifts are employed by the company and the monthly product is 1,800 to 2,000 tons.

The Delmonico mine is yielding two cars of $20 ore weekly from a three foot vein between the 200 and 300 foot levels.

The Beacon Hill Development company, operating on the Mabel M. and Gold Dollar, Beacon Hill, will increase the production to a car daily. Ore carrying $30 a ton value is being broken from a large flat vein recently opened in the Gold Dollar. The operators are driving for the shoot known as the West vein and expect to cut it in a few days.

Over 100 Cripple Creek dumps are being worked profitably by leasers.

The Anaconda mill on the Anaconda mine, Cripple Creek, has been purchased by R. W. Wallace of Monte Vista, Colo. The mill was erected in 1903 by Messrs. Craig and King. It successfully treated the Anaconda dump of 20,000 tons of $3 to $10 ore. It is one of the most complete in the district.

Hardy & Co., leasing on the East Notaway mine, Russell district, Central City, Colo., are in ore returning 8 ounces gold, 2½ ounces silver and 1½ per cent copper, or $127.15 a ton total value. The property was recently taken over by the United States Exploration company from the Town Topics company. The shaft will be sunk several hundred feet and extensive drifting and cross cutting will be done. New York capital is interested.

Compressor plants at the Wilcox and Tobin tunnels, Georgetown, Colo., have been started. The Commonwealth vein in the Wilcox tunnel is yielding ten to fifteen tons daily of $60 silver-lead ore. The vein is five feet wide, with a smelter streak ten to eighteen inches thick.

The Corbett in the Tobin tunnel is at work on a streak of quartz three to four feet thick, whose lowest values as determined by cyanide are $21 a ton in gold.

The Jo Dandy mill on the Jo Dandy mine, Cripple Creek, has resumed operations after a shutdown for repairs and remodeling. The plant is now treating fifty tons daily. The mine shaft is 500 feet deep and the workings are in heavy bodies of oxidized ores.

A method of ore treatment now being tried at the Empire Tunnel company's Gold Dirt mine, Empire, Colo., may prove a solution of the problem of cheap ore treatment for a large area on Silver Mountain, including Crown Prince, Gen. Harrison, Rosencranz and Comet mines, located on the giant fissure that distinguishes the upper section of the hill. Development, it is insisted, will lead to discovery of ore shoots which in Gold Dirt and other mines are now yielding $100 a ton.

this development it is believed the Baltic lode has been definitely located. The shaft is now down 1,360 feet to the sixteenth level. Four drills are at work, two being used in sinking and two in cross-cutting and drifting.

The production of Mohawk, 573 tons 1,690 pounds of mineral, for April was a banner output, and means that a little better grade of rock must be going to the mill. The starting of the fourth head when the management so decides, will materially increase the output, and even with copper at 13 cents per pound Mohawk will earn more money than some mines, whose shares are selling very much higher.

It is said the Arcadian company is to be reorganized and money provided to carry on the work. In the meantime no work will be undertaken that will require the expenditure of money. To reduce the expenses, the pumps that had kept the easterly shaft dry have been brought to surface and the shaft will be allowed to fill. It is only 200 feet deep and there are no lateral openings. Therefore, it can be pumped out in a couple of days at any time, and as the time when the shaft will become active again is uncertain, and probably will not be for some weeks, and wisdom and economy of this policy is evident. For some months past the Arcadian treasury has been virtually exhausted and it is learned that the expenses of carrying on the work during the last winter have been met mainly by President R. H. Shields, personally.

very large body of high grade ore is now blocked out.

South of the Celtic mine and joining it is a claim located two weeks ago by the Bennett brothers. They immediately commenced development work and now have an ore body exposed that is eight feet wide, which will average from wall to wall not less than $10 a ton in gold.

Work has been resumed in the Three Link mines and within a week the shipping of ore to the Boise Cyanide works here will commence.

There will surely be a great revival in the old Wood River lead and silver mines this year. They were extensively worked until the downfall of silver in 1893, since which time many of them have lain idle. During the winter work was resumed on many of them and large quantities of ore taken There is a tendency to work them more extensively than for many years past, not only for the silver and lead, but zinc, which is found in large quantities. The ores or concentrated and the concentrates sent to Salt Lake for reduction.

W. Milligan, F. P. Rugee, W. H. Thielman, Ed Ulseth, Victor Nordberg, J. E. O'Neill, Angus P. MacDonald, Joseph W. Selden, M. J. McEvans and W. J. MacDonald. Ralph E. Davis, a mining engineer of the Pittsburg-Montana company, and an instructor of the Butte school of mines, has taken charge of the property, and will make an extensive report in the near future. Some leasers have been doing some work in No. 1 shaft, and have opened up as fine a looking body of ore as can be found on any of the east side prepetities. Mining men generally in Butte state that the Ida-Montana has the best showing of ore ever seen on the east side. The leasers took out about eighteen tons of ore from No. 1 of fine quality.

It is understood that the financial difficulties of the Reins Copper company are about to be straightened out. There is very good authority for the statement that the indebtedness of about $80,000 to Dr. Reins has been settled and all that remains are a few claims for labor and supplies aggregating about $20,000. Whether or not it is the intention to resume operations is not known.

Better progress from this time forward will be made at the properties of the North Butte Extension Copper Mining company. Last week the newly installed pump in the station on the 500-foot level was placed in commission and it is handling the water in splendid shape. For several months the shaftmen have been working against great odds in sinking the shaft, as sinking pumps only were used. As the system is now completed, however, the sinkers will carry the water from the bottom of the shaft to the tank on the 500-foot level and from that point it will be lifted to the surface by the pump which has been placed in operation.

The indications in the shaft are magnificent. At a depth of 527 feet a small stringer was cut on the north side of the shaft, and the stringer has widened out to nearly two feet at a depth of 550 feet. It is steadily widening, and there is every reason to believe that it will eventually lead into one of the large veins which traverse the property. While the dip of the stringer is slightly to the south, it is believed that it will change to the north and finally reach, probably at a depth of 700 feet, the big north vein. The stringer carries a good percentage of copper and considerable silver values.

The water is coming in in the bottom of the shaft in greater quantities than at any previous time, and this is an encouraging indication of the close proximity of an important vein. The water is also highly impregnated with copper, as evidenced by the fact that yesterday a number of tools which had been in the shaft for several days showed a strong copper color on being brought to the surface. With the present increased facilities for handling the water it is expected that ninety feet in the shaft will be made every thirty days.

done at this valuable property as soon as ridded of its water.

On the 1,100-foot level of the Briggs much leached mineralized ground had been cut previous to the closing down of the property, and it is supposed by mineralogists, who have examined the property, that this leached ground is above one of the main lenses of the district.

The night shift at the Junction shaft of the Superior & Pittsburg company has been taken off, and hereafter there will only be two shifts working at the property, the same as at other mines of the company. None of the men were dismissed, but were placed on other shifts. The change affects only the miners and timbermen, etc., the rest of the mechanics to continue to work in three shifts.

At the Junction considerable work has been done in the past few months in the way of new development work, but this work has all been completed, the plans of the company having been consummated. At present the Junction is shipping an average of one car of ore a day, but this ore is high grade, some cars running as high as 24 per cent and as low as 4 per cent.

Work was begun a few days ago on the removing of a 1,000-gallon low-lift pump from the 1,200-foot level of the Junction. It will be replaced on the 1,300-foot station at the Hoatson. The pump will raise the water from the 1,300-foot station to the 1,000 of the oatsman, from which point it flows to the Junction, and from there it is pumped to the surface.

During the past week some very rich ore has been encountered in the Cuprite shaft of the Copper Queen, which is located in the same guich as the Shattuck. This ore was encountered in a drift which is being run from this mine to the Shattuck at a depth of 500 feet, or rather on the 500-foot level of the Cuprite, as the Shattuck is several hundred feet higher up the hill.

The place where the ore was cut is virtually on Uncle Sam ground, but that shaft has not yet attained very great depth, being at the present time down about 435 feet. The ore carries considerable native copper and is an oxide. How large this ore body is is not known at the present time, but it is supposed to be of some size.

Work is at present under way to connect the Uncle Sam with the Cuprite. This will be done when the shaft of the former has reached a depth of 450 feet, which will probably be during the coming week. A drift on the 100 level of the Cuprite will connect with the Uncle Sam's 450-foot station.

In the Santa Rita mountains, about twelve miles northwest of Patagonia, is a group of copper claims owned by John A. McDonald, Neil McDonald, August Yerrick and J. W. Leek of Patagonia and Dr. Ray Ferguson of Phoenix, superintendent of the territorial insane asylum. They have a vein of high-grade ore, the extent of which has not been demonstrated.

The present owners located the claims in 1904 and sunk a 30-foot shaft on one of the leads. Two carloads of ore taken from the shaft were shipped to El Paso netted the prospectors $1,160 per carload. Later the shaft was sunk to a depth of ninety feet, always in ore, and the vein widening with depth.

Recently the owners resumed operations at the mine and the water has been pumped out, giving the workers access to the drifts at the 200-foot level.

Thirty-one claims of the Manhattan company, in the Paradise district, have been patented. Seven claims have been withheld for further examination. Most of the latter are on the north side of the group, in the granite. Some of these, at least, were located more for protection than for mineral, and it is said to be practically immaterial to the company whether patents are ever received on them or not. However, it is understood that the company will retain these seven and endeavor to secure patents on them so as to obtain as complete protection for the group as possible.

The Mansfield Mining & Smelting company is now practically ready to begin the work of installing its new smelter, and the machinery is being unloaded at the property. Although it was supposed that practically all of the good ore veins had been located by development work, still another rich deposit has just been encountered in excavating for the smelter. The strike was an agreeable surprise to the management, as the vein had given no surface indication of its presence. This 18-inch streak of lead-silver ore is stated to lie within 100 feet of one of the large operating shafts on the Mansfield property. The ore has shown a distinct improvement, both in quantity and quality, as the vein has been developed.

Some fine ore specimens are being shown here that came from the bottom of the Verde Grande shaft, and a marked improvement in the formation is noted with the increase in depth. There seems now to be no reasonable doubt as to the shaft entering the sulphide zone within the next few dozen feet of sinking. The water zone has now apparently been passed. The formation is at present so soft that hand drills instead of air drills are being used. The zone of operations is now comparatively dry, and it is believed that sinker and station pumps will be entirely adequate to handling any water appearing in the shaft for a long time to come.

district. The showing there was discouraging. At the Pewabic Mining company's property at Iron Mountain the miners are working alternate weeks for the time being, pending the re-timbering of the No. 1 shaft, which also is being sunk to another level. A new lift has been opened in No. 2 shaft, which has recently been provided with a fine shaft house of steel.

In the North Lake district, west of Ishpeming, Marquette range, the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company is preparing to put down a shaft for the purpose of testing a deposit found with the diamond drill. Boring at depth has been in progress for twenty months or more. The existence of ore has been known for many years, but the development of the field has been retarded for the reason that the veins where opened have been found of narrow width. This has been the adverse factor at the Baxter and other old-time properties farther to the west, among them the American, where M. A. Hanna & Co. have been at work the past one and one-half years. The overburden is heavy in the vicinity of North Lake, and with the Cleveland Cliffs shaft down to the ledge, to reach which will be by no means an easy task, there will still be necessary several hundred feet of sinking before the ore zone is entered into. The work will be costly, but it is undertaken in the expectation the deposit will be found of satisfactory proportions. There are both hard and soft ores in the vicinity of North Lake, doubtless underneath the basin of that body of water itself, and at some point the mineral probably lies in quantity sufficient to justify vigorous development. Ore shipments from the American mine to the Algoma Steel company's plant at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., which has now been closed down in all departments, have been suspended. The Hanna company had been making all-rail shipments of from six to eight carloads daily from the American property for several weeks past.

The Mesaba's Producers.

The range, the last to be opened—this in 1892—and in area and in the dimensions of its ore deposits much more extensive than any of the other four great districts, it is on the Mesaba that the developments in later years have been chiefly responsible for the steady increase in the number of producing mines of the Lake Superior iron region. There were on the shipping list last season a total of 182 properties. No less than eighty-nine of these were located on the Mesaba; thirty-eight were on the Menominee, twenty-six on the Marquette, twenty-three on the Gogebic and six on the Vermilion. Of the total of 182 shippers, eighty-one were new mines added to the list during the five years ending with 1907 and seven were old-time properties rejuvenated. Of the eighty-one new producers, sixty-four were Mesaba properties. The most notable of these were the Hull-Rust, Burt and Morris, a trio of Steel corporation producers, and all in the 1,000,000-ton class. The Hull-Rust, undoubtedly the world's greatest iron mine, shipped the truly stupendous amount of 4,590,000 tons of ore in the two seasons of 1906 and 1907, its record of 2,900,000 tons the latter year never before having been equalled by any mine on the globe. The Burt, opened in 1905, has forwarded 4,740,000 tons the past three seasons, and the Morris, developed the same year, has done even better—4,960,000 tons, of which 2,075,000 tons were sent out in 1907.

Eight new producers have been developed on each of the Menominee and Marquette ranges since 1903, inclusive. Those on the Menominee are the Caspian, Chatham, Fogarty, Hollister, James, Munro, Vivian and Youngs, in addition to which the Breen, Calumet, Fairbanks and Saginaw have been rejuvenated. The new shipping mines on the Marquette were the Austin, Breitung, Hematite, Empire, Maas, Mary Charlotte, Moore, Rolling Mill and Stephenson. The American and Baron properties are old-time producers that are being reopened. On the Gogebic, the Castile has been listed among the shippers since 1903, and the Pike is in the rejuvenated class. The Vermilion has developed no new propositions. There are mines in course of development on all the ranges, excepting the Vermilion, the majority of them on the Mesaba, and next year the shipping list will be well over 200 in number.

Stripping Around Hibbing.

Stripping operations having now encroached upon the very verge of the business district, and the removal of a considerable number of buildings having already been necessitated, the time does not appear to be far remote when teh townsite of Hibbing will be fairly engulfed as a result of the mining work carried on in that immediate vicinity. The field is the hub of the Mesaba range. Its basin contains the most stupendous bodies of iron ore ever discovered. Considerable of these deposits underlie the city itself, and it would seem that their extraction can eventually mean only one thing—the removal of this community of 20,000 people, the metropolis of the range—bodily to some new location.

Directly to the north of the townsite is the Steel corporation's Burt-Pool open-cut mine. This pit is already of goodly size, and it will be made much bigger. On the east side of Hibbing is the Sellers property of the Steel corporation. This tract has been the scene of extensive stripping work, and there is much more yet to do. Last year all previous records were broken at this property when, in the course of one month, three steam shovels removed 225,000 cubic yards of material. This was better by 75,000 yards than the average run. The surface material has been removed to a point in proximity to the former underground workings. The overburden will now be stripped from this latter area. This will mean the abandonment of the present shaft.

With the stripping gradually closing the gap between the two properties, it will not be a great while before the Burt and Sellers are connected, and thus there will be formed a continuous excavation extending for one and one-quarter miles north and east of the city. On the south side of Hibbing the Shenango Furnace company's Shenango mine is being stripped. The over-burden here is one of the heaviest o nthe range, it ranging in depth between 90 and 10 feet. To the west the Steel corporation's Hull-Rust and the Mahoning Ore company's Mahoning pit are drawing closer to the town. All these operations mean that it will not be many seasons before the Mesaba metropolis is practically hemmed in with great open cuts, and that buildings where people now live and business is transacted will have to give way to the invasion of the miner. The railroad problem is already a serious one, an dthere is great interest in its final solution.

Stripping at the Mahoning.

On the Mahoning lands, two additional forty-acre tracts will be stripped this season. One of these adjoins the present pit on the east, and with its excavation the Manhoning will be pushed a quarter of a mile nearer to Hibbing. The overburden averages twenty-five feet in depth. The mining company, itself, is doing the stripping. The second forty is to be stripped by contract. This tract lies to the south o fthe present mine, with the Steel corporation's Hull-Rust in between, and it will be known as Mahoning No. 2. The surface material is some forty feet in thickness. Its stripping was started last fall. The Mahoning pit is the most extensive of its kind anywhere, and there are eight forties as yet undeveloped, five of which lie between the mine and Hibbing townsite. A great volume of stripping work will be done at the Hull-Rust mine this year. The ore contained in this tract forms the largest single deposit ever found. It amounts to some 15,000,000 tons, and except for the top layer it runs high in metallic iron, constituting, in fact, the principal source of the Steel corporation's supply of Bessemer material. Eventually the Hull-Rust pit will be upwards of one and one-half miles long.

Notwithstanding the dubious trade otlook, the Steel corporation's stripping program for the year is a tremendous one. Aside from the operations at the Sellers, Burt and Hull-Rust, milions of cubic yards of overburden will be removed from the Monroe-Tanner, Leonard, Fayal and Morris, at these properties by contractors, and from the Gilbert, Hartley, Pillsbury, Mountain Iron, McKinley, Virginia group, Canisteo, Holman and Windom tracts by the corporation itself. The Windom is a new proposition on the Western Mesaba where such vast work has been done the past two years at the Canisteo and Holman. The Leonard, which adjoins the Clark mine at Chisholm, and which was taken over from the Great Northern interests last summer, has a deposit of some ten million tons.

On the whole, the volume of the stripping on the Mesaba this season will be fully as great as that of last year, when all previous achievements were surpassed. It is realized that the present depression in the iron trade is only temporary, and that with the return of prosperous conditions more ore will be needed annually than has yet been shipped, hence the operators—most of them—are preparing to meet all possible demands. Stripping work is in progress at the Sliver property at Virginia, long in litigation and now in the hands of the Hanna interests. Similar operations will be carried on at the Pillsbury Ore company's Crosby mine at Nashwauk; the Biwabik at Biwabik, the Jones & Laughlin company's Grant mine at Buhl and the Stevenson and Forest at Hibbing.

Deposits Near Aurora.

A start has not yet been made with the development of the Longyear lands on the east shore of Embarrass lake, near Aurora, and, indeed, it is not yet known what operating interest will get the tract. The drills have revealed the existence of an extensive deposit and the ore is of very good grade, but if conditions at the Bangor and Syracuse mines, in the same formation, on the other side of the lake, are a criterion, mining will be difficult and above the average of Mesaba costs. The overburden is wet and sandy. The St. Clair interests have been drilling for some months in near proximity to this big find at the Embarass logging dam, and are reported to have located what is believed to be a continuation of the same deposit. It was G. A. St. Clair of Duluth who explored the Bangor and Syracuse and whose successes there attracted others to the field. Since then the developments have been such as to presage the opening of a number of important underground producers. It is the prediction, in fact, that mines will be opened all the way from Aurora to Biwabik, a distance of six miles.

Nothing has been done at the Republic Iron & Steel company's Monico property, at Biwabik, since the shaft succumbed to the pressure of the quicksaid last year. Pickands, Mather & Co. continue the development of the Bangor, drifting being in progress and some ore being taken out, and they are still at work at the Syracuse, but under decidedly discouraging conditions. It is a continual battle with water at this latter mine, and with a veritable river pouring into the shaft, sinking is proceeding at the rate of only a few inches daily notwithstanding the pumps are forking out some thousand gallons per minute. It cannot be recalled that there has been a wetter proposition than the Syracuse ever opened in the Lake Superior region

At the old Kanawha mine, in Section 1, 58-18, G. A. St. Clair is sinking a new shaft to open a small-sized deposit and is drilling in search of additional ore bodies. Development continues at the New York State Steel company's new Kellogg property in Section 9, 58-16, between Biwabik and McKinley. No work is in progress at the St. James mine adjoining the township of Aurora, and it is probable the property will continue on the idle list throughout the season. It is a Corrigan-McKinney possession.

INTERESTING PERSONNEL OF NATIONAL COMMITTEES.

tended the helping hand and word to so many struggling and deserving young men that the word legion is necessary to describe their number.

McGraw also has a reputation for being democratic and helpful even among his political opponents, who hate him with a hate that is well nigh unspeakable. McGraw's friends look upon this hate as a tribute to his political sagacity. McGraw himself is not in the least disturbed by the fact that every Republican in West Virginia is a personal enemy to all intents and purposes. He is, in fact, one of the most imperturbable men in politics today.

The dramatic moment in McGraw's political life occurred the day he was unexpectedly defeated by Senator Scott for a seat in the United States senate. A count of the legislature had revealed forty-seven votes for McGraw, a like number for Scott and seven votes for Nathan Goff. The Democrats were jubilant; they were already going about declaring that Scott, the man they most feared, was beaten. Then, in the proverbial twinkling of an eye, one man changed sides when the roll was called and just before the result was announced—and Scott was declared elected. The United States senate refused to see McGraw's point of view in the contest that ensued, and Scott was declared legally entitled to the seat.

As a member of the Republican committee Senator Scott was one of its hardest workers in the last campaign. He was at his desk early and late, as he was in previous campaigns. It is his belief that hard work never hurt anybody, and he lives up to it religiously. He is, also, a frank talker, as presidents, even, have learned at first hand. Official Washington is frequently passing around and smiling at some picturesque utterance of the senator's which never sees wider circulation, because the senator is a very approachable man and the newspaper correspondents are aware of the fact.

Like Senator Scott, Former Governor Murphy, also a member of the Republican executive committee, is a Civil war veteran. He left school to enlist as a private in a New Jersey regiment; at the end of the war he was mustered out a lieutenant. When he became chairman of his party's state committee, in 1891, things looked pretty black for the Jersey Republicans. The party has been paramount in the state for twelve years now, and among his rivals, as well as by his co-workers, he is given a large share of the credit for this paramountcy. His wealth is reckoned in seven figures, as in the case of not a few members of both committees—Blanchard, Tom Johnson, McGraw, Campau, Tarpey, Gaston, Sullivan, Guffey and Osborne, among the Democrats; and Cornelius N. Bliss, committee treasurer; Charles F. Brooker of Conecticut, Frank O. Lowden, Senators Crane, Scott and Ankeny, Former Governor Herrick, Former Congressman Babcock, Powell Clayton, Frank S. Streeter of New Hampshire, among the Republicans. Practically every other member of the two committees is exceedingly well sppplied with this world's goods—some are millionaires, undoubtedly—and there is not poor man, in the ordinary use of the phrase, to be found among the entire 111.

Among the committeemen who may not be in the millionaire class, but who are "well healed" nevertheless, are Congressmen Brownlow, George A. Knight, Republican member from California, who is one of the coast's best known lawyers and has charge of the Charles L. Fair estate of $18,000,000; Chairmen New and Taggart and Clark Howell of the Atlanta Constitution.

Howell could build up a mighty fine (and troublesome) newspaper staff from among the present and former newspaper men on the committees. Chairmen New and Taggart were publishers and editors of now defunct Indianapolis dailies. Congressman Brownlow runs one of the noted newspapers of Eastern Tennessee, the Jonesboro Herald and Tribune. Former Governor Herrick, when he found himself in St. Louis with only $10—whither he had gone with a lot of cider to make a boy's fortune, but found the market against him—turned newspaper reporter for some months. Josephus Daniels is famed in the South as the editor and owner of the Raleigh, N. C., News and Observer. Norman E. Mack, Democratic committeeman from New York, is one of Buffalo's well known publishers. Daniel J. Campau is controlling owner of the Horseman and Spirit of the Times, devoted to breeding and turf news. Urey Woodson, Democratic committeeman from Kentucky and secretary of his committee, runs a newspaper in Paducah and another in Owensboro; while Elmer Dover, secretary of the Republican body, quit editing an Ohio paper in 1897 when he became secretary to the late Senator Hanna. Secretary Woodson has been the Kentucky member of his committee since 1896, and its secretary since 1904. He is a native of the Blue Grass State and all his activities have been in that state. From 1891 to 1895 he was railroad commissioner for Kentucky. When he became a newspaper owner and editor he was 22. Since then publishing and politics have been his fields.

Both Woodson and Dover, thirteen years his junior, are extremely affable and taciful, as a national committee secretary must needs be to be successful. Dover is a native of Ohio, and he had spent eight years reporting and editing before he was discovered by the late Senator Hanna and made his private secretary. During the years that Hanna headed the Republican national committee, Dover was of great help to him, according to the senator, whose affection for his secretary was a good deal like that of father for son. Dover's selection as secretary of the committee occurred in 1904, following Hanna's death, the committee realizing that the training he had received under his old employer would be invaluable to it in the campaign. Dover is one of the youngest men ever to hold the responsible position of secretary to either committee. Just now he and Woodson are up to their ears in the preparatory work of the conventions. In the final analysis the manner in which the convention machinery runs is up to them probably more than to the committee chairmen. And in this connection let it be noted that chairmen and secretaries hail from the three bordering states of Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky.

Stimpson, of Willimantic, Conn., who, after almost losing hope of recovery, on account of the failure of so many remedies, finally tried Foley's Kidney Cure, which he says was "just the thing" for him, as four bottles cured him completely. LAMBRECHT LOSES CASE

Fargo Promoter Must Stand Trial in Moorhead on Charges.

Judge Templeton Refuses to Issue Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—James F. Lambrecht, the promoter, of Fargo, will have to face trial in Moorhead, Minn., on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, as Judge Templeton, late yesterday afternoon, refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus in this rather noted case. Judge Templeton holds that the papers in the case were regularly made out and that Lambrecht must be delivered to the Minnesota authorities at Moorhead for trial on the charge preferred by John Haas.

Lambrecht was formerly president of the Northwestern Interurban Railway company, that proposes to build electric lines in the Red River valley, and it is alleged by Haas that he was induced to make a subscription to stock under false pretenses. Haas procured a warrant for Lambrecht's arrest, and Governor Johnson of Minnesota issued a requisition upon Governor Burke of this state for the accused. An effort was made to have Governor Burke refuse to honor the extradition, but after a hearing, this failed. As soon as the requisition was honored, Lambrecht's attorneys applied to the supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus, and the case was referred to Judge Templeton. The latter heard extended arguments, and yesterday's ruling followed. There have been rumors that the proceedings against Lambrecht would be dropped by inducing the witnesses against the accused to withdraw, but so far as known, this has not been successful. The friends of Lambrecht claim he is an abused man and that he will clear himself upon being tried.

TWO TOUGH ONES GIVEN DESERTS

Pair That Tried to Kill St. Cloud Officer Sentenced.

"I want a chance for redemption and reformation. I have never asked for leniency before, but I ask it now, for clemency for my mother and sister's sake."

St. Cloud, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—With tears streaming down his cheeks, and his voice trembling with the emotion that he could not control, Johnny Green looked up at Judge Taylor, in the district court yesterday, as he concluded, in the language quoted, a plea for a light sentence for having been implicated in the attempted robbery, in this city, last January, during which Officer Becker was shot and killed. Green and Pat Sheehan, his companion in crime, had both pleaded guilty to assault, and had been asked by the court if they had anything to say why they should not be sentenced. Green gave a brief review of his life, from the time he was born, in Iowa in 1879, until he was arrested here, last winter, during part of which time he had been in the Red Wing reform school, which he denounced, and two terms in the Stillwater prison. The court sentenced Green to eight years.

Sheehan said to the court: "I have nothing to say. I was born in Minneapolis in 1880. My mother lives there. I have no occupation. I was first convicted in 1898 and sent to the reformatory. I broke my parole, took to drink and was sent back. In 1904 was my next conviction, for arson, and was sent to the state pen."

Sheehan had no attorney and was sentenced to eighteen years at hard labor in the state penitentiary for assault in the first degree.

Ed Carmody, the other member of the gang, pleaded "not guilty," and asked for a lawyer. The court appointed Attorney Pattison, and his case will come up May 24.

Chicago Executive and Friends Enjoying Life in Brule Country.

Ashland, Wis., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mayor Fred A. Busse of Chicago and a party of friends are guests of Judge J. W. Lochren at his lodge on the Brule for ten days' fishing. They passed through Ashland Thursday evening on the way to Brule.

Mayor Busse, who is one of the Illinois delegates at large to the Republican national convention at Chicago next month, declined to discuss politics for publication. Others in the party are: John Renwick, a well known Chicago architect; W. McClaren, commissioner of public works of the city of Chicago; W. E. Clow of the firm of Clow & Son, and L. L. Barth, vice president of the Edward Hines Lumber company.

EVERYTHING SMOOTHED OVER.

St. Paul, Minn., May 9.—Hugh T. Halbert, chairman of the Republican city campaign committee, who was arrested last Tuesday, the day of the municipal election, on a charge of using improper language to Detective Fraser, whose arrest he secured, was acquitted in the police court yesterday. Detective Fraser and Patrolman Fallon, who were arrested on a charge of interfering with deputy sheriffs who were trying to arrest an illegal voter, were also acquitted.

GOT LETTER FROM GUINNESS WOMAN

Waupaca Man Who Failed to Respond to Murderess' Offer.

Waupaca, Wis., May 9.—Carl Peterson, the veterans' home fireman, who has been so closely associated with the Laporte tragedy that he considers himself lucky to have saved his life, left the home some time Wednesday night. No one at the power house where he worked was acquainted with his departure. He took all his effects in a large, old-fashioned handbag and is supposed to have left Waupaca during the night on a Wisconsin Central train. He has nearly a month's wages coming and was popular where he worked.

The following was the letter Peterson received from the Guinness woman, in Norwegian, the diction showing that the woman had a fairly good education:

"Laporte, Ind., April 14, 1908.—Carl Peterson, Waupaca, Wis.—Dear Sir: As I some time ago received from you a letter in answer to my ad in the Scandinavian, I will with pleasure answer the same. .

"The reason I waited for some time is that there has been other answers to the same ad. As many as fifty have been received and it has been impossible to answer all. I have picked out the most respectable and I have decided that yours is such.

"First I will tell you that I am a Norwegian and have been in this country for twenty years. I live in Indiana, about fifty-nine miles from Chicago and one miles north of Laporte. I am the sole owner of a nice home, pretty location.

"There are seventy-five acres of land, also all kinds of crops, improved land, apples, plums and currants. I am on a boulevard road and have a twelve-room house, practically new, a windmill and all modern improvements, situated in a beautiful suburb of Chicago, worth about $15,000.

"All of this is pretty near paid for. It is in my own name. I am alone with three small children, from 5 to 11 years old. The smallest is a little boy. The two largest are girls, all frisky and well. I lost my husband by accident five years ago and have since tried to get along as well as I could with what help I could hire. I am getting tired of this and have found that it is not well to trust others with so much.

"It is too much for me to look after things, and things are not as I want them, anyway. My idea of them is to take a partner to whom I can trust everything, and, as we have no acquaintance ourselves, I have decided that every applicant I have considered favorably must make a satisfactory deposit of cash or security. I think that is the best way for parties to keep away grafters who are always looking for such opportunities, as I have had experience with them, as I can prove.

"Now if you think that you are able in some way to put up $1,000 cash we can talk matters over personally. If you cannot, is it worth while to consider? I would not care for you as a hired man, as I am tired of that and need a little rest in my home and near my children. I will close for this time.

"With friendly regards,
"MRS. P. S. GUINNESS.
"Laporte, Ind."

The letter is written in a strong, bold style of handwriting.

GOING AHEAD WITH ROAD.

Contract Let for Northwestern Interurban Work.

Moorhead, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The stockholders of the Northwestern Interurban line between Fargo and Detroit are going ahead with the proposition and a contract has been let to White & McCoy of East Grand Forks, Minn., for nine miles of the grade. This will begin at Fargo Junction, the point from which the electric line leaves the Soo road near Detroit, and will extend toward Lake Cormorant. The grading is begun on that end so construction can be started at the point from which the material can be secured from the Soo line.

The contract was signed up by Vice President Callander for the company and construction work will begin in two weeks.

It is expected the line will be in operation over these nine miles by August.

BEMIDJI DEPARTMENT WILL SEND RUNNING TEAM.

Bemidji, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of the Bemidji fire department have finally agreed to send a running team to Thief River Falls to participate in the annual tournament of the Northern Minnesota Firemen's Tournament association, June 29-July 2.

The local fire department hesitated about sending the team to Thief River because of the fact that the dates first announced for the holding of the tournament conflicted with the dates selected for the militia encampment at Lake City. As many of the fire boys are also members of the militia company it would have been impossible for them to participate in the races at Thief River Falls, but the boys over west kindly changed the tournament to a later date.

STATE DRAINAGE BOARD.

Will Hold a Meeting at Aitkin Next Saturday.

Aitkin, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—On account of there being such short notice, the visit of the state drainage board to Aitkin, which was to have been made last Monday, was postponed until Saturday, May 16. The time of the day has not been stated, but it is presumed that the members of the board will arrive here on the morning train, and that the meeting will be held about the middle of the day.

Engineer Ralph will make his report of the survey of the proposed Waldeck-Pine Knoll cut-off canal, and as has been stated before, it is desired that the people in the territory affected by the high water should all be present.

TO STOP DITCH WORK.

Injunction Proceedings Commenced Against Polk County Ditch.

Fertile, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Injunction proceedings have been begun against County Auditor Hoffard by Joseph Larivere and others restraining construction and preparations for construction of county ditch 72. The ditch arises in the town of Grove Park and proceeds west through the towns of Godfrey, Onstad and Russia. The ditch was petitioned for by N. Z. Horton and others. The complaint alleges that the ditch has an outlet in a false coulee, of which No. 11 is the outlet and which has not sufficient capacity to carry the water now run into it.

The paper is accompanied by the recommendations of State Drainage Engineer Ralph and County Surveyor Hinds, who state that ditches 11 and 12 are too small to carry off the water forced down on them by the false coulee and the big ditch that empties into H and advise that the ditch be constructed and extended for three miles more so that sufficient outlet may be found in natural streams.

FARMER IS KILLED.

Fatally Injured While Blasting Stumps With Dynamite.

Ashland, Wis., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—While blasting some stumps with dynamite Alfred McDonald, a farmer living near Saxon, was fatally injured. SCHOOL BOARD'S POWER.

Can Suspend for Offense Committed Outside of Schools.

Madison, Wis., May 9.—The supreme court, in an opinion yesterday, said that "School authorities have the power to suspend pupils for an offense committed outside of school hours, and in the presence of the teacher, which has a direct and immediate tendency to influence the conduct of the other pupils while in the school room; to set at naught proper discipline of the school; to impair the authority of the teacher and to bring them into ridicule and contempt. Such power is essential to the preservation of order, decency, decorum and good government within the public schools."

The opinion was on a case in connection with a poem, written at home by two school girls of St. Croix county, which cast reflection on the government of the county school which they attended.

It is thought that the trial will take about ten days, and the general opinion here is that Col. Lovelace will be acquitted.

Both entered pleas of guilty, and Applin was sentenced to eighteen months in state's prison, while Smith was sentenced to fourteen months in the reformatory at St. Cloud. These are the bonds which were offered for sale a few weeks ago, but brought no bids on the day the sinking fund committee met to receive bids. The bonds were then offered at public sale, at the rate of par plus accrued interest, the least that can be received for them under the law. Yesterday a deal was arranged whereby $230,000 worth of the bonds were sold at that rate to H. W. Price & Co. of Boston. The remaining $20,000 worth has been sold to home investors in small blocks, most of the purchasers taking single bonds of either $1,000 or $500.

WHEAT HAS A REACTION

Market is Heavily Sold and Closing Prices Are Off.

Flax is Quiet, But Closes at Higher Prices in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 9.—Wheat was up and down in the American markets during the short session today, but the closing prices were weak.

Chicago began selling at the opening and prices sank. Then there was a rally which brought prices back, higher than yesterday's closing level, but another selling movement depressed the market before the close came.

There was scarcely any letup in the foreign demand today. Twenty-one loads of wheat were worked for export in the Duluth market, about seventeen of them being durum and the rest No. 1 northern and Manitoba.

Liverpool was strong, closing 1½d to 1½d higher. Antwerp closed 1¾c higher and Budapest 1¾c lower.

The May option closed ½c lower in Duluth, ⅝c lower in Chicago, 1⅜c lower in Minneapolis, ¼c lower in New York and ¼c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ½c lower in Duluth, ⅜c lower in Chicago and Winnipeg, 1⅛-⅛c lower in Minneapolis and ⅝c lower in New York. The September option closed ⅛c lower in Duluth, 1⅛c lower in Chicago, 1c lower in Minneapolis, ⅝c higher in New York and ¼c lower in Chicago.

July corn closed ¾-1c lower in Chicago and was ⅝c higher in Liverpool. July oats closed ½-⅝c lower in Chicago.

Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 263,000 bushels.

Clearances of corn were 3,000 bushels.

Wheat was fairly active during the session in the Duluth market. May wheat was inactive and closed ⅛c lower than yesterday at $1.08⅝. July wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.08¾, declined to $1.08⅝, reacted to $1.10 and closed at $1.08¾, a loss of ½c from yesterday. September wheat opened unchanged at 93½c, declined to 92c, reacted to 94¼c and closed at 93c, a loss of ½c from yesterday.

Durum wheat was unchanged and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet but closed higher. May flax was inactive and closed 1c higher than yesterday at $1.21½. July flax opened ¼c higher at $1.22¾, declined to $1.22½, reacted to $1.23 and closed at that price, a gain of ½c over yesterday. September flax opened late at $1.23⅝ and advanced by the close to $1.24, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. October flax opened late at $1.22¾ and closed at $1.22½, a gain of ½c over yesterday.

Rye was 1c to 2c higher and the other coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

General Rush to Secure Profits Causes Weakness in Wheat.

Chicago, May 9.—A general rush to secure profits after the bulge of yesterday caused a weak market in the wheat pit today. Cables were 1d higher but this fact was apparently ignored. July wheat opened ½@⅝c to ¾@⅞c lower, at 92¾c to 93¾c, and sold at 92⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 237 cars against 210 cars last week and 525 cars one year ago.

Sentiment continued bearish all day. The low point for July was 92½c. The close was weak with July 1⅞c lower at 92⅛@¼c.

The corn market was dull and prices were weak. The break in wheat and better weather throughout the corn belt for farming operations were the weakening factors. July corn opned ⅛@¼c to ⅜@½c lower, at 64⅜c to 65c and sold at 64½c. Local receipts were 122 cars with 18 of contract grade.

Prices ruled weak throughout the session. The close was weak and at the low point of the day, being ⅞@1c lower at 64½cc.

The oats market was weak in sympathy with wheat and corn. July oats opened ⅛c to ¼c lower, at 47⅜c to 47⅞c and sold at 47½c. Local receipts were 226 cars.

The provisions market was easy largely because of the break in the grain market. July pork was unchanged at $13.65. Lard was 2½c lower at $8.50. Ribs were 2½c lower, at $7.32½@7.35.

Close: Wheat, May, $1.05⅝; July, 92¼@¼c; September, 87⅝@⅞c. Corn: May, 72⅝@¾c; July, 64¼c; September, 62⅝c. Oats: May, old, 53¾c; May, 54¾c; July, old, 47⅜@½c; July, 47⅞c; September, 37¼c. Pork: May, $13.45; July, 13.65; September, $13.90. Lard: May, $.85; July $8.55; September, $8.72½. Ribs: May, $7.20; September, $7.60; July, $7.37½. Rye: Cash, 81c. Barley: cash, 62@74c. Timothy: May, $4.25. Cash wheat: No. 2 red, $1.04¼@1.04½; No. 3 red, 99c@$1.05; No. 3, hard, 9c@$1.05; No. 2 hard, $1.03@$1.08; No. 3 spring, 99c@$1.00; others, nothing doing.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Declines Early, But Quickly Rallies to Friday's High Points.

Minneapolis, May 9.—Selling of long wheat for profit was an early feature and on it the market declined somewhat, especially as Europe did not follow our strength of yesterday in full and was not as high as expected later, with a little buying, prices advanced quickly to yesterday's high points. The increase in the Minneapolis elevator stocks was greater than estimated 138,402 which brings the total back up to 5,138,047. Minneapolis got 153 cars against 251, Duluth 29 against 238. Near the close of the session reports came of 85 loads of wheat sold for export and other bull news but the market was weak and the bull items had no effect prices declining heavily.

July opened $1.09½@⅝; high, $1.09¾; low, $1.09⅜; close, $1.09⅜-½. September closed 92½c; May closed $1.09⅞.

The cash market was steady and fairly active on yesterday's basis, 2½c over July for No. 1 northern and half cent over for No. 2 northern. Millers were buyers of the best grades.

Cash close—No. 1 northern, $1.10⅝ spot or to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.08⅜, spot or to arrive; No. 3 wheat, $1.01¼@1.06¼.

No. 2 yellow corn, 67⅜@68¾c.

No. 3 white oats, 53¼c.

No. 2 rye, 75¼@76¾c.

Barley about the same as yesterday and not very active. Close, 56@67c.

Flax strong and advancing.

Early quotations were 1c under Duluth July, but later prices were ½c under. Close, $1.23¾.

Bran in bulk was quoted firm at $21.75 @22.00, with an active demand.

Flour has turned very dull. Today's business was lightest for some time. When the recent price advances were made considerable waiting business was entered and sales were larger for several successive days, but today they were holding off again. Flour prices were advanced 5c on all grades on the early advance in wheat and are quoted at the advance. Shipments 44,511 barrels. First patents, $5.55@5.70; second patents, $5.40@5.55; first clears, $4.20@4.35; second clears, $3.55@3.65.

WARM WAVE STRIKES CITY

Wilted collars were in vogue on Superior street today as a result of a warm wave, which struck the city last evening and remained all day today with constantly rising temperature. After the cold spell of the past two weeks, the heat today was oppressive at times, but the change was welcomed and Duluth reveled in the summer weather and prospects of a fair Sunday.

Observer Richardson of the United States weather bureau held out hopes for a continuance of the conditions of today in a modified degree. It will probably cloud up tonight or tomorrow morning and Sunday will not be as bright as today, with the mercury a little lower, but no rain is expected, and the parks, fishing streams and the river should have a good day.

SUPERIOR NEWS

Is Charged With Burglary.

John Gunderson was arrested yesterday, charged with burglarizing a meat market at 1127 Tower avenue. The accused demanded an examination and was committed to jail to await the same, in default of $300 bail.

Miss Megorden Wins Contest.

Miss Olga Megorden won first honors at the annual declamatory contest of the Superior state normal school last evening with her rendition of "Hagar." She will represent the school at the interstate contest to be held at Minneapolis next Friday evening. Miss Frances Tibbitt took second honors with a humorous selection, entitled "The Tea Party." Miss Irene Johnson was third with her rendition of "King Robert of Sicily."

Pupils Choose Trailing Arbutus.

By an overwhelming vote in favor of the trailing arbutus the pupils of the Superior schools have indicated their choice for the state flower of Wisconsin. The vote was taken yesterday in accordance with the plans of State Superintendent of Schools Carey. It is believed that the wild rose will be the choice of the majority of the schools of the state, however, as the greater number of schools are in the southern part of Wisconsin, where the trailing arbutus is practically unknown.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Gay & Sturgis: The week closes with the general list furiously active and strong. Transactions have been on a very large scale and manipulation has been much in evidence. The nature of the trading indicates an early subsidence of activity and a reaction. We should advise waiting before buying at this level. Locally the most favorable feature has been the strength in the investment copper stocks, such as Calumet & Hecla and Wolverine. The market has really been strong although the large gains in the general list rather overshadowed the copper fluctuations and make them appear insignificant. We are still very bullish, but think purchases should be deferred for a few days until the general market assumes a more normal condition.

Bank Statements.

New York, May 9.—The statement of clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks hold $63,883,475 more than the requirements of 25 per cent reserve rule. This is an increase of $1,530,575 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with previous account. The statement follows: Loans, $1,196,242,200; increase, $5,887,000. Deposits, $1,270,324,900; increase, $12,565,700. Circulation, $57,337,600; decrease, $911,000. Legal tenders, $68,160,200; decrease, $587,500. Specie, $313,394,500; increase, $5,529,500. Reserve, $381,494,700; increase, $4,672,000. Reserve required, $317,581,225; increase, $3,151,425. Surplus, 63,883,475; increase, $1,530,575. Ex-United States deposits, $73,674,975; increase, $70,125.

The percentage of actual reserve of the clearing house banks at the close of business yesterday was 30.03.

The state of the banks and trust companies of Greater New York, not members of the clearing house, show that these institutions have aggregated a deposit of $386,868,600; total cash on hand, $60,086,800, and loans amounting to $352,750,900.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 9.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 8 to 12 points in response to cables. During the early session prices eased off to about the closing figures of last night under local pressure and liquidation promoted by good weather and the smaller decrease in the visible supply of America than last year, but later there was another rally on covering and buying by strong interests with prices during the middle of the morning about 8 points net higher. Outlook was said to be for cloudy or showery weather in the Central and Western sections.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR COMMITTEE

Democrats Will be Taken Up the Mountains on Sunday.

Denver, Colo., May 9.—An unique entertainment is being arranged for the members of the sub-committee of the National Democratic convention, who arrived today to inspect the plans for the national convention in July.

Tomorrow the entire membership of the sub-committee will be the guests of President C. M. Day of the Denver Convention league, who will take them for a trip over the Moffat road to the banks of eternal snow, sixty miles from Denver. The trip will consume the entire day and the members will take their midday meal at the height of 11,660 feet, surrounded by immense snow fields. Mr. Day has arranged for a special train for his guests and a number of prominent Denver men who will accompany the party on this trip.

Other entertainments have been provided for them, and the citizens of Denver will endeavor to convince the committee that delegates and visitors who come here in July will have ample opportunity to enjoy themselves.

The session of the committee Sunday and Monday will be the last until the entire national committee meets in July, several days prior to the meeting of the national convention, to hear contests. The members of the subcommittee who are here are Norman E. Mack of New York, Roger C. Sullivan of Chicago, R. M. Johnson of Texas, Urey Woodson of Kentucky, J. E. Osborne of Wyoming, James C. Dahlman of Nebraska and Clark Howell of Georgia.

THREE BOYS TO GO TO LAKE GEORGE

Will Represent Duluth at Summer Conference of Y. M. C. A.

Three Duluth boys will journey to Lake George, N. Y., this summer, to represent the Duluth boys' department Y. M. C. A., at the summer conference and camp to be held there.

There will be delegates from almost every state in the Union present at the camp, when matters of interest to the Y. M. C. A. boys' department will be discussed.

The three boys who were chosen at the meeting of the cabinet last night were David Duncan, Harvard Rockwell and William Eklund. The boys are all members of the boys' cabinet and active in the association work. Their expenses, with the exception of a nominal sum, will be paid by the association.

The final meeting of the cabinet for the year will be held this month and will be in the nature of a farewell to the members who will leave this year to go to college.

The regular Sunday afternoon meeting tomorrow, at 4 o'clock, will be addressed by Rev. Roderick J. Mooney.

SHE WOULDN'T TESTIFY.

Complaining Witness Mute, So Minister is Exonerated.

Mandan, N. D., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state being unable to induce Mary Amundson, a domestic formerly employed in the family of the Rev. Boseley here, to testify against the minister, in accordance with the complaint she had made that he assaulted her, the case was dismissed in the district court, much to the joy of his flock, all of whom stood loyally by him in his trouble.

It was a peculiar case. Mary Amundson had been employed in the Boseley home and went out nights. For this the minister locked the door on her and let her go. She came to Bismarck to the Crittendon home, where she said she had been ruined by the brother of her cousin by marriage and that the cousin had threatened her life if she laid the blame at the door of the brother.

She told this story to a number of persons. Later she was sent home and a few days later she made a complaint against the minister, charging him with rape, she being under the age of consent.

In the meantime parties had approached the minister as friends and secured his signature to a paper which he claims to have supposed would hush the matter up, but which upon further investigation was rater incriminating, and was repudiated by the minister as having been obtained under false representation.

On the stand the girl positively refused to verify the charge in the complaint and the dismissal followed. The minister's friends claim to have testimony which would have completely exonerated him had it been necessary to produce, one of the witnesses being the complainant's mother.

INQUIRY FOR DULUTH REALTY IS INCREASING

G. G. Hartley Buys the McBean Property on East Superior Street for $500 Per Front foot, for Purposes of Improvement—Sales of West End Lots for Improvement is One of the Features of the Market—Interest is Centered in Appraisers' Report Making Award of Damages to Owners for New Courthouse Site.

The pleasant weather of the past week brought out quite a large inquiry at the local real estate offices, and nearly all the brokers report prospects of sales within the next few days. The transfer record of the week shows a fairly large number of trades, some of which were closed up earlier in the year. The sales of the past week have been confined mostly to unimproved property, few large deals being consumated, although there are some five or six that are on the verge of being closed. The West end, particularly, is showing much activity in the transfer of realty, many people buying lots there with the idea of erecting homes some time during the present season. The local architects are all busy getting out plans and some have had to increase their force of draughtsmen to meet the demand. Every week from six to ten building permits are being issued at the inspector's office for improvements in the way of new residences, or for alterations to old buildings. At the present time there is quite a large amount of improvement work under way and the local contractors claim that as the summer advances there will be even more. The work of razing the remaining buildings on the site of the Wisconsin Central Railway company's terminals, below Superior street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues west, is progressing rapidly, and the last building, the Metropolitan opera house, will be torn down this coming week.

Interest has been centered this week in the award of damages to the property owners about the intersection of Second street and Fifth avenue west, by the appraisers appointed by the district court in the condemnation proceedings instituted by the county for a courthouse site. The report of the commissioners, awarding an aggregate of $286,376.05 was filed in court this week, and the county board has appropriated from the general revenue and courthouse sinking funds enough to cover the amount. The county is now in possession of the properties that it sought to acquire, but the owners have thirty days in which to appeal from the award, should they so desire. So far as can be learned the award by the appraisers is generally approved, the figures being considered a fair valuation for property in that locality. In two cases the awards were identical with the options given the county by the owners.

The individual awards were as follows:

Lots 81 and 83, block 28, Third division, owned by Mrs. Ella Barker	59,462.40
Lots 77 and 79, block 28, Third division, owned by the Cash estate	20,000.00
division, and fractional lot 73, division, and fraction lot 73, West Second street, owned by A. M. Miller	34,761.55
Lots 88 and 86, block 20, owned by S. I. Levine	43,789.66
Lots 84 and 82, block 20, owned by Electra W. Spalding	51,527.10

One of the principal sales of centrally located business property closed this week was that of the 25-foot lot on the lower side of Superior street, between Third and Fourth avenues east, from the Johnstown Realty company to the Shogomoc company, or G. G. Hartley. The consideration is said to be $500 per front foot. The land sold is known as the McBean property, and was unimproved. Mr. Hartley has already begun the excavations for the foundations of two store buildings that he will erect on the lots he previously owned in that neighborhood, and the McBean lot. The sale of the property was handled through the office of W. M. Prindle & Co.

George H. Ebert reports the sale of 160 acres of land near Chub lake, four miles from Carlton, to Samuel Sutter, a carpenter of this city. Mr. Sutter is already building a house and clearing the land. A fine timbered tract of eighty acres has been sold east of Moose Lake, Carlton county, near the projected line of the Soo road, to J. J. Mullin, a plumber of this city, who expects to build a house on the land shortly. Other sales by Mr. Ebert include 160 acres in 57-7, Lake county; 200 acres in 56-8, and 160 acres in 60-11.

During the discussion that has been going on in the city and the county the past two years over the new courthouse a great deal has been said by well-advised taxpayers relative to the building of a courthouse large enough to meet not only the present, but the future needs of the county. That this policy is a wise one is borne out by the following pertinent comment, editorially, by the Improvement Bulletin of Minneapolis: "The interesting information comes on unofficial but fairly good authority that Chicago's $5,000,000 postoffice, supposed to be one of the modern wonders of the world, has already been outgrown. The newspapers of about even date bring the information that the appropriation for the new Minneapolis building is being trimmed down to half a million. The writer recalls, when the present Minneapolis building was finished, the remark of an intelligent citizen that the city would grow to it some time. Comments are unnecessary."

Duluth is attracting attention in building circles of the state relative to the agitation that has been started over the safety of theater buildings in this city. The Improvement Bulletin says: "Duluth is undergoing an agitation as to the safety of theaters in that city, competent authority having declared that none of them comply with the ordinance. The subject came up with a request for modifying the ordinance to permit a small house to seat less than two hundred, to operate without complying with the full requirements of the city ordinance. This is the same wail which is put up for every miserable plea in abatement of the requirements of the city ordinances—that the particular evasion will do no harm. It seems that the present wave of aroused and enlarged sense of responsibility for civic conditions has not reached the aldermen to any great extent, from the number and variety of requests to waive the conditions of the ordinance for the benefit of some 'lame duck' enterprise or other."

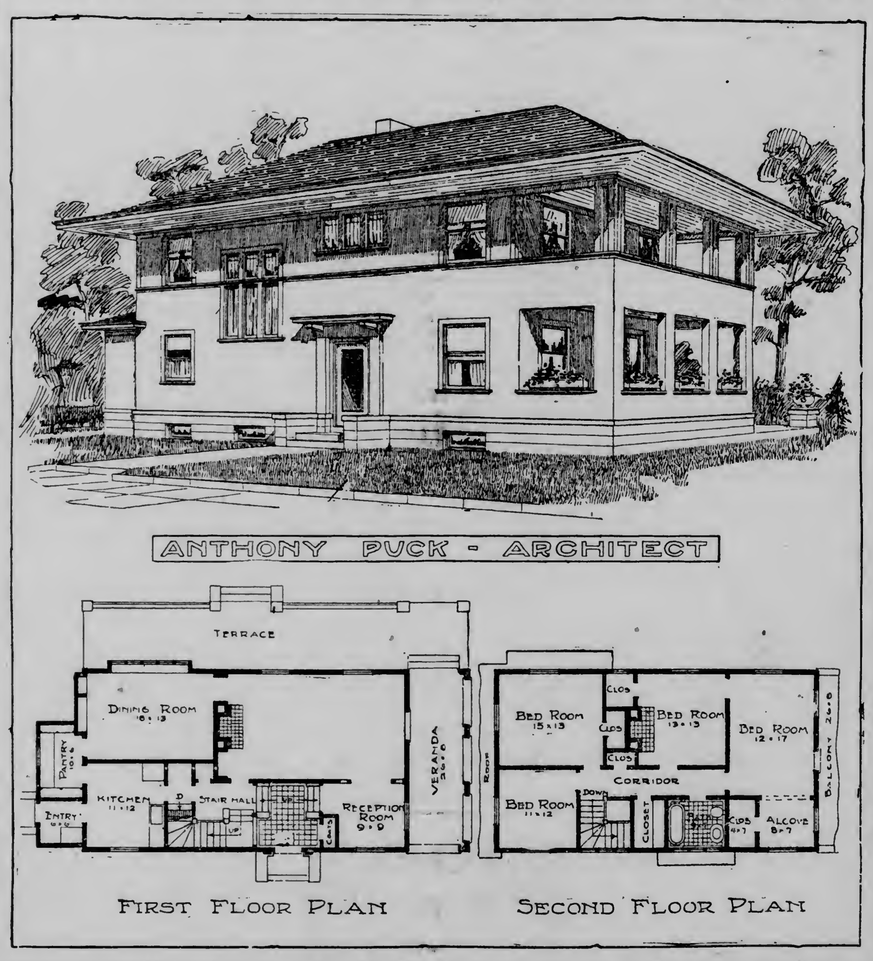
ARE YOU PLANNING TO BUILD? HERE IS A HOME COSTING $8,200



The object of this design has been to take advantage of sunlight and view from the side and rear elevations of the house. Assuming the location to be one on the lower side of the street, on the hillside or on the lake shore, the home as above illustrated has a most practical and desirable arrangement. The elongated plan, necessarily requiring a wide lot, gives all the principal rooms the natural advantages of the location. Aside from gaining what nature holds out in the location, the plan has features of convenience worthy of note.

The entrance is most convenient to all parts of the house, yet indirectly connected, thus assuring privacy to the living rooms. The entrance hall is three steps lower than the main floor, opening to the stairway and kitchen part on the left and the reception room on the right. From the reception room the spacious living room is entered, its attractive features being evident in the plan. French windows open from the living room to the veranda. The dining room is also a large room, having sideboard and china closet built in. The kitchen part is well equipped and convenient.

Separated entirely from the living rooms, yet conveniently accessible therefrom, the stairway is situated where it is most desirable in relation to all parts of the house, and rises at an angle to the second story.

Four large, light and airy bedrooms are planned in the second story. The closets are large and numerous. The bathroom is of good size and especially convenient to the main sleeping rooms. The corridor is well lighted and of good width. An attractive feature of the second story is a covered balcony over the veranda of the first story. This would serve as an admirable open air sleeping room, and could be easily screened or glassed in if desired.

The total length of the building is 60 feet and the depth 26 feet. The ceiling heights are 7 feet, 9 feet and 8½ feet. The finish of the first story is oak, the second story birch. The floors are of hardwood, except in entrance hall and bathroom, where they are of tile.

The exterior walls are of light colored stucco, on metal lath, and the roof of "Century" shingles.

In Duluth and vicinity a home of the above design and description would cost to build, including hot water heat and plumbing, $8,200.

IF YOU ARE THINKING
Of building a home, call and look over our large list of choice building sites, in all parts of the city.

We call attention particularly to the normal school district, from Twenty-first avenue east to Twenty-seventh avenue east, and from Second street to Fifth street. We are exclusive agents for a large amount of property in this district, which is sold with clause in the deeds, restricting the use of each tract to the building of one modern residence only, and prohibiting its use for mercantile buildings, flats or apartment houses. This protects purchasers of these lots and assures them of a desirable residence district for all time. Building is cheaper this year and now is the time to get your site. DO IT NOW.

On some of these sites we can arrange to build to suit you, and sell on favorable terms.

We are about to build three 7-room brick houses on attractive East end sites, and which we can sell on easy terms of payment. Will be pleased to show the preliminary plans which may be changed to suit purchasers before buildings are commenced.

THE MERRY WIDOW LETTER

Near Husbands of Mrs. Gunness Found on All Sides.

Good morning, have you received a letter from Mrs. Gunness?

It is becoming quite the fashion among the yellow journals of the bigger cities to discover a near victim of the Merry Widow from Indiana, who would have been one of her ill-fated husbands if he had had $1,000 to send along, as requested in the matrimonial advertisement.

The Merry Widow letter promises to become as popular among the men as the Merry Widow hat among the women.

Up to the present time no man has been found in Duluth who has received a letter from the widow of the Wabash, but there is still hope that some John Smith, or Peter Jones, can be located who will say he had a chance to become one of Mrs. Gunness' husbands, and refused. From Portland, Me., to Los Angeles, and from Waupaca, Wis., to New Orleans, might-have-been husbands are springing into prominence.

By Wednesday it is expected the committee on episcopacy will decide how many bishops are to be elected. That Rev. Dr. William F. Anderson, corresponding secretary of the board of education, Freedman's Aid and Sunday schools; Rev. Dr. Richard J. Cooke, book editor of the church, and Rev. Dr. William A. Quayle of Chicago will be among the first three seems certain in the opinion of men in the church best qualified to speak.

BIRTH RATE FALLS OFF.

Paris, May 11.—The vital statistics for the year 1907 show a further marked decrease in the birth rate for France which, in a century has fallen from 1,007,000 to 771,000 a year. The reduction in the number of births last year was 33,000 as against an average decrease of 12,000 for the last seven years. The deaths in France in 1907 totaled 793,000—19,000 more than the total of births.

MILLER AS THE TARGET

Took on All Comers at the Question Club Debate.

But Poor Old Uncle Joe Cannon Sure Got His.

Clarence B. Miller was the piece de resistence at the Question club talk yesterday afternoon.

The name of poor old Uncle Joe Cannon was dragged into the meeting, and the grizzled veteran from Illinois was used as a conversational doormat, on which the members wiped their feet. If there had only been a supporter of the Illinois veteran in the meeting he could have started something without any trouble, but it was all one way. The mildest thing said about Uncle Joe was that he didn't represent Republican principles, and before the bright summer's afternoon drew to a close his scalp was drying from the walls and they were holding a triumphant dissection of his political corpse.

Several of the members went to the mat with Mr. Miller in a free-for-all, catch-as-catch-can debate, but Mr. Miller was taking on all comers and generally managed to hold his own in the short five-minute bouts. He emerged somewhat breathless, a trifle disfigured, but still in the ring, and triumphantly upholding the principles of the Grand Old Party against the onslaughts of the Socialistic conorts. Several times they had Mr. Miller groggy and clinging to the ropes, but he always rallied before the count and was ready for the gong.

HER INJURIES FATAL.

Pioneer Brainerd Woman Dead in Eighty-Eighth Year.

Brainerd, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral was held from St. Francis Catholic church at 9 o'clock this morning of Mrs. Joseph Keibler, Sr., aged 88, who died Friday of injuries received last Monday, when she fell through a trap door.

Mrs. Keibler was one of the pioneer residents, having come here with her husband thirty-six years ago from Carlton, Minn. The couple came to Minnesota in 1857, living for a time at Hastings, and it is said that the husband of the deceased was once offered the lots upon which the Nicollet hotel stands in Minneapolis for $300, on time.

Mrs. Keibler is survived by her aged husband and three children, Mrs. Elizabeth Witham and Joseph Keibler, Jr., and Julius Keibler of Winnipeg.

SOCIALISTS' CONVENTION

Indications Point to a Warm Time at Chicago Gathering.

Line-up Between City and Farmer Members is Probable.

Chicago, May 11.—The Socialist national convention resumed its work today with every indication pointing to a storm which may culminate at any moment during the week's life of the convention in a decisive and definite line-up between the city Socialists in one camp and the agricultural or "farmer" Socialists in the other.

There is a definite line of cleavage in the convention which is likely to continue. The apparent issue is:

"Shall the Socialist party make a special appeal to the farmers of the United States and attempt to bring them into the ranks of outspoken Socialism?"

As high in the clouds was the temper of the convention as to its presidential candidate. The fight just now apparently is between Eugene V. Debs and William D. Haywood. Debs, apparently, cannot control two-thirds of the convention, and neither can Haywood.

Debs is not in Chicago. His friends are credited with attempting to secure the adoption of a two-thirds rule in order, it is charged, to defeat Haywood, even at his own loss. An attempt to force the two-thirds rule was defeated yesterday by the precipitate adjournment of the convention.

Other results of yesterday's session were:

A refusal to permit the women delegates to control a majority of the committee on the rights of women with regard to the Socialist movement, a refusal to name a committee to discuss immigration and a fight lasting throughout three ballots on the session of the proposed overtures to the farmers and the reference of the same to a committee of nine.

Of the Charges Against Col. Stewart of the Army.

Washington, May 11.—Senator Rayner today introduced a resolution "authorizing the president to convene a court of inquiry,' to consist of five officers of the army, to investigate charges and accusations against Col. William F. Stewart of the army, who had been detailed to serve until retirement at the abandoned military post at Fort Grant, Ariz. The resolution will lie on the table until tomorrow, when Mr. Rayner will speak upon it. He gave notice that he expected the senate to take action at that time.

HIS DEATH A MYSTERY

Red Lake Falls Man Passes Away in a Minneapolis Hotel.

Whether an Accident or Suicide Cannot be Decided.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Whether William Findleson of Red Lake Falls, Minn., who died last evening at the City hospital, committed suicide or whether his death was caused by an accident is a mystery.

The man came to Minneapolis to purchase goods for his store at Red Lake Falls and took rooms at the First Avenue hotel, 250 First avenue south. He retired Tuesday evening, apparently in good health. Later he was found by Thomas Carroll, proprietor of a saloon on the first floor of the building, lying unconscious on the bed, with the room full of gas and escaping from a jet which was wide open.

Findleson was taken to the City hospital, where, after lingering for three days, he died without regaining consciousness. He was about 45 years old and is survived by a widow and one child, residing in Red Lake Falls, where the body will be taken for burial.

Evidently Andrew Helgelein Did Not Die Without Struggle.

Prosecution Busy Gathering Evidence for Grand Jury.

Laporte, Ind., May 11.—Picking up the shreds of the evidence which is relied upon to connect Ray Lamphere with the deaths of Mrs. Gunness and her three children, and perhaps also the fate of Andrew Helgelein, will be the main object of the authorities here today. Whether search for more bodies will be prosecuted has not been finally determined. Sheriff Smutzer indicated yesterday that further excavating may be postponed until tomorrow. The sheriff has found difficulty in carrying on his work because of the morbidly curious persons who have flocked to the place where ten corpses were discovered last week. Friday the excavating in the barnyard was hindered, and Saturday it was halted by the crowds. It is expected, however, that the number of visitors will be lessed today, some 15,000 persons having inspected the grounds yesterday, and presumably satisfied their curiosity.

The grand jury was to have met today to consider Lamphere's case, but this procedure has been postponed for Several Isolated Towns Receive the Brunt of the Storm.

Damage to Property is Reported as Being Extensive.

Lack of Wire Facilities Prevents Full Details Being Known.

Woodward, Okla., May 11.—A succession of tornadoes swept over the district lying twenty-five miles southwest, south and southeast of Woodward, late yesterday and last night. Several small isolated towns, all off the railroad and without telegraphic communication, are reported destroyed, many persons have been injured and several are reported killed.

Seven towns are reported to have suffered damage more or less severe. They are: Grand, Arnott, Vici, Estelle, Cooley and Richmond. At each place casualties are said to have resulted.

The known casualties are:

At Arnett—Hale, killed; half dozen persons injured, one fatally.

At Vici—Hauser, physician, fatally injured.

At Mutual—Arthur Sibel, his wife and several others seriously injured.

Grand, the county seat of Ellis county, is said to have been wholly wrecked. The towns of Estelle, Cooley and Richmond, also, are reported to have been devastated. All these places are twenty-five miles from a railroad. Wires are down, and it is difficult to obtain details.

At Little Robe, fifty-five miles southwest of Woodward, Mrs. J. E. Hale was killed.

In the vicinity of Arnett, O. E. Null and daughter were caught in the storm while driving. They escaped injury, but their team was killed.

The little town of Cestos, Dewey county, also is reported wiped off the map.

The villages where the damage is reported are all small places. Grand is the largest of the seven, and it has only a few hundred inhabitants.

The scene of the tornadoes is the northwest corner of the old border of Oklahoma, close to the Texas and Kansas state lines. As far as learned it traversed four counties and covered a distance of seventy-five miles.

Tulsa, Okla., May 11.—A terrific windstorm passed over this part of Northeastern Oklahoma last night. Several houses were unroofed and small buildings were blown from their foundations, plate glass windows in Tulsa were broken and orchards in the surrounding territory were practically devastated. No casualties are reported.

WANT NO MORE WAR

Twenty-One American Republics Unite in Building Peace Temple.

Cornerstone Laid by President Roosevelt at Washington.

Washington, May 11. — President Roosevelt today laid the cornerstone of the first international temple of peace, friendship and commerce yet to be erected—the tangible evidence of the desire of the twenty-one American republics that war shall be no more in the western world and that material prosperity promoted by international trade shall take its place.

Fitting the historical importance of the event, the exercises were made impressive by the participation of the heads of each of these republics. Following addresses by President Roosevelt, Secretary Root, Ambassador Nabuco of Brazil and Andrew Carnegie, a cabled sentiment expressing the hearty approval of each president was read. Cardinal Gibbons and Bishop Cranston pronounced an invocation and benediction on the work done and the United States Marine band rendered selections of Pan-American music specially prepared for the occasion.

The new building is to be the joint property of all the republics. The site, provided by the American congress, consists of the historic old Van Ness home, the first pretentious mansion erected in Washington. It faces the Mall, is within a few hundred yards of the White House, and adjacent to the state, war and navy building, and the Corcoran Art gallery.

Three quarters of a million dollars towards the construction of the building is the contribution of Mr. Carnegie, while each of the republics has added an appropriation to the fund. The building is to be the home of the international bureau maintained by the American republics and is to be made the center of a continuous campaign of education, where one country may obtain accurate and up to date informa-

BURGLARS BLOW UP TWO SAFES

Postoffice and General Store at Manvel, N. D., Are Robbed.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two burglaries in Grand Forks county Sunday morning have stirred up the officials of this part of North Dakota and Minnesota. The safes in the general store of C. E. Colosky and the postoffice at Manvel were blown up, while the Great Northern depot at Northwood was entered, the burglars securing a sack of mail for their work. One man has been arrested in connection with the Manvel affair.

The postoffice is located in the Colosky store at Manvel. Sunday morning, at about 3 o'clock, the two safes in the building were blown up, the work being that of experts, for though the charges placed were most forcible nothing but the safes was damaged. From the postoffice safe $209 was secured, while from the safe, owned by Mr. Colosky, about $25 was taken. Mr. Colosky was awakened by the report of the explosion, arriving on the scene in time to take a parting shot at one of the yeggmen, but without effect. The men secured a horse and buggy, going to Oslo, Minn., where one suspect was arrested. There is absolutely nothing to connect him with the crime.

At Norwood the Great Northern depot was broken into, the men securing a sack of first class mail. The pouch was later recovered, but all the mail had been opened. There is no clue to the burglars.

TO CHOOSE A CHAIRMAN

Republican National Sub-Committee to Meet Wednesday.

Chicago, May 11.—The presiding officers of the Republican national convention will be chosen at the meeting of the national committee this week. Chairman Harry New of Indianapolis arrived in Chicago last night and today the headquarters of the committee will be formally opened. Secretary Elmer Stone will take up the work of preparing for the convention.

The meeting of the sub-committee in charge of the convention is scheduled for Wednesday and it is at this meeting that the temporary officers of the convention will be named. Senator Beveridge, Leslie M. Shaw and Senator Dolliver are the candidates whose names have been most prominently mentioned. The places of the secretary and chairman of the various committees have not been determined upon.

This matter will be the main feature of the sub-committee of the national committee and will take up most of the time of the two day's session. It is expected that the officers of the convention will be named by the end of this week.

Today Mr. New and Mr. Dover will open their offices in the Coliseum and will remain there until the convention is over.

So far there have been twelve contests filed with Secretary Dover, but it is expected that this week the south and west will add to this list. It has been the intention of Chairman New to call a meeting of the entire committee as soon as a majority of the contests have been filed with the committee.

EIGHT MEN ARE NAMED

Commissioner Patton Selects Several New Health Inspectors.

City is Now Divided Into Nine Sanitary Districts.

Health Commissioner Patton has named the inspectors for eight of the nine new sanitary districts of the city. Each of these inspectors will have general supervision over sanitary precautions in a certain part of Duluth. The names of the inspectors announced, together with the territory they will cover, are as follows:

First district, Lakeside, L. E. Parker; Second district, Eleventh avenue east to Twenty-fourth avenue east, A. Burbank; Third district, First avenue east to Eleventh avenue east, Joseph Carhardt; Fourth district, Fifth avenue west to First avenue east, B. W. Hintz; Sixth district, Thirteenth avenue west to Twentieth avenue west, E. Larson; Seventh district, Twentieth avenue west to Thirty-fourth avenue west, A. Husely; Eighth district, Thirty-fourth avenue west to Fifth-fifth avenue west, Walter Grimes; Ninth district, all territory west of Central avenue, West Duluth, W. A. Harbour.

These inspectors will begin their work this week, and will be on duty before the official cleaning day. Instead of naming next Wednesday as a time for everybod- to pitch in and assist in cleaning up the city, Mayor Haven says he probably will name next Saturday. He thinks better results could be obtained on Saturday, for Saturday offers a half holiday to a great many people, and the school children also are at liberty on that day. The principals of all the schools of the city will be asked to address their pupils, and ask for their cooperation in the cleaning campaign.

A SIX ROOM BUILDING

Board Adopts New Plans for Horace Mann School.

Will Confer With Park Board on Playground Question.

Although bids for the excavating and the foundations for the new Horace Mann had been advertised for and were to be opened at the meeting of the board of education held at the high school this morning, the board decided to wipe its slate clean of all plans and formulate new ones, to provide for only a six-room building instead of one containing eleven rooms.

Half a dozen bids for the foundation for the new school were received. These were ordered returned and all of the bids were rejected. The board also ordered the architects to submit bills for their services in preparing plans for an eleven-room school.

This done, the members proceeded to discuss plans for a six-room building, which finally resulted in instructions to the committee on buildings and grounds to prepare plans for a six-room school, for submission at the next meeting of the board.

In its report, the buildings and grounds committee pointed out that an eleven-room building was not now needed in the Horace Mann district and that, therefore, the money for so large a structure should not be spent at this time.

One member of the committee stated that the enrollment at the Horace Mann school had not materially increased during the last five years, and granting that the extension of the street car system on Piedmont avenue would increase the enrollment, that a six-room building will be ample for some years.

It is proposed, however, to make the new Horace Mann school, which is to be erected on the site of the present structure at Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street a building which can be enlarged without spoiling its appearance.

The Horace Mann matters took up the greater part of the meeting this morning. The members of the board argued on the different points for some time.

The park board presented a communication, asking for a conference with the school board to consider public playgrounds plans. The park commissioners were invited to attend the June meeting of the school board.

The board decided to sign the petition to the council protesting against the establishment of a horse hospital on lot 19, East Third street, Duluth proper, first division.

A communication was received from the West Duluth Commercial club, asking for additional manual training equipment in the Irving high school. It was received and placed on file.

CANNOT OCCUPY COUNTY ROAD

Court Rules McCoy & Dugall's Saloon Off Highway.

The judgment of Judge Dibell in the case of the township of Great Scott against Hugh McCoy and Frank Dugall, was filed in the district court this morning.

The town started suit for an injunction restraining the defendants from keeping a certain building used for saloon purposes on the highway along the section line between sections 14 and 15, in 58-19. It was alleged that the defendants had no road. There was no appearance on the part of McCoy when the case was heard.

Judge Dibell granted the restraining order petitioned for and gave the town judgment for $158.07 damages and costs, against McCoy.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The girl with the Merry Widow hat and the pleasant expression hailed the car. It was a Lakeside car, upon which many of the toilers of the day were returning homeward. It was also a car upon which some ladies who had been out enjoying a pleasant informal afternoon were also returning home. There were also men on the car whose brows, in poet parlance, were "wet with honest sweat," and then there were some who had not worked quite so arduously and who had been shivering more or less all day, earning or making whate'er they could. On the car there were also some individuals who were planning to get off between Ninth and Twentieth avenues east and who, as any Lakesider could have told you, had absolutely no business on that car. And then, in addition to all these people, there were still some.

The girl with the Merry Widow hat hailed the car and it stopped.

The gates opened. The man who was standing on the last step, and whose nose had taken on the imprint of the pattern of the gates because he was pressed so closely to them when they were closed, stepped down and off in order to let the Merry Widow on. There was no room. Another man stepped gallantly but reluctantly from the car. There was not room enough. Another descended two steps and, with a grandiloquent gesture, stood aside for her to enter. She thought there was opening enough to try, so she tried.

She placed one well-shod foot on the first car step and essayed to enter. The saw-toothed edge of her hat on the right side grazed sharp across the cheek and nose of the man pressed close to the side of the car. The girl with the hat is kind-hearted and polite, and said "I beg your pardon" to the man across whose face was a mark of angry red. The man gazed straight ahead of him. Politeness is all right in its place, but he was dinged, he said to himself, if he was going to say not to mention it or it was all right or something like that when he could fairly feel the gore slipping down his face.

When she turned her head to apologize to him the quill in her hat poked itself into the eye of a man who was standing back of her. When she turned she saw him holding his eye, from which the tears were flowing copiously. "I'm sorry," she said. The man said nothing—out loud. The girl stepped into the car. She clung by the handle of the door and teetered back and forth on her toes. She moved her head cautiously. "Ouch," said somebody behind her. "I beg——" she began.

"It doesn't make the slightest bit of difference," he said.

He had on an awfully natty brown striped suit and a right swagger-looking hat.

"I'm wafully sorry," she said.

"Really I wish you wouldn't think of it again," he said.

He must have been almost six feet tall.

"But I know it hurts," she objected.

"It doesn't matter," he said.

He had the pleasantest voice.

"Oh, but it does," she objected.

"I have forgotten it," he said gallantly.

He had the most taking way of fishing about in his vest pocket for car fare.

"I'll never wear the hat again,' she said.

"Oh, come now," he said. "You look swell in it."

She had the grace to blush.

"But those krinkly edges hurt like fury. I know they do," she said.

There was no use in talking, he was an awfully good-looking man.

"Who wouldn't be hurt," he inquired, "for the privilege of——?"

"Oh, you!" she said.

"Goodness, this is my corner," she added.

He rang the bell, and did it with such an air!

"That's funny," he said. "It happens to be mine, too."

"Well, did you ever?" she inquired.

And they both got off.

MT. HOLYOKE STUDENTS.

THE SILENCE CURE

Is Advocated For Frazzled Nerves of Social Collapse.

Absolute silence and complete seclusion! This is the antidote for the new disease, "Social Collapse," which is the order of the day in fashionable circles, says an exchange.

Everybody in society has social breakdown at some time or other, and when the first symptoms manifest themselves the patient is hurried into the "silent room," which is an apartment set aside especially for the treatment and cure of the malady.

On entering the dim recesses of the "silent room" the collapsee is completely isolated from the jangle and hubbub of life. There are no 'phones, messages, electric bells, lights or callers. The walls of the room are tinted a deep green, the floor is covered with rugs of dull and restful tones. The furniture is simple in outline and consists of bed, table and comfortable chairs. There are no pictures—not even flowers are permitted to relieve the cell-like simplicity of the room.

When the case is really severe a trained nurse is in attendance, but for the very first stages of the disease the woman with the over-wrought nerves finds that an hour or two of seclusion is sufficient to bring complete relief.

There are very few people who are aware of the great hygienic value of silence. Real rest and recuperation from social cha able or just plain nerves is only possible when a person is locked up in a room with the key on the inside of the door and a certain knowledge that positively no one will attempt to enter the room.

The value of the rest room is being recognized now by architects and there are many homes in which a room is set aside for rest. There is one little woman, the mother of six children. She is the busiest mortal in the world, but she manages every day to get an hour of complete rest by retiring to the rest room. This room is up in the attic.

"It took a long time to train the children to respect that hour," says the little woman, "but they take it now as a matter of course. The children used to get on my nerves until I was almost hysterical. I discovered, however, that one hour of complete rest made a new person of me and when I came out of my silent room I was full of good cheer and had the courage and strength to take up the rest of the day's work with calmness and serenity.

Fashion Notes.

Silver threads is a very telling trimming introduced in the lace and velvet with which it is the fashion to trim the yoke. And here again one can do a deal without spending too much. A skein of silver silk, or a spool of silvered thread will supply the touch of metal which is so much liked this season, and which marks the gown as being distinctly new.

Copper that is beaten and worked into artistic shapes is one of the newest things for parasol handles. The metal is frequently treated with acids, which converts the surface into a mass of dull rich blues and greens, reminiscent of a peacock's tail. To increase the similarity, "peacock eyes" are often set in the metal. Sometimes, too, the copper handle takes the actual shape of the gorgeous fowl. The designs are not heavy, as they are always made hollow.

In Paris the smart women have adopted the artificial flower almost universally, and it is used constantly in preference to real bloom. These flowers are pinned on the lapels of tailor-made gowns, are tucked among the frills of the stock and add the last touch of coquetry to the new empire sashes.

INTERESTING BRIDES.

Close Scrutiny the Portion of the Happy Maiden.

Weddings are interesting. One always wants to see how the bride looks, and what the bridegroom is like, writes Mrs. Humphrey in the Queen, in speaking of English brides. If she is very lovely, he very handsome, the marriage appeals at once to that spirit of the romantic that lives in most of us, hidden away in a kind of shyness, but there all the same. There is a real pleasure in seeing an ideal couple united in marriage. That it is universally felt is proved by the crowds that gather round the church when report has spoken of the beauty of the bride, the manliness of the bridegroom. Memorable, for instance, was the scene outside St. Peter's, Eaton square, on a certain Whit Monday, some nineteen years ago, when the duke of Portland married the beautiful Miss Dallas Yorke.

And who that was present can ever forget the loveliness of the late duchess of Leinster as a bride? Not only the exquisite face dwells in the memory, but the graceful figure and the perfect poise of the head upon the slender neck. The beauty of the bridesmaids had its share in the effect.

Far different have been some of the weddings I have seen. The most singular that recalls itself was one at which the bride arrived white and trembling, and, when scarcely inside the building, asked one of the bridesmaids, "Is he here?" "Yes, Jim has just seen him in the vestry." The relief of the anxious bride was visible to every one near. She recovered her color, and walked firmly up the aisle on her brother's arm. It was interesting to watch the demeanor of the good-looking soldier-bridegroom. He was testy with his best man, and made the responses in the gruffest possible tone. The bride kept looking at him furtively. There had evidently been some awful row. Rather amusing was the rate at which he rushed her down the aisle at the conclusion of the ceremony; but it must have been far from amusing to her when he left her standing alone outelds while he conversed with one of the men of his troop.

Another bride was given away by her brother with such beaming joy that those who witnessed the performance at once guessed at that terrible thing temper, and pitied the bridegroom. What must be the feelings of a bride, who, leaving her parents' home, knows that every one in it, from her father down to the parlormaid, is overjoyed to see her go? Temper is a disease with some people, and they are really to be compassionated. But it is difficult to remember this while suffering from the disagreeableness they cause.

WEEK-END PARTIES

Will Be Entertained Next Week at Spirit Lake.

The call of spring at the time when one can sit in the woods and see the trees grow, is more imperative than the call at any other time of year, and during these first spring weeks when everyone is in a flurry to get into the country, and no one is yet seriously thinking of country vacations, is the time when the outing places are most popular. Although the Spirit lake branch of the Duluth Boat club has not been formally opened for the season, there were many callers at the branch yesterday. The branch house has not been closed entirely during the winter, but by next Sunday the assistants will be returned to their work and meals will be served for the members. The cottages will be opened and things put in readiness for the entertainment of the week-end parties.

Among the members who called at the branch house yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Morrow and Miss Bailey. Others who were there during the day were Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Owen, Miss Bastable, Miss Ethel Becklinger and Messrs. W. A. Becklinger, Walter W. Carr and H. C. Matzke.

The berries are each day becoming better tasting and cheaper, and strawberry shortcake has become the most familiar dainty at the table.

Shad continues to occupy an exclusive corner of the market, and lake trout is fresh and fine. Sauerkraut is still to be had.

GRADING IN CITY LIMITS

Work Started on Wisconsin Central Railroad in Superior.

Work was started today on the grading for the Wisconsin Central road within the Superior city limits. Balch Brothers have the contract for the whole job, and the work will be pushed with all possible haste.

There are in all, about three miles of grading to be done. It is all light work as the right-of-way lies for the most part over practically level ground. In two places only are there slight fills to be made.

The line runs from Ogden avenue to South Superior. The grading has been started from the Ogden avenue end. Only a few men are now employed, but as the work advances, larger crews will be put on the job.

Will Hear Complaint.

A number of Superior people will be in Madison tomorrow to attend the hearing before the state rate commission in the action started by the Peoples' Telephone company to compel the Great Northern Railway company to use its telephone service in Superior. The telephone company claims that the railway company is discriminating against it and has deprived it of a great deal of business by refusing to install its telephones in the shops, roundhouses and similar institutions. It is claimed that the alleged discrimination in favor of the other telephone company compels employes of the road to use the Bell telephone.

Town Will Build New Road.

The town of Superior will build an eighty-foot highway, graded from Sixty-fourth street to the site of the steel corporation's proposed bridge across the St. Louis river. The road will be about one and one-half miles long. T. W. Wahl has offered to grade a road from the bridge three miles south, to connect with the Dewey road, provided that if the town will grade the highway he will macadamize it. The matter is under consideration.

Will Go After Encampment.

The members of Alonzo Palmer post, G. A. R., and the Woman's Relief Corps of Superior have elected delegates to the state encampment, to be held at Racine, Wis., June 16 and 17, and the delegates have been instructed to use every honorable means to bring the 1909 encampment to Superior. The commercial club is interested in the matter and will help to land the state encampment if possible.

Teamster Accused of Larceny.

Joseph Watchler, a teamster, was arrested Saturday on the charge of larceny. It is alleged that Watchler stole about $100 worth of goods while employed to move the Pederson Brothers' stock of goods from the old location of the Fair, at Broadway and Tower avenue, to the new store at Belknap street and Tower avenue. The police are said to have recovered a quantity of the stolen goods. A woman is said to be responsible for his undoing. She told the police that Watchler had been giving fancy presents to herself and another woman, which she had reason to believe were stolen.

LOOKING FOR MRS. GUNNESS

Pittsburg Police Believe She May be in That City.

Pittsburg, May 11.—Pittsburg police and detectives are looking for Mrs. Belle Gunness of Laporte, Ind.

A railroad conductor is their authority for believing that the woman is here. C. D. Burlingham, running on the Cleveland and Pittsburg division of the Pennsylvania system, is the conductor and he says he brought the woman here on his train at 6:40 o'clock yesterday morning. The suspect eluded a brakeman detailed to watch her at the union station.

Oklahoma City, May 11.—"I have been in the little grocery and confectionery store in Chicago avenue in Chicago, where Mrs. Gunness lived, many a time," said an Oklahoma City resident who desires his name withheld, today. "She was at that time supposed to be the wife of a man named Sorensen and both stayed in the store most of the time. I was not in Chicago at the time of Sorensen's death, but lived in that neighborhood for several years and frequently saw both. I remember of one occasion when Sorensen became suddenly ill after dinner and it was thought that he would die. His relatives became suspicious that his wife had attempted to poison him, but nothing was ever done towards sifting the matter. It was generally known in the neighborhood that she was of a degraded nature and a woman of intense temper. Since the facts of her many murders have come to light I can recall many incidents in the neighborhood of the little store that are not above suspicion."

On Saturday last Emil Greening, a carpenter, and Fred Greening, his brother, a painter, who lived here and who last summer worked on the Gunness farm in Laporte, gave circumstantial details of the mysterious arrival and disappearance of a dozen different men at the Gunness place. The man quoted today in an interview is not one of the Greenings.

ANNUAL TAX SALE IS ON

Bidding Not Very Heavy on Delinquent City Lots.

Best Class of Local Realty Rarely Gets in List.

The delinquent tax sale which began in the auditor's office of this county today did not bring many prospective purchases to the opening session. The sale began at 10 o'clock this morning and, up to noon, there were about a dozen or fifteen persons present. The sale this morning covered some of the city property on which the taxes have been delinquent, for the most part, for several years. The present valuation of Duluth real estate, however, has prevented very much desirably located lots getting on the delinquent list and practically all that offered for sale were lots on which the taxes and assessments have piled up for some time. The sales this morning ran comparatively light. There is, generally speaking, less delinquent property on the list this year than in previous years. The sale will continue until the county auditor has offered for sale all the delinquent property in the county.

OPEN SHOP ON VESSELS OF THE LAKE CARRIERS

Association Will Hire Men Without Considing the Unions.

Shipping Offices Will be Opened at Once in Duluth.

Members of the Lake Carriers' association are determined to hire whom they please to make up their boat crews and the organization is opening shipping offices at different points on the Great Lakes to carry on this work. In Duluth, offices have been rented in the Board of Trade building and James Curry is expected this afternoon to take charge of the office.

The Lake Carriers' association is going to maintain a position of frank independence this season, hiring men for the boats owned by association members, whether they belong to the unions or not. It will not make the slightest difference to the vesselmen whether the men who are hired belong to the unions or whether they do not; if they are good workers they will be hired and at the best wages the carriers can afford to pay.

This is the attitude of the Lake Carriers, as outlined this morning by G. A. Tomlinson. Mr. Tomlinson is a prominent member of the Lake Carriers' association and is a member of the executive committee which has this matter of association shipping offices in charge.

This executive committee has supervision over the entire situation, but the committeemen have been given certain districts after which they are to look particularly. Mr. Tomlinson looks after the Lake Superior district; another member of the association after Lake Michigan and there are three committeemen who have supervision of the Lake Erie district.

James Curry, who is to be the association's shipping master in Duluth, will have offices adjoining Mr. Tomlinson's suite, on the top floor of the Board of Trade building. There will also be a shipping office at the foot of Fifth avenue west, and the association has arranged for the chartering of a gasoline launch to take the men to the different boats.

The real object of the Lake Carriers' association in establishing these shipping offices at different points is to maintain an "open shop" policy so far as their boats are concerned, and they are keeping up this attitude right along.

Firemen, seamen and cooks are men who are to be hired through these offices and the Seamen's union, the Marine Firemen's, Oilers' and Water Tenders' union and the Stewards' union are the ones which will be interested in the progress of the Lake Carriers' shipping office plans. The chances are they will frown upon the new move, but whatever they do will not deter the Lake Carriers from putting their plan into practice.

"The Lake Carriers are willing to hire the best men they can get, regardless of union affiliations," said Mr. Tomlinson. "We are not going to hire men because they are union men or because they are not. It does not make any difference to us what they are, as long as they are good men and are willing to work at the wages offered. But we are going to hire whom we please."

Just what the effect of the establishment of the association shipping office will have will be watched with interest by all marine men. Mr. Tomlinson, who represents his fellow lake carriers in this part of the country, is a vesselman of considerable experience and has gone through two strikes.

The first strike he was mixed up in was the masters' and pilots' strike, and his six bouts—all he owned at that time—were involved with seven others in the principal controversy.

Mr. Tomlinson also figured in the firemen's strike five years ago. During that difficulty, Mr. Tomlinson went over to Superior to hire some men and was attacked by strikers' sympathizers and so badly injured that he was laid up for two weeks.

SET DATE OF OPENING.

Meeting of Lake Vessel Owners to be Held at Cleveland.

Ore shipments from the range will amount to practically nothing before June 1. Statements of shippers show that nobody is anxious to get the ore on the docks, with no prospect of immediate shipment down the lakes, as there is plenty on the docks now to care for the boats for some weeks after the season opens. The William A. Paine took a cargo out of Superior Saturday night, the third cargo of the season. The shipments prior to June 1 will not total 50,000 tons.

M. A. Hanna & Co. have posted notices at Ashtabula Harbor that two of their docks will not be operated this season. The lake front docks are the only ones not included in the notices. Poor business outlook is ascribed as the cause and the men have been notified to look for other work.

The meeting of the vessel owners at Cleveland tomorrow holds interest for marine people in every port on the lakes. The date for a general opening will be fixed and the general opening means the beginning of ore shipments, as the ore trade is the backbone of bulk freight operations. The grain activity exists only in the spring and fall to any marked degree and tonnage cannot be chartered for coal unless there is prospect of a return cargo.

SINKS IN SOO RIVER.

Barge Moravia Goes Down With Cargo of Coal for Superior.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 11.—The barge Moravia, bound from Buffalo to Superior, with coal, in tow of the steamer Fleetwood, took a sheer and struck bottom when about half way up the dyke, puncturing a hole in her starboard quarter. The puller kept her free until she reached here, when she sank at the government pier. The cargo will have to be unloaded here and temporary repairs made before the barge can be taken to dry dock.

STRIKE OF SEAMEN.

Eight Boats Unable to Sail From Bay City, Mich.

Bay City, Mich., May 11.—Eight vessels failed to clear from here yesterday as intended, owing to a strike of seamen. The seamen demanded $50 per month instead of $40 as offered. The vessels affected are the propellers J. P. Donaldson, Ogemaw and Langell, and the schooners Charles Wall, Dayton, Katie Brainerd, C. J. Fillmore and Jackson. The boats were scheduled to leave yesterday for Georgian bay ports to get lumber cargoes.

UTICA GOES AGROUND.

Package Freight Lightered From Western Transit Company Boat.

Milwaukee, May 11.—The steamer Utica of the Western Transit line ran aground on the south shoals near this city early yesterday morning and was released at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after lightering 250 tons of package freight. The steamer was not badly damaged, merely scraping the hull.

KNOCKS BRIDGE OVER.

People Have Narrow Escape When Steamer Strikes Structure.

South Chicago, May 11.—While going up the river to Hedstrom's coal dock yesterday afternoon, the steamer Yale crashed into the bridge at Ninety-second street, breaking the shaft and knocking the structure off its bearings. A large number of people were on the bridge at the time and there was great excitement, but all escaped without injury.

THE HIGHER PESSIMISM

Pastor Decries the "Ostrich Philosophy" of Blind Optimism.

Rev. George R. Gebauer, at the First Unitarian church, yesterday said:

"Pessimism is to optomism what the valley is to the mountain." "Mountain and valley belong together; they are one. We best see the height of the mountain from the valley below; we best appreciate the valley from the summit above. And if we would get the full grandeur of scenery we must press onward through the valley upward to the summit. Just so in life. We cannot know life, nor its highest joys except we have passed through the valley of hard experience. Indeed, pessimism and optimism by themselves are mere idle words. The best possible world may after all be a very unsatisfactory world; the worst possible world may offer many a comfort. Thus pessimism and optimism meet in spite of their opposition. They are complementary. And whatever our own view of life may be, it can never be a sound view until we have overcome the truth of the pessimist.

"There is in fact nothing so cheap as a shallow optimism so much in vogue in some circles. You all have heard the doctrine that all is good and sweet and lovely in life; that this is God's world and therefore there can not be in it anything that might be called evil. This is a teaching that sounds like mockery to a soul that has drunk the bitter dregs of life. Evil, so runs the tale, is only negative, imaginary; it does not exist anywhere but in our deluded soul. (How that sould can be deuded into a perfectly good world we are not told.) This kind of teaching must not be mistaken for that deep thought of Browning, when he says: 'The evil is null and naught is neither omplying sound.' For here evil or silence is recognized as a factor in harmony; without silence no sound, without pause no measure. No evil to that school of cheap thinking I refer to is entirely superfluous; it is a subjective disease, not objective reality. To me it is a dangerous teaching. It is an ostrich philosophy which harbers ill. It says: 'Put your head in the sand of our philosophy, read no newspaper nor novel, see no drama, never go near a hospital, keep away from people who are so foolish as to be miserable, avoid the dens of vice and sin, and all will be lovely to you. Just deny the devil and the devil will disappear. Turn your thought to goodness and beauty and you will be beautiful and good. All such preachers of goodness do not see, that goodness implies the bad, and if one be an actuality and not a mere illusion, so must be the other. Only realities can oppose each other. If ever we reach the point of consciousness where we only see good, we have ceased to be like unto the gods and know good and evil, we shall have returned into the Eden of intellectual babyhood.

"To the true thinker the world is full of the sad and bad, and mad, no matter if he call himself an optimist or a pessimist. And happily that shallow tendency in our day is counterbalanced by a more serious apprehension. Our own great American optimist, Prof. Royce of Harvard, says: 'One hears nowadays very often of youthful pessimism. When I hear of these things I do not regret them. On the contrary I think that the best man is the one who can see the truth of pessimism, can absorb and transcend that truth.'

"I do not think it is necessary to bring to you concrete illustrations of evil; it is all about us. What, then, should be our attitude toward this life so full of good and ill? Is life worth living? If life were like a coat we might put on, such a question were perhaps proper. But what is our life? It is part of the all. We do not have not life, but we are life; we are the life we live. How can the drop in the ocean complain about its saltiness? For us it is to make the best of life's saltiness. We must believe, that for evil, there is so much more good, as Rabbi Ben Ezra says: We must realize that neither pain nor sorrow nor joy in itself give life its worth, but that both pain and joy come to lift us into a greater life, the eternal life."

HOPE OF BEING STAR IS ENDED

Ohio Girl Spent $10,000 to Become a Star Actress.

New York, May 11.—Students of the drama who have as yet failed to see the name of Clarabell Spanier, of Columbus, Ohio, in electric lights over the door of any Broadway theater may find the reason in a story told to Charles S. Berry, of the Berry Detective Agency.

After hearing a statement made by Miss Spanier, whose father is a wholesale grocer in Ohio, Mr. Berry set to work to discover the whereabouts of several men.

Miss Spanier said that she had spent $10,000 in the furtherance of her ambition to become a star actress, and that the only starring tour upon which she embarked lasted only three weeks.

"I did not want to go through the drudgery of playing minor parts," said Miss Spanier, "and as I had $10,000 of my own, I thought I could buy my way into stardom. Friends in Columbus had told me I had talent, and I came to New York, ready to spend $10,000 in getting a hearing. I engaged nine actors and actresses, and bought $500 worth of scenery, to say nothing of dresses and photographs. Our tour began in New Jersey and ended in Massachusetts, and we never made any money from the beginning to the end.

"After the tour I discovered that I had been overcharged for the scenery. I tried to get my money back and the men laughed at me.

"I pawned a diamond ring for $500 in order that the members of my company might get back to this city from Pittsfield, Mass., I pawned other jewelry, but I never asked any of my relatives for a cent. Now that I have failed in my ambition to become a great actress my relatives want me go home and forget the stage. I feel that I was badly treated and that if I had been given a fair opportunity I might have amounted to something. I shall now go back to Columbus and give up my idea of becoming a star."

MEMBERS OF PROSPERITY ASSOCIATION CALL ON THE PRESIDENT TO URGE AID

been placed upon the national statute books. It applauds the correction of evils in business methods.

"After ten years of great prosperity the body commercial entered upon a period of depression and stagnation. The signs that the period is passing begin to multiply. There is promise of bountiful crops. The unemployed are eager for work. Relations between capital and labor are not strained. The financial stringency has passed. Capital is anxious for safe investment.

Should Get Together.

"With such conditions, prosperity waits only on confidence. We believe this is an opportune time for business men with honest ideas to get together. We believe the disposition of business interests is in the right direction and should receive encouragement.

"Therefore, Mr. President, the National Prosperity association has been formed, designed, in the first place, to promote confidence among our business men, and in the second place, through co-operation with you, to impress the confidence upon all of our people and the world at large. The association will facilitate interchange of opinion among the 100,000 non-partisan business organizations of the country. Business has suffered too much already from demagogic agitation; therefore, the association will seek relief from continued agitation by professional agitators. It will deprecate the unworthy spirit which arrays class against class. It will seek that unity of brotherhood which you have proclaimed. It will insist that the American business men's standards are high; that his methods are clean. It will proclaim what you have proclaimed, that the bulk of our business is honestly done. It will point out that the disturbance of public confidence was not due to the enactment of reform legislation, or to the punishment of specific wrong in methods, but to gross violations of law by some corporations and grafting by some public officials, and to a defective currency system. Upon the heels of the insurance exposure came the earthquake of San Francisco, with the resultant damage, amounting to several hundred million dollars, impoverishing citizens as well as insurance companies. Then came the discovery of bribery and grafting in some of our large cities; the manipulation of railroad assets and prosecution of corporations for violation of the laws of state and nation. Those revelations naturally shock confidence. Reforms were imperative.

Recognizes President's Efforts.

"You, Mr. President, effected them and today the country realizes the value and potency of the remedy.

"The association recognizes the debt the business interests, indeed, the whole country owes you for what you have done. It feels now that the time has come to take stock, to call a halt upon radical hasty and experimental legislation, designed to regulate industry. If the law officers have knowledge of violations of statutes, let prosecutions proceed vigorously and expeditiously before grand juries and in courts. The dishonest corporation, the dishonest railroad management should be punished. But the honest corporation, the honest railroad management should be protected; and this the association relies upon you to provide. Upon railroads, particularly, public attention has been focussed. No other interests have suffered as severely as they have during the past six months. Less of gain is apparent with the railroads than with other kinds of business. Shrinkage of values has been very great. The Hepburn law, for which you are responsible, has introduced a higher standard of administration, but there have been unwise state enactments and agitation for harsh federal laws harmful to the properties from the standpoint of the operator and employe and the investor.

"A national political campaign is opening. Platforms are to be adopted. The national prosperity association will ask for fair-minded consideration of business issues by both parties. But the association does not believe that prosperity depends upon politics. It is convinced that business should revive; that the unemployed may find work; that the normal volume of trade may be reached without waiting for the November elections. To that end, the association will address itself.

"In seeking your support of the work of the association, Mr. President, we are inspired by the view that your co-operation will go far to aid in the restoration of hopefulness, of confidence and of right thinking in our land."

President Replies.

The president responded as follows: "I am in hearty sympathy with the avowed object of the National Prosperity association. It is excellent. We have gone far in uprooting abuses which threaten our national life. Taken as a whole, the standard of honesty in our business life has been high, and today the standard is, I believe, beyond what it has ever been, and this largely because we have made determined war on the abuses that lowered it. As you have said, the depression and stagnation from which our country is now happily beginning to recover were not caused by reform legislation, but by the revelation of shocking conditions in certain of our corporations, by reckless operations in high finance, by calamity and by certain striking, though I believe exceptional, instances of business and civic dishonesty. Of course all good men must agree with you in your condemnation of unwise agitation. The pathetic acceptance of abuses in our governmental and business administrations is no more dangerous than the demagogic appeals of professional agitators to class hatreds. Our national conscience, I firmly believe, has been awakened.

"We will not and cannot go back to the conditions which tolerated wrongdoing. Neither can we afford to be led astray by those who would embark us in a visionary and twisted crusade against all corporations, all business methods. We should address ourselves to the faithful and honest observation of the laws of civic righteousness. The welfare of all of us can best be obtained by serving for a policy which will promote the welfare of each of us. We must all co-operate in order that benefit may be derived by the entire nation. Good laws make for good government; but laws are of no avail unless vitalized by the people who made them. Our recent legislation has been a good and it is to the interest to the entire country, especially of the business interests, that it should be enforced. Such further regulatory legislation as is required is merely a building up on the broad foundations that have been laid. It conceals no menace to business, any more than that legislation which has already been enacted. There is no need for agitation concerning it; there is no excuse for demagogic sentiment about it. It is as much our duty to conserve the real rights of property as it is to conserve the real rights of labor. This we have done in the past and this we ought to do and will do in the future.

Confidence Not a Matter of Law.

"The country realizes that confidence is not a matter of law. It is an intangible something which exists in the relation of men. Those relations have been strengthened in our own country by the economic reforms that have been instituted. Therefore, we are more powerful today than we have ever been. So far as the present administration is concerned, it will continue unchanged the policy of safeguarding the rights of all and of embracing every possible and legitimate means to advance the welfare and prosperity of our country.

"Let there be no misunderstanding about this. The business and commercial interests of this country to be prosperous in any enduring sense must be administered honestly. With occasional exceptions, they have been and are now so administered as you have well said, wherever there is evidence of dishonesty it must be pursued relentlessly and punished; but having thus moved forward to a high plane of business integrity and on that plane built wisely, let no man seize the moment, when we have as a nation, pilloried the real malefactors to see that all American businessmen or even any considerable number of them are malefactors. I welcome your work and shall be glad to co-operate with you in any effort to establish prosperity on right and honest lines."

ARE EGGS LIVE STOCK?

Importer Seeks to Evade Tariff by Novel Proposition.

Washington, May 11.—Is an egg livestock?

If it is bought for the purpose of hatching, is it livestock for breeding purposes?

G. F. Statter of Sioux City has the department of the treasury worrying about these and sundry collateral questions. Mr. Statter sent to England for a couple of dozen eggs of the Black Orpington, an especially aristocratic "general purpose" hen; that is, a hen that can lay an egg every day and at the same time be eaten for dinner with satisfaction and comfort.

The cheerful joker who billed the eggs out of England and who didn't know anything about the tariff valued them at $100. When they got to the customs house at Sioux City duties of $25 were assessed against them. Mr. Statter protested. He had heard of the famous ruling of Secretary Shaw that frogs are poultry for the purposes of tariff, and he figured that eggs were livestock, potentially, at least.

Under the law registered livestock imported for breeding purposes is entitled to come in free. But the department decided against the Sioux City man, and his only hope is to reopen the case. Meanwhile he is for tariff revision—not at the hands of its friends.

MANY BIDS SUBMITTED

Courthouse Commission Has About 350 Bids on New Building.

About 300 Bids Will Arrive From Chicago Tuesday.

At noon today Secretary Claypool of the courthouse commission had about fifty sealed proposals for construction work and supplies in connection with the proposed new courthouse at the intersection of Second street and Fifth avenue west.

Bids were also received until noon today at the office of D. H. Burnham & Co., the Chicago architects. While it has not yet been learned definitely how many bids were submitted to the architects, it is believed that the number will be close to the 300 mark as the architects had about 250 bids in a few days ago.

The bids will be opened by the courthouse commission tomorrow noon. So far as now planned the bids will be opened at the offices of the commission in the Providence building, but it may be necessary to engage larger quarters owing to the large number of people interested in the bids who will be present. For the past few days contractors and material men have been flocking to the city to get the lay of the situation and be on hand to sell material to the successful bidder on the various classes of contract work. There are thirty classes of bids so that there will probably be a wide range of prices in the 350 or more bids that will be opened tomorrow.

Owing to the large number of classes of bids the work of opening the bids is bound to be more or less complicated. It is not believed that there will be more than twenty or twenty-five bids submitted covering the entire construction of the new courthouse.

It is expected that representatives from D. H. Burnham & Co.'s offices in Chicago will arrive on the Omaha train tomorrow noon with the sealed proposals that have been left with the architects up to noon today. The bidders, it is said, are scattered all over the country.

TOOK TURNS AT FISHING

Lines Formed at Pools on Upper Waters of Lester.

Hundreds of Anglers Whipped the North Shore Streams.

Fishermen returning from the meadows at the head waters of the east branch of Lester river, where they spent Sunday trying to hook the wary trout, report that both banks of that stream were so crowded with anglers that it was a fight to get a line in the water. It was so crowded that they almost had to stand in line to wait their turns, and even when they got their tackle into play, a tangle with some other fellow's line was almost sure to follow. It goes without saying that under these conditions no large catches were made.

The road from the end of the Woodland street car line, out past Arnold, to the two branches of Lester river, was traveled by a procession of fishermen last evening. Few of their creels contained more than a dozen trout, though some who had started out Saturday evening and camped all night at the river, so as to get the early morning fishing, had managed to get fairly good messes.

Hundreds of fishermen swarmed in the woods and waded the streams of the North shore. Every train to the range Saturday afternoon and yesterday morning was crowded with ardent disciples of Walton, who were impelled by the improved weather conditions to test their luck in the hitherto unproductive streams. The fishermen's special train over the Duluth & Iron Range yesterday was well patronized, fully 300 leaving Duluth for the various streams along the route.

For the next month, all of the streams will be vigorously and consistently fished. The Lester continues to be popular with the small boy and the big man, who can leave the city for only a few hours, and its supply seems to be almost inexhaustible. The Sucker and French are popular on account of their accessibility, and the streams farther up on the North shore will draw the parties, who make longer expeditions.

Parties returning yesterday reported that the ubiquitous mosquito was on the job with the vigor of a summer day. For the next month, however, they will not be very active, and the fishermen will get in their best work.

DO NOT WANT IMPROVEMENT

Property Owners Protest Against Paving Twentieth Avenue East.

A delegation of East end property owners appeared before the board of public works this morning and entered a strong protest against improvement work on Twentieth avenue east, from Superior street to Fourth. It is proposed to grade and pave the street and also construct a storm sewer in the district named. The cost of the improvement, as estimated by City Engineer McGilvray, is $24,641.40.

The first assessment already has been levied against the property benefitted. Property owners interested maintain that the expense of the paving, grading and sewer construction is more than they can stand at present and ask for a delay of the improvements on that account. The delegation this morning included John Panton, William Burgess, R. P. Dowse, G. M. Tallant, J. F. Walsh and several others.

May Make Temporary Loan.

The county expects to make a temporary loan of $150,000 from the local banks to secure funds to pay the awards made by the courthouse site appraisers. The county board voted an appropriation from the general revenue fund, but at present there is scarcely enough money on hand in the fund to pay the awards. The taxes are coming in steadily, however, and it is expected that the money borrowed will be repaid at an early date. If the owners of the property taken should take an appeal to the district court from the awards the county will not need to make a loan.

State Fifty Years Old.

Fifty years ago today, Minnesota became a state in the union. On May 11, half a century ago, congress passed a bill admitting the bread and butter state. When President Buchanan signed the bill, telegraphic dispatches telling of it were sent to Prairie Du Chein, Wis., then the nearest telegraph station and word was sent on from there by other sources. The first newspaper accounts of it were printed in the Daily Minnesotan two days latter.

Has Narrow Escape.

A chain on a swinging derrick became entangled around the legs of George Wendrick, a workman on the interstate bridge Saturday afternoon, and the man was nearly plunged into the water. If this had happened he probably would have been killed. He was working on a scaffold, and was pulled off by the chain and dropped to some planks below, being bruised in the process. Wendrick is now at St. Mary's hospital.

Company Must Produce Books.

At the request of John McAlpine, who is defendant in an action brought by the Butte & Superior Copper company to compel him to take some copper stock that he does not want, and which he claims that he did not agree to purchase, Judge Cant has ordered the copper company to produce certain books and accounts and documents for the defendant's inspection.

Arthur Kreiger reported to the health department this morning that it was at his cabin that three men lived for a time a week or two ago. He says he found the men there, and was informed that one of them was sick. No one attempted to stop him as he approached the door. He does not know what was the matter of the sick man. Mr. Kreiger's cabin is situated on Lester river. It is being fumigated by the health officer today, on the chance that the man may have been afflicted with a contagious disease.

NEW OFFICE FOR BREWERY

Fitger Brewing Company Will Erect a $50,000 Office Building.

Plans for a new office building for the Fitger Brewing company are now completed by Louis Lehle, a Chicago architect, and will be submitted for approval some time this week.

The new building will be erected where the company's old bottling house now stands and to the west of it. The plans and specifications call for a two and three-story building, 38 by 85 feet, which will be built of brick and concrete, with gravel roof. With oak finishings, maple floors, marble and tile work, gas and electric fixtures and plumbing, the cost of the new building is estimated at $50,000.

The contract for the construction of the building will not be let before next week, when work will have started on tearing down the old bottling house.

YOUTH BOUND OVER.

Crookston, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—"Schnapps" Schuler and Robert Johnson, two 15-year-old boys, charged with breaking into Smith's pool rooms last month, have been bound over to the grand jury in $400 bonds.

GRAND JURY MAY HAVE BIG STICK FOR COUNCIL

Is the grand jury investigating the action of the council in refusing to revoke the saloon license of Fred Merritt, after it had been shown that Merritt had violated the liquor laws and had no defense for doing so?

This afternoon Chief of Police Troyer and City Attorney C. S. Wilson were summoned as witnesses before the grand jury. They were still giving their testimony at 3 o'clock this afternoon, having been in the grand jury room for the better part of an hour.

There has been considerable unfavorable comment regarding the action of some of the members of the council, and it is claimed that they had no logical reason for refusing to revoke the license.

It is believed that the grand jury has at least had the matter under advisement, and some developments may occur.

Several of the village officials of Chisholm were also witnesses before the grand jury this afternoon, and it is understood that the alleged election frauds at the recent municipal election in Chisholm are being probed.

VICTORY IS BELITTLED

Bryan Men Trying to Detract From Johnson's Triumph.

Would Send False Impression of Governor's Strength Abroad.

Local Bryan workers, it is claimed, will meet some time this week and agree upon some line of action, protesting against the election of certain delegations which attended the St. Louis county convention, according to the information that comes from one of the Bryan leaders today.

They are of the opinion that some of the delegates were elected in a manner that is entirely satisfactory to their side, and after agreeing on the floor of the convention, Saturday, that all the contesting delegations should be allowed half a vote for each member, the Bryanites now come out with the statement they are dissatisfied with the way that certain things were conducted.

As a matter of fact, the suggestion that all the contesting delegation be seated, without referring the matter of their credentials to the committee on credentials, came from the Bryan side of the convention. They are evidently seeking a plausible explanation for the overwhelming defeat that engulfed the Bryan delegates.

The Johnson workers consider the temper of the Bryan men as only a means toward an end. It is to make the impression go abroad that Minnesota is not so overwhelmingly for Johnson as the returns would indicate. There can be no chance of any legitimate protest in St. Louis county, as to the other counties where there is talk of Bryan men not accepting the Johnson victory in a sportsmanlike way, the information here is to the effect that their grounds for protest are just as flimsy as they are in this county.

The action of the Bryan men in Ramsey and Hennepin counties is considered absurd by the Johnson men here. They have no hope of accomplishing anything definite, but are simply seeking to spread an erroneous idea of the result of the conventions in those counties.

It now looks as if the Bryan delegates to the state convention will number less than one hundred. It is not certain that the Bryan faction will be able to control that many delegates. They claim more than that, but when the convention is called it is predicted that their claims will prove to have been greatly exaggerated.

The convention will be so strongly for Johnson that a few Bryan delegates either way can make no difference toward the general result of the convention. It is also probable that the talk of what the Bryan men are going to do will melt away before the convention is called and that the Bryan men will see the wisdom of accepting defeat with a smile.

A. P. Yngve of Cambridge, Minn., is the first and only candidate in the field as yet for the purely honorary office of presidential elector from the Eighth congressional district. Minnesota will have eleven presidential electors—one from each congressional district and two additional ones, equaling the number of senators from this state. Daniel Anderson of the same county from which Mr. Yngve hails is the republican elector, and it is likely that Mr. Yngve will be selected by the Democrats.

Copper Shares Have an Advance During the Day.

For the purpose of looking over mining properties in which they are interested, a large party of Duluthians will leave the last of the week for Butte.

Before returning they will also inspect some of the mines in the Coeur d'Alene district of Idaho. It is possible that some members of the party will go to some of the Southwestern copper camps before coming home.

The personnel of the party will probably be as follows: Martin Rosendahl, W. T. Smith, J. H. Robbers, Millie Bunnell, John Panton and I. Friemuth.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper is in better demand and prices are a shade higher. Lake is 13 to 13⅛ cents and electrolytic 12⅞ to 13 cents per pound. Producers are very well pleased with recent developments in the trade. It is claimed by those in a position to know that the tremendous exports of copper, agcraging 2,230,000 pounds daily for six months past, represent an actual legitimate demand from European consumers. It is declared positively that the consumption of copper abroad has increased 40 per cent since the price of the metal declined to around 13 cents per pound. This export movement is continuing, and producers find that their output is sold and that there are no longer any surplus supplies in the market.

"An improvement in the domestic demand is beginning to manifest itself. A very great deal of copper wire is being purchased by electrical companies for the renewal of lines, and some, also, for extensions. As is always the case when the price of the metal is low, there is increased consumption of sheet copper for roofing, cornices, etc. The largest selling agency has just established a flat rate of 13 cents for lake copper, and is refusing to give 30-day tenders on the metal at that price.

"The outlook for an advance in metal prices is very much more encouraging than it has been for several weeks past. It seems quite probable now that prices will advance fractionally in the immediate future, and there is good reason to hope that the metal may sell at 14 cents and possibly 15 cents during the closing months of the present year."

GOOD NEWS FROM C. & S.

Well-Known Mining Expert Makes Favorable Report on Property.

The Calumet & Sonora Mining company has just received a letter from Forbes McRae, in which he says:

"Mr. Trainor has been over here this morning. I took him down in Catalina shaft No. 2, and in all the drifts. Mr. Trainor says, we have another Cananea Central and that the showing in the east drift, where we are now working, is fine and the vein immense. Mr. Trainor is the man who opened up the Cananea Central for Mr. Talbot. Mr. Trainor got wildly excited when we got down on the second level and saw what we had in the west drift and in the winze. Chivera No. 2 is still getting better and is now at the forty-three-foot level and, as you know, this shaft has ore all the way down. Prospect shaft on the Norton claim now down twenty-five feet, getting good ores, mostly lead and silver; cross-cutting in the winze towards the prospect shaft. The ore is very high grade. This is the ore Mr. Trainor got so excited over. Now on the way to Chivera No. 2.

ARE IN NEED OF REPAIR

Many Bridges of the City in Very Bad Shape.

Appropriation of $37,500 Entirely Inadequate to Meet Demands.

Practically every bridge so far examined by the inspectors in the employ of the city engineer and board of public works departments is in need of repair, and an average of about $850 will have to be expended on each one of them before they will be in proper condition for use. All the structures will not be repaired, however. Some of them will be done away with entirely for the time being. Others will be replaced by culverts and earth filling, and one or two concrete bridges will be built. Up to the present time twenty-five structures have been reported as being in need of repair.

The most expensive job of the kind is on Grand avenue, near Thirty-seventh avenue west, where it will cost $4,500 to make the necessary improvements. The present bridge is 207 feet long, fifty feet wide, and twenty-one feet in height. It is considered very likely that this structure will be replaced by a culvert and earth filling. It will cost $2,000 to put the bridge at Fifty-ninth avenue west and Polk street in good repair, and $1,600 for the bridge on Oneota street, near Forty-third avenue west, which is 443 feet in length.

City Engineer McGilvray is thoroughly in accord with Mayor Haven's idea of constructing and reconstructing bridges of concrete, wherever possible, and an attempt will be made to put up one or two concrete structures every year, following out the policy of the mayor. The total appropriation for bridges this year is $37,500, and this amount will not allow much to be done in the way of concrete.

The twenty-two bridges thus far reported on require nearly $20,000 to be placed in perfect repair, so it is evident that the appropriation will not be adequate to meet the demands of the 199 bridges of the city. Where earth filling is possible, it is cheaper than concrete, and improvements of this nature are of a permanent character. Of course, there are places where the filling in with earth is not practical.

WANTED BIG PAY IN THE ARMY

Recruit Said He Had Been Leader of Crack Band.

His clothes were a trifle travel-worn and in frequent places the needle had accomplished needd repairs, but when one has worked on great missions and for great people, what matters it if one's clothes, like one's fortunes, have seen better and more prosperous days?

So it was with Neke Norensten, a leader in one of the crack Finland bands in the better days—so he said—who applied for enlistment as a bandmaster in the United States army this morning. He had played before great men of his country; he had been in the army of his native country, and he would perform a like service for the people of this country.

Norensten was hardly through informing the recruiting officials of the great service he was ready to perform for the army of this country when he anxiously inquired as to the pay Uncle Sam doled out to the men who furnish the martial airs to the soldier boys.

When he was informed what a first-class musician receives in the United States army, the enthusiasm of Norenstein vanished like hail before a burst of sunlight. He, who had played before the crowned heads of Europe; he, who had been high in the circles of his country, play for a mere stipend! But somehow the officials didn't seem to be impressed by the fact that Neke had played some kind of an instrument before a lot of petty titles, and he soon found that no special action was going to be taken in his case.

He only wanted $125 per month for giving his services to Uncle Sam. That was probably more than Neke had ever seen in one time before, but he demanded it just the same. America was the land of the free and easy money, and Neke intended to get it. He has failed to extract any easy money from Uncle Sam, but he may succeed elsewhere.

CANNON ON THE CARPET.

Last week, according to the dispatches from Washington, the president had the speaker of the house up to his office for a talk, and while there was no reporter's gallery to witness the scene, all the reports seem to agree that Mr. Roosevelt "talked turkey" to Mr. Cannon.

He was informed that he must get off his high horse and permit congress to enact some progressive legislation, and that if he failed to do so he would be held personally responsible for the failure to produce the legislation demanded by the president as the spokesman of the people.

The reports go that the speaker came out of the interview considerably chastened and subdued.

It was a timely act on the part of the president. The speaker controls the spigot of legislation, and unless the Republican majority in the house revolts, and unless the speaker changes his attitude, this congress will finish as it began, a "do-nothing" congress; and in the face of the nation's need, a do-nothing congress would be a disgrace to free government and an invitation to anarchy.

While it was all very well for the president to inform the speaker that he would be held responsible for a failure to produce results, the Republican party will find little virtue in blaming it to Cannon when it goes before the people asking a return to power this fall. After it is all over, and the failure of the Republican majority to produce results has resulted in Republican defeat, recriminations of this nature will find their proper place in a post mortem investigation. Then the party can blame Mr. Cannon all it wishes.

But before the country the party cannot evade its responsibility for him and for his dogged devotion to the cause of the "interests." He was made speaker by the Republican majority in congress, and the Republican majority in congress retains him in that position in spite of the gross manner in which he has abused its power. The rules that surround the speakership with more power than any other office in Christendom possesses were adopted by the Republican majority, and it is the Republican majority that retains these rules and thereby perpetuates a power that has been so infamously misused.

In short, the Republican party cannot by any possibility evade full responsibility for the tyranny of the speakership. It made Cannon speaker, it equipped him with a set of rules that is undemocratic and un-American, and it is permitting him to remain speaker and to gag the representatives of the people with that set of rules. Having set up this czar and protected him in his tyranny, it cannot go before the people with the excuse that Cannon did it, and that Cannon alone should be blamed.

Unless congress changes its attitude, and puts through legislation that up to now its whole machinery has been used to squelch, the party which controls both branches of congress must bear the full responsibility for its betrayal of the people.

THE FARMERS' CLUB.

A. B. Hostetter, who has charge of the agricultural development department of the activities of the Duluth Commercial club, last week organized in the township of Floodwood a farmers' club, and others are to be formed in various parts of the county.

These organizations can and will be made of great service in the important work of developing to their fullest possibilities the agricultural resources of this section of the state. Incidentally, they will be made the means of producing a full and representative exhibit from this county at the state fair next September.

Their usefulness will be shown in many ways. For one thing, they will provide a medium for the exchange of experiences and experimental work among the farmers. At the meetings of the clubs the peculiar virtues and requirements of the soil of the neighborhood will be discussed, and in this way the farmers will be enabled through mutual encouragement and comparison of notes to accomplish the best results. Besides, these clubs will provide a means of getting before the farmers the valuable information that results from the scientific experiments of nation and state in agriculture, dairying and other rural industries. While both state and nation are doing very important work along these lines, it is useless unless the results are communicated to farmers who will take advantage of them, and this is one of the most valuable functions of farmers' organizations.

Again, the Floodwood club is talking of going into several lines upon a co-operative basis, which is still another promising possibility of such organizations.

RAISING THE SOLDIER'S PAY.

The agreement of the congressional conferrees on the army bill makes it a certainty that the government will deal more liberally with its defenders in the future than it has in the past. The increase of pay provided by the present measure goes down the line from the rank of major general, the lieutenant general being the only officer whose pay is not increased. Relatively, the pay of officers is increased more than the pay of privates, and it is doubtful whether exact justice has been done to the rank and file. Until the depression created large bodies of unemployed workers from which to draw, the army had a desperate time keeping its files full, and as a matter of fact found it impossible. This was largely due to the small pay of private soldiers, and it is very questionable whether, after business activity is resumed, the increase in the pay of privates will prove sufficiently attractive to keep the regiments full.

The lieutenant general, whose pay is now $11,000, is not changed. Major generals are raised from $7,500 to $8,000; brigadier generals from $5,500 to $6,000; colonels from $3,500 to $4,000; lieutenant colonels from $3,500 to $4,000; majors from $2,500 to $3,000; captains (unmounted) from $1,800 to $2,400; first lieutenants (unmounted) from $1,500 to $2,000; and second lieutenants (unmounted) from $1,400 to $1,700. Mounts will be provided for all officers below the rank of major, or an allowance of $150 a year will be made if the officer provides his own horse.

The pay of privates and non-commissioned officers has been as follows: sergeants, $18 per month; corporals, $15 per month; privates, $13 per month. This part of the service will receive an average increase of 35 per cent under the new schedule.

While the increases may make the officers and privates now in the service feel more comfortable, they are by no means lavish enough to cause any great rush from men attracted by the profits of an army career. Still, it is a gain, and it is more in keeping with the remuneration of similar men in civil life.

It is hoped that the passage of the bill providing for the increase of pay will greatly improve the personnel of the service, facilitate the recruiting of the army up to its full strength, and lessen the number of desertions. It is hoped that soldiering for Uncle Sam will become a far more attractive and respectable occupation, that re-enlistments will be the rule rather than the exception, and that the country will be provided with the finest regular army it has ever had.

If it turns out this way, certainly the government will be getting returns all out of proportion to its investment, which is by no means a large one when considered in connection with the results it is aimed to secure.

SATURDAY'S CONVENTION.

Those who were attracted to the St. Louis county Democratic convention Saturday afternoon by absurd promises of a "close contest" and of "merry rows" were disappointed, and anybody who had paid the slightest attention to the returns from the primaries and had noted how overwhelmingly one-sided the fight was must have realized that these promises were based upon hopes rather than upon facts.

The convention was for Governor Johnson by a vote of better than 2 to 1, the minority not being numerous enough to make a healthy contest possible, and after the test of strength upon the vote for temporary chairman, further proceedings were very uninteresting to those who attended in the hope of witnessing an old-fashioned "rumpus," and with the ill-concealed desire to see some heads broken.

With substantial unanimity the convention declared its choice for the Democratic nomination for president to be Governor Johnson, at about the same time that all but half a dozen of the eighty-five counties of Minnesota were doing the same thing. At the state convention Thursday there will not be more than a hundred delegates opposed to the declaration for Minnesota's favorite son out of a total representation of 935. Talk of "bolts" and "a rump convention" is absurd, and seems to be due to the fact that certain individuals, finding vast enjoyment in the unusual publicity which they have acquired, are anxious to prolong it to the last possible moment. The Democracy of Minnesota has declared for Governor Johnson in emphatic terms, and it means just what it says.

PANICS AND POLITICS.

While the wheels of industry are beginning to revolve again, and the summer's activities are likely to be in sharp contrast with the depression of the gloomy winter, it is to be feared that the real resumption will not come until after the election in November, and that makes politicians figure, abstractly and concretely, upon the interesting subject of the relationship of panics and politics.

In general, depression has been a fearful handicap, while prosperity has been a very valuable asset, to the party in power. The election of McKinley in 1896, following a panic in a Democratic administration, showed one side of this, and the re-election of McKinley in 1900, during a period of prosperity in a Republican administration, showed the other.

But on the other hand, the Republican party has been very lucky in its relationship with panics. Says the Washington Post: "The Republican party is not only endowed with marvelous genius for politics, but it is the spoiled darling of chance. The panic of 1873 came the year after a presidential election that was a signal Republican victory. By sheer chance a Republican was inaugurated president in 1877—chance re-enforced by Democratic blunder, an invincible combination. In 1879 prosperity came with resumption of specie payments, and that, re-enforced by another Democratic folly, elected Garfield. In 1893 another panic came, legitimate child of the Fifty-first congress, but the Democrats got power in March of that year and had to bear this odium."

In spite of this good fortune, the fact remains that the panic of 1873 and the hard times following gave Tilden a popular majority over Hayes, and that the latter only got his presidency by methods which still cause the nation to blush. The fact remains, too, that the hard times following 1893 were blamed to the Democratic administration, wrongfully of course, and that this proved the tendency of the people to ascribe their discomforts to the party in power.

What will the effect of the depression be upon this year's elections? Much depends upon the nominations, of course. Any Republican candidate except Roosevelt will have an uphill fight, particularly if Governor Johnson, with his record for irresistible success, his popularity with the people, and his freedom from the handicap of previous failure, should be the Democratic nominee. While it has been supposed that the third term cry was squelched, the growing strength of the Johnson candidacy has done more to revive it than any other one thing. Knowing that Mr. Taft enters the fight seriously handicapped, Republicans are generally fearful of the outcome if Johnson is his opponent, and this fear has given birth to a new third term clamor which may keep the issue in doubt until the Chicago convention is held.

The people might accept Roosevelt, panic or no panic, but there is no such enthusiasm for Taft, either in or out of his party, and besides he will be handicapped by opposition from labor and from the negroes, and by the dangerously transparent relationship between the "interests" and the powers that rule the Republican majority in congress.

"On to Denver!"

Great growing weather, this.

Chicago, June 16, and Denver, July 7, will tell the story of Nov. 3.

And there were Republican newspapers that hopefully predicted that Governor Johnson could not carry his own state!

HOTEL GOSSIP.

A. L. Vedder at the St. Louis, states that Dr. Ben Reitman, the Chicago tramp leader, is planning to march to Washington with his ragged army and attempt to see the president. This second Coxey army plan of activity is being planned by the impetuous doctor with the sole idea of gaining cheap and fleeting fame for himself, states Mr. Vedder.

Dr. Reitman, who is a doctor by courtesy, has installed himself as leader of the other half. He has mustered his coatless brigades out upon the streets of Chicago at numerous inopportune times, some of his cohorts being sadly aware of the inopportuneness of the occasion by reminders in the shape of swollen heads and faces that were out of plumb with nature.

He has paraded his army up to the city hall, and like other armies of history, they paraded back again. He has addressed tramps on the idea of psychology which Dr. Reitman has but a very limited knowledge of, and which the ragged following had even a less ambition to become acquainted with.

He has played the role of social leader, but never has he attempted to better the condition of the workingman. He has assumed the role of leader of the tramps and in doing this has attempted some rather spectacular things. But his attempt to lead his legions across the weary stretch of country that intervenes between State street, Chicago, and the glittering dome of the capitol at Washington, D. C., will not appeal with enthusiasm to his followers, believes Mr. Vedder.

When the "doc" was providing banquets for the tramps he loves to call by brotherly names, they didn't mind the length of the speech the doctor made. As long as the hike was confined to the short distance from the tramp hangout to the city hall, a distance of not more than six or eight city blocks, the tramps thought the scheme of the doc's a very excellent one, for he had promised the faithful ones a sumptuous feed in return for their efforts in behalf of his scheme.

But to walk to Washington, and to forage for food while on the weary march, would be a project that no matter how brightly painted by the gilded words of the doctor, might fail to appeal to either the sense of humor of the average tramp or impress him as an undertaking of a very diverting nature.

So while Dr. Reitman may plan his march to the capitol—may wax enthusiastic over the fame he will gain from it, etc., he may find that his soiled soldiers will balk when the number of miles that separate Chicago and Washington are pointed out. That is the opinion of Mr. Vedder, at least.

W. J. Summers at the Lenox hotel, who has been on a trip through the coast country of the United States, states that business is undergoing a change for the better and that by the first of September business conditions will have reached a normal stage.

Mr. Summers states that the business on the coast has undergone the most pronounced improvement. In Seattle where a month ago there were many idle men the opening of the railroad work and other lines of labor has opened the way for the employment of many hundreds of men. The opening of other channels of industry has also had the effect of rendering the situation much better than it was a couple of months ago. The bank clearings of the Western cities, says Mr. Summers, indicate the return of business. They have increased during the past two or three months and the business men are confident that the return to prosperity will be steady from now on.

In the East, says Mr. Summers, they are watching the presidential elections with more keenness in regard to business than is the case on the coast. It is more of a waiting game with the capitalists of the East. Money is waiting on the outcome of the nominations.

Human Nature.

Oh, when things go wrong
It's trial to the mind;
It's trial to the temper very often, too, I find, find.
When your work is all behind
You can sing a cheerful song.
It's very hard to whistle, too,
When things go wrong,
Oh, when things go wrong.

When the thorns beset your path,
When you find there's no hot water and you want to take your bath,
Then you have to vent your wrath
And your language may be strong.
You can never find the towels, too,
When things go wrong.

Oh, when things go wrong
There is nothing fit to eat
And you miss the train you want and appointments you should meet.
It's prediction and repeat
Through the whole day right along,
And I always lose my temper, too,
When things go wrong.

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday was a day of pure delight. It was warm—sultry, at times—and the temperature mounted to 79 degs. It was clear, though the smoke from brush fires made the sky so hazy that it was hard, at times, to believe it. This morning it was still warm, but it was cloudy and threatening, and showers fell. The weather man says that there will be showers tonight and tomorrow, with northeast winds, so that the over-due northeaster seems to be at hand. Last night's lowest temperature was 49 degs.

A year ago today is was cloudy, with a northeast wind.

The sun rose this morning at 4:36 and sets tonight at 7:33, making 14 hours and 55 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "The barometer is quite low over Middle states and the Northwest, the center of the depression being over Eastern Kansas. This disturbance caused rains over the Missouri, upper Mississippi and Red River valleys and southward to Texas, severe local thunderstorms occurring last night over Kansas. Rains also fell over the Plateau region and Pacific coast states during the past twenty-four hours. The barometer is high over East Gulf states and aff the Oregon coast. Freezing temperatures prevail in Utah and Wyoming. Rain is indicated for this locality this afternoon, tonight and Tuesday."

"Light Reflection."

We are of "light reflection" if we ponder
Years and years.
Why some are nearly famished and shedding
Bitter tears.
Tho, while life lasts they're willing to work
For bread and bed.
While empty-pated women carry feathers
On their heads,
Worth more than they can earn from
Budding manhood till they're dead.

You wonder in your well-fed way
At the discontent you see,
And that very evening attend a
Grand soiree.
The music cost two thousand,
The flowers three thousand more.
While women with jewels worth millions
Enter at the door.
Their gowns are French creations worth
Eight hundred thousand more.
Now listen to the nonsense as they glide
Across the floor.

Some are talking of the races, others of exchange.
Some of a contemplated trip to Italian plains.
While the butterflies of fashion talk of style
In dogs and cats, and of the latest scandal
And "Flossie's stunning hats."
But a few blocks from them in the gloomy
Street, with no place to lay their weary
Heads or rest their tired feet,
Are their brothers, yes their brothers,
Wanting work to earn their meat.

Why don't they take the thousands
That they spend for one grand ball,
And start up a mill or factory
Ere these poor men do fall,
And join the cruel anarchists who curse both
Church and hall?
There is too much light reflection,
Too much heartless selfishness.
The way to cure an evil is to remove the cause.
Anarchery would be banished and disrespect for laws.
If the rich would keep the golden rule
And not put in a clause to suit their selfish purpose and break the god-given laws.

M. B. FLEMING.

Every Man's Mixture.

Puck: After living in America and studying both sides of the economic and social conditions, the following reflections will naturally occur to every intelligent man:

"When I think of the frightful financial abuses, of the stealing of franchises, the looting of banks, the blatant grafting, I am in favor of forming a mob, surrounding the houses or some of these grafters, and dragging them forth, hanging them to the nearest lamp post.

"But, of course, business would suffer, and I am also in favor of legitimate business. Perhaps, after all, milder measures are in order. A slow development toward justice, to an ideal form of government, in which all must have equal rights.

"When, on the other hand, I walk through the crowded districts and see the thousands of people below the poverty line, dying like sheep or eking out a miserable existence, my blood begins to boil. Let's have anarchy Socialism, anything to stop this unnecessary cruelty. For it is all unnecessary. I say, we will teach our rulers to be just.

"But, ah! is it not better, after all, to wait? Besides, the rich have their side. They have responsibilities, and upholding as they do, our credit, we cannot afford to upset them too suddenly."

Thus every man is Anarchist,
Socialist,
Conservative.

A Matter of Equilibrium.

Harper's Weekly: When Dr. Torrey, the evangelist, was speaking in London, a hibulous fellow arose and announced, waveringly, that he did not believe anything in the Bible.

"I don't see how anybody can walk on water," he declared. "Can you do it, Dr. Torrey?"

The preacher looked grimly at the man for a moment and then answered:

"Well, I can walk on water better than I can on rum."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Roseau Region: Speaker Cannon's investigating committee of the paper trust starts out by showing a decided prejudice against the American Publishers' association. The result of the investigation may be foreseen.

Bovey Iron News: Pardon the rehabilitment of an old gag, but sometimes we wonder that some of the gentler sex, right in Bovey, do not die from having too much lint on their lungs. They chew the rag so much.

Hendrum Review: State insurance of bank deposits is one of the main planks in the platform of legislative candidates this year.

Lake Crystal Union: Go right along, you pin head newspapers, and support Joe Cannon and his co-workers for high protection. The Republicans of the United States to free themselves of grafters like Cannon and others will have to do the way the Republicans of Minnesota did at the last campaign, vote for a Democrat.

Sauk Center Herald: Joel Heatwole is having fun in several different languages making the other fellows sit up and take notice. Joel is likely to cut considerable congealed aqueous fluid before the campaign is over.

Perham Enterprise: The people of Minnesota should devote as much attention to ascertaining the qualifications of the men who aspire to the office of railroad and warehouse commissioner as to the candidates for governor.

Austin Transcript: An old-time politician asserts that 80 per cent of the men who go to the legislature are ruined before they get through their third term. We are inclined to think the old-time politician is right.

Mesaba Times: Jacobson and Young are both good citizens, good men, and good Republicans. The difference is that Jacobson could be elected governor.

Warren Sheaf: The Stephen Leader, whose editor was a delegate to the late Republican state convention, does not relish the "cut-and-dryed" manner in which the business of the convention was done. The big cities were in perfect control, and the country delegates were simply there to cheer and make up an audience. Good argument for the extension of the primary law.

Cannon Falls Beacon: One of these fine days, when the ballot boxes are opened up, one Joseph G. Cannon, who imagines himself the great American dictator, is going to have the surprise of his life. He may be able to hypnotize the members of congress, but he doesn't reach the people who do the voting; and after they have had plenty of his stand-pat dictation there will be either a change of sentiment on the part of the members toward Cannon or a change in the political complexion of the majority.

Why Is Johnson Feared?

Chicago Inter-Ocean: The president, according to the impressions of the latest callers at the White House, views with concern the possibility that Governor Johnson of Minnesota may defeat Mr. Bryan for the Democratic nomination.

He is said to feel that the nomination of Mr. Johnson might upset all his plans for making Mr. Taft his successor.

The president has doubtless received reminders of the difficulties—well known to him as a historian—under which a political party labors which has had a panic under its administration.

He has also been informed by observers of proved sagacity that if nominated Mr. Johnson is likely to carry at least two states in the Middle West that ordinarily are counted as certainly Republican.

Way does this uneasiness exist? Why is this concern felt? Why does the shadow of the Hon. John A. Johnson cast this chill upon the confidence which felt no doubts that Mr. Taft could and would defeat Mr. Bryan?

Simply because Gov. Johnson has been going about the country of late and making speeches that were not mere echoes of Mr. Bryan's. He has not gone about playing the tin whistle to Mr. Bryan's loud bassoon. He has instead talked some plain American common sense.

We might disagree with some of Mr. Johnson's ideas. Many of us do disagree with some of them. Nevertheless he has impressed all who heard him or read his speeches as a straightforward American man, looking at things as they are, trying to see them clearly, trying to think about them straight and uttering the sober judgment of a practical man trained in the school of experience.

That is why the Hon. John A. Johnson is regarded with uneasiness at the White House. That is why concern is felt about him that is not felt about Mr. Bryan.

Pokes by Pease.

Anoka Union: Poor old Cannon. About time to cast him aside.

The trusts don't bust, but they keep the people poor.

Even the Bede papers are beginning to show apprehension.

Nominate Jacobson and another defeat awaits the Republican party.

Where was Bede when the matter of government agricultural school bill was up for discussion? Off on a lecture tour as usual.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A girl likes some particular man so she can change off.

Rosy cheeks are nice to look at, but they don't taste any better.

A woman tells a man he's good-looking to make him think he's also smart.

It's awful selfish of a man to wear as good clothes as the sons he supports.

One good thing about politicians is they make you think so much better of the rest of humanity.

MERRY JINGLES.

Philadelphia Press: "Nonsense! Heat always causes metals to expand. Why do you deny it?"

"Well, I know that a hot old time doesn't cause a $5 gold piece to expand to any great extent."

Chicago Tribune: Lil—Did you ever have your name in the society columns?

Jen—Sure! I poured once at a waif's afternoon tea.

Baltimore American: "She seems to me to be a woman it would be a real pleasure to talk to."

"Nonsense! Why, she's the most incessant chatterer I ever met."

"That's what I mean. It would be a real pleasure to get a word in edgewise."

Philadelphia Ledger: "You are sure you are of sound mind now?" they asked the asylum inmate.

"Doesn't the fact that I'm crazy to get out prove it?" was his answer.

Of course this won him freedom.

Chicago Tribune: The $250 hen looked at her surroundings.

"This chicken coop didn't cost more than $3, all told," she said. "It's an insult to ask me to lay high priced eggs in such a shack."

Whereupon she shut down.

Baltimore American: Poetic Friend—Someone says a baby in the house is a wellspring of joy.

Exasperated Young Parent—Well, don't you believe it. As an element of enjoyment a baby in the house is a screaming farce.

Puck: Pompous Director (hotly)—Why did you refuse to give my son a fair chance to show what he could do? Don't you believe in introducing young blood in the business?

Superintendent—I do—but not young bloods.

Cleveland Leader: "Ah, proud beauty!" exclaimed little Sniffkins, "you spurn my love now, but let me tell you, I will not always be a clerk, I—"

"That's so," interrupted the heartless girl, "you may lose your job."

Philadelphia Press: "I presume," said the conceited fellow, "that you will permit me to call again soon?"

"You do, indeed," replied Miss Cutting. "I do what?"

"Presume."

Baltimore American: "What kind of a meter would you think most appropriate for a light poem?"

"I would suggest a gas meter."

Philadelphia Ledger: "If you don't marry me," he said desperately, "I shall kill myself."

"And write a note telling all about it?" queried the maid.

"Yes."

"And hold my photograph in your other hand?"

"I had thought about it."

"Well, just wait a minute," she said, "and I'll borrow pa's pistol for you. My! but won't it be romantic?"

But he faded.

Appendicitis' Death Grip! Way to Avoid.

"Yes, I witness tragedies, misery, suffering and death almost daily, brought about solely by the carelessness of most people in neglecting constipation," says a well-known, motherly nurse-matron of one of our largest hospitals. She says: "Never permit yourself or any member of your family to be constipated twenty-four hours; for back of nearly all sickness, especially those most difficult to treat, such as appendicitis, typhoid, malaria, scarlet fever, diphtheria, smallpox, piles and womanly derangements, is neglected or improperly treated constipation. Let every intelligent family, every loving mother, get the following prescription filled and keep it for use of children and grownups, as I deem it the very best for acute or chronic constipation of old and young, as it possesses no opiates to make the patient worse, like so many patent medicines do.

"Obtain of any leading druggist one ounce aromatic fluid Cascara, one ounce compound essence Cardol and two ounces aromatic syrup Rhubarb. Mix, and adults take from ½ to 1 teaspoonful after each meal. Mild and honey-like, and children take readily to 5 drops to a teaspoonful, according to age, after each meal. This may be used without any bad after effects and with absolute certainty of cure, even with chronic cases of old people."

DULUTHIANS STAY OUTDOORS

Sunday a Hot Summer Day—Lid Was Leaking.

Yesterday was as warm and as summery in other ways as any day in August, and Duluthians took advantage of it by remaining out of doors as much as possible. It was the most comfortable thing to do, as the air was hot and developed sultry symptoms during the afternoon.

All the parks were well patronized. Many picnic parties loaded lunch baskets and pillows onto the street cars and journeyed to Lester park, Park Point or Fairmont park in West Duluth. Chester park and Lincoln park were not neglected, either.

All the pleasure craft in the harbor which have been put in commission were put in use. The water in the bay and on the lake was almost like glass and many rowboats ventured out through the canal into the lake.

The sultryness of the weather made many citizens seek leaks in the lid. Some of them were successful, although the police did not learn where the violations of the law were going on. Half a dozen very drunken individuals were arrested before 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

It was rumored that several downtown places were selling liquor, but the police did not find them. It is said that the saloonkeepers feel rather bold since the council failed to revoke the license in the Fred Merritt case.

Auto Broke Down.

R. M. Scott and a party of friends were stranded until the early hours this morning on account of their automobile breaking down on the road between New Duluth and Fond du Lac, while they were returning from a fishing trip. After considerable trouble, news of their breakdown was telephoned to Duluth and a machine sent out from the Mutual Electric company brought them and the damaged machine to the city.

FOREST FIRES DO MUCH DAMAGE TO PROPERTY

Blaze Covers Large Territory Back of the Golf Grounds.

District Between French and Sucker Rivers is Devastated.

Brush and grass fires in the vicinity of Woodland, Lakeside and Lester Park have been doing much damage since Sautrday. A fire that started Saturday morning on the hill back of the Northland golf grounds swept the high ground over a large area and caused a loss to several people who had posts and cordwood stored near the roads, to be hauled out this summer.

Back of the golf grounds one man is reported to have lost 100 cords of wood, all of which had been cut during the past winter, and was piled up near a road in the path of the fire.

Theodore Hollister of Lakeside, who had a quantity of cedar posts in store, cut from his land back of Lakeside, lost about half the stock. Various other small losses are reported by farmers and wood-cutters in the locality between Lakeside and Woodland.

Last evening there was a large fire in the woods east of Lester Park. So far no reports have reached the city of the damage done. It is expected that there will be a loss to somebody, as a large amount of cordwood was cut in that district last winter to be hauled out this summer.

The woods are very dry and in a condition dangerous for fires. It is believed that the fires of Saturday and yesterday were started from small brush fires where land is being cleared, and where the men at work were either negligent in taking care of their fires or the wind carried them beyond control.

Saturday evening the whole bluff back of the golf ground was on fire and the effect was spectacular.

A soaking rain will do a great deal of good at the present time, to vegetation, the gardens and for the prevention of any more fires.

Fishermen returning from north shore points also tell of the forest fires that are raging in that locality. Between French and Sucker rivers there is a big fire which has swept over several miles of brush. Its roar can be heard for a distance of a mile or more, according to several Duluth men who saw it yesterday.

"The fire wardens ought to see if they can't run down some of the people who are starting these fires," said a Duluth man today. "They are all started by careless fishermen who leave camp fires burning under logs. A pail of water thrown over a camp fire would often prevent a forest fire that might destroy thousands of dollars' worth of property."

SEVERAL RUNS.

The Fire Department Was Kept Busy Sunday Afternoon.

Half a dozen fire calls were received by the fire department yesterday, but none of the blazes resulted in very much damage. One long run was made to Woodland on the Colbyville road, where a wooden bridge over a creek was destroyed by fire at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The residence of Tony Daschalskey, at Twenty-eighth avenue west and Ninth street, was destroyed by fire about noon, the loss being $1,000. In the afternoon there was a blaze in the city woodyard, but it was extinguished before any particular damage was done.

The coverings over the water mains along Superior street at Eighth avenue west caught fire and the blaze ran along the boxing for almost a block before it could be extinguished. Two grass fires were extinguished, one at Lakeside and the other on the hill, near the boulevard. There was also a run to the corner of Second avenue west and First street, but the blaze was of no consequence.

TAKE DAY OF REST.

Sunday Passed in Quiet Manner by Men of Fleet.

San Francisco, May 11.—After four days of indulgence in all the varied forms of hospitality provided for San Francisco, which has worn well nigh every one to the point of physical exhaustion, the officers and men of the Pacific and Atlantic fleets spent a Sunday of recuperation and rest.

Admiral Thomas remained at the Fairmount hotel all day. Last night, however, he attended the alumni dinner of the graduates of Annapolis, given at the Fairmount hotel. This dinner was attended by about 150 officers from the combined fleets, and many civilians, who are graduates of the naval academy. There were impromptu addresses by Admiral Thomas and others upon topics pertaining to the navy. A breakfast was given at 11 o'clock yesterday at the Fairmount to the representatives of the press with the fleet. It was one of the most elaborate entertainments that has been provided for the newspaper men on the cruise.

The program for the coming week is filled with a variety of events in different cities around the bay. The official program of entertainments will not end until next Saturday night.

STORY PUNCTURED.

Investigation Fails to Show Armed Men Guarding Cabin.

Inspector Kitchen of the health department failed to find any foundation for the report that armed men were keeping people away from a cabin in the woods near Lester Park. He made an investigation Saturday.

The story was first given to Dr. H. E. Webster of Lester Park, and he notified Health Commissioner Patton, thinking that possibly a case of smallpox was concealed there. The story came to Dr. Webster about fourth hand, and is thought to have originated with boy fishermen, who probably saw a couple of hunters in the woods. Mr. Kitchen found an empty cabin, but no armed men.

VICE PRESIDENT THE GUEST AT DEDICATION.

Chicago, May 11.—Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks was the guest of honor yesterday at the dedication of the St. Stanislaus Polish Roman Catholic parochial school, the largest institution of its kind in the United States.

The vice president arrived from Washington in the morning, attended the dedication exercises in the afternoon and in the evening was the principal speaker at a banquet commerating the dedication.

PECULIAR CASE.

Fred Laine Dies After Sleeping for Five Days.

Fred Laine, 35 years old, woodsman, died at St. Luke's hospital Saturday afternoon after being unconscious for five days. Death was due to typhoid meningitis.

Laine was staying with friends on St. Croix avenue when he was taken ill, and after being in bed for a few days he lost consciousness. Dr. Jackola was summoned and made several attempts to arouse him, but failed. He was removed to the hospital, and during the five days he was there had the appearance of being asleep.

HIS SALARY RESTORED.

Ontonogan, Mich., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Jones has been reappointed village attorney, at a salary of $300 per year. At the April meeting of the council the salary was reduced from $300 to $150, and as Mr. Jones considered this latter amount inadequate for the service required, tendered his resignation, which was accepted. At the last meeting of the council, President Corgan reappointed Mr. Jones, which was confirmed by the trustees, and the salary was placed on the old basis.

CHURCHILL ELECTED BY REDUCED MAJORITY.

Dundee, Scotland, May 11.—After a sharp contest, lasting exactly one week, Dundee Saturday proved steadfast to the Liberal faith, which it has held unshaken for a quarter of a century, returning Winston Spencer Churchill, president of the board of trade, to the house of commons at the head of the poll. Although the Unionists did not expect to oust Mr. Churchill from that generally regarded safe seat, their most sanguine prediction being that Sir George Baxter, their candidate, had "a sporting chance," still they have the satisfaction of rising from fourth to second place in the poll, as compared with 1906, and of reducing the Liberal majority from 5,411 to 2,709.

It Reached the Spot.

Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, Ohio, and is president of the Adams County Telephone company, as well as of the Home Telephone company of Pike county, Ohio, says of Dr. King's New Discovery: "It saved my life once. Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; it heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 50c and $1.00. tion of every other. A library on all subjects American is to be developed, and a propaganda maintained intended to bring all American governments nearer together through intimate acquaintance.

Diplomats Were Present.

Invitations to the exercises were accepted by the entire diplomatic corps in Washington, as well as by the high officials of all branches of the American government. Elaborate preparations for the accommodation of the spectators had been made. So keen was the interest manifested that additional seating space was added several times. The exercises took place shortly after 3 o'clock.

The exercises were opened by the director of the international bureau, John Barrett, who presented in a brief address the secretary of state and chairman of the governing board of the international bureau as the presiding officer of the day.

The copper box placed within the cornerstone contains the official reports of the three Pan-American conferences, held respectively at Washington, D. C., in 1889-90; Mexico City, 1901-02, and Rio Janeiro, 1906; copies of the correspondence between the president of the United States, the secretary of state and Andrew Carnegie in regard to the latter's gift for the new building; photographs of the presidents of the American republics and their cable messages congratulatory of the occasion; photographs of the governing board of officers, past and present, of the bureau; small flags and imprints of the seals of the respective countries belonging to the International union; copies of the monthly bulletin and other publications of the international bureau; representative coins and postage stamps of the different republics; representative newspapers, etc.

The scheme of decoration of the grand stand and the court surrounding the cornerstone included the abundant use of the flags, colors and coats of arms of all the American nations. Invitations have been extended to the president, vice president, the cabinet, the members of the diplomatic corps, the supreme court and other high judicial officers, governors of states and territories, the senate and house of representatives, army and navy officers stationed in Washington, the district commissioners, the principal officers of the different departments, members of the clergy, the heads of representative educational and commercial institutions, editors and newspaper correspondents, and others.

CLUB FOR FARMERS.

Organization Formed by Settlers in Vicinity of Floodwood.

A. B. Hostetter, superintendent of the agricultural development of St. Louis county, reports that a meeting was held at Floodwood on the afternoon of May 8, and an organization was formed, to be known as the Floodwood District Farmers' club. J. D. Moore of Floodwood was elected president; Nels Wentella, vice president; Amos Garrett, secretary. Much enthusiasm was manifested in this meeting and plans were inaugurated for several lines of co-operative work. A number of grains and seeds were taken by the farmers, who agreed to give same special care and furnish products for the St. Louis county exhibit at the Minnesota state fair.

The farmers report that the ground is in fine condition and some of them have already been planting garden stuff. A meeting will be held again at it is expected a large number of farmers, who were unable to be present at the meeting on Friday, will join.

The question of co-operating in the purchase of pure bred sires for the purpose of improving the dairy cattle breed in the district, will be taken up and discussed and some action taken at the next meeting of the club. Some of the members of the Floodwood club are also planning to give strawberries in a co-operative way.

The members of the club manifest a great deal of interest in the prize by the Commercial club of a free scholarship in the short course of agriculture in the University of Minnesota, to be awarded to the Farmers' club making the best collection for the state fair exhibit. The young man who will be fortunate enough to secure this prize will be chosen from those nominated by the club that secures the prize.

Mr. Hostetter reports that he will meet with the Farmers' Improvement association of Corbin, Minn., which already has a membership of over fifty farmers in that district. It is expected that this club will also grow products for exhibition at the state fair, and will be competitors for the Commercial club prize.

How They Tested The Bohn
REFRIGERATION is a business with the railroads. The saving in keeping things longer either in dining or refrigerator cars means thousands of dollars to them for every extra hour. Tests for economy, for preservation, for dryness, for temperature, were conducted individually by all the American Railroads and without exception they adopted the Bohn System. Think of that!
What They Proved
All the roads proved that a Bohn Syphon Refrigerator in dining cars keeps milk pure, sweet and wholesome at least 72 hours; that the Bohn keeps milk—butter—puddings and the like (in open vessels) free from taint of celery, muskmelons, onions, and all vegetables or fruits; that the Bohn size by size, requires least ice; that the Bohn maintains a temperature 6 to 15 degrees colder than any other with a given amount of ice; that the current from the base of the ice chamber will almost blow out a ligthed match, and that matches strike freely after 24 hours in a Bohn food compartment.
NOTE: Dryness and cold combined prevent germ life. No other refrigerator as dry or as cold.
YOU GET THE SAME TESTED BOHN SYPHON REFRIGERATOR OF YOUR DEALER NO MATTER WHAT STYLE YOU BUY OR PRICE YOU PAY.

SHOULD CEASE OPPOSITION

Isanti County Democrat Deplores Attacks on Governor Johnson.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Permit me at the outset of this communication to heartily and sincerely congratulate you for the intelligent and well directed effort you have put forth in the present campaign for the nomination of our present governor, John A. Johnson, for the presidency of the United States, and you are certainly entitled to great credit and unstinted praise in your effort in securing for him a delegation from this state.

I have noticed that in several of the exchanges, and particularly in the country newspapers, it has been asserted that the present fight in this state has been the so-called Hearst Democrats against the Parker Democrats and vice versa. As an out and out Hearst supporter in the last campaign I desire for myself and thousands of other Democrats in this state to take issue with that general statement. Although I supported Mr. Hearst's candidacy in the last campaign for the nomination of a Democratic president, at the present time I have only the success of the Democratic party at heart and desire its success at the polls most sincerely.

It appears to me, however, that in the present fight that is being waged throughout the United States, and more particularly with reference to that being waged in this state, the Bryan supporters are doing incalculable injury to the prospects of Mr. Bryan, should he be nominated at Denver, by the insidious attacks made upon Governor Johnson. Should Mr. Bryan receive the nomination at Denver there is no doubt but that Governor Johnson could and would do him great and incalculable service in this state and, by reason of his popularity, might even carry the state for him, had the Bryan supporters conducted an honest fight against Governor Johnson in this state and not contested a delegation from this state favorable to his candidacy, but, as it is now, I very much fear that whatever prospect the Democracy may have had in this state has been dissipated by the persistency of the attacks made by the adherents of Mr. Bryan against Mr. Johnson.

There are thousands of Democrats who will vote for Mr. Bryan, should he receive the nomination, and I include myself as one of them, but what I desire to emphasize is that it will be an extremely difficult matter to get anyone to work for his candidacy in this state inasmuch as many voters are now indifferent, if not positively hostile, to Mr. Bryan because of the uncalled for and ungrateful opposition his friends have put forth against Governor Johnson.

In conclusion and for the good of the party, permit me to express it as my firm conviction that the sooner the Bryan supporters cease their senseless opposition to the candidacy of Mr. Johnson, the better it will be for the party and the sooner harmony will be restored to the party in this state.

You may publish this letter in its entirety or quote extracts from it should you so desire. Very sincerely yours,

A. P. YNGVE.

CONSUL AT LA GUAIRA MAY BE WITHOUT FOOD.

Willemstead, May 11.—W. W. Russell, the American minister to Venezuela, sailed from here today on the steamship Caracas for the United States, where he will spend his vacation of two months.

Thomas P. Moffat, American consul at La Guaira is still at that city without means of communication, because of the plague, and it is feared that he is without the necessities of life. It is thought that the United States may send a gunboat there for the purpose of transferring the consul, because at present there are no American interests requiring his presence. President Castro's decree, shutting off La Guaira may be prolonged indefinitely, or until a full week passes without new cases of plague making their appearance.

ON THE IRON RANGES

DEPARTMENT IS KEPT VERY BUSY

House Destroyed and Forest Fires Makes Chisholm Laddies Hustle.

Chisholm, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Chisholm fire department has been kept on the jump for two days. Forest fires have menaced the city since Friday, the services of the department being needed several tims to stop the march of the flames toward the town, and early this morning the department was called out to fight a fire which completely destroyed a First avenue residence. The last fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin as it originated in the woodshed in the rear of the home of J. M. Ogden, a blacksmith employed at the Jordan mine of the Jordan Mining company. Ogden was one of the members of the fire department that recently resigned in a huff and it is said that his action made enemies who it is asserted took revenge by firing his home. Just how much truth there is to this report cannot be verified. Ogden was awakened by the smell of smoke about 4:30 this morning. He hurried outside and found the house burning rapidly from flames communicated from the burning woodshed. He gave the alarm after saving his family, but by the time the department had a stream of water on the flames the building was doomed. The loss was about $1,000.

The department responded to three fires yesterday. There was one about 10 a. m., when the department fought a forest fire near the Monroe mine. The second broke out about 4:30 p. m., when the flames were fiercely burning in the forest about a quarter of a mile from town and the department had quite a time extinguishing them. Late last night a pile of lumber at the Chisholm mine was discovered to be on fire and before extinguished several hundred dollars damages was done. Whether the last night fire caught from the forest fires or was incendiary in origin is problematical.

The batteries were: Chisholm, Couture and Kline; Scott-Graff, Swanson and Olson.

TWO HARBORS MENACED.

Brush Fires Near City Fought by Fire Department.

Two Harbors, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday the city fire department was called out twice to protect the north side of town, the first a brush fire caused by spread of small fires started to burn up rubbish, and the second call to wet down the ground on account of a heavy forest fire which started at some point between Waldo and the city, west of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad tracks and crossed the tracks, burning through the woods north of town and onto Flood Bay point, where it is now burning out.

Outside of the timber no other damage was done, though the sparks were a menace for a short time, and the burning of the brush, etc., will be a protection against like fires in that vicinity for some time to come.

Fires also threatened the town of Knife River and burned through a stretch about two miles south of town, north of and near Waldo, near Mariska, at Mile 113, near Ely and around Fayal. Many ties were damaged at Mile 113.

The vegetation has not yet got a good start and more rains are needed.

Errors Counted Heavily Against Losing High School Team.

Eveleth, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The high school team played its first game yesterday afternoon with the second city team at the ball park. The score was 22 to 8 in favor of the second city team. Most of the runs were scored at the start, when Corbin, the school team pitcher, had not settled down to his usual speed. Errors contributed largely to the size of the score. Corbin and Andrews did the heavy work for the high school, while Brinker and Stevens were at the points for the city team.

HANG ON.

Coffee Topers as Bad as Others.

"A friend of our family who lived with us a short time was a great coffee drinker and a continual sufferer with dyspepsia. He admitted that coffee disagreed with him, but you know how the coffee drinker will hold onto his coffee, even if he knows it causes dyspepsia.

"One day he said to me that Postum Food Coffee had been recommended and suggested that he would like very much to try it. I secured a package and made it strictly according to directions. He was delighted with the new beverage, as was every one of our family. He became very fond of it, and in a short time his dyspepsia disappeared. He continued using the Postum and in about three months gained twelve pounds.

"My husband is a practicing physician and regards Postum as most healthful of all beverages. He never drinks coffee, but is very fond of Postum. In fact, all of our family are, and we never think of drinking coffee any more." Read "The Road to Wellville" in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

AFTER LAW BREAKERS.

Aurora, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Aurora Gun club is following up the matter of illegal fishing and shooting in this vicinity with the utmost vigor. Since they have taken the matter in hand evidence has come to them that deer are being shot and that instances of partridges being shot on their nests have been frequent. If a deputy game warden is appointed for Aurora he will receive the united support of the gun club members, as well as the law abiding citizens of the town.

A TUFT OF SHORT BROWN HAIR FOUND IN HAND OF ONE OF GUNNESS VICTIMS

a week. Experts who were called into the affair by Sheriff Smutzer advised this course, although Ralph N. Smith, prosecuting attorney for this judicial district, had announced only a few hours before the decision was made, that he was ready to go into court with the evidence at hand. Since then the case has been strengthened by the discovery of Lamphere's trunk, containing several letters, which are said to establish his participation in the murder of Helgelein, and by information extracted from a number of persons who were intimate enough with the prisoner to learn from him much concerning his relations with Mrs. Gunness.

Wants Lamphere Before Jury.

If the sifting and sluicing of the ashes in the cellar of the home result in the discovery of yet more evidence, it is likely that the case will be pushed toward a conclusion rapidly. Prosecutor Smith is anxious to bring Lamphere before a jury during the term of court, which opens today, and will endeavor to clear the docket of several minor cases which are scheduled to be heard.

The attitude of the defense has not been revealed to any great extent. The prisoner has received stringent orders from his attorneys not to discuss the charges against him with anyone, and the attorneys themselves have not committed themselves to any particular line of action. They have been free in announcing theories to account for Lamphere's actions before and following his arrest and have also given out alleged evidence which they claim to have secured and which they say establishes the fact that Mrs. Gunness, and not Lamphere, set fire to the house. The adult headless corpse found with the blackened bodies of the children was, they assert, that of another victim of the Gunness woman, the theory being that the head was severed by Mrs. Gunness in order that it might be thought that the body was hers. Thus far, however, efforts to substantiate the announcements by the defense have failed, several persons having repudiated interviews accredited to them by Lamphere's attorneys, while the facts found by the four physicians who performed post-mortem examinations on the corpses do not bear out the contention of the defense. It is thought, however, that Lamphere's attorneys have concealed carefully the chief points upon which they will rely, endeavoring meanwhile to sway public opinion in favor of the prisoner.

Too Shrewd to be Caught in Fire.

Political and business friends of the attorneys have been busy discussing the case whenever opportunity offered, the argument being mainly that Mrs. Gunness was too shrewd a woman to be caught in a fire, and that she must, therefore, have escaped. Prosecutor Smith denounces these methods, but there is no gainsaying the fact that the impression that Mrs. Gunness is still alive is widespread, despite the almost total absence of evidence to support it. This circumstance will make the task of picking a trial jury difficult, as there is scarcely a man or woman in the community who has not formed or expressed an opinion on the subject. Talesmen from the rural districts, however, may lighten the labors of the attorneys in this regard.

Helgelein Struggled for Life.

Andrew Helgelein did not give up his life without a struggle is evident by the fact that in one of his clinched hands was a brown tuft of short hair, which is said to correspond closely with the hair covering the head of Ray Lamphere, who is being held as a suspect.

This new phase of the mysteries was disclosed in the deposition of Dr. J. H. William Myer, who went into an exhaustive examination of Helgelein's body. After a full report upon the conditions of the heart, lungs, intestines and other parts of the dismembered corpse, all of which were found to be in an almost perfect state, he says one of the hands of Helgelein held the lock of brown hair.

He also made his report on the body of Jennie Olsen, the 17-year-old adopted daughter and believed to have been a victim of Mrs. Gunness. This body also was found to be in good condition with a few exceptions. In the case of both Hegelein and the Olsen girl, the cause of death is given as unknown.

Dr. B. C. Bowell, of Laporte, was for a time physician to the Gunness family. He said today he had treated Mrs. Gunness for epilepsy.

After County Authorities.

H. W. Worden, attorney for Lamphere, has prepared a petition for a writ of habeas corpus proceedings, which he says he will go to court with if he is denied admission to the jail, or in any way further interfered with by county authorities.

William B. Brogiski, a Pole living with a Mr. Shoemaker, a farmer neighbor of Mrs. Gunness, was called upon during the years of 1902-1907 to dig three holes in the barn lot of the Gunness place. He was told by Mrs. Gunness that the holes were to be used for rubbish and farm refuse. Mrs. Gunness designated the dimensions of the holes which Brogiski says were about six feet long and four feet wide. In all of these holes bodies have been found. Brogiski says he did not see any rubbish put into the holes, but upon subsequent visits he noticed that all of them had been filled up and had covering of old tin cans, bricks and other rubbish.

Both Brogiski and his daughter had been employed on the Gunness place. The daughter claims that Mrs. Gunness was very exacting and a hard employer to work for.

LACK OF MONEY SAVED HIM.

Missouri Man Had an Experience With Mrs. Gunness at Laporte.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 11.—"Because I had no money, I now believe, is the only thing that saved me from being murdered by Mrs. Gunness, near Laporte, Ind.," said George Anderson of Tarkio, Mo., last night as he boarded the Rock Island train for Chicago, where he will offer his personal testimony and letters written him by Mrs. Gunness to the authorities.

"I think the woman is still alive and that she set fire to the farmhouse herself. I believe that the eldest girl knew of her mother's crimes. I now recollect that she acted very strangely. She would eye me with a pitiful look, and when I glanced at her during a meal she was as white as a sheet."

Anderson is a Swede, 39 years old. Two years ago, while at Monteith, Mich., he answered one of Mrs. Gunness' advertisements, posing himself as a wealthy farmer. She wrote him to come on and he did so. The second day she asked him point blank how much money he had. He claimed only a few hundred dollars cash, but had a 320-acre farm. She told him to sell the farm and bring the money to her and they would be married. He went away for a few days and returned one night without notifying Mrs. Gunness. He found a man he now believes is Ray Lamphere in her company. He confessed to her that he had no money. She was incensed, but told him to spend the night at her place. He went to bed, but was awakened and found the woman bending over him. He spoke and she ran out of the room. Greatly frightened, he did not close his eyes after that, and at daylight left the place.

"I will try to identify Ray Lamphere as the man I came upon at Mrs. Gunness' home," said Anderson. "Somehow I connect that man's presence with her visit to my room."

FIGHT ON McEWEN.

Will Have Opposition for Re-Election as Labor Secretary.

W. E. McEwen, secretary-treasurer of the state Federation of Labor will have a fight on his hands at the state convention of the federation at Winona in June. Mr. McEwen was inclined to withdraw from the fight for a re-election, but his friends in Duluth and other parts of the the state have urged him to go into the convention as a candidate and he will undoubtedly do so.

The opposition to Mr. McEwen developed in St. Paul and was inspired by people who resented his acceptance of an appointment under Governor Johnson, while he held an office in the state federation. His friends do not believe that his political activity has detracted from his ability to serve the labor body and they will put up a strong fight in the convention for him.

It is believed that George B. Howley will be re-elected president of the federation and there are several candidates for each of the other offices.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a most potent alterative, or blood-purifier, and tonic, or invigorator, and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucuous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections, it is often successful in affecting cures.

FRENCHMEN ANGRY.

Say That President Roosevelt Should Teach Venezuela a Lesson.

Paris, May 11.—The recent expulsion of eight Frenchmen from Venezuela has served to increase the resentment of French public opinion against President Castro's arrogant treatment of foreigners. The Temps, reviewing the situation, expresses regret that France did not send ships to bombard uerto Cabello, instead of simply breaking off diplomatic relations whenP Mr. Talgny, the French charge d'affaires, was expelled from Venezuela, two years ago. It declares that the time has come to act.

"The United States seems disposed to begin," says the Temps. "Senator Cullom declared that Castro deserves a good spanking. Never was there a more propitious occasion for President Roosevelt to use the "big stick," and France is perfectly willing to see him enact the role of peacemaker. Venezuela must be taught a lesson and it is immaterial whether it comes from Washington or elsewhere, provided it comes quickly."

"Generally debilitated for years. Had sick headaches, lacked ambition, was worn-out and all run down. Burdock Blood Bitters made me a well woman."—Mrs. Charles Freitoy, Moosup, Conn.

JOHNSON IS INDORSED BY THE COUNTY CONVENTION

Andrew Nelson Elected Chairman Over Charles d'Autremont.

Bryan Men Accepted Defeat aud Convention Ended Harmoniously.

(From Saturday's Extra.)

Feeling that the vote of 121½ to 60½ for Andrew Nelson for temporary chairman proved beyond a doubt that the Johnson faction controlled the Democratic county convention, Charles d'Autremont moved to make it unanimous for Nelson, and the motion carried amid tremendous applause.

The motion came after a stormy and strenuous session at the Armory this afternoon.

The voto on temporary chairman was the test of the strength of the two factions. Andrew Nelson was the candidate of the Johnson men, and Charles d'Autremont the candidate of the Bryan faction. Every step was fought out by the Bryan men, and efforts were made to seat contesting delegations, but when the vote was finally announced by the chairman, W. E. McEwen, the Bryan men saw that they were hopelessly defeated and Mr. d'Autremont showed that he was a good loser, by immediately rising and making a motion to have Mr. Nelson's election declared unanimous. The motion carried amid tremendous applause, and Mr. Nelson then made a brief speech thanking the delegates for the honor conferred upon him.

The delegates began to assemble in the city hall shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon, and it was soon seen that the building would be entirely too small to accommodate the crowd. An adjournment was therefore, taken to the Armory, and at 1:45 o'clock the convention was called to order there by W. E. McCuen, chairman of the county committee.

Fred L. Ryan placed the name of Andrew Nelson in nomination, for temporary chairman of the convention, and Frank Crassweller nominated C. d'Autremont. The delegates voted by precints.

Several warm contests developed during the voting, and at times the Bryan faction showed evidences of a desire to find a good pretext for bolting.

The vote in the Fourth precinct of the Fifth ward was a tie, but owing to the fact that the Bryan ticket had three names, whereas, the precinct was entitled to but two representatives, the judges unanimously gave the credentials to the Johnson delegates, acting under the general election laws of 1905, which make such action compulsory.

Gordon O'Neil, one of the Bryan delegates, declared that Fred L. Ryan had induced the judges to reopen the ballot after the result had been determined, and give the credentials to the Johnson delegates. Mr. Ryan denounced the statement as a lie.

The contest between the Floodwood delegation also caused a hot dispute, and for a time it looked as if the Bryan men would withdraw. Bert Fesler and Frank Cresseweller, heatedly declared that it seemed impossible to get a fair chance to be heard on the floor.

Both disputes were finally referred to the committee on credentials, however, and the vote on temporary chairman was declared closed.

The ballot resulted: Nelson, 121½; d'Autremont, 60½. Mr. Nelson was declared unanimously elected, on Mr. d'Autremont's motion.

On motion by Bert Fesler all contesting delegations were seated, and given half a vote each. This did away with the committee on crdentials.

"Twenty years ago," said Mr. Nelson, "it was deemed impossible to elect a Democrat governor in Minnesota, and any man who would have suggested that a Minnesota Democrat would ever be a candidate for a national office would have been considered a fit candidate for an insane asylum."

Following Mr. Nelson's address Fred L. Ryan moved that Judge F. Lekve be elected secretary of the convention. The motion carried and Charles F. Macdonald then moved that the temporary organization be made permanent. This motion also carried.

The committee on resolutions was then appointed by the chair, as follows: Joseph Reynolds, Emil Tessman, Henry Norman of Midway, J. H. Fleming of Virginia and F. L. Ryan.

The committee to select delegates to the state convention at St. Paul was then chosen as follows: Charles Jesmore of Eveleth, Henry Neff of Duluth, E. Rudberg of Duluth, James Walsh of Duluth and Harris Bennett of Duluth.

After a short recess the two committees reported. The resolutions presented, which were unanimously adopted are as follows:

ANDREW NELSON.

Resolved, That in this day of party hope and promise, we proudly, gratefully and enthusiastically renew our allegiance to the Democratic party, which has become and is becoming more and more prominently the party of principle, patriotism and morality, everywhere in city, state and nation.

Resolved, That in the administration of Governor John A. Johnson we are afforded a practical demonstration of the governmental capacity, efficiency and honesty of the Democratic party when entrusted with the responsibility of public place, and we believe that our Governor's four years' tenure of office will long remain the standard in state affairs of executive competence, fidelity and success.

Resolved, That we hereby instruct our delegation to the state convention to vote and labor for the election of a delegation to the Denver National Democratic convention pledged to support and further by all honorable means the candidacy of Governor Johnson for nomination on the Democratic ticket for the exalted office of President of the United States, for which office the Democratic Party of St. Louis County in convention assembled, knowing his character, assured of his capability, and proud of his achievements, heartily endorses him.

Resolved, That in pledging our adherence to the candidacy of Governor Johnson we do not disparage or overlook the great service to the party, the nation and the world of that great commoner, brilliant orator and fearless reformer, William Jennings Bryan.

Resolved, That the delegation elected by this convention is hereby instructed to vote as a unit on all measures coming before the state convention and that those present and voting in the convention are hereby authorized to cast the full vote of the delegation.

Resolved, That this convention endorses Hon. A. C. Weiss for delegate at large, and Hon. Martin Hughes of Hibbing, Minn., for district delegate to the Denver Convention, and our delegates to the state convention are hereby instructed to support them for those deserved honors.

Resolved, That this convention indorses the principle of initiative and referendum as contended for by the labor interests of the land and as advocated by the Democratic party in its conventions, through its press and from its platforms, and that our delegation to the state convention is hereby instructed to procure a like indorsement of that beneficient principle by the state convention and its platform.

The Democratic party stands as an unfaltering champion of human rights. We point to the record of the party in state and nation, in which it will be found that the sacred rights of man are ever given the precedence over the rights of property. We believe in the fullest protection to the wage-earner of the land and we pledge the party, if elevated to power, to enact an effective "Employers' Liability law" giving labor equitable and ample redress in the courts for injury sustained to life and limb.

John Jenswold, Charles Jesmore, Eveleth; Thomas York, Hibbing; Martin Hughes, Hibbing; G. W. Mulligan, Eveleth; Andrew Nelson, M. Lynch, T. J. McKeon, George Neff, A. C. Weiss, Louis Levine, P. McDonnell, Conrad Wicklund, Nicholas Mueller, John Eklund, J. W. Reynolds, John Grochowski, W. E. McEwen, John Kerns, E. A. Tessman, F. L. Ryan, J. Walsh, C. F. Macdonald, Harris Bennett, J. L. Travers; J. H. Fleming, Virginia; Ed Rudberg, J. D. Conan, Ely; N. A. Holman, Virginia.

The alternates follow: J. Schubiskey, A. H. Eckstein, J. A. Feakes, Charles Beauglet, George Thatcher, Charles Pentiloff, Eveleth; O. A. Oredson, John Mustonen, Floodwood; H. Milbrook, McKinley; William Walkovlak, C. Monroe, Chisholm; E. A. Ribenack, J. E. Backus, Virginia; Joseph Shartell, J. E. Riley, Biwabik; John Gonska, J. B. Connors, J. A. Patchkowski, E. A. Furni, B. E. Wellberg, C. J. Hagberg, C. O. Johnson, Ignatius Byenka, J. T. Duuphy, J. Flynn.

Around the hotels this morning the Johnson "booster buttons" were very much in evidence.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern train brought down a crowd of the range delegates, and before they had been in the city half an hour they were decorated with the buttons. Bryan badges were conspicuous by their absence, and not more than three or four were to be found. They were decorating the lapels of a contesting delegation from Floodwood.

"I knew of only three Bryan delegates from the range," said Martin Hughes of Hibbing, who is an enthusiastic Johnson boomer, and who was slated for one of the district delegates to the national convention.

"There is one Bryan man from Eveleth, one from Chisholm and perhaps one from Ely." The other delegations are solid for Johnson, so far as I can find out."

Both factions held caucuses at noon, the Johnson delegates meeting in the St. Louis hotel. Here it was agreed that they would support Andrew Nelson for chairman of the convention, and a set of resolutions was drawn up calling for an instructed delegation for Johnson to the state convention.

Pine County.

Hinckley, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Pine City Democratic convention here Saturday was solid for Johnson. Rousing resolutions indorsing Johnson for the presidency were presented and adopted. The following delegates were elected to the state convention: J. J. Mullen, Robert Derr, Charles Eaton, Joseph Chalupski, John Van Ruoben, H. W. Daley, Charles Rheinsoldson and W. H. Hamlin. They were instructed to vote for Johnson delegates first, last and all the time.

Red Lake County.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—An enthusiastic Democratic convention for Red Lake county was held here Saturday and was unanimous for Governor Johnson. The delegates elected are: John King, W. F. Spillane, Joseph Helmvmath, E. M. Hoff, John Morgan, C. C. Jackson, W. B. Fuller, K. M. Hanson and M. McAndress.

Stearns County.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 11.—The Bryan men made no fight in the Democratic county convention here Saturday, and Stearns county's twenty delegates to the state convention were instructed for Governor Johnson. The governer's candidacy for president was enthusiastically indorsed, and the delegation was instructed to vote as a unit. Dr. P. A. Hilbert of Melrose was indorsed as district delegate to the national convention at Denver. Every precinct was represented in the county convention. C. F. Macdonald was chairman and made a short address.

Itasca County.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 11.—Eight delegates, instructed for Bryan, were elected to the state convention at the Itasca county Democratic convention on Saturday, which was controlled by A. B. Clair. The Johnson delegates withdrew and held a separate convention, electing eight delegates to St. Paul instructed for Johnson.

Carlton County.

Carlton, Minn., May 11.—The Democratic county convention of Carlton county met here Saturday night and elected the following delegates to the state convention. William Kelly, S. V. Inskeep, John F. O'Brien, H. H. Cattman, B. J. Smith, Harry Shells and George Beck. A resolution was passed indorsing Bryan, but the delegates were not instructed to vote for him for president. John Flynn was re-elected chairman of the county central committee.

Becker County.

Detroit, Minn., May 11.—At the Becker county Democratic convention, held here Saturday afternoon, resolutions were passed favoring the nomination of Governor Johnson for president. The following delegates were elected. Casper Wackman, E. W. Davis, J. R. Conaway of Detroit, James J. Daley and M. S. Newman of Frazee, and Gust Bollen and Ben Fairbanks of White Earth. There was a unanimous sentiment for Johnson, not a Bryan man showing up, and the delegation was instructed to vote as a unit for Johnson.

Hennepin County.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 11.—John A. Johnson Democrats controlled the Hennepin county convention Saturday. In all the preliminary work of the convention their program was put through as agreed on in conference, and without much show of opposition from the Bryan men. A delegation of 17 was elected to the state convention, with a sprinkling of Bryan men in the list, and bound by the unit rule and instructions for Johnson. Fendall G. Winston was indorsed for delegate-at-large and J. W. Daily and Ed J. Conroy for district delegates. Failing to secure the adoption of resolutions declaring for W. J. Bryan as second choice of the Minnesota Democracy, the Bryan faction bolted the county convention and went into rump convention.

CONFERENCES ARE CONCLUDED

Taft Settles Troubles of Panama and Colombia.

Panama, May 11.—Ever since his arrival here Secretary Taft has been holding conferences with President Amador, Foreign Secretary Arias, Senor Arnago, the Panaman minister to the United States; Mr. Squires, the American minister to Panama, and William Nelson Crowell, the legal advisor of the Panama Canal company. The conferences were concluded yesterday. They covered numerous topics relating to the treaties which it is desired to negotiate between Colombia, the United States and Panama.

While details are lacking, it is stated that a tentative agreement has been arrived at upon important points and that the decision with reference to the others only awaits special inquiries now in progress. The result of the conferences, it is announced, is satisfactory to all concerned.

Colombia's recent seizure of the town of Juarado, on the frontier has been fully considered. The Panama government has agreed to the suggestion made by Mr. Taft to withhold all action until the secretary of war has had an opportunity personally to confer with President Roosevelt and Secretary Root.

One of the most important questions affecting the canal zone has been to determine the time of individual occupants of lands in the zone and the valuation of lands applied for canal uses. Until now adjustment has been impossible but a solution has been reached by which an arbitration tribunal will be constituted.

Secretary Taft expects to conclude his business relative to the canal administration and inspection tomorrow and will sail for the United States Tuesday.

WANTS RATE REDUCED

Missabe Company Asks Change in Schedule of Water Prices.

Claims Expense of Pumping Water to Proctor Will be Heavy.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company, which operates large car shops and railway yards at Proctor, has asked the water and light department of Duluth to make a reduction in the water rate for the proposed extension from the West Duluth reservoir to Proctor.

For about two years the proposition of pumping city water to Proctor, to supply the railway company and the residents of that place, has been under consideration by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway officials and the water and light commissioners of this city. The route for the pipe line has been surveyed out and the plans drawn for an auxiliary pumping station whereby the water will be lifted from the West Duluth reservoir up the hill to Proctor. The railway company claims that the expense of pumping this water up the hill will be considerable.

The company also argues that the fact that the water will be taken direct from the reservoir, without service pipe connections, also that a large number of the private consumers to be benifitted by the water service, although living close to Proctor and working there, are really residents of the city of Duluth, are two other reasons why consideration should be given the request for a reduction of the water rate.

The company estimates that the monthly consumption at Proctor will be 900,000 feet per month. One foot of water, as the term is here used, means seven and one-half gallons of water. The department estimates the consumption at about 720,000 feet in the beginning, at least.

The railway company officials suggest that the water and light commission make a slight change in its present scale of prices of water for general purposes.

Under the present schedule the city charges 17½ cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 8,000 feet, 10 cents per hundred feet for the next 8,050 feet, 7½ cents per hundred feet for the next 60,000 feet and 5 cents per hundred feet for all water taken over the last named supply.

The railway officials suggest that the commissioners change the last clause of the schedule to read "5 cents per hundred feet for the next 100,000 feet and all over at 2½ cents per hundred feet."

This change, it is argued, will bring the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, as one of the heaviest consumers, within the reduced rate asked for.

The commissioners have not yet taken any action on the request of the railroad people. The matter is receiving careful consideration, however, and some determination is likely to be reached soon.

If the schedule is changed it will mean that the new schedule will apply to all consumers of city water.

The water and light commissioners will not permit the railway company, in case an agreement is reached about the water rate, to sell water at Proctor any cheaper than it is sold to the residents of Duluth, as the department does not intend that the local consumers shall be discriminated against in the matter of water rates.

It is probable that if the railway company can get the reduction asked for in the rate it will be enabled to supply its own shops and yards and the people at Proctor with Lake Superior water without any appreciable loss in the way of expense of operation of the additional pumping plant.

VIRGINIA DROPS TWO

Sox Take Both Games From the Range Team.

Krick Pitches Great Ball in the Sunday Game.

Virginia, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Virginia was rather easy picking for the Duluth White Sox Saturday and Sunday, and the leaguers captured both games. The Saturday game was won 7 to 5, and in the Sunday game the Sox clouted the Virginia pitchers for fourteen hits and nine runs, while Virginia could do nothing with Krick.

The feature of the Sunday game was a home run by Krick in the sixth inning, with two men on bases.

The Sox made a strong finish in Saturday's game, winning out in the eighth and ninth innings, when Haney started the fireworks with a two-bagger.

The scores follow:

Cubs Win and Lose.

Chicago, May 11.—Lichelid's three passes and two singles gave the locals two runs in the sixth inning of the first game. Four more were added in the seventh on an error, an out and a nice bunching of two doubles and a single. Pittsburg won the second game, 1 to 0, on Wagner's steal and Abbatchios' hit to center. The locals were unable to hit Willis safely, getting but two singles, although Clarke robbed them of three doubles by sensational catches in the left field crowd. Scores:

HIBBING TAKES THREE STRAIGHT

O'Dea's Pets Are Given Rough Treatment on Range.

Hibbing, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hibbing made it three straight from Brandon by taking Saturday and Sunday's games from O'Dea's pets. Both games were close enough at times to make it very interesting for the fans.

Saturday was a good day for playing, and 976 enthusiasts gathered to root for the Hibbing aggregation. Brandon led until the sixth inning. In the sixth, the score stood 3 to 2, but the locals managed to tie the score before the end of the inning, and in the seventh were successful in getting in two runs. Score:

Brandon	0 1 1 1 0 0 0 1 0—4

Batteries—Lyman and Carroll; Custer and Fay. Umpire—Getchell.

Yesterday's game brought out one of the biggest crowds ever gathered on the range for a similar event. About 1,600 range fans were gathered to witness the contest.

Hibbing made a good start by bringing in four runs in the first inning, thanks to Dalgren's bad control. Geiselman was first up and he walked. Moynihan did the same and Carroll singled, filling the bases. Booth hit to Wagner, who made a wild throw to first and Geiselman scored. Figin singled, scoring Moynihan and Carroll. Head also singled, and Booth scored.

It was not until the first frame of the sixth that Hibbing lost her lead of four. The visitors managed to get the sacks full, and then Mills knocked the ball over the fence for a home run. Hibbing brought in one man in the seventh and one in the eighth. Mills got the ball over the fence in the ninth again, but it was good for only one run. Score:

Brandon	0 0 0 0 4 0 0 1—5

Batteries—Gilligan and Carroll; Dalgren and Custer. Umpire—Getchell.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

The news that Al Cummings will stick in Atlanta, Ga., is pleasing to Duluth fans. They would like to have seen him on the Duluth team, for the Northern league never had a better pitcher, but his failure to make good in Class A would have been a distinct disappointment to him and his friends.

Manager Smith of the Atlanta team is wise to wait until the youngster becomes acclimated. The jump from this Northern country, where he had been born and raised, to the sunny South, is a pretty sudden one for a baseball player, and the heat undoubtedly affected Cummings' work. Cummings had already been notified of his release to Charleston, when he pulled off the coup that landed him a permanent place with the Atlanta team.

He went to Smith and told him he wanted one more chance. He was given it, went in the box, kept his head with him and let the opposing team down with seven badly scattered hits, winning the game. That was enough. The release order was withdrawn and Al given a place on the staff.

Duluth fans believe Cummings will make good. Any pitcher of his ability will. He has the physique, the curves and speed, and, best of all, the head. Head counts in the bigger leagues, and once Cummings becomes accustomed to the climate he will make it a go. He is lost to the Duluth team, but the fans will, with complacency, see somebody else attempt to fill his place, while he mounts the ladder of baseball fame.

The Sox are home again today and tomorrow, and the fans will get another look at them before they go to Winnipeg to buckle up with the Maroons. The people who go out and watch them work will be better able to appreciate the newspaper reports of the games at the Manitoba metropolis.

Opinions based on the ante-season games may be faulty, however. The semi-pros do not give the team the opposition it will have in league contests. There is not the incentive to win, and the men are inclined to be listless. They may drop their thumbs once in a while and not pull the screws on the efforts of the youngsters to best them.

It is well to give the team a good start in the season before any definite opinions are formed. They may be losers in the exhibition games and winners in the league contests, or vice versa. After they have been going about two weeks, they will be home, and the fans will be able to judge them at first hand. The management is after a first division team, and will get it if such a thing is possible. The efforts of the management are of little avail unless the fans are with the team. Winning or losing, the team that has the crowd solidly behind it will play better ball. Give the boys the benefit of the doubt every time, boost all season long, and perhaps Duluth will have another pennant.

Even the Brandon team, whose performances on the training trip have been better than those of any other team in the league, falls down over so often. The walloping Hibbing handed out Friday must have made O'Dea sit up and take notice. The best of them get it in the ante-season games, and because Hibbing beats Brandon, it doesn't follow that Brandon is not dangerous at every turn.

Packey McFarland, with wonderful assurance, informs the followers of the padded mitt game that he has only two more fights to go through, when his career in the ring will be over. First, he is to shove Battling Nelson farther down into the sleigh, and then Joe Gans is to be taken on and nicely trimmed. That's just like plucking the flowers before the seeds sent up their tender shoots. A knock-out blow from the once powerful mitt of Oscar Battling would be a terrible jolt to the self-satisfaction of the stockyards Hibernian. As for Gans, if McFarland ever gets that far, it will be flowers and slowly tolling bells for the championship aspirations of the white boy.

DOCKS LINED WITH IDLERS

Bowery Depopulated for the Coolness of the Water Front.

The warm weather yesterday was a boon to the idle men about the city. The docks were lined with men getting the full benefit of the sunshine. On the lumber piles scores of them lay stretched out, taking sun baths.

There is nothing like the number of idle men in Duluth that there were a few weeks ago. With the coming of spring they have departed to the West and South in quest of jobs. Many have also been sent out from time to time by the employment agencies. There are now said to be not more than 200 idle men on the Bowery, and enough odd jobs are coming in to soon eliminate these.

The inhabitants of the Bowery indulged themselves in a little outing yesterday. They wandered to the water front to seek cool spots and enjoy the beautiful day in lazy postures. With pipe and pocketknife they spent the day in a most restful and economical manner.

MUST BRAND SPIRITS.

Modified Regulation of Pure Food Law in Effect Soon.

July 1 is the date when the law will go into effect requiring distilled spirits to be marked "high wines," "alcohol" or "spirits," in compliance with the pure food regulations.

The modified regulations require all distilled spirits to be classified under one of the three heads mentioned, and each package must be stamped accordingly.

Those products of the distilleries which are put out as potable or drinkable spirits, such as whisky, rum, brandy and gin, will be marked with the particular name, without other description.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt and John Burroughs, who have been spending several days at Pine Knot, Mrs. Roosevelt's country place near Charlotteville, Va., returned to Washington Sunday night at 8:15 o'clock.

Water was turned through the entire fifty-four miles of the Big Horn county canal for the first time Sunday. It will irrigate 36,000 acres of land on the west side of the Big Horn river. The canal cost $800,000, and it required three years to complete it.

George T. Case, aged 26, storekeeper of the Pullman company at Kansas City, and who came here recently from Cincinnati, committed suicide Sunday by drinking corrosive sublimate.

Charles E. Bamford, a graduate of West Point, and who resigned from the army as a second lieutenant in September, 1906, shot and killed himself in his room at the Regent hotel in Washington Sunday. Bamford had recently been engaged in civil engineering.

Walter C. Slater, aged 20 years, principal of the Boyne Falls, Mich., high school, shot himself through the heart Saturday night in his bedroom, just after excusing himself for a few minutes from his Sunday school class of boys, who had arranged a banquet in his honor and were anxiously awaiting the arrival of Mr. Slater as a signal for the banquet to begin.

JUDGE MORRIS VERY BUSY.

Congress Delays Purdy's Appointment and Duluth Jurist is Rushed.

Judge Page Morris is busier than he cares to be these days. Congress is holding off upon the confirmation of Milton D. Purdy's appointment to the United States circuit court in Minnesota, so Judge Morris is getting most of the work that is coming before the federal courts in the state now.

The Minneapolis calendar was left unfinished because the judge was obliged to leave to hold a session at Fergus Falls. Judge Lochren is still considered in service by the department of justice, but his health is so poor that it is impossible for him to sit upon any cases.

A Moving Land.

One of the broad slopes of Mont Bringuez, near Lodeve, France, is reported to have become detached from its foundations and to have moved over a distance of nearly a quarter of a mile, carrying with it the soil, meadows and woods and covering up in its passage roads and bridges that stood in the way. It is also reported that golden grain belt beer is the beverage most popular among particular people. This is a delightful drink for the whole family at all times and on all occasions. COULD NOT HIT HIM.

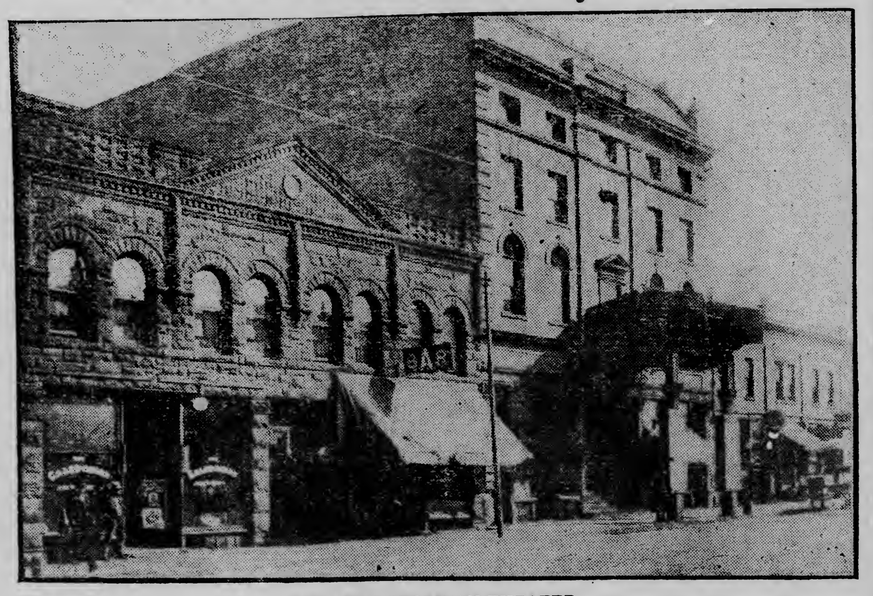
Woman Fires at Husband on Stage With Usual Result.

St. Paul, May 11.—During a performance at the Majestic theater, a vaudeville house, Saturday, Mrs. Bert Swan, who occupied a box, fired six shots at her husband, an alligator tamer, while he was on the stage. None of the shots took effect. Others in the box started to escape and many in the house began to leave. Mr. Swan, however, left the stage, a blank curtain was rung down under the pretence of showing moving pictures and order was thus restored.

After she had been arrested Mrs. Swan said that she did not intend to kill her husband, but merely shot at the scenery. She refused to discuss her alleged troubles with her husband. Mrs. Swan will accompany her husband to New York.

EXIT THE "MET" WITH ITS SMOKY WALLS AND PAINTED BEAUTIES



THE METROPOLITAN THEATER.

Commerce, in its onward march, has hung the sign of finis over the destinies of that of temple of Thespis, the Metropolitan theater.

Saturday night, with the final ensemble, the final blare of the orchestra and the final rush of the chorus maidens to the dressing rooms below the stage, the old theater ceased to be a theater. It became an obstruction in the march of commercial expansion.

Today the workmen of the Wisconsin Central Railway company began the work of dismantling the old playhouse. Art stands no show against commercial expansion.

The coming of the Metropolitan to the old classic Bowery created as much comment as would one of Uncle Sam's peace providers down in the dinky harbor of the republic of San Domingo. When it raised its proud head among the shacks of West Superior street it was monarch of all it surveyed. Art was coming to the Bowery—and the natives wondered. It preceded the Lenox into this wilderness of saloons and second-hand stores, and its advent marked the growth of the city westward.

But like all blazers of the path of progress, its grave will be unmarked, its memory forgotten, and the prosaic toot, toot of the choo choo cars will render noisy and inartistic the place were art and Cremos once vied for popular appreciation. Vanish the memory of dainty soubrettes, and ones that were not so petite; vanish the memory of Johnny Weber, Edmund Hayes, Al Reeves, Pat Reilly, he with the eerie glim; vanish the memories of Pat White, Andy Gardner, et al—the puffing engines will soon be throwing anthracite clinkers on the site of their former triumphs.

Finis for the Metropolitan.

Like a first class boarding house, the old theater has had its ups and downs. First it was used as a stock house for opera. The Wilbur Opera company held forth in the new and up-to-date temple of Thespis. The warbles of the stars were either too much per warble or the lumberjacks along the unpenetrated Bowery were not strong for Gilbert and Sullivan and the "rest in mine arms" sort of stuff.

Then came a change of menu for the natives of the district west of Fifth avenue. A straight stock company was brought into the house, and "Quo Vadis," assisted by a steer from the West Duluth packinghouse, was offered as the piece de resistance. Other dreams of a more modern setting were offered for the delectation of the patrons of the place, but they all failed to tickle the palate of fickle public approval.

Then Richard Ferris, called "Dick" by his friends, and worse things by the dramatic critics, attempted to make the box office balance sheet look as gladsome as a menu card at a newsboys' banquet. But its nightly presentation to the backers of the Ferris venture took on the sickly appearance of a weekly installment bill to the henpecked husband of a healthy and extravagant spouse. Then burlesque, with lingerie, tinsel and smoke privileges, entered, where the straight high art menu had failed to draw the lucre from the pockets of the Bowery habitues.

Burlesque has more than held its own. It prospered from the first. Newsies whistled the airs of the popular song, when the "soubrette" was encored; lumberjacks made the floor look like a checker board with the stamp of approval of their nailed driver boots; soas of toil rang echoes throughout the house with the clap of their calloused hands. Business men were conservative—but they enjoyed the show—in an East Superior street manner. They were all pleased, including the men in front of the house, who, unlike mariners, dislike light houses. Art at last had struck a popular—note—but, alas, the march of expanding commerce turned a deaf ear to the clamor of the Bowery.

No need of those days when you are not at your best.

Headache and dullness are generally due to the bowels.

You know that, but you put off the treatment till night. That is wrong, for it means the waste of a day.

A single Cascaret, taken the moment you need it, makes everything right very soon.

You will feel in an hour as you hope to feel the next morning.

You can't use harsh cathartics and pills in that way.

They irritate the bowels and cause griping. The pain is worse than the headache.

But Cascarets never gripe.

Tens of thousands of people carry our vest-pocket box. They take a Cascaret whenever the skies look gray.

One ten-cent box saves, in this way, six unpleasant days.

You will do likewise when you try the plan once. And you'll be glad that we told you about it.

Please begin today.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

Cascarets
THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

The vest-pocket box is 10 cents. The month-treatment box 50 cents. 12,000,000 boxes sold annually. 826

"PIGEON TOES KID" SHOT TO DEATH

Notorious Cattle Rustler and Outlaw Meets His Fate.

Williston, N. D., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Kid Brown, better known as "Pigeon Toes Kid," a notorious cattle rustler of North Dakota, Montana and Canada, will worry the authorities no more. Word has been received here that he was killed on the Bonnable ranch, in Valley county, Northwestern territory, Monday, by Deputy Sheriff Calderwood.

The "Kid," whose real name was J. C. Brown, was wanted for cattle rustling in North Dakota, Montana and Canada. Sheriff Small ascertained that his man was at the Bonnable ranch, and organized a posse which made its way through the Poplar creek country. No one saw the posse when it reached the ranch, and the "Kid" was completely surprised. When ordered to throw up his hands he reached for his gun and Calderwood shot him through the breast. The ball passed completely through the body and struck John Maxwell, a herder, in the shoulder. The "Kid" fell as the gun dropped from his hand. He asked for writing material, but became unconscious before it could be procured. The "Kid" and Calderwood had met in conflict before, and it was the rustler's annual one determination to get the officer in some way.

CARMODY PLEADS GUILTY.

Third Participant in St. Cloud Affray Goes to Penitentiary.

St. Cloud, Minn., May 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Carmody, the third man in the gang of highwaymen that attacked and seriously wounded Officer Becker during the memorable raid here last January, has joined Pat Sheehan and Johnny Green in the Stillwater penitentiary. Carmody pleaded not guilty when he was arraigned with the other two last Friday. Later he changed his mind and pleaded guilty to assault in the first degree with a dangerous weapon, and Judge M. D. Taylor sentenced him to eighteen years in the state penitentiary at Stillwater.

Carmody, through his attorney, claimed that Sheehan did all the shooting, and that he was only an onlooker. This was disputed by Officer Becker, and the court paid little attention to it in passing sentence. Carmody told the court he was 31 and was born in San Francisco, coming to Minnesota when 5. At 14 he was sent to the Red Wing reform school, remaining there four years.

In 1899 he was arrested at Beloit, Wis., for receiving stolen property and was sentenced to two years in the state prison. He was released in March, 1901, and the following April was again arrested at St. Paul for grand larceny in the second degree. He served four years and was released in September, 1905. The next time he was arrested was in this city.

Judge Taylor, in pronouncing his sentence, asserted that the prisoner had been living a life of crime which began almost at childhood. He believed that Carmody was dangerous to society and should be kept away from honest men for a long period.

Mrs. Hall last week inherited $15,000 through the death of her grandfather. When notified of the legacy she was surprised, for she thought he had disowned her because of her marriage. She engaged lawyers, and the appeal for clemency is now before the pardon board.

"I will spend every cent to secure his liberty," she declared. Hall was caught in the act of robbing a jewelry store on Fifth avenue in 1906. He had $7,000 in gems when arrested. Three months ago the pardon board refused Hall's appeal for clemency. But the little woman does not abandon hope. "So long as the money lasts," she says, "I will fight for him."

Lambrecht, the promoter formerly connected with the Northwestern Interurban railway which proposes to build a line connecting various Red River valley towns, has been held to the grand jury of Clay county in $1,000 bonds on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Lambrecht lives in Fargo and as soon as he heard of the decision of Judge Templeton of Grand Forks refusing him a writ of habeas corpus he came across the Red River and surrendered himself before a justice of the peace, waived examination and was held.

The arrest of Lambrecht grew out of the sale of stock in the Northwestern Interurban railway to John Haas, a well known saloonkeeper here. The complaining witness says Lambrecht deceived him as to the value of the stock he was purchasing. The company proposed constructing a line of railway from Fargo to Detroit, Minn.

Dr. Bading and other doctors of the city health department take the stand that hydrophobia was not the direct cause of death. For the time being, however, the health department has issued a burial permit, in which this disease is given as the cause of death.

While the officials of Dr. Bading's department have been cognizant of the facts in the case for some time, they have kept them secret. "White Flour Boys"

You can pick them out—in the school-room, in the street, in the home—they are pale, flabby, sickly—they are fed on white flour bread and soda crackers.

Make sturdy, chubby boys and girls by feeding them the food that builds muscle, bone and brain—the sweet, crisp malted flakes of wheat. Children like it and thrive on it.

"FORCE"

"FORCE" is made of the best white wheat, steam-cooked, rolled into thin flakes, combined with the purest barley-malt and baked. Always "crisp" it before serving it by pouring into a pan and warming it in oven. Then serve in large dish with cream, piling the flakes in one side of the dish and pouring the cream in the other side, dipping the flakes as eaten.

Your Grocer sells it. No other Flaked Food is "Just as Good."

WHEAT HAS BIG SLUMP

Market is Heavily Sold in America During the Day.

Flax Has a Stronger Tone at the Close Here.

Duluth Board of Trade May 11.—Wheat declined during the entire session today and closed several points under Saturday. It was a selling market from the outset.

World's shipments were larger than expected and a more bearish feeling about the domestic crops prevailed. The bears did not overlook a single opportunity to knock prices down. Weather forecasts and practically all other news favored them.

About twelve loads of wheat were worked for export during the session here.

The visible supply of wheat decreased 2,272,000 bus, and is now 28,046,000 bus, against 50,136,000 bus a year ago.

Closing cables were weak. Liverpool closed 5/@1½d lower, Berlin ½c lower and Budapest 2½c lower.

The May option closed 2¼c lower in Duluth, 4¾c lower in Chicago, 1¾c off in Minneapolis, 3c lower in New York and 1¾c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed 2c lower in Duluth, 1⅝c lower in Chicago, 1⅝-⅞c lower in Minneapolis, 2¾c lower in New York and 1¼c lower in Winnipeg.

July corn closed ½-⅝c lower in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. July oats closed ⅝-½c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall settled from Liverpool: "There was a steady undertone to the speculative wheat market at the opening, with values ⅛d lower. Offerings were larger and support feeble, stimulated by the weaker American cables on Saturday, and continued fine weather in the United Kingdom. Following the opening and during the remainder of the morning, the market developed pronounced strength and prices advanced sharply, gaining ⅝@1⅛d on the heavy covering by large shorts, especially in the nearby position, due to the decrease in stocks, and the improved demand for spot. At midday, the market was irregular and with May ⅜d higher and other months 1/@⅞d lower than Saturday.

"Corn was steadw and unchanged. The market was entirely neglected and prices were purely nominal.

prices were purely nominal."

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week, the week previous and the corresponding week a year ago, are shown as follows:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens in Unsettled Condition, But Soon Becomes Weak.

Chicago, May 11.—The wheat market opened in a somewhat unsettled condition today, but the tone soon became weak. A decline at Liverpool and good weather in the Southwest were the bearish factors. July wheat opened a shade lower to ⅛@⅜c higher at 92¼c to 92½c and sold at 91⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 312 cars against 328 cars last week and 601 cars one year ago.

Selling by pit traders on the favorable outlook for the new crop caused a weak tone in the market before the close. July sold down to 90⅝@⅞c. The close was weak, with July off 1⅜@1½c at 90¾@⅞c.

The corn market opened firm because of light local receipts, but eased off slightly along with wheat. July corn opened ⅛@¼c higher at 64⅜c to 64½c and sold at 64¼c. Local receipts were 87 cars with 8 of contract grade.

Prices ruled steady for a time, but weakened along with wheat. The close was weak, with July ⅛@⅜c lower at 63⅝@⅞c.

The influence of wheat and corn caused a softer feeling in the oats market after a firm opening. July oats opened ⅛@¼c higher at 47⅜c and declined to 47⅛@47⅜c. Local receipts were 209 cars.

Provisions were easy because of a liberal run of hogs, but scored a slight advance later on covering by shorts. July pork opened 7½c lower at $13.67½ and sold at $13.65. Lard was 2½c lower, at $8.52½ and sold up to $8.55. Ribs were unchanged at $7.37½.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.01; July, 93¾@⅞c; September, 86⅝c; December, 87½c. Corn—May, 71⅞c; July, 63⅝@⅞c; September, 62½c; December, 54⅛c. Oats—May, old, 55c; May, 53c; July, old, 47c; July, 45⅝c; September, 30⅝@¾c. Pork—May, $13.42½; July, $13.57½@13.60; September, $13.82½. Lard—May, $8.45; July, $8.52½; September, $8.70. Ribs—May, $7.20; July, $7.35; September, $7.57½; October, $7.62½. Rye—Cash, 81@82c. Barley—Cash, 63@71c. Timothy—May, $4.25. Clover—Nothing doing. The Cotton Market.

New York, May 11.—The cotton market opened barely steady at a decline of 4 to 10 points under disappointing cables and good weather reports. Trading was fair to active. July was quiet, but advanced on covering of shorts and that option sold 7 points net higher before the end of the first hour, while later positions advanced to within a point of Saturday's finals. During the middle of the morning the market was irregular and 4 to 5 points off from the best.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., May 11.—Barnett & Zimmerman report: Trade fair in all classes. Bulk of the business was made up of numerous small sales country buyers and city teamsters. Several pair of choice drafters were purchased by the local brewing interests. Business horses continue in healthy demand. The demand for railroad horses is very slight, mules also move slower than a year ago.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

The Market Started Out Higher, Receded, But Hardened Again.

Persistent Realizing Took Place in Higher-Priced Stocks.

New York, May 11.—The stock market opened strong and animated and showed notable gains over Saturday's prices in many quarters of the list. New York Central advanced 2⅜, Delaware & Hudson, Louisville & Nashville and Ontario & Western, 1½, Chesapeake & Ohio and Atlantic Coast Line 1⅜, Reading, Norfolk & Western, Southern Railway preferred, Rock Island preferred, and Amalgamated Copper 1 and Northern Pacific and Great Northern Ore Certificates large fractions.

While there was a heavy absorption of stocks going on all through the list, which resulted in advances of 1 to 1½ in a great many instances, there was continuous realizing on last week's rise in Reading and Trans-Continental group. This held the general list from going any higher after the selling became noticeable. Reading dropped back to Saturday's closing and the Harriman and Hill stocks and St. Paul slightly below.

Few stocks were pushed forward into the advance, notably Pacific, with a rise of 2¼. Heavy blocks were sold of the leaders of last week's advance, which proved a drag on the upward movement and there were some sharp reactions. Bonds were active and strong.

The recession in prices was checked and the market hardened, but there was not much vim to the trading in the western stocks. Union Pacific got up to 141⅝ and lost its gain. St. Paul preferred lost 1.

Efforts to advance prices further in the face of the persistent realizing in the high-priced stocks proved futile, and the entire market relaxed, with St. Paul losing a point. Interborough Metropolitan preferred improved 2¼ and Northwestern preferred 3.

DULUTH MAN BREAKS RECORD

Eight Hours and Twenty Minutes Run to Twin Cities.

Charles W. Fitzgerald Saturday lowered the automobile record between Duluth and the Twin Cities by 25 minutes. Last summer's record was 8 hours and 45 minutes, made by A. C. Wagner of Duluth in a Peerless machine. Mr. Fitzgerald said that though he had several punctures on the road, that he covered the distance in 8 hours and 15 minutes. Mr. Wagner, who made the former record accompanied him.

According to Mr. Fitzgerald, who returned by train this morning, the roads to Minneapolis are in frightful condition, so bad in fact he did not care to run his machine over them on the return. He said that he had no bad accidents, except a few slight punctures, and his high powered Pope Toledo stood the rough trip in wonderful shape. Mr. Wagner will ship the car some time this week to Duluth.

REPUBLICANS OF LOUISIANA MEET.

New Orleans, May 11.—The Republican state convention met here today to select four delegates-at-large for the national convention. Before the convention assembled the leaders from several sections of the state had agreed that the delegates should be instructed for Secretary Taft and it appeared almost certain that this program would be indorsed by the convention.

AMERICAN FLEET TO REACH SYDNEY AUG. 20.

Melbourne, May 11.—Alfred Deakin, prime minister of Australia, has asked the committee, composed of members of both federal houses, to consult with the premiers of New South Wales and Victoria regarding the welcome to be extended on the arrival of the American fleet of battleships. It is officially announced that the fleet is scheduled to arrive at Sydney August 20 and Melbourne August 29. The fleet will leave Australian waters September 5.

EXPRESS COMPANIES

Should be Prohibited From Dealing in Commodities Transported.

Washington, May 11.—After a thorough investigation, the interstate commerce commission, in a report transmitted to the senate today, recommends that all express companies and their agents be prohibited from dealing on their own account in commodities transported by express, but that express companies be permitted to continue their present methods of conducting interstate business through their order and commission departments, subject to such restriction as will prevent discrimination.

PERCENTAGE INCREASED.

Senate Votes to Give States 25 Per Cent From Forest Reserves.

Washington, May 11.—The agricultural appropriation bill was taken up by the senate today for final disposition. Senator Fulton of Oregon moved an amendment that hereafter 25 per cent of all money received annually from forest reserves shall be paid to the states or territories where the reserves are located, to be expended as the legislatures shall direct, for the public schools or public roads of the counties in which the reserves are situated. In the past only 10 per cent of these funds have been distributed.

Opposition to the amendment was made by Senator Hepburn of Idaho, who insisted that the constitution of each state provides that all money received from the forest reserves shall go to the school fund of the state.

The amendment giving 25 per cent from the income of the forest reserves from sales of timber, lease or grazing lands, etc., to states in which they are located was adopted.

Land Contest.

A hearing was begun today before Register Engle of the United States Land office, in the case of Martin M. McCabe vs. Matt Ronka. The case involves land in 64-13, on which Ronka had filed under the homestead law. McCabe filed a contest and a few days later, Ronka sent in a relinquishment and an application for stone and timber entry, thus giving McCabe first right of entry. Ronka claims he knew nothing of the contest, when he relinquished his homestead claim, and asked a hearing of the case.

POSTMISTRESS CHARGED WITH OPENING LETTERS.

Chicago, May 11.—Mrs. Annie B. Whitmore, postmistress at Grays Lake, Ind., was arraigned today, before United States Commissioner Foote on the charge of opening the private correspondence of Rev. Charles E. Havenor of Grays Lake and Miss Mary S. Calvin of Fort Wayne. It is claimed by Mr. Havenor that the postmistress has been prying into his love affairs, and circulating gossip concerning them among the women of Grays Lake. Mrs. Whitmore, who asserts her innocence, asked for a continuance, and it was granted.

SAILORS TAKEN ABOUT CITY OF SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, May 11.—Although the sky was overcast with clouds and the wind portends rain, the second week's entertainment of the officers and men of the fleet began this morning promptly according to program. Beginning at 8 o'clock and continuing at intervals throughout the day, big observation cars left the terminus at the ferry building and proceeding over the network of the lines of the United Railways passing by nearly every point of interest in the city and suburbs on the peninsula. These excursions were arranged for the benefit of the sailors.

BARONET DEAD.

London, May 11.—Sir Alexander Condie Stephen, K. C. M. G., who was a groom in waiting to the king, is dead. He was born in 1850.

CASES OF INTEREST.

RIGHT TO TAKE BAR EXAMINATION.—In Rhode Island an applicant for admission to the bar, who has not received a classical education or studied at a law school, must have studied law three years in some attorney's office. The supreme court of that state in Re Bosworth, 68 Atlantic Reporter, 316, held that one who studied law for three years under an attorney was not entitled to admission, where it appeared that he was not in attendance at the attorney's office during the daytime, but was employed during the working hours of the day in a department store.

INSURANCE INTEREST — Plaintiff made an agreement with insured whereby he was to pay premiums on certain policies on the life of insured, taken out for the benefit of his children, until his death. Plaintiff was to be reimbursed, upon payment of the policies, for premiums paid with interest, together with a certain substantial sum. The New York court of appeals in Reed vs. Assurance society, 82 Northeastern Reporter, 734, held the contract valid, and that, as the insurance was effected by plaintiff under the agreement upon the insurable interest of the children, he could be held to its performance as their trustee if necessary.

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF LAW REGULATING PAYMENT OF EMPLOYES.—In 1906 Vermont passed a law requiring corporations engaged in certain enumerated classes of business to pay their employes in money each week. In an action brought to test its constitutionality the supreme court of Vermonth, in Lawrence vs. Rutland, 67 Atlantic Reporter, 1091, after referring to numerous decisions, decided the law to be valid.

CONSTRUCTION OF WILL.—In Brown vs. Gibson's eecxutor, 59 Southeastern Reporter, 384, a will provided for the cancellation of all debts due testatrix, but a codicil limited its application to certain specified individuals, including complainant. At her death testatrix held the obligations of all the persons named in the codicil except that of complainant, who was not indebted to her but to another on an obligation secured by mortgage on her farm. The supreme court of appeals of Virginia held that the codicil did not create an obligation on the part of the executor to purchase her debt, which was not then due from the holder, and cancel the same.

EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY ACT HELD INVALID.—The United States supreme court stood five to four in declaring the employer's liability act unconstitutional. The act purported to make common carriers engaged in interstate commerce liable for injuries resulting from negligence of fellow servants, and nullified the defense of contributory negligence when slight. The act was held invalid in Howard vs. Illinois Central Railway company, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 141, on the ground that it assumed to regulate acts not of an interstate character, simply because a part of the business of a carrier might extend beyond the limits of a single state. Justices Harlan, Moody, McKenna, and Holmes dissented.

BURIAL OF A DOG IN CEMETERY.—A cemetery association, the regulations of which provided that its ROOF ON FIRE.

Breakfast of West Duluth Family is Rather Rudely Disturbed.

The family of Fred Fechtler, Sixty-seventh avenue west and Raleigh street, were startled this morning, just before breakfast, by discovering that the entire rear roof of their home was in flames. The fire department was hastily called by telephone, and arrived on the scene shortly after 6 o'clock.

The firemen soon had the fire extinguished, but not before the greater part of the roof had been badly charred. The fire is supposed to have started from a defective chimney, and was not noticed by anyone until it had gained good headway. It is a small one-storied frame building. The damage is estimated at about $150.

NEW DEPOT NEEDED.

West Duluth People Want New Northern Pacific Station.

That West Duluth should have a new Northern Pacific station has for some time been in the minds of West Duluthians. Lately, as the activity in that end of the city has been increasing, the matter has taken a more definite shape, and will probably be expressed in a set of resolutions from the West Duluth Commercial club in the near future.

The station that is now in use is almost twenty years old, and very little has been done to improve it since it was built in 1889. Besides a fairly good passenger trade, a large amount of freight business is carried on each year through the station, and the West Duluth people feel that it is their due that they should have a new station equal to their needs.

Mrs. C. D. Anderson, of Forty-ninth avenue west, has as her guests her sister Mrs. C. R. Groat and her brother, F. E. Burg.

John H. Broaderick of Sauk Center, is visiting West Duluth friends.

Miss Mary Newman has returned to West Duluth after visiting her parents in Eau Claire, Wis.

RAILROADS

SHRINERS GET RATES

Reductions Are Made for Big Convention in St. Paul.

Railroads Follow Precedent Established for Republican Convention.

The Wisconsin Central railway has announced that it will make a reduction for the convention of the Shriners to be held in St. Paul in July. The action of the Wisconsin Central will have to be followed by the other Chicago-St. Paul lines, and it is probable that a substantial reduction from the regular round trip fare from outlying points will be made by the roads running into St. Paul.

Just as was predicted by railway men, when the reduction was announced for the Republican national convention at Chicago, every large convention will probably secure the cheaper rates despite the fact that the railroads claim they are losing money on the 2-cent fare. A precedent has been established by the reduction by the Eastern and Western lines which the passenger agents swore they would never make as long as the 2-cent fare was in existence.

The fact that the Western roads are able to make a reduction will hurt their arguments that they are losing money under the present financial conditions. The reduction made by the Chicago lines to the Twin Cities will necessitate the Duluth lines making a cheap rate for the Shriner's convention.

SOO TRAINS THIS SUMMER.

Will Probably Enter Duluth Over Northern Pacific Tracks.

It is estimated by officials that the trains of the Soo road will be running into Duluth over the tracks of the Northern Pacific, from Moose Lake, by the middle of the summer. No arrangement has been completed between the officials of the Northern Pacific and the Soo as to the use of the tracks of the former road, but it is stated by officials that such an arrangement will be consummated before very long.

The work on the Moose Lake end of the work is proceeding at a rapid rate. More men are being employed on the grading and the work is going ahead so rapidly that indications point to the operation of trains by the first of August, or possibly two weeks later.

MONTANA PROSPEROUS.

Although a native of Minnesota, having been born and reared in Red Wing, William H. Comer of Butte, Mont., is paying his first visit to Duluth and he is free to admit that the half has not been told about the Zenith city. Mr. Comer is general agent in Montana for the Chicago & Great Western railway and is quite well known among railway men of the Northwest. Mr. Comer, accompanied by his wife arrived yesterday and they are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Fenton, 1224 East Third street. As Mr. Comer is a veteran of the Spanish-American war, having served in Company E, Fourteenth Minnesota, he has met many old military friends in Duluth.

The Montana visitors enjoyed the boulevard drive yesterday and admitted the spectacle was worth making a trip to Duluth to see.

"Conditions are considerably improved in Butte," said Mr. Comer, "since the resumption of mining by the Amalgamated, things having about resumed normal conditionns after the shutdown, which naturally put a damper on the greatest mining camp on earth. It is asserted that new economics prevail in the affairs of the Amalgamated and that copper is being turned out cheaper than ever, in order to keep abreast of the reduced price of the red metal. The output of the Washoe smelter at Anaconda, the chief Amalgamated smelter, was about 14,000,000 pounds of coppeo last month, while the Boston & Montana smelter at Great Falls, the other big smelter of the company, recorded a large output. Montana on the whole is enjoying pretty prosperous times."

ENTER BUTTE JUNE 1.

Maps showing the route of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul to the coast, and giving detailed information of the new work, also showing the work that has been accomplished so far, have been received by S. L. Kennedy at the Duluth office of the road.

The map shows the entire system of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, outlining by different colors just where the new work is being done. According to the information that Mr. Kennedy has received, the road will enter Butte, Mont., on or before June 1. More men are being employed on the work, and from now until the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul enters Seattle the work will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

N. P. Officials Here.

J. H. Gilbert, general superintendent of the Northern Pacific, and H. C. Smith of the engineering department of the same road, were in Duluth today. The damage to the Northern Pacific bridge was inspected by the two officials and arrangements as to the repairs made.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

HARMONY EXPECTED

By Leaders of Both Sides at North Dakota Convention.

But Fight on the McKenzie Faction Goes Merrily on.

Minot, N. D., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Delegates and political leaders are arriving in Minot for the Republican state delegate convention, which meets Thursday. Leaders of both insurgents and Stalwarts seem positive that the convention will be harmonious, no matter which faction gains the supremacy. James Kennedy of Fargo, who arrived in Minot yesterday, openly declared himself for the first time as a candidate for the position of national committeeman. Jud Lamour, who also arrived yesterday, has not announced himself, nor is he affiliated with either side.

With his head still bandaged as a result of an operation on his ear a few weeks ago, Senator H. C. Hansbrough arrived here today to look after his interests. He is feeling much better and will mix freely in the battle with a view of helping his chances for re-election. To friends he announced that he intended to overthrow McKenzie and his following if such a thing is possible. The senator is open to any sort of an alliance that will help his cause and give the McKenzie-Little combination the jolt of their lives.

The fight just now in the first skirmish of the campaign is simply to determine whether Alexander McKenzie shall dominate the Republican party in the state.

The Minot convention only elects delegates to the national convention, but it is important in showing the relative strength of the party and of the four candidates for United States senator. What is still more important, its outcome is likely to demonstrate whether the party is to be divided at the polls as it was two years ago with the result that the Democratic governor was elected.

TWO INDORSED FOR GOVERNOR

S. P. Snider and M. W. Savage of Minneapolis Get Support.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two Hennpein county men were proposed last night as candidates for the Republican nomination for governor. Capt. S. P. Snider was indorsed by resolution by the Fourth ward citizens, who convened in the rooms of the Minneapolis Whist club, on Nicollett avenue, and M. W. Savage received the indorsement of the Twelfth Ward Republican club, which met at the Democratic wigwam, Twenty-seventh avenue and Twenty-fifth street south.

There was no fight in either case, but the way the Garfield Republican club, which met in Richmond hall, slashed the various candidates to pieces without indorsing anyone made up for the lack of fight at the other two meetings.

KILLS HIS WIFE.

Missouri Man Jealous of Attentions Paid Her by Another.

Kansas City, Mo., May 12.—E. C. Fletcher, a stone mason, last night, while calling on his wife, Emma, from whom he had been separated, became jealous of the attention another man was paying her and, calling her to the porch, plunged his pocketknife into her heart. The woman died in the arms of her aged father. Fletcher escaped, but was captured today.

WISCONSIN CRIMINAL CAUGHT AT ATLANTIC, IA.

Atlantic, Iowa, May 12.—Charles Donovan was arrested here last night by officers of Jefferson county, Wis. Two years ago Donovan, it is alleged, assaulted a young girl, afterwards stealing a horse in his effort to escape. After a thrilling pursuit he was caught and jailed. On New Year's eve in 1906, while the sheriff was at a watch party, Donovan broke jail and freed two others. Since then every effort to capture him has proved futile. He was tracked to Atlantic by means of letters written by his sweetheart in Wisconsin.

BRITISH COLUMBIA TO ENFORCE FISHING LAWS.

Victoria, B. C., May 12.—The provincial government will this week appoint officials for the enforcement of the provincial fisheries law. This will constitute the most important action yet taken by that body in attempting to assert its jurisdiction where the Dominion government has hitherto held sway. Inspectors to see that the laws as to closed seasons for salmon and other fish are observed will be appointed to act under J. P. Babcock, the deputy provincial fisheries commissioner.

BLACK HAND DEMANDS $5,000 OF HETTY GREEN

HETTY GREEN.

New York, May 12.—Reports which those responsible for them assert are authoritative, are to the effect that Mrs. Hetty Green, who is occupying apartments at the Plaza hotel, recently received a Black Hand letter threatening her with death unless she gave $5,000 to the writer. Since the receipt of the letter, Mrs. Green in leaving the hotel for her office in the Chemical National bank, has been accompanied by a detective.

SMOTHERED BY SAWDUST

Minneapolis Man Loses Life While Loading Wagon.

Buried Suddenly Beneath a Ton of Pulverized Wood.

Minneapolis, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Dufrene, an employe of the Northland Pine company, was smothered to death by sawdust late yesterday afternoon.

Dufrene lost his life when he was attempting to dislodge a mass of sawdust that had become packed in a huge tube from which he was loading his wagon. He succeeded in getting the sawdust started, but instead of coming slowly, as he had expected, the avalanche of pulverized wood came in a deluge and he was swept down the chute and deposited in the wagon box below, where he was buried by a ton of the sawdust, which streamed so rapidly that the man had no opportunity to make a fight for his life.

Workmen in the neighborhood noticed that Dufrene's team did not move away, and upon investigating found that an accident had befallen him.

The sawdust was scooped away as rapidly as possible and Dufrene was pulled out. He was still breathing. The North side patrol wagon was called, but the man died on the way to the hospital.

Dufrene was 37 years old. A widow and three small children, who live at 3018 Third street north, survive him. The mill in which the accident occurred is located at Thirty-third avenue north and the Mississippi river.

NO REFERENCE TO PURDY.

Nomination Not Discussed at Senate Judiciary Committee Meeting.

Washington, May 12.—Although several persons here have expressed the opinion that M. D. Purdy's nomination for judge in Minnesota will be confirmed before adjournment, there was no indication of such action at yesterday's meeting of the senate judiciary committee. Senator Nelson, chairman of the subcommittee in charge of nominations, was present, but made no report and the subject was not referred to by any other members of the committee.

MANY MEN READY TO ENLIST IN THE NAVY.

Washington, May 12.—About four weeks ago the navy department, anticipating favorable action by congress on the proposition to enlist 6,000 additional men, issued instructions to naval recruiting officers to resume acceptance of candidates for enlistment. Returns indicate that there will be no difficulty in getting the men if the present ratio of applicants for enlistment continues. In the first week after resuming work 134 recruits were accepted; in the second week 194, and in the third week 224.

This quantity will be made up of 800,000 pounds of frozen beef, 185,000 pounds of frozen veal and mutton, 180,000 pounds of pork loins, 40,000 punds of young chickens, 5,000 pounds of turkeys, about 90,000 pounds of frankfurters, pork sausages, bolognas and compressed ham, and 250,000 pounds of smoked ham, 2,500,000 pounds of flour, 100,000 pounds of sugar. Of canned peaches, pears and tomatoes and evaporated apples there will be laid in about 300,000 pounds. Vegetables include potatoes 500,000 pounds, onions 50,000 pounds, 7,500 pounds of Lima beans and 30,000 pounds of sauerkraut.

ON WITH THE DIVORCE.

New York, May 12.—News has been received from London that Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, who sailed for England on April 23, to try to persuade her son, Alfred Gwinne Vanderbilt, to make an effort for a reconciliation with his wife, has failed in her mission. As a result, the divorce proceedings will be taken up again.

SECOND LOT OF ALLEGED PENNSYLVANIA BOODLERS ARRAIGNED FOR TRIAL

Charged With Defrauding State in Furnishing New Capitol.

Six Men, Several of Them Very Prominent, Are Involved.

Fourteen Have Been Indicted Altogether on Fraud Charges.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 12.—The scond of the series of conspiracy cases, growing out of the contracts for the furnishing and equipping of the new state capitol, called for trial today, in the Dauphin county court, involves six men. They are Congressman H. Burk Cassel of Marietta, Pa., head of the Pennsylvania Construction company, which supplied about $2,000,000 worth of metallic furniture for the building; Joseph M. Huston of Philadelphia, architect of the capitol and designer of its furniture; William P. Snyder of Spring City, Pa., a former auditor general; William L. Mathues of Media, Pa., a former state treasurer; James M. Shumaker of Johnsthown, Pa., a former superintendent of public grounds and buildings, and Frank M. Irvine, a traveling auditor in the auditor general's department.

Snyder, Mathues and Shumaker were convicted in the first conspiracy trial of defrauding the state out of about $1?,000 in a bill for wooden furniture. An appeal for a new trial before the court in which they appeared today is still pending. Huston was to have been tried with the others in the first trial, but he secured a severance.

In the case that came up today the charge against the six men is conspiracy to defraud the state out of $5,050.10 in a bill of $17,758.70 for metallic filing cases and metallic furniture.

Fourteen men have been indicted on various charges of fraud in connection with the furnishing and decorating of the capitol, and the case of those who have not already been tried will follow that called today. The state capitol, as it stands today, cost $13,000,000, of which $8,000,000 was expended in furnishings and decorations.

PROGRESS NOT GREAT

Past Year Rather An Inactive One for Knights of Pythias.

Duluth Lodge Made the Largest Gain in the State.

Minneapolis, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the last year has not been one of special progress of the order in Minnesota was disclosed by the reports of the officers of the grand lodge, Knights of Pythias, at the annual convention held today. Grand Chancellor Frank L. Young of Duluth, however, called attention to the fact that the membership report for the year ending Dec. 31 did not reflect present conditions, as many lodges which were inactive last year were now doing good work. Indifference on the part of officers of subordinate lodges was referred to by the grand chancellor in these words:

"It is high time that officers in charge of grand lodge affairs so administer the affairs of the grand lodge as to make the officers of subordinate

Has a Gold Crown and Found Among the Debris.

Report of Autopsy Shows Finding of Three Rings on Body.

Initials in them Rather Add to Mystery of the Case.

Laporte, Ind., May 12.—A gold crown tooth was found today in the debris of the Gunness home. It is believed to be from the head of Mrs. Bella Gunness. The tooth was found in the debris of the cellar while Sheriff Smutzer was continuing his preparations to begin the sluicing of the ashes. The relic is a hollow molar, with a gold crown, the metal being indented and to some extent encrusted by cinders. The tooth, however, bears every evidence of having come from the incinerated skull of Mrs. Bella Gunness.

Results of Autopsy.

Laporte, Ind., May 12.—Unexplainable evidence, which has hitherto been suppressed, was made public in the Gunness tragedy this morning. It is contained in the report of Dr. J. L. Gray, who performed the autopsy on the body which the authorities have steadfastly claimed is that of Mrs. Bella Gunness. Dr. Gray, in his report, tells of three rings which were found upon the corpse, and also reveals the fact that the right hand, hitherto declared missing, is still in existence.

The rings, which might be expected to reveal the identity of the wearer, only add to the mystery of the case. Two of them contain inscriptions, one being, "P. S. to J. S., Aug. 22, '94," and the other, "P. G. to J. S., 3-5-95."

Mrs. Gunness' husband was Peter Gunness, but the identity of "J. S. and P. S." is a puzzle which none of the local officials would attempt to explain this morning.

Jennie Olsen, it is suggested, may have been the owner of the rings, but the size of the circles, taken in connection with the date, and the fact that she was born in 1878, preclude this as a definite conclusion.

Dr. Gray's Report.

Dr. Gray made his disclosures in the official report, which he handed to Coroner Mack this morning and refused to discuss the matter later. The report says:

With the body, but disconnected, was an adult right arm, burned and shrunken fingers contracted on the palm. Clutched in the hand was a piece of burned cloth (Exhibit No. 1) A band ring with small diamond set found on second finger of right hand

GRANT FOR ENDOWMENT

Macalester Receives $75,000 From General Education Board.

The Trustees Must Raise $125,000 More to Complete the Fund.

St. Paul, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has just come that the general education board has granted $75,000 to Macalester college for endowment, provided that a total of $450,000 (including this grant) is raised in a definite time for endowment and buildings. This board has received $43,000,000 from John D. Rockefeller, and consists of fifteen men of national reputation as educators and financiers. The chairman of the board is Dr. Fred T. Gates and the secretary Dr. Wallace Buttrick—both men former Baptist ministers in the Twin Cities. Dr. Buttrick has made two examinations of Macalester college since the first of the year.

Macalester college is the first Minnesota educational institution to receive aid from this board, and naturally feels highly gratified at the compliment. Secretary Buttrick has made

TO WIPE OUT BILLBOARDS

St. Paul Will Soon Beautify Approaches to Capitol.

St. Paul, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state of Minnesota, through its capitol grounds commission, is about to take the first steps to clearing up the approaches to the new capitol by wiping out some of the big billboards which are in such generous abundance in that neighborhood. The first attack will be along Wabasha street on the ground recently purchased by the commission.

The state has now acquired title to the land on Wabasha street, between Central avenue and Park avenue, except that occupied by the buildings at the corner of Central avenue. The old sheds, whose roofs were formerly visible over the tops of the billboards, have already been removed and the billboards will soon follow them.

The commission is going to grade this land and convert it into a nice grass plot, and the owners of the billboards will soon be asked to remove them so that this work can be done.

Thomas Downs, custodian of the capital, will have charge of the work and he expects to get started on it within a short time.

MUCH FLESH REMOVED.

One-Fourth of Heavy Virginia Man's Flesh Cut Out.

Richmond, Va., May 12.—Andrew Bazzle, aged 55, the heaviest man in the Valley of Virginia, is a patient in St. Luke's hospital, where he has just undergone an operation performed by Dr. Stuart McGuire, who removed nearly 100 pounds of superfluous flesh from his abdomen.

Bazzle experienced great relief after the removal of the adipose tissue. He will probably be able to return to his home in Rockingham county within a few days.

The cutting away of the superfluous flesh involved a great deal of delicate surgical work. The patient stood the operation well. Bazzle weighed 400 pounds before the operation. His weight began to tire him so he declared he could stand it no longer. He is married and has a large family. The treatment promises in every way to be successful.

APPLAUDED ANARCHIST

Private in Army to be Court-Martialed at the Presidio.

San Francisco, May 12.—With a penalty that may mean any sentence short of death hanging over him, Private William Buwalda, Company A, First Battalion of Engineers, U. S. A., is to go before a court-martial on Friday next at the Presidio.

Buwalda is charged with participating, while in uniform, in a meeting held in this city by the anarchist leader, Emma Goldman, and with having applauded the attacks directed by the woman against the United States government, and particularly against the army and navy.

The court selected for the trial will include a lieutenant colonel, three majors and ten captains.

TORNADO KILLS TWO.

Wind Storm Does Much Damage in Central Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., May 12.—One life was lost and thousands of dollars damage resulted on the buildings by the tornado which struck Sun Prairie, a village twelve miles east of Madison, yesterday afternoon. George Bull, who was on his way home from school sought shelter behind a barn. The barn was blown over and he was buried beneath it, pinned down by heavy timbers. His lifeless body was extricated three quarters of an hour later. The Brunasky business block was unroofed, the high school damaged extensively and a number of barns blown down.

Will Royson, a carpenter was killed and three other workmen were injured in the wreck of a new house in Mazomanie, twenty miles west of here, where a wind storm did much damage.

EVANS MAKES A SHORT SPEECH AT NORTH PLATTE.

North Platte, Neb., May 12.—Rear Admiral Evans passed through North Platte on the Union Pacific Overland limited this morning and stopped long enough to hobble to the rear of the train and make a short speech, in which he said:

STANTON IS RELEASED

Portage Lake Channel is Now Free of Obstructions.

Vessels Advised to Keep in the Center, However.

Steamer John Stanton off at 8 o'clock this morning. The waterway is now free of all obstructions, but vessels should keep to the center of the channel.

The above telegram was received during the morning by Maj. Graham D. Fitch, government engineer, from the government engineers at Houghton and Hancock.

The steamer Stanton, upbound and with a cargo, went on the bottom in the Portage river channel at 5 o'clock yesterday morning and blocked the channel until released this morning.

When word of the wreck was received here yesterday, the government engineers' office at once notified Sault Ste. Marie, so that other upbound boats could be warned. But now the channey is clear, although the engineers advise vesselmen to keep in the center of the channel.

The Stanton went on at the head of the river. One compartment was stove in and full of water, so it was necessary to lighter her to get her off.

The Stanton is a steel steamer 504 feet long and with a 54-foot beam. She is owned by Hutchinson of Cleveland. The amount of damage that was done to her when she went on, is not known.

IMPORTANT MEETING.

Vessel Owners Will Set New Date for Opening of Season.

The date for banishing the inactivity, which has characterized the early weeks of the season of navigation on the Great Lakes this year, will be set at a meeting of the vessel owners to be held in Cleveland today. It is believed that the Lake Carriers will set June 1 as the date for the beginning of the general movement.

The lack of cargoes is strikingly illustrated by the laying up of the big freighter Mills, which recently took a cargo of grain down the lakes. Other freighters will lay up until the beginning of the general movement, as there are no return cargoes without the ore trade being opened and the shipping of coal is not profitable enough to allow the boats to return to the lower lakes light.

LIST OF ENGINEERS.

Pittsburg Company Announces Men Engaged for the Season.

The engineers and assistants of the Pittsburg Steamship company's fleet, have been announced by F. B. Smith, fleet engineer of the company.

Several shifts have been made but most of the old men have been reappointed.

The chief engineers have signed individual contracts, and have selected their own assistants, subject to the approval of the fleet engineer. Most of the men will report for duty this week, and will be engaged in fitting out their boats.

Tug on Fire.

The fire department was called last evening at 8:30 to extinguish a blaze on the Duluth-Superior Dredge company's tug John Navagh. The boat was only slightly damaged by the flames. She was lying in the Fifth avenue slip.

No Business in Sight.

Buffalo, May 12.—Both in coal and package freight the business conditions were never so bad as at present. In the latter line managers say matters are even worse than they had anticipated.

Two coal charters were reported here yesterday, the P. P. Miller to Milwaukee at 40 cents and the W. F. Wolf, Chicago, 40 cents.

There are indications now that several of the boats that have made a start will be laid up. The managers declare there is no business in sight.

Thompson is Docked.

Cleveland May 12.—The steamer A. W. Thompson, which was damaged in launching at Bay City, was docked here for repairs yesterday. The steamer Hoyt, which went ashore at Dunkirk, will not have to be docked. She will load coal.

Vessels Won't Start.

Cleveland, May 12.—Hard coal shippers at Buffalo are trying to get vessel owners who have taken cargoes to start their boats. The charters were made with the understanding that the boats would not sail until the owners were ready, and, with no down cargoes in sight, the owners will be slow in starting out.

Grain tonnage that was in the market at Duluth yesterday could not be placed. Some boats are taking all grain offered in small lots.

A Second Meeting.

Cleveland, May 12.—A meeting of the vesselmen will be held here tomorrow, when another agreement may be made in regard to starting. The old agreement which required all boats to be held in port until May 12 was violated by a number of owners.

Alaska a Profitable Investment.

Alaska was purchased from Russia in 1867 for $7,200,000, and since it has already yielded over 200 millions in gold it has proven a very profitable investment. The year 1907 alone shows a production of about 28 millions and this will likely be increased this year. If you are sickly and delicate, unable to sleep or eat you cannot make a more profitable investment than to get a bottle of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters from your druggist or dealer. It will restore you to robust health and prepare you for the battles of every day life. For over fifty-four years it has been proving its merits in cases of sleeplessness, sick headache, loss of appetite, costiveness, billousnes, dyspepsia, indigestion, heartburn, female ills and malaria, fever and ague. Try it without delay and be convinced of its merit.

Label League Meeting.

In spite of the inclement weather of last evening the Women's International Union Labor league, No. 230, had a large attendance at the meeting held in Kalamazoo hall. Applications for membership were presented by fifteen candidates, who were initiated. Business was discussed and a card party was announced to be held in Columbia hall, West end, the night of June 1. A moonlight hop was decided to be held at Fairmount park on June 4.

Arthur Grant of Cleveland gave an interesting address on the splendid work the Women's Label league is doing throughout the country, and stated he was positive that the women would be the redemption of the working men of the country.

Several local men gave short addresses and songs and solos were rendered by Mrs. Peters and Miss MacInnes.

At the meeting to be held on May 25, a number of speakers from outside will be present.

The next meeting will be held at Columbia hall, West end, Monday, May 11, in the afternoon.

D., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The 3 year old child of Editor James Durket of the Chequamegon Critic is dead as a result of burns sustained Saturday afternoon while playing about a bonfire near the Durket residence. Hofmann Praises Steinway!

Noted Musician Tells Why He Always Uses Famous Piano

(Special Dispatch to the Inter-Ocean.)

NEW YORK, April 25.—Mr. Josef Hofmann, the eminent pianist, made the following statement in an interview today:

"The idea that for a beginner almost any sort of teacher and any sort of piano will do is a great mistake, for with an inferior teacher the pupil will learn things that have to be unlearned, and with an inferior piano the player cannot possibly judge his playing.

"For this reason I always use the Steinway, for I know that if something goes wrong it is the fault of my fingers and not the piano. Of course, some artists are bound by guarantees to use other pianos, but where such obligations do not exist free choice will always be the Steinway.

"I have tried Russian, Austrian, German, French and English pianos, but only when I play the Steinway the critics, musicians and the public in general comment upon the beautiful singing quality of my piano. In the Steinway alone, power, tenderness, and daintiness are combined, while in all other pianos one quality is sacrificed for the other.

"I use the Steinway because I know it is the best, and I praise it because good work ought to be encouraged. America may well be proud of the achievements of Steinway & Sons."

MUSIC TEACHERS

To Meet in Annual Session at St. Peter.

The annual meeting of the Minnesota State Music Teachers' association will be held June 16 and 17 of this year at St. Peter, Minn. The chairman of the program for this year is George Fairclough of St. Paul, and the Duluth musicians who have been invited to appear are Horace W. Reyner, Miss Josephine Carey and Miss Hyland. Mr. Reyner will read a paper on "A Few Thoughts on the Equipment of a Church Organist." A number of the Duluth musicians are planning to attend the annual meeting.

THE MAY FESTIVAL.

Brilliant Series of Concerts Promised for Next Week.

H. N. Reyner, director of the Duluth Oratorio society, spent last Friday in Minneapolis rehearsing the Symphony orchestra in the "Golden Legend," "Olaf Trygvasson," and the "Wreck of the Hesperus," which will be presented here for the second May festival. Mr. Reyner reports the orchestral work to be of an even finer quality than last year. The orchestra played at sight the "Wreck of the Hesperus" without a single slip, which was an extraordinary effort, considering the difficulty of Hamish MacCunn's brilliant accompaniments. The orchestra commenced its Festival tour yesterday in Winnipeg, and will be in Duluth early next Monday morning, when the final rehearsals take place, with chorus and soloists for the opening concert on Monday night. On Saturday morning next the last rehearsal of the Children's chorus will be held, at 10:30, in the M. E. church lecture hall. Any who are interested in the work of the Children's chorus are invited to attend the rehearsal of Benoit's charming cantata, "Into the World."

The sale of seats for the Festival has been most encouraging, and even during yesterday's downpour of rain the demand was brisk. The out-of-town sale is large, and there will be people in attendance from as far as Amenia, N. D., as well as near-by range towns.

To Return to Duluth.

Mrs. Lucia Judd McAuliffe, who has been studying music in Chicago during the winter, will return to Duluth next month, at the close of the school term. The year has been a most successful one and Mrs. McAuliffe has been highly complimented during the season upon her vocal equipment. She has sung before several of the prominent musical directors and has received great encouragement. Mrs. McAuliffe is not, however, anticipating a stage career, and after her return to Duluth will open a studio here.

Fads of Fashion.

The coin spotted foulard is serviceable and also is popular.

A satin slip molded to the figure is worn under evening gowns.

The foulard in all colors and designs has again come to the fore.

Many of the most fashionable dresses this spring are heavily braided.

Never has taupe enjoyed a larger meed of popularity than it will this season.

Whatever else be the figure of 1908, the shoulders must be broad and drooping.

White is scheduled to lead in spring fabrics, but the colors will not be neglected.

An important feature where hats are concerned is the return to favor of ostrich tips.

Many hostesses are serving rock candy crystals instead of sugar with after dinner coffee.

A decidedly novel trimming scheme is to use velvet battlements and bias bands on chiffon broadcloth.

Never before has Paris so persistently declared that the season's fashionable costumes shall be of silk.

Long straight lines, reflecting the Greek idea of feminine drapery, are brought out prominently in tailor mades.

A great deal of colored tulle and mousseline is used for hat gowns, for to be modish a crown must be high and gathered full—a kind of raised Tam O'Shanter.

An important innovation which has crept into the ateliers of Paris and which promises to carry all before it is the vogue for large bows and pompons of cretonne, veiled with tulle.

Narrow soutache braid is used in great profusion not only on cloth and silk but on sheer materials like chiffon, where it is much seen as a trimming of imported blouses.

Even the most enthusiastic milliners will not predict that the "Merry Widow" hat will outlast midsummer. They say that the furore has been too unreasoning, and already the hat is becoming "common."

HOUSECLEANING HINT

Suggestions of Various Kinds For Busy Housewives.

To polish brass trimmings, such as hinges, handles and other ornaments of furniture, without marring the wood during the work requires that the polish shall be beneficial to the wood as well as to the metal. A mixture of half as much naphtha as paraffine oil and enough powdered rotten stone to make a soft, thick cream will accomplish the purpose. It should be applied with wool and should be followed by a rubbing with a soft cloth. Before polishing the last time it is well to make an application of dry rotten stone powder to remove all traces of the naphtha. Unless this is done, the brass will tarnish soon.

Valuable plaster casts are best cleaned by professional plaster workers. Small pieces that have become soiled may be made more sightly by covering them with whiting and fuller's earth, wrapping them in a cloth and leaving them for two or three days. When the powder is brushed off much of the grime will go with it.

An old housekeeper who has several choice Oriental rugs, some of light color, sees to the cleaning of them herself. They are first swept thoroughly on both sides on the grass of the back yard. Then, if they are light colored, they are covered with cornstarch which has a small mixture of prepared chalk, and are left for several hours. At the end of that time they are brushed free from the powder, shaken well and beaten carefully. Dark ones are covered with hardwood sawdust and left over night. The next day they are swept with a stiff clean broom, and then wiped off with a towel wrung out of hot water.

Natural finished willow furniture may be cleaned with soap suds in which borax has been dissolved. It should be applied with a scrubbing brush. The pieces should be dried very speedily in the sun. Before the cleaning with water begins the piece should be thoroughly dusted. This rule holds good with any article at all that is being washed. All loose dirt should be shaken or brushed off or out before water is applied.

Natural wood should be freed from all loose dust before cleaning and then may be wiped off with a woolen cloth moistened with wood alcohol. This treatment should be followed by a rubbing with a dry woolen cloth to bring out the polish. A woman who found several dents in the hard wood of her dining-room wainscoting restored it by laying over each dent a thick pad of wet brown paper, a wet cloth folded several times over that and then applying a hot iron over all. When the pad was about dry it was removed and if the place still showed a mar the treatment was repeated.

One housekeeper who is successful in keeping her furniture in polish, washes the varnished wood frames twice a year with potato water and then rubs them dry and bright with woolen cloths. The piano receives the same treatment. The potato water is prepared by soaking uncooked potatoes, sliced thin, in cold water for two or three hours and then straining the water.

The preparations for cleaning brass which abound in all housefurnishing departments contain more or less acid, and unless this is entirely removed from the metal before the work is finished it will tarnish again rapidly. A safe way is to rub the brass, after it is polished, with a cream made of powdered rotten stone and sweet oil. This treatment brings out a rich yellow tone, while the other preparations leave a white tinge.

WORKING FOR MONUMENT.

Fargo, N. D., May 12.—The local Norsemen are active in their efforts to get the people of Abercrombie to consent to a transfer of the Wergland monument to this city. A committee, appointed by Fargoans, has waited on the people at Abercrombie and if they succeed an effort will be made to get Bishop Bang to come here for an address.

Mrs. S. Joyce, 180 Sullivan Street, Claremont, N. H., writes: "About a year ago I bought two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It cured me of a severe case of Kidney trouble of several years' standing. It certainly is a grand, good medicine, and I heartily recommend it." At all druggists.

AMENDED COMPLAINT.

Virginia Man Claims Bank Failed to Pay Sum Agreed.

An amended complaint was filed this morning in the case of J. Quincy Haas & Co. vs. the First National Bank of Virginia, Minn. It is claimed that O. L. Pederson sold his insurance business to the bank for the sum of $3,000 down and $1,000 after the first year, if the commissions amounted to more than $5,000. Pederson transfered his interests to the plaintiff company and it is claimed that the $1,000 additional was never paid despite the fact that the commissions exceeded $7,000 in the first year.

INLAND WATERWAYS BILL.

Senator Nelson's Opposition May be Fatal to the Measure.

Washington, May 12.—There is a report that Senator Nelson's opposition to that portion of the president's policy which caused the veto of the Rainy river dam bill may result in the defeat of the inland waterweys bill. That bill is now before the senate committee on commerce, of which Mr. Nelson is a member. In the committee the bill already has been pruned from $50,000,000 to $10,000,000, and it is said that Senator Nelson may be able to prevent it being reported during this session.

The Minnesota delegation in the house is inclined to take the same view taken by Senator Nelson of the Rainy river veto and so there is a chance that the delegation will not enthuse over the inland waterways bill.

Senator Nelson wants to limit the operation of the inland waterways commission to navigation, while the president wants its scope to be much broader than that subject. The bill creates the commission and provides $50,000,000 a year for it to expend in river improvement. This, as has been stated, has been cut to $10,000,000 in the senate commerce committee.

Water Department Gives Some Experiences With Meter Rate.

Apropos of the recent discussion relative to the action of the water department in changing the water consumption of the city from the flat rate to the meter rate basis, the manager of the department has submitted to the board of water and light commissioners a comparative statement showing eighteen cases or experiences, selected at hap-hazard from the department's books.

The statement shows what each of the eighteen consumers paid under the flat rate and what each is now paying under the meter rate, for a month's interval.

The greatest change in cost was $2.08 under the flat rate and 78 cents under the meter rate. The other extreme was $3 under the flat rate and $8.58 under the meter rate.

The statement shows that the department has made a total gain of $28.50 on the eighteen residences selected, although eleven out of the eighteen paid less under the meter rate than they did under the flat rate. Seven paid more under the meter rate than under the flat rate.

This goes to show, so the department claims, that the flat rate is no indication of the amount of water used.

TOMLINSON IN IRON ORE DEAL

Vessel Man One of New Owners of Volunteer Mine.

G. A. Tomlinson and associates have just purchased from the Gen. Russell A. Alger estate the Volunteer iron mine on the Marquette range.

The transaction involves about 2,000 acres of land at Palmer, just south of Negaunee. Mr. Tomlinson, while confirming the report of the purchase, declines to make the price known.

He declares the property has been purchased as an investment and that it is not the intention of the new owners to work it or to make any great explorations at this time. Michigan men are interested with Mr. Tomlinson in the deal.

BABY'S EYESIGHT WAS THREATENED

By Terrible Eczema—Head Became a Mass of Itching Rash and Sores —Would Scratch Till Blood Came —Much Money Wasted in Fruitless Treatments—Disease Was Soon

CURED AT SLIGHT COST BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Our little girl was two months old when she got a rash on her face and within five days her face and head were all one sore. We used different remedies but it got worse instead of better and we thought she would turn blind and that her ears would fall off. She suffered terribly, and would scratch until the blood came. At night we had to pin her hands down. This went on until she was five months old, then I had her under our family doctor's care, but she continued to grow worse. He said it was eczema. When she was seven months old I started to use Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent, and in three weeks — what a change! I kept using the Cuticura Remedies for two months and our baby was a different girl. You could not see a sign of a sore and she was as fair as a new-born baby, and all for the small cost of a dollar and seventy-five cents where we had spent ten times the money for doctoring. She is now two years old and has not had a sign of the eczema since. Mrs. H. F. Budke, R. F. D. 4, LeSueur, Minn., Apr. 15 and May 2, 1907."

WORK FOR MANY AROUND MINES

Eveleth, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a short time the shipping season will be started around the local mines. At the Fayal, the Drake & Stratton crew, which were repairing the steam shovel preparatory to beginning stripping, finished its work yesterday, and last night the men began firing up, as the real work will commence Wednesday or Thursday. The large number of men who have been out of work for the past four or five months are eagerly awaiting the opening of the shipping season, as they are away behind with their boarding house keepers and others, by whom they have been trusted.

At the Adams open pit the three steam shovels are working full force.

HIBBING FANS MUCH PLEASED

Showing Made by Ball Team Considered Very Satisfactory.

Hibbing, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fans of Hibbing are greatly pleased with the showing made by their ball team. After losing the first two to their opponents, they came back strong, winning the next three in fine style, a catch by Burns in right field being the feature of the entire series.

The baseball park here, when all improvements are completed, will be one of the finest in the Northwest. A new fence and addition to the grand stand will be finished sometime this week. The bleachers are to be lengthened seventy-five feet.

Eveleth, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work has commenced on the ball park, smoothing down the diamond and fixing up the fence, which is down in many places. The several adjacent mines in this vicinity will donate the use of teams and men to help on the work.

Over $1,000 has been raised by the canvassing committee, and Manager Doyle is dickering with several men to take charge of the team. "Butch" Keneally of Duluth, well known in the Northern league, who was to play with Duluth this season, will be here in a day or so to talk over matters with the baseball management in regard to taking full playing charge. About six fast men have already been secured, two of them from the Duluth White Sox; the others have been heard of before on the range. Walker, of last year's team, who played in the Duluth-Virginia series last week, will again be a member of the Eveleth team.

EVELETH COMPANY DRILLS.

Militia Boys Are Showing Up Very Well.

Eveleth, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special drill of the militia company was held last night and was very well attended, considering the wet weather and the number of drills that have been held lately. The extra drills are being given to give the men a chance to ground themselves in the drill manoeuvers, so as to make a good showing at the summer camp next month.

The newly organized O. B. A. lodge held a meeting Sunday night, when about six new applications for membership were accepted.

The electric light company is putting in new meters in all the places which have heretofore been on a flat rate, as they believe there was too much discrimination between the meter users and those on the flat rate. To make all on an equal basis, the meters are being put in as fast as possible.

A number of the business men along Grant avenue, from Jackson to Jones streets, went to the mayor Saturday and had the men, who were starting to work lowering the corner building at Jackson and Grant, stop for a short time as the men were breaking up the sidewalk on Grant avenue and blocking up traffic and impairing the merchants' business. The mayor had the working men put back the sidewalk they had taken out and compelled them to do their work from the side street.

RAILROAD MEN'S SMOKER.

Highly Successful Affair is Conducted at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local lodges of railroad men, the trainmen, firemen and engineers, joined in making merry at a smoker social held Sunday evening in North Pole hall. There were about seventy people present and a very enjoyable program was provided for their entertainment. Wilson & Stover's orchestra of five pieces furnished music for the occasion, and between the orchestra selections several excellent solos were rendered and many entertaining stories told. Among those who sang were Messrs. Frank Skinner, A. E. Bickford and Carl Moe. The latter also danced a couple of jigs and rendered some recitations that were highly enjoyed. Several of the officers and members made brief and pithy addresses.

It is the purpose of the railroad boys to hold one of these smokers every two weeks in the future.

VIRGINIA ELKS' BALL.

Third Annual Affair at Fay Opera House Friday.

Virginia, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Invitations have been issued by Virginia lodge, No. 1003, B. P. O. E., ti their third annual ball, to be given at the Fay opera house, next Friday evening, the 15th. Supper will be served and the La Brosse orchestra will render a program of twenty numbers. The local lodge has succeeded in the past in making these annual ball events long remembered, and elaborate arrangements have been made this year to outdo their previous efforts. Carriages will be provided to carry to and from the hall those who respond to the invitations.

MAY CHANGE MEETINGS.

Eveleth, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—An adjourned meeting of the Business Men's association was called for last night, but on account of the rainy weather and a conflicting lodge meeting only a small number gathered at the city hall. There is considerable talk of changing the meeting night from Monday to Thursday, as many of the members belong to the K. of P. lodge, which also meets Monday night. Another meeting will probably be called for the near future to discuss matters which were to have come up last night.

ROOSEVELT HIGH MEANS BUSINESS

Offers to Debate Any Team in State for $50 Forfeit.

Virginia, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lafayette Bliss, superintendent of schools, returned Sunday morning from the state university where he attended a meeting of the directors of the Minnesota high school debating league, at which time the directors issued a decree of divorce between the league and the university debating board. Supt. Bliss says he advised that the directors simply define the duties and powers of the debating board so that there would be no opportunity for dispute or misunderstanding in the future, but the other directors thought it better to draw away entirely from the university board and have the league directors attend to all matters. The only dissenter was Principal Hobbs of the Minneapolis North high school. It was decided that in future the debating board of the league should consist of the president, vice president and secretary-treasurer of the league, who are appointed by the board of directors.

As to the matter of the state championship for the present year no definite arrangements was made. The superintendent of the high school at Montevideo said that the team there did not care to accept the championship and cup by default, but when Supt. Bliss offered to put up a $50 forfeit on behalf of the Roosevelt high school team to debate any team in the state within a reasonable time, the challenged team to choose side and place, the Montevideo superintendent simply remarked that it was getting rather late to debate any more this year. However, it is possible that the Montevideo team may yet accept the challenge, and the championship decided upon the merits of the respective teams whether or not the cup is awarded to the winning team.

The board will fix the compensation of the actuary and superintendent and all officers shall serve without pay.

Following was the board of directors chosen to serve until the next regular annual meeting: Elmer Matheson, A. C. Osborne, C. W. Miller, E. F. Johnson, Gust Johnson, J. P. Chalmers, William McLean, E. G. Bush and Alex Reid.

The following officers were chosen to serve until their successors are appointed: President, A. C. Osborne; vice president, E. G. Bush; secretary and treasurer, Alex Reid. Adolph Braa was appointed as actuary and superintendent.

The association will expend about $2,200 the present year in planting trees, grass, grading and otherwise improving the grounds, as well as building a sidewalk along the front. The work of planting trees is now in progress. Nearly all the native trees that were left on the grounds are dying as a result of cutting out the bulk of the timber, which is generally the result in this country.

The present officers have taken an active interest in these improvements and it is their purpose to make Greenwood cemetery a beautiful park and a fit habitation for those who have departed.

ELECTRIC LINE ASSURED.

Mining Companies Co-Operating With Proposed Enterprise.

Hibbing, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hibbing electric car line in Hibbing and between here and Chisholm looks like a certainty, according to John A. Healy of this city, who is prominently identified with the enterprise.

Some difficulty was experienced in securing a right-of-way between Hibbing and Chisholm, on account of the extensive mining operations being carried on between the two cities, but the mining companies have shown a disposition to co-operate, and a right-of-way is said to be assured. It is predicted that construction will be resumed within a month and carried to completion without further delay.

Gust Carlson, J. A. Healy, Marx Rogalsky, B. H. Hayes, P. H. Nelson and other prominent business men interested in the project have expressed their confidence in its ultimate success.

TO HAVE EXHIBIT.

Minnesota Will Show Grains and Grasses at Omaha Convention.

St. Paul, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Minnesota will have a suitable exhibit at the convention at Omaha from December 10 to 19, at which the farm products of the Northwestern states will be shown. The Minnesota exhibit will consist of samples of the grains and grasses grown in the state, as well as the work done at the state agricultural school.

The question of providing a Minnesota exhibit at this exposition was discussed yesterday at a conference between George Welsh, commissioner of immigration, and Julius Schmahl, secretary of state, members of the state immigration commission, and Dean Randall and Prof. Bull of the agricultural school. The conferees agreed that Minnesota should be properly represented with an exhibit and the two departments will work together in arranging for it.

It is probable that the grains and grasses for this purpose will be selected from the exhibits at the state fair next fall, with the exception of the corn, which will be secured later. The agricultural school will also prepare an exhibit of the crops raised on the farm and the work of the school generally.

WEST END

TWO GIRLS SEEK DEATH

Chums Would End Their Lives Together—Will Live.

West End Young Women Drink Poison, But Are Saved.

Tired of life and dejected, Julia Evenson and Hilma Lindberg, two young West end girls, entered into a suicide agreement and both attempted to take their lives last evening, at the Evenson home in the Jennings block, Twenty-third avenue west and Superior street.

They purchased a quantity of chloroform at the corner drug store, divided it into two bottles and each one drank a portion of the contents. The prompt action of Dr. Greeley, who was called to the scene, saved their lives.

Recently the young women returned from Minneapolis, where they went in search of employment. They did not find it so they returned to Duluth and have been disconsolate and melancholy since that time.

The poison was purchased from Emil Peterson, a Twenty-third avenue druggist. He says the girls were old customers of his, who declared that they wanted to use it to clean some skirts.

When discovered after the poison had been taken, the Lindberg girl was unconscious in the hallway of the Evenson apartments and Miss Evenson was in her room. Both young women are now well on the road to recovery from the effects of the drug.

Miss Evenson lives with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Evenson and Miss Lindberg boards with them. Miss Lindberg is said to have a mother and a step-father in the city.

PROTEST AGAINST THEATER.

Several West Enders Protest Against Moving Picture Show.

Several West enders appeared before the city council last evening to protest against the renewal of the license for the Majestic theater, a moving picture show house at 2301 West Superior street.

The aldermen heard the objections from the visiting West enders, heard what the manager of the theater had to say and then referred the matter to the committee on licenses, which will bring up the matter at the next meeting.

The West enders did not claim that the theater was immoral but that it kept children out late nights. One of them said he heard a great deal of swearing around there but the manager claimed that the kicker was angry because his pass had been revoked.

During the winter, the boys, the men and the ladies of the church gave socials and now the girls have their turn and in a song, which is to be a feature of the social, there are some clever hits about the previous functions. The songs will be old-fashioned and the girls will be garbed in old- time Norwegian dresses.

LYCEUM—"Brewster's Millions."

AT THE BIJOU.

Clever Little Tragedy Deals With Life in Mexico.

"Beggars," a clever, virile little tragedy, in which Ann Hamilton, supported by three capable actors, appears, is the feature act on the Bijou bill this week. The little sketch is drawn from Mexican life. It tells an interesting little story, and Miss Hamilton is very effective in the leading part. Miss Hamilton is the author of this little sketch, and she apparently is familiar with the country whereof she writes. The scene is splendidly mounted and made a big hit with three large audiences yesterday.

Alexander and Scott, blackface comedians, singers and dancers, are better than the ordinary and their act contains some surprises.

Miss Anna Brigham has a whistling stunt which makes a big hit. Her imitations are excellent.

Selbini and Grovini are acrobats, jugglers, tumblers and trick bicyclists and they have a good act.

Eckert and Burg present a musical fantasy which they call "The Land of the Two Moons." It is something new in the musical line and entertaining.

Isadore Silver sings "An Old Fashioned Cottage," with the usual colored views, and the motion views are good comedy subjects.

The much-heralded "Brewster's Millions" will be at the Lyceum tonight. The story of the play is familiar to most theatergoers. It relates the experience of a young man who is called upon to spend $1,000,000 in a year in a legitimate manner. It is a highly improbable tale, and yet full of dramatic situations and interesting climaxes. The company is claimed to be the Number One company.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLS FRIEND

Then in Remorse, Slayer Attempts His Own Life.

Winthrop, Minn., May 12.—Werner Anderson, aged 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Anderson of Nicollet county, was accidentally shot and killed by Sigfried Slygare, aged 19, on the John Slygare farm, twelve miles south of this place. A load of shot was fired at close range and struck Anderson in the face, mutilating his features in a horrible manner.

The boys were friends and Anderson was at the farm on a visit. The distress of Slygare was so profound that he tried twice to end his life, once by hanging and again by drowning. Relatives in both instances saved his life. The body of Anderson will be taken to his home today for burial.

Houghton, Mich., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—G. F. H. Birdseye of Grand Rapids, inspector of free delivery for the postoffice department in the state of Michigan, came to Houghton for the purpose of investigating the claims of Hurontown for a free delivery service. He and Postmaster Lang drove over the Hurontown route and the outlying locations and the inspector decided the conditions at Hurontown do not warrant free delivery.

But he is going to recommend to the department that a rural free delivery route be established from Houghton to Hurontown and the adjacent farms and locations, either by mounted carriers or by wagon.

RAILROAD NEWS

BUSINESS VERY QUIET

The April Report Shows Very Small Car Movement.

Big Wheat Crop is Silver Lining to the Cloud.

The April report of the Lake Superior Car Service association shows that 19,435 cars were tracked at the terminals of the two cities during the month just closed. This is almost 1,000 cars less than the March record, and is even a greater decrease in the business transacted, than was shown in February, January, December and November. This is advanced in support of the contention of the railroad men that business at the present time is poor enough to warrant the increase of freight rates.

November showed a total of 50,590 cars tracked here against the small record of the month just past. October showed even a greater amount of business, the record established during that month amounting to 56,932 cars. From October to April, the number of cars tracked at the Duluth and Superior terminal tracks has shown a steady decrease. That this condition is not confined to any one section of the country, but that the record established here is rather typical of conditions existing in other shipping centers, is shown by a dispatch published in this column.

Railway men who make this city give it as their opinion that conditions are stationary at the present time because of the pending national party nominations. They look for an increase in business, but they can't say when this increase will come.

Local freight officials were most sanguine two weeks ago. At that time it looked as if a revival in freight business had come. The revival was shortlived however, and at the present time things have reached the bedrock of quietness.

Monthly reports of several of the roads, will show that business and earnings for the past month have undergone a decrease. Several railroad men have read these reports with long features, because they tell more eloquently than polished rhetoric of the poor business that is being done by the roads that have Duluth terminals.

The Duluth roads are not doing any less business than the other roads in other parts of the country. The jobbers and other shippers at this point are more prosperous if anything than those in many other business communities.

The prospects of a great Northwestern crop is the beacon to which the railroads are looking. Of course they are looking for a business revival with the nominations out of the way. But if the growing crop comes up to the expectations that have been raised over its good start, the railroads will have all the business they can handle, nor will they have time to talk of idle cars and the lack of business. Just at the present time, though, shippers don't have to worry over the prospect of not being able to secure cars.

TRAIN AGENTS MEET.

Those of Dakota Division of Great Northern Organize.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The train agents of the Dakota division of the Great Northern met here Sunday for the purpose of perfecting an organization. The association was named the Train Agents' association of the Dakota division of the Great Northern railway. N. B. Mathews of Larimore was elected president of the new organization and J. B. Cushman of Devils Lake, secretary and treasurer.

One of the important features of the meeting was the appointing of W. E. Minkler of Mallory as dean of the organization. Mr. Minkler is father of the Dakota division and has been the longest in service as train agent on the Great Northern system. He went to Fisher as agent in 1878 when that place was the end of the line.

SEPARATE BILL OF LADING.

Duluth Shippers Will Send Petition to Interstate Commerce Commission.

Duluth shippers will add their argument and petition to those of other associations to gain a separate bill of lading covering the shipping of perishable goods. At the present time perishable freight is covered by a bill of lading that also covers other classes of freight. It is to secure a ruling from the interstate commerce commission that the local shippers will send a petition to the members of the commission.

Perishable goods must be shipped to their destination with all dispatch, and it is to facilitate this condition that the request for the bill of lading as separate from the bill of lading covering nonperishable freight is demanded.

Frank Horn Returns.

It is stated in local railway circles that Frank Horn, formerly vice president and general manager of the Northern Pacific railway, will return to the employ of that road. Just what position Mr. Horn will occupy is not stated. There has been a rumor for some time that Mr. Horn would return to his former field of service, so that the story that he will soon be with the Northern Pacific again has the sound of being correct.

Mr. Horn is one of the best railroad men in the United States and his return to the Northern Pacific will be good news to his many friends among western railroad men.

Idle Cars Increase.

New York, May 12.—There was a further increase of idle freight cars in the United States and Canada on April 29 over the previous high record established two weeks earlier. According to the report of the American Railway association there were 413,338 idle cars, an increase of 37,714 over April 15. The total increase for appeal was 105,259 cars. Last October there was a shortage of cars amounting to 86,811. Of the 413,338 cars 147,826 were boxcars; 24,908 were flatcars and 188,725 were coalcars. The report represents 153 railroads with an aggregate freight car equipment of about 2,500,000. This means that 19 per cent of the country's cars are now stationary.

PLANT WILL BE TESTED.

Eight Stockholders From Michigan to Visit American Carbolite Co.

A delegation of stockholders in the American Carbolite company will arrive in West Duluth Friday from Constantine, Mich., and will endeavor, with the aid of Expert Schop, also of Constantine, to prove finally whether the plant can or cannot be run at a profit.

William McMillan, as receiver, has secured permission from the district court to carry on a series of tests, conducted by the stockholders. These experiments will be started the first of next week, three of the furnaces being used. Should the tests prove that the plant can be run at a profit the court will be petitioned to allow it to be again started up.

Some delay has been encountered in getting the committee of stockholders to come to Duluth, but Mr. McMillan received a telegram yesterday that a party of eight could be expected Friday. Everything has been prepared and ready for the tests for several days. How long it will take to decide the question of the cost of making carbide is not known, though the stockholders from outside will probably not be in the city much over a week. The experiments may be carried on after they leave for several weeks.

This matter was taken up several weeks ago by the West Duluth Commercial club and a set of resolutions requesting this improvement were passed. The school grounds are in bad shape and in bad need of improvement.

WILL RAISE STANDARD

Captain Dockery Comments on New Army Pay Bill.

Says Many Old Army Men Will be Drawn Back.

Military men all over the country are in a joyous mood over the passage of the increased army pay bill. The signing of the bill by the president makes it a law, and the question arises just what improvements will be worked in raising the standard of the army by increasing the pay of the officers and the men.

Capt. O. H. Dockery, in charge of the local recruiting office and an officer who has seen practical field service, both in Cuba and Alaska, gives it as his opinion that the standard of the army will be increased over 40 per cent by the new bill becoming a law. Not only will the standard of the enlisted men be raised, but the increased pay to the non-commissioned officers, who were heretofore paid inadequate salaries, will result in the strengthening of a branch of the service that has been lamentably weak since the passing of the old frontier sergeant.

Under the new law, the pay of the corporal will be increased from $15 to $20; that of the sergeant from $18 to $30. Heretofore commissioned officers have found it difficult to get men to take these commissions as they pointed out that the pay was but a slight increase over the pay of the private, while the work and responsibility was much greater.

The new order will change this and result in the securing of able and efficient non-commissioned officers, who are the backbone of the army. Then again the new law places a premium upon re-enlistment. Now a man will receive three dollars per month for each term of enlistment he has served. For instance, the private for the first three years of his term will receive $15 per month. Should he re-enlist he will receive $18 per month for the second enlistment term. The third term will call for $21 per month, the ratio of increase going on until he retires or is discharged from the army.

This cannot help but result in drawing back into the service many privates and non-commissioned officers who were dissatisfied with the conditions under the old pay system. Right here in Duluth there are men in civil life who have attained the rank of sergeant, but who left the service because they thought the pay too small. Many of these men have signified their intention of rejoining the army. That is typical of what ex-army men all over the country will do.

The old first sergeants were really the backbone of the army. They were the link between the commissioned officer and the men. Most of the efficiant first sergeants have become lost to the army. The pay of the first sergeant will be increased from $25 to $45, and many men will be drawn back to the service through this substantial increase.

Capt. Dockery is of the opinion that the army will make wonderful strides in efficiency under the new pay increase.

This is the first increase in the army pay since the Civil war, when a dollar practically had twice the purchasing power it has at the present time.

SUPERIOR NEWS

LAND WORTHLESS.

Superior Men "Stung" by an Oregon Land Cruiser.

Several Superior men who had visions of wealth to be gained in Oregon timber lands on which they had filed, at an expense of $55 each, feel that they have been stung.

The men in question got together and sent two of their number to Oregon to file on claims there. Either the cruiser employed did not know his business or he knew it too well and purposely swindled his clients, for the lands on which they filed proved to be in a treeless desert, many miles from a railroad. The Superior men are out about $55 apiece.

Boosts Douglas County.

In a recent report of the Wisconsin state bureau of labor and industrial statistics, a section, the information for which was compiled by the state board of immigration, is devoted to the advantages of Douglas county farm lands. The report states that Douglas county has "productive soils, invigorating climate, ample rainfall, pure clear water, excellent drainage, active nearby markets and manufacturers at every city or village."

Murder Case Continued.

A continuance of the case of John Govin, who is charged with having inflicted wounds on Alexander Sevalia in a fight at Brule last January which caused his death a month later, was granted in the municipal court yesterday.

A preliminary hearing of the murder case was supposed to take place yesterday, but, at the request of District Attorney McKay, the case was put over for a week, until certain witnesses for the state could be on hand.

Had Fish Out of Season.

For having pickerel in their possession contrary to law, A. Pomish and O. Siegel were fined $25 apiece in Judge Parker's court yesterday. Their arrest was due to the discovery by the warden of 150 pounds of fish at the union station, shipped to Siegel and Pomis. In the consignment were several pickerel, the season for which closed March 31.

POLICE WANT G. PATTERSON

Claimed He Absconded With $600 Belonging to Saloonkeeper.

George Patterson, railroad news agent, is wanted by the police on the charge of having absconded with $600 belonging to a Knife River, Minn., saloonkeeper.

It has been the practise of Patterson to bring checks, cashed by the saloonkeeper, to Duluth to be cashed, returning the money to its rightful owner on the next trip to Knife River. At times he carried as high as $2,500.

Patterson was last seen on Saturday, when he was in a Bowery restaurant. The man has a wife and two little children in Duluth. He had $600 of the saloonkeeper's money at the time of his disappearance.

HUGHES POSITIVE.

Will Not Accept the Nomination for the Vice Presidency.

New York, May 12.—Governor Hughes will not accept the nomination for the vice presidency. This announcement is made in a letter from the governor to Gen. Stewart L. Woodford.

In his letter the governor says: "For reasons which are controling and which leave no room for discussion, and although I would be deeply sensible of the honor thereby conferred, I should not be able to accept and would not in any contingency accept a nomination for the vice presidency, and even were I elected I could not serve."

CLOSE CALL FOR HANSEN

Armourdale, Kan., Man Nearly Fell Into Mrs. Gunness' Clutches.

Kansas City, Mo., May 12.—Christian Hansen, a Norwegian laborer of Armourdale, Kan., a suburb, last Saturday received a letter from Mrs. Belle Gunness of Laporte, Ind., stating that if he could produce $1,000 cash she would marry him. The text of the letter which had remained in the local postoffice some time before its delivery to Hansen follows:

Laporte, Ind., March 1, 1908. To Mr. Christen Hansen, No. 604 North Third street, Armourdale, Kan.

Dear Sir—I am a lonely Norwegian woman and you have been recommended to me by a mutual friend who tells me you have plenty of this world's goods and have a kind and generous disposition. I live on a little seventy-five acre farm just fifty miles from Chicago with a cozy twelve room cottage, kitchen and the rest and badly need a good kind husband to look after myself and small family of three children.

"I have two little girls and a boy 5 years old. His father died five years ago when he was a little baby so he needs a father and one who will aid in his bringing up.

"You understand that I hire help here but none of the men I hire can be depended upon, so you must not come as a hired man but as my husband and I will entertain you under my roof until we understand each other. You will find me competent and of a loving disposition. I have plenty of money upon which to live. You must have plenty of money, too. In order that I may know that you are not a grafter and do not marry me for my money, you must be sure and bring with you $1,000 in currency. I live only a few miles from Laporte and have a splendid farm and a nice little garden.

Lovingly yours,
MRS. B. S. GUNNESS."

Hansen is what is known as a straw boss in the laid department of a packing plant. He is 35 years old and says he was once the captain of artillery in Norway and that his father holds a position of rank in the Swedish navy. Fifteen years ago he ran away from home and came to America. Since then he has worked at Arrieurdale.

Discussing the receipt of the delayed letter from Mrs. Gunness he said:

"Only one thing about her I know, she is not a Norwegian. My people don't do the way she does." Hanson had $700 in the bank. He continued: "When I got this letter I thought of the $700 in the bank. I thought I might draw out and go and see what this woman was like. I read the letter again, she said $1,000. That amount is too big. It cannot be raised so I'll wait.

"Then came the expsure at Laporte. The skeletons are dug up and I see what a fool I would have been." Hansen late yesterday delivered the letter to the police.

DROVE WIFE OUT OF THE HOUSE

John Gustavson is Sentenced to Twenty Days in Jail.

John Gustafson of 1930 Piedmont avenue went home drunk last night and drove his sick wife out of bed and out of the house. Judge Windom, in municipal court this morning, sentenced him to twenty days in jail for the offense.

It is claimed that Mrs. Gustafson was quite ill. Her husband violently ejected her from the house, and she had to take refuge with neighbors. The man said this morning that he did not remember anything of what occurred, because he was so drunk at the time.

David Ashby, a negro, appeared in court, on a complaint sworn out by his wife, who claimed that he threatened her with bodily harm. She asked that he be placed under bond to keep the peace. He pleaded not guilty to the charge, and will be given a hearing at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Bail was fixed at $100.

William Brown drew a $12 fine on a drunk and disorderly charge.

NO TRUTH IN STORY.

Rumors That Fairbanks Has Withdrawn Are Without Foundation.

Indianapolis, May 12.—Joseph B. Kealing, one of the political managers for Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks, issued the following statement today:

"There is not a word of truth in the report sent out from Washington last night that the field was to be left open to Mr. Taft. Those reports are sent out to mislead the public in regard to the real conditions. Indiana will present the name of Vice President Fairbanks to the Republican national convention in June, and perhaps has a better chance for the nomination today than at any time since the campaign began."

Whooping Cough.

"In February our daughter had the whooping cough. Mr. Lane of Hartland, recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said it gave his customers the best of satisfaction. We found it as he said, and can recommend it to anyone having children troubled with whooping cough," says Mrs. A. Goss of Durand, Mich. For sale by all drugists.

SALOONKEEPER IS GIVEN FINE

McQueen Pays $50 for Being Open After Hours.

Alexander McQueen was fined $50 and costs in municipal court this morning for keeping his saloon at 612 West Superior street open after 11 o'clock at night. It is claimed the offense was committed last Friday night.

Mr. McQueen said he had his place of business open after hours as an accommodation to two friends, who, to escape a fight on the street, ran into the saloon, asking that they be allowed to go out the back door. It seems to have taken them some time to traverse the length of the saloon, for it was nearly 1 o'clock when the proprietor of the place was apprehended by the police.

THEY NEED THE MONEY

Citizens' Staff Looking for Men With Dollar's Worth of Loyalty.

Plans Being Made for the Memorial Day Exercises.

Plans for Memorial day are already being made by the citizens' staff, which this year will have charge of the Memorial day exercises.

In the morning there will be a parade of 1,000 school children, headed by the members of the G. A. R., the Sons of Veterans and the citizens' staff. There will also be the usual exercises in the schools.

In the afternoon there will be a mass meeting at the Armory, or some other large hall, and the ceremony of scattering flowers on the water will be conducted by the naval reserves.

Meanwhile, however, what most interests the members and officers of the citizens' staff, is the raising of the money to provide for the exercises. They want $1 from each member of the staff; they want it as soon as they can get it; and they want new members who are willing to expend the sum of $1 once a year to keep green the memory of the soldiers who gave their lives for their country during the Civil war, and to promote a spirit of loyalty to the flag and to the country in the rising generation.

Subscriptions are being received by T. F. Upham.

lodges realize that the honors of their office fully compensate for all the labor required in the performance of the duties involved. And when men of this type cannot be found to take charge of the subordinate lodge that their charter be taken up and the misrepresentation of the order stopped in that community."

Opposed to Insurance Branch.

The grand chancellor was opposed to the insurance branch of the order, and he presented a resolution which, if adopted, would instruct delegates to the supreme lodge to work for legislation which would divorce the insurance branch of the order from the fraternal.

During the past year only one new lodge has been instituted and one has surrendered its charter. Increases of membership were reported from twenty-nine lodges, and in this connection the gand chancellor said:

"Had the balance of the lodges in the domain but held their membership stationary we could have shown a very creditable increase instead of a decrease."

In his report, Fred E. Wheaton, grand keeper of records and seals, after paying a tribute to the principles for which the order stands, called attention to the loss of membership during the past two years.

The number of lodges in the state is 109 and the membership December 31, 8,565. The amount expended for relief by the subordinate lodges during the year was $5,526.32. Subordinate lodge assets were $10,945.13.

The greatest increase of membership in any lodge was forty-seven in North Star, No. 35, of Duluth, the grand chancellor's own lodge.

The report of the grand master of exchequer showed receipts during the fiscal year of $8,487.55. The cash balance is $2,185.07, as against $3,026.45 one year ago.

(Exhibit No. 2). An adult hand and about one-third of the forearm of the left side was with the body, and on the third finger was found a gold ring with a small diamond set, with the engraving, "P. S. to J. S. Aug. 22—94," and a gold ring, engraved on the inside, "P. G. to J. S. 3-5-95" (Exhibits Nos. 3 and 4).

Mr. Gray also described at length the remnants of clothing and nightrobe found with the four bodies. One of the nightrobes was that of an adult, the length of the inside seam of the sleeve being seventeen inches. The gown was trimmed with lace and ribbon and its total length, according to the remnants at hand, was fifty-two inches. Remnants of a child's nightdress and several undergarments were also found.

Dr. Gray's report concludes as follows:

"From the examination of this adult female it is impossible to determine the exact cause of death."

Accompanying the findings of Dr. Gray was a report by Dr. J. H. William Meyer on the body of the male infant found in the ruined house. It describes the condition of the corpse as already revealed, the finding being that the cause of death could not be determined. Reports from Dr. W. H. Long and Dr. F. T. Wilcox on the other bodies were expected during the day.

"Mining" Operations.

Laporte, Ind., May 12.—The "mining" operations, which have been promised by Sheriff Smutzer for several days, started in earnest today in the ruins of the Gunness home. Louis Schultze, who was employed by the sheriff to shice the ashes in the cellar, completed his apparatus early and began the tests to determine whether his arrangements were of the character demanded by the work at hand. Schultze yesterday constructed a sluicing box nine feet long and a foot square and connected it with the tank of a windmill near the house by means of a line of heavy hose. An attachment from a street sprinkler is used to distribute the water through the box.

Additional evidence regarding the methods by which the persons whose corpses were found on the Gunness farm met death was unearthed today. Almost two dozen pairs of scissors, bent and curved in the fashion of surgical instruments, are said to have been found in the ashes in the cellar and in addition three knives, two of a surgical character, and another an unmistakable dirk, were picked up.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary it is believed that the dirk may have been the chief weapon employed in the series of murders which have brought notoriety to the farm. An expert hand could easily have slipped the snake-like weapon between the ribs of the victims and penetrated the heart.

No Marks on Body.

The facts that there were no marks of penetrating wounds on Andrew Helgelein's body is a possible refutation of this theory. But it is pointed out that Helgelein, according to the findings of Dr. J. H. William Meyer as made public yesterday, succumbed only after a fierce struggle in which he tore a handful of hair from the person of the murderer. Chloroform or some other deadening drug is thought to have been used to subdue the death struggle of the South Dakota farmer, after which some deadly poison was used to encompass his death.

In all the other bodies found on the farm there is no negative evidence to disprove the dirk theory, although the condition of the cadavers precludes definite information on this point. The knives and scissors are thought to have been used in dismembering the bodies. Each corpse was mutilated in practically the same manner, the bodies of the latest victims showing particularly expert anatomical work.

Wore Belt For Knives.

An interesting sidelight on the character of Mrs. Gunness has been furnished by Mrs. C. O. Lapham of Laporte, who for six years was a neighbor of the woman. Mrs. Lapham says that on the only occasion on which she called upon her neighbor, her hostess sat near an open window. A strong breeze trough this opening blew aside the folds of a loose house dress, which Mrs. Gunness was wearing, and revealed about her body a wide belt containing pouches of various sizes and sheaths, which seemed to have been constructed for knives.

As a sequel to this experience, Mrs. Lapham's daughter is said to have related an experience at the house when she had accepted an invitation to supper there. Miss Lapham, it is reported, said that she engaged the Gunness children in conversation regarding their home, but that in the midst of their talk, Mrs. Gunness admonished the children and that they thereupon became strangely silent and disquieted. This happened some two weeks before Jennie Olsen disappeared, the latter having been more or less of an intimate friend of Miss Lapham.

The legal forces of the defense were strengthened yesterday by the addition of Ellsworth E. Weir, an attorney of some note in this section. The retention of Mr. Weir followed closely on the arrival of William Lamphere, father of the prisoner.

May Begin Investigation.

There is a bare possibility that the grand jury, which convened yesterday, will begin consideration of the charges against Ray Lamphere today. A few days ago this investigation was postponed until May 18, but yesterday Prosecutor Smith again declared himself ready to proceed, and last night he prepared the depositions which the sheriff and his deputies will swear to for grand jury purposes. Most of the criminal cases in this state are presented to the court on affidavits of belief, filed by the state's attorney. As the important cases before the present inquisitorial body are few, it is expected that the Lamphere charges will be considered not later than Thursday at the outside. Last night Prosecutor Smith said that he might take the case before the jury tomorrow, but he may even hasten this progress. Much depends upon the attitude of Coroner C. S. Mack, who thus far has shown little inclination to push the cases to a conclusion. If he decides today to receive the reports on the Gunness bodies, which have been prepared by four examining physicians, it is possible that the court procedure will be hastened.

INJURY CASE SETTLED.

Suit for $50,500 Against Lumber Company is Dismissed.

Notice of dismissal was filed this morning in the case of John Skender vs. The Northern Lumber company, and Frank H. Gilmore. The case was a personal injury suit, Skender claiming $50,500 damsages for injuries sustained by falling under an engine while in the employ of the lumber company as a brakeman at Mountain Iron. His right leg was severed about six inches from the body and his chest was badly torn. A settlement was effected between the attorneys.

If any one has any doubt as to the virtue of Foley's Kidney Cure, they need only to refer to Mr. Alvin H. Stimpson, of Willimantic, Conn., who, after almost losing hope of recovery, on account of the failure of so many remedies, finally tried Foley's Kidney Cure, which he says was "just the thing" for him, as four bottles cured him completely. He is now entirely well and free from all the suffering incident to acute kidney trouble. At all druggists.

THE RAIN WAS GREATLY NEEDED

Showers Worth Thousands of Dollars to Northern Minnesota.

Last night's rain was worth thousands of dollars to Northern Minnesota.

The forest fires, which threatened to wipe out much valuable timber, have been checked, and there is no longer any danger that they will spread. The weather man predicts that the showers will continue throughout tonight and tomorrow, and if this is the case, the last of the fires should be extinguished before tomorrow night.

Coming as it did after the warm weather Sunday, the shower was also just what was needed for the gardens in the vicinity of Duluth.

SON ENDS LIFE.

Denies in Note That He Was Responsible for Mother's Death.

Lincoln, Neb., May 12.—A special to the Daily Star from Milford, Neb., says: Eugene Smith, 24 years old last night, hanged himself in the barn at his father's farm, seven miles from this place. Last December his mother, Mrs. Frank Smith, was assaulted in her kitchen. For two weeks she was unconscious. When she became able to speak she refused to reveal the name of her assailant. She died as a result of her injuries. Eugene left a note denying that he was responsible for his mother's death. The grand jury began to investigate the crime last week.

"CURTAIN" ORDINANCE STIRS UP HOT DEBATE

"You Can't Stem Tide of Law Enforcement," Says McKnight.

Alderman Moore Hints at "Pressure" and Broken Promises.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Again turned down Alderman Moore's saloon curtain ordinance, after heated debate, by a vote of seven to eight.

Allowed North Star Employment office license to go through on condition that office is moved from Sixth avenue west location within a period of three months.

Received appointments of K. A. Ostergren, Oscar Mitchell and Francis W. Sullivan to the library board.

Laid over for week resolution providing for grading of Piedmont avenue for proposed car line extension.

Referred Majestic theater license renewal to license committee, and listened to protest from West enders.

Ordered discontinued the work of collecting the assessment for the Garfield avenue sewer, and postponed proposition indefinitely.

Received report from board of public works to the effect that the construction of a Fifty-eighth avenue sewer outlet is not practical at present time, because of an unlooked for expense.

A vote of eight to seven at the council meeting last night killed the motion to take Alderman Moore's saloon curtain ordinance from the committee, where it now peacefully reposes, and bring it up for passage. Backers of the proposed measure talked themselves hoarse, but all to no effect. Alderman Moore said he would keep on bringing the matter up until favorable action was taken, and that after he had left the council there would be others there to do the same thing, if the ordinance were not adopted before that time.

Arguing for the adoption of the ordinance had about as much effect in shaking the stand of the anti-liddists as a handful of pebbles thrown against the Duluth canal piers would have in shaking the massive blocks of concrete. Alderman Moore and other friends of the curtain measure hinted broadly that undue pressure was being brought to bear upon some of the aldermen by "special interests," and that this only explained their unreasonable stand. The anti-liddists came back with what oratory they had at their command, and at times the arguments waxed hot.

No Prosecution.

"This is a reasonable regulation," said Alderman Moore. "It provides that there shall be a clear view of the bar and what is behind it from the street after closing hours, on Sundays and on election days. No persecution or hardship is intended. The regulation could be observed without any great expense. Law-abiding saloonkeepers favor it.

"The only ground for opposition is violation of law. That is the way people of the city look at it; they understand that any one opposed to it must be so opposed simply because they want to give saloon men an opportunity to escape obeying the law. This measure will keep on coming up, month after month, and year after year, until favorable action is taken upon it. When I have left the council others will be here to continue in the work. The fight is only just begun.

"The ordinance we are attempting to bring up tonight is not the original. Amendments have been provided to meet the objections of opposing aldermen. The expense entailed in making necessary changes in saloon fronts would be trifling. No reasonable objection can be offered on that score. Other cities have such regulations, and some of them, Boston, for example, provide that a clear view of the saloon's interior shall be provided day and night, whether they are open for business or not.

"It is a well-known fact that liquor is being sold in Duluth after hours and on Sunday. This is an unjust reflection on the police department, and the public thinks the saloons are selling liquor unlawfully under permission from the police. We know they have no such permission, but it looks that way to the layman. Reasonable regulations such as we propose would be a check to the prohibition movement, and for this reason, if for no other, the saloons should be glad to see them put in effect. It is when the saloon gets farthest beyond control and is most flagrant in violation of law that the cry of the Prohibitionists is loudest.

Broken Promises.

"There is not a man here tonight who can say with a clear conscience that the proposed ordinance is not reasonable. Before the ordinance was first introduced I talked with the aldermen about it, and I had promises of support from enough to assure adoption. When the time to vote came, some of these aldermen broke their promises to me and voted against the proposition. If it were not for pressure from the outside, from special interests, politics, business or something else, there is no doubt that the ordinance would pass. Either this or a more stringent measure will be adopted in time, and don't you forget it."

Alderman Tessman said he had not changed his mind a bit in regard to the ordinance and that he was still opposed to it. For one thing he thought exposing the bar to the view of the public would induce people to drink who otherwise would not be tempted. Alderman Cromwell did not agree with him in this, but asserted that showing the interior of the saloon and the disgusting sights there would have just the opposite effect and keep people from entering the building. There is always a mystery about that which is done away from the public view, and this mystery would have a tendency to draw more people into a saloon than would a sight of what was transpiring there. He expressed the belief that $10 each would provide for the necessary alterations to give a view of the interior, and said that in no case would the amount exceed $50. He asserted that the only excuse for not adopting the ordinance was in the interest of continued crime.

Alderman Moe spoke along the same lines, in support of the motion. He spoke of the before-election promises and how some of the aldermen were breaking these promises by not living up to their word on the law enforcement question. Alderman Shartel opposed the ordinance. He said it was not a question of law enforcement, but was a question of prohibition, and that, as long as he had not been elected on a Prohibition platform, he did not propose to become a Prohibitionist.

Arguments "Silly."

Alderman McKnight said the arguments offered in support of the opposition were ridiculous and absolutely silly. He said the proposed regulation was so easy that he was almost ashamed to father it. He said if the opposition was determined to fight at every stage of the game he did not propose to turn the other cheek after he had received one slap in the face, but intended to fight back.

"If you think you will quiet us for evermore by sitting on us now you are away off," declared Mr. McKnight. "This is only the beginning of the fight. You might as well try to stop the fall of water at Niagara as to try to stop this tide of law enforcement."

Ready For a Fight.

Alderman Tessman got to his feet again and said he was ready for a fight if anybody wanted it. Others chipped in, and numerous boasts and threats were handed out. Then Alderman Moore got to his feet and said he was fighting for a principle and not in a spirit of revenge.

The vote was as follows:

For the Ordinance—Moore, Cromwell, McKnight, Kennedy, Moe, Olson and Getchell.

Against the Ordinance—Filiatrault, Foubister, Hogan, Jordan, Ribinack, Shartel, Tessman and Trevillion.

City Engineer McGilvray submitted estimates for the following improvements: Paving of Fifty-eighth avenue east from Tioga to Oneida streets, $1,192; Fifty-fourth avenue east from Superior to Oneida street, $8,675.

The fire board handed in a bill for $1,000 for heating the police room in fire hall No. 2 for a period of twenty years, at the rate of $50 a year. The board explained that it was no more than right that the police fund should stand the expense of heating that portion of the building used for police purposes.

The city attorney explained in a communication that the city could not use any part of Central park as a site for a detention hospital. He had been asked about Zenith park, but said there was no Zenith park within the boundaries of Minnesota, and that he presumed Central park was meant.

The board of public works reported that the outlet sewer proposed for Fifty-eighth avenue west, from Sherburn street to the dock line on the St. Louis river, would be across private property, belonging to the Zenith Furnace company, if the original route was followed out. The furnace people object to the construction of the sewer, and if another route is followed it will be necessary to raise the original estimate from $11,000 to $15,000. In view of these circumstances, the board does not think it would be practical to build the outlet just now. The matter was referred to the committee on drains, sewers and sanitation for consideration.

Alderman Olson introduced a resolution directing that Piedmont avenue be graded so as to permit the proposed street car extension along that avenue. It was decided to postpone action for one week for the purpose of allowing the board of public works to secure releases from any possible injury to abutting property and in order to get some assurance from the street railway company that it will build the extension as soon as the required grade is established.

One thousand dollars was appropriated out of the permanent improvement fund for the removal of rock from the Point of Rocks to fill in on St. Croix avenue to protect the street from the action of the waves.

A resolution was adopted directing the city electrician to make an examination of all the overhead wire cables on Superior street, to see that the proper precautions are taken against any of them falling. The city engineer was instructed to take steps toward having all the wires put underground on Second street between Seventh and Twelfth avenues east and on Twelfth avenue east from London road to Fourth street.

Gas lights were ordered in First alley from Seventh avenue west to First avenue east, two in each block. Renewal of license was granted Peter Meagher, 409 West Michigan street, employment office.

The council ordered twelve building line easements to be made in different parts of the city, and approved the contract for paving Twelfth avenue east, held up last week because of a technical error.

Permission was granted the park board to acquire by condemnation proceedings for park purposes such small part of block 109, Duluth proper, Third division, as is not already owned by the city.

Mayor Haven withdrew his objection to the granting of a license to the North Star Employment on Sixth avenue west and Michigan street, on condition that the employment man would vacate the property within a period of three months. This was agreed to by everybody interested.

The committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks announced that there would be a mass meeting in the council chambers Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, to hear arguments for and against the Twentieth avenue east paving, to which objections have been filed.

AN EMERGENCY CURRENCY BILL

Agreed Upon in Republican Caucus by a Large Majority.

Washington, May 12.—By a vote of 138 to 16, the Republican membrs of the house of represntatives last night agreed to an emergency currency bill, drawn by the special committee appointed by the same conference last week, and consisting of Representatives Vreeland of New York, Burton of Ohio, Weeks of Massachusetts, McKinney of Illinois, and Knowland of California. By an equally decisive vote the conference placed in the hands of the Republican members of the committee on rules the determination of the procedure by which the will of the majority, thus expressed, shall be carried into effect in the house. A resolution to request the banking and currency committee to bring in a report on the Aldrich bill, in order to give the house a parliamentary basis for the substitution of the conference committee bill was defeated.

The rules comprise a choice of methods for putting the conference bill through the house. The committee can bring in a rule discharging the banking and currency committee from further consideration of the Aldrich bill, or the Fowler currency commission bill, the Williams currency bill. Either one of thes measures will then be before the house for action and the procedure would be to strike out all after the enacting clause, and under a one amendment rule only, substitute for the body of the bill, the conference bill.

The bill ratified last night provides for an issue of emergency currency, not to exceed $500,000,000, obtainable for circulation through the national clearing house association's scheme. The bill was adopted in exactly the form as presented by the conference committee, with the exception of the two minor amendments. Among those who voted against the bill were Representatives Cooper of Wisconsin, Brown of Pennsylvania, McMoran of Michigan, Murdock of Kansas, Daragh of Michigan, Campbell of Kansas, Cushman of Washington, Waldo of New York, Kennedy and Keifer of Ohio, and Fowler of New Jersey. Representatives Prince of Illinois and Hayes of California quit the conference shortly before the vote was cast.

SPECIAL SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

Opens at Albany Under Proclamation of Governor Hughes.

Albany, N. Y., May 12.—Both houses of the legislature met last night in extraordinary session, under the proclamation of the governor, heard his special message recommending the several subjects to which he would call their attention, and adjourned until today. The abolition of the protection of public gambling at the race tracks is not among the subjects recommended by Governor Hughes for the consideration of the extraordinary session. But at the conclusion of his message he says:

"I have called a special election in the Forty-seventh senatorial district, to fill the vacancy in the senate caused by the death of Hon. Stanislaus H. Franchot; this election is to be held on May 12, 1908. I make no further recommendation at this time, but it is my intention later to lay before you the important matter of abolishing the existing discriminations in favor of race track gambling and of enacting appropriate legislation in accordance with the constitutional mandate for the prevention of this evil."

In recommending the bringing of telegraph and telephone companies under the public service commissions, Governor Hughes holds that the policy of the state, with regard to public service corporations, should be uniform. In his recommendation of direct nominations Governor Hughes says: "The voters should be able, if they so desire, to choose their candidates, and elected representatives should recognize their accountability directly to their constituents."

Renewing his recommendation of an investigation of the unemployed the governor says: "That the situation with regard to the unemployed is exceedingly grave cannot be gainsaid. And I deem it important that there should be an intelligent and thorough inquiry and due consideration of the facts as ascertained."

CONGRESS WILL ADJOURN MAY 23.

Washington, May 12.—At a conference yesterday between the leaders of the house and senate it was practically agreed that congress shall adjourn Saturday, May 23. The conference was participated in by Representative Watsons, the Republican whip, Sherman of New York, and Senators Aldrich and Hale. The understanding was reached that unless something unforeseen should occur the house for the remainder of the time will devote itself to the two remaining appropriation bills, the general deficiency and the military academy and a discussion of the financial question thereby enabling the senate to catch up with the house on the several supply measures now in conference.

IN INTERESTS OF HARMONY

Republican Leaders Working Hard to Prevent Any Break.

Washington, May 12.—Republican leaders in congress are now working earnestly on a plan to prevent any break at the Chicago convention that might disrupt party harmony an endanger defeat at the polls in November. Conferences have been held at both ends of the capitol, among such men as Senators Aldrich, Hale, Allison and Crane, and Representatives Payne and Sherman of New York, Tawney of Minnesota, Jenkins of Wisconsin and Smith of Iowa, in fact, meetings of small groups from this list have been of almost daily occurence for more than a week. They have been directed to one end—a nomination on the first ballot—by which they mean William H. Taft.

Most of the men figuring prominently in this movement were numbered against Taft early in the campaign, but party policy and the necessity for harmony has awakened a demand that personal desire be subordinated to the will of the majority. That the efforts of the group of leaders back of the harmony movement have not been barren of results is indicated by the fact that to a number of conferences have been called by such men as Senators Hemenway, Penrose, Cullom, Hopkins and Depew and Representatives Parsons and Vreeland of New York, Boutell of Illinois, Burke and Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Watson and Landis of Indiana and others who are backing the candidacy of Vice President Fairbanks, Speaker Cannon, Senator Knox or Governor Hughes.

No attempt is made to disguise the fact that the real impetus to such a concerted movement in the interest of Taft is the refusal of Roosevelt sentiment to be snuffed out and the danger of such sentiment spreading to an extent that might be difficult to control at Chicago. At the same time, it is said, the movement is not hostile to President Roosevelt, who admittedly occupies the position of command in the Taft forces. He has made it perfectly plain that nothing can come of the renewed calls for his renomination, which have been made in Texas, Utah and California, as he is prepared to reject any proffer of support no matter how extended.

A STRONG PRIMARY ELECTION LAW.

Missouri will try at a primary election held Aug. 4, a new direct election law which is in some respects superior to that of Minnesota. One point of marked superiority is that it covers all elective offices, and does not, like that of Minnesota, leave the selection of candidates for state office to the outgrown, cumbersome, undemocratic and controlled convention system.

Every elective officer in Missouri, except presidential electors and local school officers, will be chosen by the primary election system. Even United States senators are nominated in the same way, though the primary election for senators is held at the general election in November. As in Minnesota, voters at the primaries will call for the ballot of the party they desire to vote with, and in addition there will be a non-partisan ticket upon which independent candidates may run. They may also write in the name of a candidate if they are dissatisfied with the choice presented, which cannot be done under the Minnesota primary election law.

Under the Minnesota law the only formality necessary to become a candidate for any office is to pay a fixed fee and file one's declaration of candidacy. Thereupon your name goes upon the primary election ballot. Practically the same thing applies in Missouri to those running for county office, but those running for officers covering a wider constituency than the county, like congressmen, members of the legislature and state officers, must be nominated for places on the primary election ballot by petitions. A candidate for a state office must have at least 1 per cent of his party vote on his petition, and to prevent his getting all the signers in one county, it is provided that at least six counties must be represented by at least 1 per cent of the vote of each. The proportions of nomination signers vary among officers of lesser scope.

Another difference between the Missouri and Minnesota laws that has a marked advantage in favor of the Missouri system is in the provision that candidates for any office may be put upon the primary election ballots by petition. In Minnesota this cannot be done, and the candidate is required to take the initiative, a course that is distasteful to many men who ought to be in public office. If the people of a Missouri senatorial district, for instance, wished to have one of their number run for the legislature, they could get up a petition and have him placed upon the ballot, and a candidate so selected would have a certain appeal to public respect which a candidate who filed on his own initiative does not have. This feature of the Missouri law remedies one of the chief defects in the Minnesota primary election system.

All conventions having been destroyed, the Missouri law provides that precinct committeemen shall be elected at the primaries, the one receiving the highest vote to be county committeeman, the county committeemen selecting a county chairman, the several county chairmen constituting the congressional committee, and each congressional committee selecting two members of the state committee. The state committee, meeting in September with the party candidates, promulgates the party platform.

"EMERGENCY CURRENCY."

If we must have an "emergency currency," probably the plan borrowed by the Republican congressional caucus last night from the Vreeland bill, of having it issued by clearing house associations and based upon commercial paper, is as good as any. Practically, it provides for doing legally and under proper restrictions what the banks did last fall illegally and without any restrictions except their own judgment.

If the passage of such a measure is going to give greater confidence to business, it will be a good thing to do. The Herald has never taken kindly to the emergency currency idea, however, for two reasons. In the first place, the very suggestion involved in the word "emergency" is as alarming as a cry of "Fire!" in a crowded theater, and the announcement that resort is to be had to the emergency currency law will be enough to spread a scare any time. In the second place, at its best this plan is but a makeshift substitute for a satisfactory currency system, one which will serve our needs at all times, and the adoption of a substitute means the indefinite postponement of real currency reform. If anybody comes forth with a reasonable scheme for an elastic currency that will meet all needs, he will be met with determined opposition from those who hate change, and he will be told that we should try out what we have before taking up anything new.

Besides, as The Herald has repeatedly stated, with all the emphasis it could muster, there is no need of currency makeshifts if we would take a common sense course and make proper use of the currency we now have.

To this end two things are necessary: First, enact a postal savings bank law to draw out of hiding the millions that never under present conditions find lodgment in the interior of bank vaults; second, enact a bank deposit guaranty law to make sure that the deposits upon which the nation's credit depends, and therefore its business activity as well, will remain in the banks.

Millions of dollars that ought to be in the banks as a foundation for additional credit are hoarded, particularly by immigrants who are used to postal savings banks at home, and who will use no other kind here. Each dollar in these millions reduces the volume of credit at least $5. With postal savings banks provided, this money would be drawn out of hiding, deposited in the national banks by the government, and added to the credit foundation of business.

Without government and state guaranty of deposits, the first breath of panic means bank runs; bank runs mean sharp contraction of credit; contraction of credit means suspension of industry; suspension of industry means depression and stagnation, with all their horrid associations of starvation, bread lines, crime and despair. If deposits were guaranteed, they would be left in the banks, the banks could continue to extend credit, business could continue, industry need not cease, and workmen would remain employed.

A dubious palliative like an emergency currency law is a mighty poor substitute for these two measures, which would increase prosperity and give it permanence.

A TIMELY WARNING.

The Herald is glad to see that some of the other lake states are beginning to realize that Chicago's Lakes-to-Gulf waterway plan is worth watching closely.

Without at any time or in any manner opposing the Lakes-to-Gulf waterway scheme, The Herald has repeatedly stated that it should be watched by the other lakes states, and that if it threatens to build up a new waterway at any sacrifice to the Great Lakes waterway it should be stopped short of that result.

Heretofore no echo to this warning has come from other lake states. Now, however, the Cleveland Plain Dealer has been awakened to the need of vigilance by the caution of a scientist. Says the Cleveland newspaper:

"The word of warning by Prof. Wright of Oberlin in regard to the danger to lake shipping involved in the Chicago drainage canal project is worth careful consideration. A scientist of recognized standing and an original investigator whose words have weight both in Europe and America, the professor foresees what will happen if the Chicago plan of diverting water from the lakes is allowed to mature. Coupled with the Chicago project as a danger to shipping interests is that of the Ontario Power company, which has been authorized to take water above the crest of Niagara rapids. Both combined will, in the opinion of a Canadian investigator, lower the level of Lake Erie some three or four feet. What this would mean to harbors like that of Cleveland the most casual observer appreciates."

"If the diversion of water projected by these schemes would do that to Lake Erie, what would happen to the connecting waterways at the Sault and Detroit upon which the government has spent millions? This is worth thinking about.

"The federal government," says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, "has spent millions and is constantly spending more to develop lake commerce and keep it at a high standard. It is certainly a short-sighted policy for the government, while continuing these expenditures, to allow hostile interests to destroy what has been created at such a cost. A great industry, on which rests the commercial welfare of many energetic communities, is in danger, and failure to act will reflect on those whose duty in the crisis is clear."

This is well said, and The Herald is pleased to note that its warning has at last found an echo at the other end of the Great Lakes waterway.

Be it remembered, however, that The Herald has not stated that the Lakes-to-Gulf waterway would divert enough water to injure the channels of the Great Lakes; it has merely suggested that the project must be watched to see that it does not. It is argued, in behalf of the Chicago plan, that locks and dams will prevent the escape of too much water. It should be noted, however, that the project also involves the creation of great water powers, which will certainly require a continuous flow of water out of the lakes and into the canal.

CHICAGO'S TWO-MILLION CLUB.

When Chicago had a population of a million or less, some of its energetic citizens formed a "Two Million club," with the idea of "boosting" the city until its population reached the two-million mark. Now Chicago has about that many people, and there is talk of changing the name of the club to the "Three Million club."

No doubt such ideas are desperately revolutionary, and will be very shocking to the public-spirited citizens in every city who are bent upon making their community the greatest on earth, but the thought comes unbidden that humanity would be better served if that Chicago club called itself a "One Million club" and went to work to cut the population in two by placing half the people in smaller towns or upon the land.

We in this country have been altogether too much devoted to the fetich of bigness; we have insisted too much upon quantity and too little upon quality; we have worked too much to make big cities and not enough to make clean, wholesome, contented and happy cities.

If the average unthinking citizen could by some miracle witness the removal of the lid from a metropolis like Chicago, and see what it costs to have a city of 2,000,000 inhabitants, there might be a change in this tendency. He would see many things that would wring his heart and fill him with hatred of the congested centers that we have worked so hard to build up. He would see vast slums, with a population averaging five times as many per city block as can possibly be accommodated in anything like decency and comfort; he would see thousands upon thousands of people denied the fresh air, light and breathing space that are absolutely necessary for moral and physical health; he would see thousands of men out of employment in the best of times, and in each depression he would see the ranks of the unemployed mount suddenly to appalling proportions; he would see conditions that breed disease, suffering and crime as inevitably as a planted and nurtured acorn grows into a mighty oak; he would see sinks of ignorance, crime and infamy growing out of congestion and an over-supply of labor, and constantly menacing society; he would see children whose possibilities of usefulness to society would be infinite under proper conditions, growing up in surroundings that are certain to make them paupers, prostitutes and thieves.

The visitor to a great city sees the boulevards, the parks, the magnificent business centers and the beautiful residence districts where Money has its home, but only by chance does he see the underside of things, the seamy side of the garment. Few of the city people, even, who live outside the slums, realize to the full what these congested centers mean. The citizens of Chicago take pride in Chicago's bigness, show visitors the pleasant and sightly parts of the metropolis, and forget the misery without which, under present economic conditions, there could be no two millions.

If, instead of working to increase the population of Chicago, its Two Million club would work to stamp out the slums, to remove the surplus labor to a place where it can be used, and to produce a city just big enough to provide well paid employment for all of its bread winners, it would be doing something worth while.

When Republican and Democratic leaders get to talking about each other's election sins, a long story is begun which somehow reminds one of the charges made by the pot against the kettle.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Trout must have been biting in a manner highly satisfactory to the nimrods who went to the wooded stream last Sunday, if the number of fish stories told around the lobbies of the hotels is any indication. Most of the star boarders had stories to tell after they reached the hotel Sunday evening. Most of the stories were on the order of the fish that was never caught, though.

One man really did bring in a string of thirty trout. He was one of the men who didn't tell any stories. He didn't think it was necessary. Those who didn't bring home any bulging creels resorted to the evasion of the principle that George Washington laid down in the drama of the cherry tree.

One man at the Lenox told of rowing into a small sheltered inlet in search of trout. The place was very low in water, the outlet being barely large enough to admit the passage of the boat. It was apparent to the fishermen that the little inlet was fairly alive with trout.

The two men were congratulating themselves upon the finding of the place, when something occurred that upset their plans. It also upset the boat. Suddenly the fish made a dart for the small opening through which the boat had entered the stream, and in almost less time than it requires to tell of this strange happening the little stream that was fairly alive with the members of the finny tribe was denuded of its charms for the anglers. But that wasn't all. The water at the place where the two fishermen had entered the little stream was very low. When they started to leave the place, they found that the leaving of the fish had resulted in the waters receding fully three-quarters of a foot.

They found that they couldn't get their boat over the low water of the opening. They found it necessary to take all the stuff out of the boat and carry it over the place where the receding of the water had left it too shallow for the passage of the boat.

The men who returned with two small trout are alone responsible for the veracity of this story.

A little girl at the Lenox hotel attracted attention and created a laugh last evening at the dinner table. The mother of the little girl had been reading to her of the fat man of Bombay. The history of the fat chap had been gone over thoroughly for the amusement of the child. The image of the obese character lurked in the mind of the child.

So when a fat and waddling man came into view of the table where the child was seated, what was more natural than that the child should shout out in a voice shrill with childish astonishment and delight in beholding the character at last:

"Oh, mal see the fat man from Bombay. See, ma, that's the man you have been saying funny things about."

The mother of the child blushed prettily, the fat man grinned as only fat men can, the crowd tittered in outright appreciation of the situation, while the child continued to stare with wonderous appreciation of the fancied feats of the man from Bombay.

Not so very long ago a divine of Duluth, whose appearance is rather eccentric, and who adds somewhat to the effect by the manner of his dress, was at the Lenox hotel. Two small boys were playing near the doorway. As the minister was leaving the hotel in the calm and dignified manner that invariably characterizes his bearing, one of the boys discovered him.

"Hey, Jimmy," he shouted to his companion in a shrill trebble.

"Hey, Jimmy, look who's here, will yer?"

Talk from commercial men who are traveling over the Western states is to the effect that the Johnson boom is swinging over the territory of the West with a rapidity that is proving a source of worry to the men who have the success of the Bryan movement at heart.

J. T. DeLancey is one of the men that believes that Johnson will prove more than a dark horse at the Denver convention. Mr. DeLancey bases his opinion upon the talk he hears among the different men he meets. The Johnson sentiment is gaining new converts every day he asserts, and he is one of the men that believes the people of the Western states are for Johnson first, last and always.

Mr. DeLancey states that the Bryan managers are belittling the growth of Johnson in every way and are doing everything in their power to nullify the effects of it. They are plainly worried over the way the people are taking to Johnson, although they state with a grandiloquent air that Johnson won't know he has been in the running. For people who seemingly are so sure of the easy victory of the Nebraskian, the worries and the uneasiness of the Bryan supporters over the progress Johnson is making is rather laugable, says the Chicago man.

THE WEATHER.

That rain was worth a million a minute. The parched earth drank it greedily as it came steadily down, its steadiness varied by occasional downpours. It put out the forest fires, and it gave new life to the spring foliage, which burst forth joyously under its life-giving stimulation. This morning it was still cloudy, with occasional showers, but the temperature was mild and so was the northeast breeze. Last night's lowest temperature was 49 degs. and yesterday's highest was 56 degs. The weather man says the showers and northeast winds are likely to continue tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today it was cool and clear.

The sun rose this morning at 4:35 and sets tonight at 7:34, making 14 hours and 59 minutes of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "Barometric depressions central this morning over Eastern Lake Superior, Utah and Alberta caused light to copious showers in the lake region, Mississippi, lower Missouri and Red River valleys, the Northwest and Far West during the past twenty-four hours. It is somewhat warmer in North Atlantic states and the Southwest, the former due to falling pressures and the latter because of attendant rising barometer. Pressures are higher over South Atlantic and North Pacific districts. Indications continue favorable for occasional showers in this locality tonight and Wednesday."

MIRTHFUL REMARKS.

Baltimore American: "Where do you find the best candidate timber?"

"Not in the men who take to the woods."

Chicago Tribune: "Verena, is that young man out in the kitchen your first beau?"

"Fur the land's sake, no mum! I'm his first sweetheart, though; that's why I find 'im interestin' mum."

Baltimore American: Contractor—Here is my contract with the city. "The party of the first part—"

Politician (nervously)—Never mind the party of the first part or the party of the second part. What I want to know, are you going to get me into this as the third party in the case?

Houston Post: "Who is the most conspicuous woman in the smart set?"

"Mrs. Jinx."

"What has she done?"

"She has never been divorced."

Philadelphia Press: Servant—You'll have to call again.

Collector—That's what you said yesterday.

Servant—But Mr. Skinner is too ill to talk to you today.

Collector—You needn't worry about that. I'll do all the talking.

Houston Post: "Papa, what does the expression, 'chaos reigned,' mean?"

"It means that the wife of the man who wrote it was cleaning house."

Philadelphia Press: "Why, suh," Col. Guzzle was saying, "the way some men 'round hyar drink is disgustin', suh."

"Ah!" exclaimed the stranger, "you admit that?"

"I sho' do, suh. I've seen 'em take a drink o' good liquah and then make a face as if they didn't like it."

New York Herald: "How shall we keep the young men in the small towns?" asks a Western college president. Very easy, professor; keep the girls there.

Much Noise, Little Substance.

Minneapolis Journal: T. T. Hudson's attempt to georgefredwilliams the Minnesota Democracy is only partially successful. He has the noise, but not the votes.

An Injury to Bryan.

Pittsburg Dispatch: Minnesota has gone in the primaries for Governor John A. Johnson by an overwhelming majority, but the followers of Bryan threaten to hold a convention of their own and send contesting delegates to Denver. If they do this they will injure the Nebraskan. In fact, their refusal to permit Johnson to have his state delegation without a contest has inflicted more damage on Mr. Bryan's campaign than any one incident of the spring. A courteous concession to a "favorite son" would have gone far to disarm the Johnson contingent outside of Minnesota, and would have prevented Governor Johnson taking his vigorous stand in opposition to Mr. Bryan. To now organize a "rump" convention will alienate Bryan support everywhere.

It is probable that Bryan has a majority of delegates in his favor at this moment. His opportunity to get enough more to make the necessary two-thirds on first ballot has been good. But it will not be possible to accumulate the needed number by "rump" conventions. That course will be more likely to drive away regularly elected delegates.

Bumper Crop and Good Prices.

Philadelphia Record: Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is the administration optimist. On the basis of reports so far received, he predicts bumper crops for the farmers this year and a continuance of high food prices. He gives as a reason for this fine outlook for the granger, and less favorable prospect for those who do not till the soil, that population in this country is increasing faster than crop acreage. There is not enough excess of bread and meat to keep pace with the excess of mouths to eat the bread and ment supply. It is his opinion that this condition must last until it is rectified by more digging. Instead of flocking to the towns, the unemployed must go back to the land.

1904--ECHOES OF HARMONY--1908

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Mr. Dunn is starting off Alarm Clock Jacobson's campaign about like he did his own four years ago. It is not the brand of stuff that will win anywhere on earth.

Alexandria Post News: The extension of the primary election to include state officials would be a strong factor in restoring harmony in the Republican party of Minnesota.

Warren Register: There are those who say that Jacobson's legislative record was made so long ago that it is sort of outlawed and does not necessarily indicate Jake's present attitude toward proposed legislation along certain lines. They therefore demand of him a detailed statement, telling where he is at upon every question of general interest to the people of this state. We believe he will give it in due time, as Jacobson is not the man to hide his light under a bushel. It is funny, though, that some of those who are shouting most loudly this demand for Jake's platform are supporting a candidate who has neither record nor platform. They should go slow about insisting that the sage of Madison lay bare his heart to the public until the man of their own choice shall have done so.

Princeton Union (R. C. Dunn): Some of our exchanges think that in case of his election, Mr. Jacobson would be influenced by R. C. Dunn.—Bricelyn Sentinel.

While serving as a legislator Mr. Jacobson frequently and freely counseled with Mr. Dunn at the disadvantage of the state. Mr. Jacobson, however, is a man not easily influenced, as boodlers and lobbyists have discovered to their sorrow. But he has always manifested a willingness to consult with those whom he believed had the best interests of the state at heart.

Princeton Union: Here we have Dunn and Young throwing bricks at each other and calling each other bad names.—Sauk Center Herald.

Beg pardon, Mr. Herald. The brick-throwing and the billingsgate has all been confined to Mr. Young and his underlings. We may add, however, that the words have not yet been coined that would adequately express Bob Dunn's contempt for Eddie Young.

Princeton Union: Attorney General Young has issued another whining letter to the public in which he sorrowfully says of the 'interests:' "THEY ARE NOT SUPPORTING ME." Edward protests too much.

"You may break, you may shatter the vase if you will,
But the scent of the roses will hang round it still."

Albert Lea Times-Enterprise: Robert Dunn thinks that Mr. Jacobson's dignified silence is exasperating to his political enemies. We hardly think that is putting it quite right, Bob. The people of Minnesota would like to have a man for governor who can be dignified in speech and action as well as in silence. Besides it lessens no man's dignity to make a manly declaration of his attitude on public questions.

Mille Lacs Pioneer: If the primary election law applied to the nomination of state officers we imagine that J. F. Jacobson would quickly tell R. C. Dunn to go far back and sit down. No matter how distasteful the Dunn support may be to Mr. Jacobson, he nevertheless realizes that the aggressive, cheeky and unscrupulous and non-influential politicians of the Dunn stripe are the kind that too often slide in as delegates to the conventions, and that there is where they wield their greatest power and influence. Therefore Jake dares not tell what he thinks or feels until the convention gate at least is passed, when he can, if nominated, go direct to the people with his story. If the primary law applied to state officers he could, and doubtless would, speak out now.

The Village Terror.

Beatin'est boy I ever see
Keerless cut-up, lawsey me;
Seemed jist like he used t' set
Thinkin' up new didoes, yet
Sumthin' in them eyes o' blue,
'At he allus turned on you.
Wud o' made :' love the lad,
If he'd been jist twict as bad!

'Minded ME o' "canker-gum"
An' about as trubblesome—
Liked t' have THEM cum 'cause they Felt good when they'd gone away!
Like I allus DID enjoy
Visits from that tarnel boy—
Liked the rest an' rail content,
Allus followed when he'd went!

Didoes? Well, I wanna know!
Wa'n't no monkeyshine 'at go
HE didn't 'speriment—no, sir-e-e-o—
Shocked this hull community
With his didoes; time 'n again,
Made air hair stand up, but then,
Wa'n't no better boy t'do
Errants, er more willin' to.

Teachers allus liked him best—
Favored him frum all the rest,
'Speshully the one that died
'Fore her term wuz up; SHE tried
Hard t' tame him; reckon she
Wud o' smiled if she cud see
That 'ere boy, an' what he duz,
Mornin' after her funer'l wuz.

Day her funer'l wuz, the town
Wa'n't awake when he cum down
Yender lane, his two arms jest
Full o' flowers she liked best—
Seemed t' know her favored ones,
Puts 'em at her door—an' runs!
Left 'em on her winder shelf—
Posies 'at he'd picked hisself.

Seems like stories allus tell
Boys like he wuz turn out well,
'Ceptin' him, an' he, I guess,
Wa'n't cut out fer no success;
Allus been a wild boy thru'
Life, an' same old didoes, too!
Still, the village don't ferget—
Ever'body like him yet.

Generous Uncle Joe.

Chicago News: When you come to think of it, Uncle Joe Cannon is generous not to insist on drawing the salaries of all the Congressmen since he is trying to do all the legislating.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Brainerd Tribune: County option will be a leading issue in the election of members of the state legislature this fall. The movement in this direction appears to be getting formidable.

Grand Rapids Independent: If the primary law of Minnesota extended to state offices, and Ed Young was candidate for the Republican nomination for governor under such conditions, we venture the opinion that he would make the others know he was in the race. But as it is now the will of the people will be thwarted again by the faulty convention system.

International Falls Press: This "getting back to nature" can be overdone. The Indian was back there for quite a while, and never amounted to much.

North Branch Review: Few of the congressmen have earned their salaries this session, but if one of them would have grit enough to get upon the floor of the house and dig into Speaker Cannon all would be forgiven.

Elk River Star-News: While the postmaster editors can hardly be blamed for boosting their respective congressmen for re-election, it seems sometimes as though they overdid it. The postmaster-editors make a grand publicity bureau for the congressmen and no mistake.

Le Sueur News: A Minnesota man, whose home is at Big Lake, won first prize in the target practice of the battleship at Magdalena bay. Minnesota boys can win in any game except politics.

Hendrum Review: It seems an act of justice that large newspapers, which have always been the main defenders of exorbitant tariffs, should be among the first to make a loud squeal against the effects.

Little Falls Transcript: This country is not so bad when the progressive element seems able to control both the great national political parties.

Austin Transcript: It looks, on the face of the returns, as if Taft was an easy winner in the coming Republican convention. He will be a winner at the polls also.

Princeton Union: Hobson may be a monomaniac and all that sort of thing, but when he suggests that the leading nation of the earth should have the leading navy he offers sensible advice.

a sarching investigation of Minnesota colleges, and believes that in its aims and methods Macalester college affords a large opportunity for the development of a high grade Christian college along approved modern lines. It was started in 1888 by scholarly graduates of Eastern colleges, who sought to build up in the Northwest an institution embodying the best traditions of Yale, Princeton, Amherst, Washington and Jefferson, whence they had come. They believed that in the best education the matter of first importance is character; second, culture; third, knowledge. From its foundation it has never lost sight of those early high ideals, never lowered is standards, never catered to the craze for members and noisy notoriety.

Another desirable factor was the loyalty, generosity and heroism of its trustees, who bravely paid off a heavy debt contracted during the nineties, and have since raised $238,000 for buildings and endowment. Since 1900 they have never allowed a year to close with a deficit. The past year they have raised and expended $125,000, of which the largest items were $88,000 for Wallace hall, $15,000 for salaries, $5,000 in repairs and $2,000 in scientific equipment.

$125,000 More Needed.

A year ago James J. Hill pledged $50,000 for endowment, which brought the total to $238,000 at that time. In order to complete the required total of $450,000, the trustees must raise $125,000 within the time limit. This seems a large sum for a close financial year, but the rapid growth of the college the past year in plant, equipment and attendance encourages them and its friends to push the canvass with energy. Its faculty has been strengthened, its curriculum made stadard, and its library and scientific equipment greatly improved. This summer a new science hall will be started, toward which Andrew Carnegie has given $30,000.

Its Presbyterian constituency and board of fifteen trustees is notable for its men of large faith and large means. Prof. Thomas Shaw, formerly of the state agricultural college, is president of the board. The vice president is R. A. Kirk, senior member of the Farwell, Ozmun, Kirk & Co., wholesale hardware firm. Its secretary is Attorney B. H. Schriber, and the treasurer is Charles E. MacKean. The remaining members are Rufus C. Jefferson, O. A. Robertson, J. W. Cooper of Griggs, Cooper & Co., wholesale grocers; Dr. H. C. Swearinger, pastor of the House of Hope, all of St. Paul; Thomas B. Janney of Janney, Semple, Hill & Co., wholesale grocers; George D. Dayton of the Dayton Dry Goods company; Dr. A. B. Marshall, pastor of the First Presbyterian church; Dr. J. E. Bushnell, pastor of Westminster church, and George W. Wishard, all of Minneapolis; A. D. Thomson of Duluth, A. R. Chace of Marshall, and Rev. A. E. Driscoll of Ashland, Wis. The president of the colleeg is Thomas Morey Hodgman, L.D., for twenty-two years of the University of Nebraska. Macalester college has a faculty of twenty-one members, a student enrollment of 227, nine buildings, a campus of forty acres, fronting the famous Summit avenue. The valuation of the plant is $270,000. It lies midway between the Twin Cities and is reached by several street car lines.

I do not like to be published in the paper as a rule, but Doan's Kidney Pills are such a reliable remedy that I would like every sufferer from kidney complaint to know it. SENATORS' EARLY LIFE

Senator Nelson Relates How He Worked When Little Boy.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The discussion of bills to regulate the employment of child labor in the District of Columbia which occupied the entire time of the senate last Wednesday, brought out many interesting facts concerning the early life of the members of the upper house of congress. It was noticeable, too, that the advocates of the measure are senators, who as a rule may be said to have been born to the purple. Senator Lodge, who is recognied as one of the best educated men in the senate, was particularly strenuous in his advocacy of a law to prevent a boy from earning his own support before reaching the age of fourteen. Senator Beveridge, who has lived under a smiling sky nearly all his life, and who is the author of a child labor bill to apply to the whole country was another champion of the measure. But there are senators who have been through the rustling stage and they were the advocates of the opportunity for a youngster to start early in life to carve out a career. Senator Nelson of Minnesota, told of his early struggles. He said:

"I speak from my own experience, Mr. President. From the time I was 11 years old I was obliged to work for my living. When I was 12 years old I walked behind a plow and yoke of cattle and held the plow, and I want to say to the senators it was the proudest moment of my life when I was able to guide that plow and drive those oxen. I have always felt that whatever success I have had in life is owing to the fact that from the time I was a little boy I was obliged to work for my living; and I have always felt that the best part of my education was the education that taught me how to work and labor and earn my own living my young days.

Senator Beveridge tried to pin him down to an admission that all his early work for a living was performed in the open air, but the sturdy Norwegian boy added: "I worked in a blacksmith shop. I worked in a paint shop. I worked in a store. In other words I boxed the compass when I was a boy in the way of employment."

Senator Teller of Colorado, who was born on a farm in Western New York and who did all sorts of farm work before he reached his teens, while supporting the general provisions of the bill thought that the boys of this generation should not be deprived of the opportunities which were enjoyed by the youngsters of half a century ago. And the senator knows something of these opportunities,for when he entered the senate upon the admission of Colorado in 1876 he had as colleagues five other "boys" who had worked with him in the harvest fields of the valley of the Genesee river before he had ever heard of the United States senate.

Senator Piles of Washington said that the greater portion of his life had been spent on the plains and among the mountains of the west where men have had to make their way in the world and he insisted that the boy of 12 or 14 should not be deprived of the opportunity to earn a few dollars for himself during the vacation, and before and after school

The bill as originally drawn would prevent any boy in the District of Columbia, under the age of 14, from carrying a newspaper route on a winter morning, nor would he be permitted to deliver evening newspapers after sundown. It was designed to keep children of tender ages out of the factories and workshops, but like many other measures of an altruistic nature it would go much farther than its sponsors originally intended and would doubtless result in great hardship to many worthy families. But numerous amendments were adopted before the bill came to a final vote. It is probably that still other amendments will be incorporated before it passes the house and that some months will elapse before the law can be fully tested in the District of Columbia. It is admitted to be the most drastic measure of this kind upon the statutes of any state or territory of the union.

Within the next year another statue will be added to the collection of marble and bronze reproductions of the statesmen, patriots and soldiers of the Republic who have been honored by the states which they served. The latest addition to the American Valhalla is to be the statue of Senator George L. Shoup of Idaho. The model of the work has just been completed by the sculptor, Frederick E. Triebel of New York, and as soon as congress adjourns it will be inspected by the commission appointed for the purpose. Under the terms of the contract with the sculptor it must be completed and delivered by the first of February next and the dedication ceremonies will probably attract a greater gathering of the citizens of Idaho to Washington than has ever been seen here before. The statue of Senator Shoup will be the first one erected by any of the states west of the Missouri in honor of one of their sons, although each state in the union has the right to be represented by two such counterfeit presentments. Should all of them avail themselves of the privilege it would soon become necessary to make an addition to Statuary hall, which was formerly the hall of the house of representatives. The total number authorized is ninty-two and up to the present time there are only thirty-five statues in place.

Rhode Island has two, Nathaniel Greene and Roger Williams. Missouri is represented by Francis P. Blair and Thomas H. Benton; New York by Robert R. Livingston and George Clinton; Conecticut by Roger Sherman and Jonathan Trumbull; New Jersey by Richard Stockton and Philip Kearney; Illinois by James Shields and Frances Willard (the only statue of a woman in Washington); Wisconsin by Pere Marquette (the most artistic of the lot); Pennsylvania by J. P. Muhlenberg and Robert Fulton; Vermont by Ethan Allen and Jacob Collamer; Michigan by Lewis Cass; Ohio by James A. Garfield and William Allen; West Virginia by John E. Kenna and F. H. Pierpont; Indiana by Oliver P. Morton; New Hampshire by John Stark and Daniel Webster; Massachusetts by Samuel Adams and John Winthrop; Maine by William King; Maryland by Charles Carroll and Samuel Hanson; Texas by Samuel Huston and Stephen Austin; Alabama by J. L. M. Curry and Kansas by John J. Ingalls.

CERTIFICATES

Of Vaccination Given by Passengers Sufficient to Cross Border.

Winnipeg, May 12.—Inspection is still in progress at the boundary to prevent cases of smallpox being brought into this country from Minnesota. Owing to a protest from Washington at rough usage of people coming from the south by Canadian medical inspectors, changes have been made in the regulations. Passengers are not rudely awakened in the early hours of the morning by officials and examined to see if they have been vaccinated. Now sleeping car conductors receive certificates and one is given to each passenger to fill out, stating when they were vaccinated. If not, the passenger must get up and undergo vaccination. These certificates are handed to the Canadian officials at the border.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

THEY HAVE CLOSE CALL

Three Drunken Lumberjacks Nearly Drown in Cass Lake.

Their Boat Upsets in Midlake, But They Are Rescued.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three lumberjacks had a most miraculous escape from drowning in the lake here yesterday afternoon. The men had come in from one of the camps near town, and after drinking considerable liquor, embarked in a rowboat and started for Star island.

When about in the middle of the lake they got to quarreling and upset the boat. All three were spilled out. They grappled for the boat and endeavored to keep their heads above the water, but their weight sank it.

About this time H. N. Harding, who was several hundred feet away in his launch, spied something unusual, and setting out at full speed, he made directly for the unfortunate men. When he arrived he found them about exhausted. After much trouble they were hauled into the launch and brought to town, where medical aid was summoned. One of the trio is in a critical condition, while the other two are not much the worse after their unpleasant experience.

FLOURISHES GUN, KILLING FRIEND

Grand Forks Youth Who Likes Dime Novels Slays Companion.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The verdict of the coroner's jury in the case of Rudolph Waxvik, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Waxvik, who was shot and killed Sunday night by Earl Nelson, a 15-year-old companion, points a moral that parents all over the Northwest might heed with profit to themselves and their offspring. Too much cheap, dime-novel reading, combined with the failure of parents to keep their children at home during the evening are blamed by the jury for this shocking crime. The jury in its finding declares:

"We find that some of these boys were in the habit of reading dime novels and this, in conjunction with the fact that they were allowed to be out and about the streets of the late hours of night, is, in our opinion, to a great extent responsible for the sad and unfortunate accident.

"We deem it the duty of all parents to know where their children are and what they are doing, and particularly to see to it that they are home before 9 o'clock at night, and we recommend that the city authorities thoroughly enforce the curfew ordinance, providing that no children under 16 years of age be allowed on the streets of the city after 9 o'clock at night, and we further recommend that the city authorities notify all book dealers of the laws against selling dime novels and such class of literature to minors, and feel satisfied if this were done it would prevent a repetition of such a calamity.

"We further recommend that said Earl Nelson be committed to the reform school."

The evidence taken before the coroner's jury disclosed that six boys, all about the same age—Rudolph Waxvik, Carl Waxvik, Earl Nelson, John Farmer, Will Emard and Frank Emard—had been playing along the banks of the Red river Sunday afternoon, looking for pigeons and indulging in other youthful sports. During their frolic along the river they became entangled in some nets belonging to fishermen and were chased away. This angered the boys and they decided to return in the evening and, like the heroes in the latest "yellow-back," have "revenge." The boys returned in the evening—some of them armed. Earl Nelson had a 32-caliber pistol he had acquired during the evening from another boy, and it was while he flourished it around in bad man style that it went off, the bullet striking Waxvik in a vital spot, causing almost instant death. The parents of the murdered boy and of the murderer are prostrated. Nelson will be sent to the reform school.

Young women are often great sufferers for want of proper advice at just the right time.

is what you need to restore health.

Miss Abby F. Barrows, of Nelsonville, Ohio, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"When I wrote to you I was very nervous, had dull headaches, backache, and was very irregular. Doctors did me no good. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and your advice made me regular, well and strong. I am now in better health than ever before."

Miss Elsie L. Hook, of Chelsea, Vt., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I am only sixteen years old, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and your advice have cured me of sideache, periodic pains, and a nervous, irritable condition after everything else had failed."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

JEALOUS ONE SHOOTS.

Wounds Divorced Wife and a Man at Kenosha, Wis.

Kenosha, Wis., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Made bold by liquor and consumed with jealousy, Martin Schleyer, 38, an employe in a local factory, shot and, it is thought, fatally wounded his wife, Martha Schleyer, and Herman Koehler, a boarder at her home, who, it is said, had been paying her marked attentions.

Schleyer is in jail, for after a search country-wide had been started by police officers, he walked into the county jail and gave himself up to Deputy Sheriff Horace Chaffee.

Mrs. Schleyer is shot through the right thigh and abdomen, while Koehler has three ghastly wounds, one through the right side, which pierced the liver, another in the left side, which broke a rib and pierced the lung, and a third in the wrist, which broke all the bones of the wrist.

All of the shots were fired from close range and the bullet is believed to have passed through the body of Mrs. Schleyer.

Koehler is said to be dying, while the condition of Mrs. Schleyer is so grave that it is feared that she will not survive.

FIVE SITES OFFERED.

Aitkin People Will Help Library Proposition Along.

Aitkin, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Little trouble will probably be experienced in securing a site for the proposed Carnegie library, as at the last meeting of the board five sites were offered.

Hon. T. R. Foley offered to donate the lot west of his store building, now occupied by a blacksmith shop; Marr & Krech offered any one of their vacant lots in block 68 of Hungerford's addition; the third was from Angus McMullen for an acre of ground in Jenkins' addition; the fourth was made by Dr. Graves for the lot between his residence and the Enquist property on Fifth street; the fifth site, offered by Col. Potter, is on the south side and is located on Potter street, just south of the Hense residence.

Mayor Hassman was at the meeting and said that no action had been taken as yet by the council in the matter, but that, inasmuch as the village was now appropriating $500 per year for library purposes, it was his opinion that there would be no difficulty experienced in getting the council to pass a resolution making the $500 appropriation a permanent one.

SAMUEL MITCHELL DIES IN CHICAGO

Negaunee, Mich., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Capt. Samuel Mitchell, one of the best known mining men of the Upper Peninsula, who died in a Chicago hospital Sunday arrived today and the funeral arrangements are being planned.

Capt. Mitchell was born in Devonshire, England, in 1844 and came to this country when only 18. He first worked as a common laborer in the Phoenix mine and later with the Madison Copper company. He was successively with the Calumet & Hecla, the Cliff, the Saginaw and many other copper and iron mines holding more responsible positions in succession. Capt. Mitchell sank the first sand shaft in the Lake Superior district, at the Negaunee mine, which property was operated under his personal supervision for several years.

For four years, from 1886 to 1890, Capt. Mitchell was the chief factor in the development and operation of two mines owned by the Montreal River Iron Mining company on the Gogebic range, and in 1887 he negotiated the deal which gave him a large interest in the Jackson Iron Mining company. Upon the change of ownership, Mr. Mitchell was made president and general manager of the company. The mine was conducted from 1888 until the change of ownership under direction of Capt. Henry Merry. The Jackson had for many years been the city's principal industry and it continued to be actively operated for several years under Capt. Mitchell's direction. The annual shipments for a period of nearly ten years exceeded 100,000 tons. Mr. Mitchell was also interested in mines on the Vermilion range, including the properties of the Vermilion Pine & Iron Land company and the Mitchell Iron & Land company.

Interested in Other Lines.

Capt. Mitchell was the first vice president and one of the organizers of the First National bank of Negaunee and was also one of the organizers of the First National, now Miners', of Ishpeming. Other banking institutions in which he was interested at one time or another are the First National of Marquette; the First National of Hurley, Wis.; First National of Escanaba, and the Lincoln National of Chicago.

The surviving members of the family are Mrs. Mitchell and daughters, Mrs. W. E. Saunders, Philadelphia; Mrs. L. P. Wilson, Cleveland; Mrs. Alvin Green, Milwaukee; Mrs. E. W. Adams, Mrs. R. E. Drake, Mrs. J. M. Perkins, Mrs. R. W. Olson and Miss Myrtle Mitchell, Negaunee, and Samuel J Mitchell, Marquette. Two sisters, Mrs. John Perkins of Norway and Mrs. W. H. Walters of St. Louis, are also living.

Territorial Pioneers Meet on State's Fiftieth Anniversary.

St. Paul, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Yesterday was the fiftieth anniversary of Minnesota's admission into the Union, and in commemoration of the event the annual meeting of the Minnesota Territorial Pioneers' association and the Territorial Pioneer Women's club, an auxiliary organization, was held in the old capitol.

In spite of the inclemency of the weather both meetings were well attended.

The morning session was devoted largely to business matters, and wound up with the election of officers. The old officers, with the exception of E. W. Bazille, St. Paul, second vice president, were re-elected, J. J. Furlong of Austin taking Judge Bazille's place. The officers are as follows:

R. A. Plummer of Minneapolis, president; M. D. Wilds of Mankato, first vice president; J. J. Furlong of Austin, second vice president; W. J. Dean of Minneapolis, treasurer; George H. Hazzard of St. Paul, secretary. The executive committee and the associate executive committee will be appointed by President Plummer.

The principal business, other than the election of officers, to come before the association had to do with promoting the work of the association. One feature of the discussion was complaints by some of the members against the board of managers of the state fair.

When the election of secretary was up, Mr. Hazzard said he could hardly afford to again take the office, hampered as it is by lack of funds, and requiring a great amount of work. A motion was then made that a committee of five be appointed to appear before the next legislature and request that an annual appropriation of $1,500 be voted for the salary of the secretary.

The Territorial Pioneer Women's club elected officers as follows:

Mrs. W. J. Huff of St. Paul, president; Mrs. C. C. King of St. Paul, vice president; Mrs. Grace Thompson of Minneapolis, secretary; Miss Carry Stratton of Minneapolis, treasurer.

Dinner was served to members of both organizations by ladies of the Women's Relief Corps in the old capitol.

CAUGHT IN IOWA.

Alleged Slayer of Lake Benton Man, Under Arrest.

Mankato, Minn., May 12.—Special to The Herald.)—Martin Schwab, better known as "Smokey," who is accused of the murder of John Lorenzen at Lake Benton last Tuesday night, was arrested Sunday near Estherville, Iowa, through the good work of Chief of Police Osten of this city. In fact, Schwab was in the custody of Chief Osten last Thursday morning, two days before the postal card sent out by the Lake Benton authorities arrived, containing a description of the alleged murderer.

The evidence against Schwab is purely circumstantial. He is said to have been the last man seen with the murdered man, and he is known to have had no money before that time. He disappeared that night, and the barber-shop where he worked was also robbed. Goods answering the description of those stolen were found in his possession, and he had money when in Mankato to buy clothing and to purchase a ticket for the 10:45 a. m. train, upon which he left Thursday. Chief Osten regrets that he did not examine the discarded trousers that Schwab was carrying.

THE SAFEST OF HOTELS

The St Regis, New York, the Highest Type of Fireproof Construction.

COMFORT COMBINED WITH SAFETY

In no class of buildings are provisions for preventing or extinguishing fires more necessary than in the lofty modern hotels. Realizing this, builders have made special efforts to render such structures fireproof. In New York city many of the great hotels built in recent years claim to be so perfectly constructed that fire is out of the question, but none offers such absolute safety in this direction as the St. Regis, at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street.

The builders of this magnificent hotel were not satisfied with simply complying with the stringent municipal building laws, but went far beyond in providing against fire. Steel, marble, concrete, bronze and wire glass were the principal materials used, and all wood was treated by the most approved fireproofing process. To add to the safety of this great hotel the best known fire-fighting apparatus is supplied, and employes are put through regular fire drills at frequent intervals.

The St. Regis is therefore one of the safest hotels in the world and, as safety is a great contributor to one's comfort, a most comfortable place in which to live. In addition to absolute safety, the St. Regis offers an exceptional cuisine, perfect ventilation, quiet, refined service and surroundings.

In view of these features and the fact that moderate restaurant prices prevail and that a good room with outside view may be had for $4 a day, or the same with private bath for $5 a day ($6 for two people), or a parlor, bedroom and bath for $12, it is little wonder that the St. Regis has become the most popular of New York hotels.

Startling.

It is estimated by an Eastern editor that 43,876,000 persons in this country are sufferers with rheumatism, neuralgia and kidney and bladder ills of various kinds. Think of it. Nearly half the total population. This should not be, says a prominent medical expert, and would not be if people would treat the first symptoms with a simple home made medicine known as the Gaut Formula and prevent becoming chronic invalids. He advises one half ounce fluid ext. Buchu; one ounce compound fluid Balmwort; two ounces compound syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix in a bottle. Teaspoonful before meals, one at retiring, and drink water often. A local druggist advises it and says he fills it frequently for the best physicians. Buchu alone is excellent, but added by balmwort and sarsaparilla it astonishes all who use it by its quick effectiveness.

Great merriment was aroused at times as the thirty witnessses for the defeuse were examined. CASES OF INTEREST

FORFEITURE OF MARINE INSURANCE BY DEVIATION FROM VOYAGE.—A vessel was insured for a voyage between Seattle and an Alaskan port, which she reached in safety, but was wrecked while returning to an intermediate port, at which the inclemency of the weather had prevented her stopping. In Alaska Banking & Safe Deposit Co., vs. Maritime Ins. Co., 155 Federal Reporter, 711, the United States district court, Western District of Washington, held that her insurance expired on her reaching her eventual port, and that the insurers were not liable.

EXHUMATION OF BODY OF INSURED.—The executor of insured brought an action at law to recover on an insurance policy which, seemingly, had been obtained by fraud. Evidence that insured had suicided by poisoning was introduced, which, if true, would vitiate the policy. In Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York vs. Griesa et. al, 156 Federal Reporter, 398, the United States circuit court for the District of Kansas held that a court of equity may, in aid of such defense, order the corpse exhumed for examination, although the widow, who had a right to control the body, not not a party.

IMPEACHMENT OF WITNESSES.—Three prosecutions against one Sanders grew out of sales of the same case of liquor. On the trial of the third case he testified in his own behalf, and on cross-examination was compelled to state whether it had not testified on the other trials that accused sold the liquor, and whether he had not failed to deny the statement. The court of Criminal appeals of Texas, in Sanders vs. State, 105 Southwestern Reporter, 893, held that cross-examination of the accused was a proper method if impeaching his testimony, and that the statute inhibiting reference to accused's failure to testify refers to the trial in the case in which he does not testify.

ABSENCE OF WITNESS AS GROUND FOR CONTINUANCE—In Dallas vs. state, 59 Southeastern Reporter, 279, the supreme court of Georgia held it proper on motion for continuance because of the absence of a witness, to permit the state to make a countershowing as to the testimony expected, stating that, although ordinarily the opposite party will not be permitted to offer testimony to disprove the facts expected to be established by an absent witness, the question in a motion to continue a case is not the truth or falsity of the expected testimony, but whether the witness, if present, would swear to its truth, and in view of the accused's failure to give the court assurance that the absent witness would support his alibi, and the countershowing of the state, it was proper to refuse the continuance.

EJECTION OF PASSENGER—Plaintiff obtained a ticket from the railway company, enabling him and his family to carriage at reduced rates, but stipulating that a transfer of it for one or more trips would cause its forfeiture. Other persons being permitted to use this ticket, the conductor refused to accept it on the ground that it had expired, and ejected the plaintiff. In Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railway company vs. Evans, in 82 Northeastern Reporter, 773, the supreme court of Indiana held that by its transfer, contrary to express stipulations, the ticket was forfeited, and plaintiff had no right to carriage, and no waiver by honoring the ticket with notice of the violation of its terms being shown, it was of no material importance that the conductor had ejected plaintiff on the ground of the expiration of the ticket when, in reality, it had been forfeited and was void.

REMOVAL OF DEAD BODIES—A half century after her decease the grave of an infant sister of plaintiff was opened, and the remains of defendant's mother, stepmother of plaintiff, were interred therein. No traces of the child's body were discovered, but the earth from the grave was removed to another location. In Wilson vs. Read, 68 Atlantic Reporter, 37, the New Hampshire supreme court held that a decree commanding the restoration of the remains to the original sepulcher would be impossible of performance and futile. The defendants who owned the lot had not the right to disturb the grave already in the lot, nor had the plaintiff, as next of kin, a right to prevent the removal of the remains of one buried there, or other use of the land. The rights of each are bounded by rules of propriety and reasonableness, determinable by a court of equity.

SEIZURE OF ABANDONED ANIMALS—The Colorado statute authorizes any officer to take charge of, feed, and hold, for expenses thus incurred, abandoned or cruelly treated animals, but fails to provide for a hearing to determine the facts. In Jenks vs. Stumpsi 93 Pacific Reporter, 17, the supreme court of Colorado held that the statute authorized a taking of property without due process of law, and violated amendment 14 of the federal, and article 2 of the Colorado Constitution.

COMPLIANCE WITH CONDITION OF INSURANCE POLICY BY MORTGAGEE—In the case of Union Inst. for Savings vs. Phoenix Insurance company, 81 Northeastern Reporter, 994, a policy of insurance was issued to a mortgagor containing a clause for payment of loss to the mortgagee as its interest may appear. Another provision related to notice of loss and arbitration. The supreme judicial court of Massachusetts held that the primary duty rested upon the mortgagor, but that on his failure to take action the mortgagee might do so, and that compliance by one or the other was necessary becore an action could be brought.

VERY LARGE GATHERING

At Laying of Cornerstone of Bureau of Republics.

President Roosevelt Pays Warm Tribute to Secretary Root.

Washington, May 12.—In the presence of the president of the United States and of representatives of every other American republic, as well as all branches of the national government and of the state governments, the cornerstone of the proposed new home of the International Bureau of American Republics was laid yesterday. Addresses fitting to the occasion and expressing the great benefits to be derived from the formation of the bureau of American republics in many ways were made by President Roosevelt, Secretary Root, Mr. Nabuco, the Brazilian ambassador, and Andrew Carnegie, while messages of congratulations and wishes for success in the work about to be undertaken were read from the presidents of nearly all of the American republics. A very large audience listened to the speeches and witnessed the laying of the cornerstone. The invited guests, in addition to those actively participating in the exercises, were Vice President Fairbanks, members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, both houses of congress, the governors of the states and prominent citizens of Washington and elsewhere. Music for the occasion was furnished by the Marine band, while the decoration for the grandstands and smaller stands erected to accommodate the guests were made up largely of the flags of the twenty-one American republics.

Director John Barrett of the bureau, in a very brief talk, in which he referred to the great assistance given by Secretary Root toward the accomplishment of the work and his effort in behalf of the advance of the bureau work, introduced the secretary of state, who is chairman of the governing board of the bureau, as the presiding officer. Cardinal Gibbons delivered the invocation, which was followed in turn by an address by Mr. Root, the reading of congratulatory messages from American presidents and addresses by President Roosevelt, Ambassador Nabuco and Andrew Carnegie. Ceremonies incident to the laying of the cornerstone closed the exercises. Inscribed on the cornerstone are the following words:

"Building of the American republics. Erected through the public-spirited gift of Andrew Carnegie and the contributions of all the republics upon land provided by the government of the United States. May 11, 1908."

The President's Speech.

President Roosevelt's address was, in part, as follows:

This is a memorable occasion for all the peoples of the Western Hemisphere. The building, the cornerstone of which we lay today, emphasizes by its existence the growing sense of solidarity of interest and aspiration among all the peoples of the new world. It marks our recognition of the need to knit ever closer together all the republics of the Western Hemisphere, through the kindly bonds of mutual justice, good will, and sympathetic comprehension.

The president extended thanks to Mr. Carnegie for his generous gift, preeminently fitting as coming from one who has so sincerely striven for the cause of peace among nations, and extended greetings to the representatives of all our sister republics to the south of us. In the century that has passed, the development of North America has, on the whole, proceeded faster than the development of South America; but in the century that has now opened, he believed that no other part of the world will see such extraordinary development in wealth, in population, in all that makes for progress, as will be seen from the northern boundary of Mexico through all Central and South America. After referring to the trip of the battle fleet around South America, President Roosevelt said:

In conclusion, let me speak of another trip, made a couple of years ago by the secretary of state, Elihu Root, the first time in our history the American secretary of state, during his term of office, left the country to visit other nations. Mr. Root made the complete tour of South America, traversed Central America, and afterwards visited Mexico. He was everywhere received with the highest greetings which deeply touched our people, and I wish to say once more how appreciative we are of the reception tendered him. His voyage was unique in character and in value. It was undertaken only because we citizens of this Republic recognize that our interests are more closely intertwined with the interests of the other peoples of this continent than with those of any other nations. I believe that history will say that though we have had other great secretaries of state, we have had none greater than Elihu Root; and that though in his high office he has done much for the good of his nation and of mankind, yet that his greatest achievement has been the success which has come as the result of his devoted labor to bring closer together all the republics of the New World, and to unite them in the effort to work valiantly for our common betterment, for the material and moral welfare of all who dwell in the Western hemisphere.

The Most Common Cause of Suffering

Rheumatism causes more pain and suffering than any other disease, for the reason that it is the most common of all ills, and it is certainly gratifying to sufferers to know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm will afford relief, and make rest and sleep possible. In many cases the relief from pain, which is at first temporary, has become permanent, while in old people subject to chronic rheumatism, often brought on by dampness or changes in the weather, a permanent cure cannot be expected; the relief from pain which this liniment affords is alone worth many times its cost. 25 and 50-cent sizes. For sale by all druggists.

WELLMAN'S TRIP WAS A BLUFF

Chief Engineer Says It Was Simply Advertising Dodge.

Paris, May 12.—Lowenthal, the chief engineer of Walter Wellman's balloon expedition to the North pole, declares that the whole affair was a farce, or what he calls "Arctic American bluff," adding: "The only serious member of the expedition was Maj. Hersey, sent by the United States government for the purpose of making meterological observations."

Lowenthal says he was sent in advance to construct an Arctic house, workshop, station for wireless telegraphy, balloon shed and apparatus for making hydrogen gas, and took the thing seriously until Wellman arrived, with four assistants, one of them being a doctor who proposed to establish, on Dane's island, a shop for selling the skins of white bears to tourists.

The instruments brought by Maj. Hersey for observations consisted of a registering barometer, which was hung up among the hams and sausages, and a compass. This compass had one peculiarity—the north stood where south should be. After inspecting these remarkable instruments, Lowenthal lost faith.

The engineer states that Wellman gave orders to inflate the balloon, no matter how, make an ascension and bring the balloon down on a neighboring glacier, saying, "We must have something that can be cinematographed," and the hero of the North pole explained that he had arranged for a series of lectures in America. Lowenthal also quotes Wellman as saying he had bluffed the world with an impossible project.

BRYAN SECOND CHOICE.

Resolution of the St. Louis County Democratic Convention.

In the report of the St. Louis county Democratic convention given in The Herald's extra Saturday afternoon, a portion of the resolutions was accidentally omitted in the hurry incident to giving the story of the convention ten minutes after its adjournment. The omission was not discovered until last night. The resolution in question as adopted by the convention, reads as follows:

Resolved, That in pledging our adherence to the candidacy of Governor Johnson we do not disparage or overlook the great service to the party, the nation and the world of that great commoner, brilliant orator and fearless reformer, William Jennings Bryan. And we favor instructions to our state delegation that, in case the nomination of Governor Johnson becomes impossible, to vote for and support Bryan without variation or exception until a candidate is nominated.

RECIPROCITY ON PAPER QUESTION

Would Reduce Tariff If Canada Would Remove Pulp Restrictions.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 12.—Samuel A. Cook of Neenah, Wis., a leading paper manufacturer of Wisconsin, a former congressman and at present a candidate for United States senator from Wisconsin, made a statement yesterday, in which he favors reduction of the tariff on paper, on lines of reciprocity. Mr. Cook's statement is as follows:

"I am in favor, as a manufacturer of the product, of making a practical test of paper tariff reduction on lines of reciprocity. I would suggest that the paper manufacturers join the newspapers of the country in asking the present congress to reduce the tariff on newsprint paper manufactured in Canada, leaving enough margin of tariff to protect our American labor if there be found a difference between the wages paid the men who are employed in paper making in this country and the men employed in the same manufacture in Canada. That matters should be determined by a commission, provided, however, that Canada will allow pulp wood to be cut and shipped into this country from her lands in Upper Canada, known as Ontario, bordering upon the north, the same as she now does from Quebec east, so manufacturers of the West may enjoy the same privileges as the manufacturers of the Eastern states now do in receiving their pulp wood.

"If the United States removes the tariff on paper, and Canada prohibits shipments of her pulp wood into this country, as she is now doing from Ontario, Upper Canada, it is plain from a practical standpoint that business and labor of this country must suffer. I believe it a good business proposition for the press of the country to join the manufacturers and look into this matter candidly to decide where from, and at what price, they will be able to secure their paper in case this congress removes the tariff on paper on any other than the reciprocity lines above indicated; for, as I understand the situation, the entire tonnage of news print paper manufactured in Canada would not supply the Chicago demand alone."

Ten minutes—and no work whatever—to serve a hot meal with Van Camp's

Simply heat the can in hot water, then open it. Pour out the beans, and you get the same freshness, the same savory odor, as when they came out of our ovens.

Keep a dozen cans in the house. You will want beans every day for one meal, when you know Van Camp's.

Beans are Nature's choicest food—84 per cent nutriment.

No home-baked beans can compare with Van Camp's. You lack the facilities

A fierce heat is required to make beans digestible, and you cannot apply it. That's why your beans are heavy.

You lack the live steam that we use in our baking. Your beans are broken and mushy. Ours are nutty and whole.

And you can't bake the beans, the tomato sauce and the pork all together, as we do. You lose our delicious blend.

Van Camp's pork and beans baked with tomato sauce

You don't know how good baked beans can be until you once try Van Camp's. There are no others like them.

No others have that nutty flavor—that sparkling zest—that piquant tang. None are so mealy, so digestible.

We have spent 47 years in learning how to perfect this dish. Is it any wonder we know how best to prepare it?

Van Camp's command, by several times over, the largest sale in the world

One reason is this: We pay seven times what some beans cost to secure the best beans that are grown.

Another is this: We spend five times as much to make our tomato sauce as the price of some sauce ready-made.

You will never buy other brands—no matter how cheap they are—when you once know Van Camp's.

TASK IS A TEDIOUS ONE

Courthouse Commission Has About 375 Bids to Tabulate.

Contract for Work Cannot be Let for Two Weeks.

G. F. White of the firm of D. H. Burnham & Co., the architects for the new country courthouse, arrived in Duluth this morning with the bids received at Chicago. This afternoon, at 3 o'clock, the courthouse commission meets to begin the tedious task of going over the bids and tabulating them for the purpose of deciding the lowest bidder and letting the contract.

Between 350 and 375 bids are to be opened. About 300 were submitted to the architects at Chicago and the remainder were received by the courthouse commission here. Some of them are for the entire work and others for one or more of the departments. The work has been divided into about thirty parts, and the bids on each part will probably be considered separately.

It is believed that the contract for the work will not be let for about two weeks, as the architects will want to go over the bids carefully. Copies will be made here and the original bids will be taken back to Chicago for study and comparison.

Bids for the wrecking of the buildings on the site of the proposed new courthouse were received by the board of county commissioners yesterday, and they also will be opened this afternoon.

PAPER TRUST INVESTIGATION

John Norris Shows Wages of Paper Workers Were Cut.

Washington, May 12.—The inquiry into the wood pulp and print paper question was resumed today by the special house committee, John Norris, the representative of the Publishers' association, continuing his statement.

Mr. Norris stated that last year the International Paper company's imports of wood pulp from Canada were 170,000 tons. He quoted from a newspaper article to show that the company took the pulp that was imported and put it into its spruce paper, so that it might get the benefit of reduced cost, as it would save four-fifths of $1.67 on every ton imported by reason of rebates from the government.

Mr. Norris called attention to the statement in a census bulletin showing that of forty-one industries named, the paper workers were the only ones whose pay had been reduced in 1906 as compared with 1905. He also produced a letter from United States Senator La Follette bearing upon the pay of labor in the paper and pulp mills of Wisconsin, inclosing a letter from the commissioner of the bureau of labor and industrial statistics of that state, showing an increase up to 1907 as compared with 1897 of 17 per cent in the cost of labor. "I am expecting," continued Mr. Norris, "a report for the last six months, which I understand, will show a reduction of pay as a result of the depression in the industry in Wisconsin and a reduction of the time employed by reason of the closing of the mills, the mills being closed to maintain a purely artificial price in the market."

It was announced that more than $25,000,000 would be issued immediately and that this will be done to refund the floating debt and to provide funds for improvements.

WILL SETTLE CLAIMS.

Assignee of White City Will Dispose of Property.

The knell of the White City, an unprofitable venture for the stockholders in the Duluth Amusement company, is sounded in an assignment filed with the clerk of the district court, transferring the entire property of the amusement company to E. P. Towne, with power of attorney to dispose of it, collect all sums due and pay all claims from the amount received in the transaction.

The Duluth Amusement company conducted the White City unsuccessfully for two years. Last year the losses were heavy and all during the winter claims have been pressing. The principal claim is said to be held by Jens Flaaten, who has gone into the courts to secure an adjustment. The company spent considerable money for buildings and ground improvements on the property on Park Point and the running expenses exceeded the receipts, so that the claims will probably exceed the amount that can be raised by a sale of the property.

DRY DITCHING MACHINE.

Polk County Commissioner Has Made an Invention.

Crookston, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Benjamin Clements, for many years a member of the Polk county board of commissioners, has invented a dry digging ditching machine which has proven an actual success and which he will use hereafter on work in Northern Minnesota.

Clement's new machine, which is being constructed at one of the foundries of this city, acts on the big wheel principle, there being attached to this wheel which projects forward ahead of the engine, placed on a wheeled platform behind it, shovels and plows. The main wheel is racheted to the engine. The platform of the machine, which rests on wheels, may be heightened or lowered as best suits depths of the ditch.

The plows on the main big wheel are set forward at different heights and, as the wheel revolves, strikes the earth in a gradually increasing degree, thus rquiring no sudden effort of the engine and straining its parts. The shovels have no cutting edges, but merely pick up the dirt as shavings, which the plows cut out, revolving them up over the machine and tripping and emptying their load when they reach the top of the conveyor, which much resembles a hay stacker leading out into a wagon or along the possible level of a future road.

MADE HEART BEAT.

How Eastern Physician Saved the Life of a Patient.

Hartford, Conn., May 12.—When Dr. D. F. Sullivan daringly grasped a patient's heart in his fingers and by gently squeezing it several times renewed respiration, he did it as a last chance for either life or death.

The bold experiment worked, and Nuncio Chial is resting comfortably at St. Francis' hospital, after the operation which was to lop off diseased portions of his lungs, following a long siege of pneumonia. The incision was near the left lung, and through this window in the body the heart's beats could be distinctly seen.

It continued normally for some time, until Dr. Sullivan noticed the irregular action, then it suddenly stopped. Quickly pushing in with his fingers he squeezed it softly and started life once more by chasing blood through Chial's arteries.

Near the conclusion of the operation it was necessary to resort a second time to the last extremity, and again the daring initiative worked successfully.

DUCHESS MADE PEACE.

Serious Spat Between Zimmerman and Duchess of Manchester.

Dublin, May 12.—The Duchess of Manchester, daughter of Eugene Zimmerman, the Cincinnati, Ohio., capitalist is said to have acted as a peace commissioner between father and husband in a difference that one time bid fair to be aired in the courts. The difference arose over rich slate quarries, said to be worth $5,000,000, that have recently been discovered on the Kylemore estate of the duke.

Mr. Zimmerman having lifted the mortgages from the estates, claimed the quarries.

The duke, however, pointed to the Irish law, which makes the ground landlord the owner of everything below the surface. He did not deny that the payment of the mortgages really gave him the only chance to assert such a claim, but he would not yield the quarries. Zimmerman, who had saved the estate from foreclosure, would not accept this view.

At this point, when there seemed no chance of averting a suit at law, the duchess is said to have pleaded so eloquently with her husband and her father that they consented to an equal division of the profits of the quarries. The agreement, however, is not yet ratified, and there is still a chance that hostilities will be renewed.

TOTS SPREAD DYNAMITE.

Whole Town Awaiting Explosion That May Mean Disaster.

Las Vegas, N. M., May 12—The whole city was terrorized by the knowledge that an unknown quantity of dynamite and dynamite caps is in the possession of school children of the city. The explosive was stolen from a warehouse.

Enough of the explosive was taken to blow the city off the map, but much of it has been recovered.

The only results thus far are a great care and the wrecking of several stores by dynamite caps placed in fuel. It is believed that fully 200 pounds of dynamite are still scattered about the city.

DECISION IN THE SHEA CASE

Judge Morris Awards Valuable Ore Lands to Defendant.

Judge Morris of the United States district court today filed his decision of the court in the case of William H. Murphy, Elisha H. Flinn and Selwin Eddy, as executors and trustees under the will of Simon J. Murphy, deceased, George O. Robinson, Elisha Flinn and Temple E. Dorr, plaintiff, against William H. Shea, Mary Shea and Elwood L. Raab, defendants. The decision was in favor of defendants.

The case is one which has been fought in the courts for years and deals with a claim that is said to be of considerable value for its ore deposits. It is located on Cedar Island lake, township, 50 north, range 17, St. Louis county. The plaintiffs in their complaint state that the defendants were occupying this land which they claimed belonged to them. The dispute was over a faulty meander line. Judge Morris in his decision states that "the defendants are not, nor is either of them, nor have they ever been in possession of, or in occupancy of, any part of the lands described in complaint belonging to the plaintiff."

The case was fought through the land office and won by Shea.

BRYAN FORCES WILL CONFER

T. T. Hudson Will Attend Gathering in St. Paul Thursday.

T. T. Hudson, local leader of the Bryan forces, will go to St. Paul to attend the conference of the Bryan men, which will be held before the calling of the state convention, Thursday, May 14. At this conference the Bryan workers will decide just what action they will take over the protesting of certain delegations, and upon matters which they consider militated against the chances of bringing more Bryan delegates to the state convention.

Mr. Hudson was unable to say today just what action would be taken at the St. Paul conference. Most of the prominent Bryan supporters will be present, and what action, if any, that is to be taken at the state convention, will be decided then.

TOTAL ABSTAINER

Desired for the Presidency by Methodist Episcopal Conference.

Baltimore, May 12.—Inviting the Methodist Protestant church to consolidate with its own, urging Christians to insist on a total abstainer for the presidency, denouncing race track gambling, and calling upon the people of New York to support Governor Hughes in his crusade against the evil, inviting President Roosevelt and Ambassador Bryce to be present when the fraternal delegates of the British Methodist church are received, setting Wednesday, May 20, as the date for taking up the question of the election of new bishops; discussing the question of bishops' assignments and considering various other things, the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church got through a busy session at the Lyric yesterday. Bishop M. Chariss of Japan and Korea, read his report in which he told of the growth and needs of the Methodist Episcopal church in those countries.

WORKS ON RATS.

New York News Dealer Puts Japanese Snuff on a Rodent.

Riverton, N. Y., May 12.—Dennis Morgan, a news dealer, who has been having lots of fun lately by spreading Japanese snuff around, causing a minature hay fever epidemic, caught a rat at the depot yesterday and tried the powder on the rodent.

The rat was too suprised to run, although Suddenly a sneeze so truly lifelike that Elder McElderry, a pious deacon of the Methodist church, burst into such hearty laughter that it is feared he may suffer serious results.

Though it is not known in science that rats catch colds, this rodent gave every indication of a fear of approaching pneumonia. It ran to a steam radiator and stood in the steam spray from the nipple, evidently trying to get an impromptu Russian bath, but the powder was so pungent that in a few moments the rat expired with a final great sneeze. It is though there were many people present, now Morgan's purpose to push the sale of the powder as a rat exterminator.

HOGGART SUPPORTERS WILL BE IN CONTROL.

Seattle, Wash., May 12.—A cablegram to the Post-Intelligencer from Ketchikan, Alaska, says:

"Supporters of Governor Hoggatt will be in control of the Republican convention today. From present indications John N. Corson of Nome, will have a walkaway for the nomination for delegate to succeed Thomas Gale.

"C. D. Mudane of Nome is slated for temporary chairman. The Perkins-Corson fight is bitter. L. P. Shakleford, leader of the Hoggatt forces appeared certain of the position of national committeeman."

ORE STRIKE AT COALITION

The Copper Stock Market Has a Good Bulge.

Not the least of the news in a strong copper stock market today was the word which came from Butte, to the effect that Butte Coalition had struck a 12-foot vein of 10 per cent ore in the lowest level of the Minnie Healy, from the new tramway shaft. Further particulars of the strike are lacking.

The stocks had a good bulge during the day and closed at the top level. All the leaders were in good demand, except during the early part of the session, when the list was depressed.

MICHIGAN REPUBLICANS HOLD STATE CONVENTION.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 12.—The Republican state convention met today to name four delegates at large to the national convention, two presidential electors and a new chairman of the state central committee. There was apparently a unanimous sentiment in favor of the indorsement of Secretary Taft for the Republican presidential nomination and the selection of the following men as delegates at large, all of whim have declared for Taft: E. D. Stair, Detroit; John W. Blodgett, Grand Rapids, F. W. Gilchrist, Alpena and James McNaughton of Calumet.

Congressman E. L. Hamilton was temporary chairman of the convention which met in the Majestic theater.

INVALID A SUICIDE.

Luther of Sioux City Bled to Death From Pen Knife Wound.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 12.—Despondent because of long illness, A. R. Luther, aged 40, an invalid, plunged a penknife into his side, inflicting a wound from which he died from loss of blood within an hour. He resisted all efforts of the doctors to save his life, declaring he had suffered enough and wanted to die. Several years ago he was injured at the stock yards, since when his legs had been paralyzed.

SHOOTING OF SOLDIERS THE RESULT OF A FEUD.

Manila, May 12.—The wholesale shooting of soldiers yesterday at Camp Stotsenberg appears to have been the result of a feud between Private Beacham and Sergt. Hoey. Private Wilson and Sergt. Hoey were endeavoring to induce a young soldier to stop chumming with Beacham on the ground that was an improper character. Beacham brooded over the matter and crazed with drink, attacked and killed Hoey and Wilson. The shooting of the other is reported to have been unintentional. The three bodies were brought to Manila today for shipment to America.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

SOX GO TO WINNIPEG

Thirteen Men Will Leave for the Metropolis of Manitoba.

George Krick Will Probably Pitch the Opening Game.

A. W. Muehnow, secretary-treasurer of the Duluth Baseball club, Manager W. E. Morrow and twelve other players of the Duluth White Sox will leave tonight for Winnipeg, where the 1908 season of the Northern league will open Thursday. On the same date, Fargo will open at Brandon.

The release of Pitcher Jacobson and Catcher Speer cut the squad to thirteen men, including Morrow, and rather than release another man at the present time, the club will take chances and begin the season with the unlucky number in the squad. The squad as made up now consists of Manager Morrow, Catcher Herman Voss, Pitchers Krick, Haney, Murray, Brandt and Schmiller, First Baseman Ness, Second Baseman O'Brien, Third Baseman Baker, Shortstop Koepping and Outfielders Rorabaugh and Pagles.

After the first trip, one of the pitchers will be released and on the showing they make in Winnipeg and Brandon will depend their fate. Murray, Brandt and Schmiler have all shown promise and Manager Morrow doesn't want to release any one of them until all have been given a thorough trial. They will get it on the trip north and Morrow will be better able to see his way by the time he returns to Duluth.

Georgie Krick will probably have the honor of pitching the opening game, through his fine work Sunday at Virginia. He went the entire route on the range and had everything. Virginia has some pretty good hitters on its squad, but Krick let them down with three badly scattered singles and only for a couple of unfortunate errors in the field would have shut them out. He isn't in midseason form yet, but his showing has inspired hope that he will be able to get away with the first game.

The series at Virginia did the team a world of good. It was the first time during the training trip the weather allowed them to play three consecutive games and the workout was good for them. They were playing well together in the final game and the same kind of ball will be successful against the Northern league clubs.

Doc Voss will handle the heavy end of the catching. He has rounded out into good form, his wing is in good shape and he has been hitting the ball consistently. Morrow and Rorabaugh will be able to relieve him for a few days on occasions, so that he will not become stale by overwork.

The infield is lightning fast. Big Ness on first base is showing up better every day. He has a few things to learn about fielding, but he has the reach, the glued hands and the wing that make a successful first baseman. "Darby" O'Brien at second is a steady old-timer and Koepping at short is a speedy fielder and has a great wing. Baker at third fields the position beautifully and everybody is satisfied with the infield as it stands.

Hitting is the long suit of the outfield, with Rorabaugh, Pagles and Jim Haney. All through the training trip, they have been rapping the ball consistently and are likely to break up a game at any stage. Taken all through, the team has shown good hitting ability and, providing the pitchers hold out, the team may well be feared.

ENTERS OLYMPIC TRIALS.

Breaker of World's Dash Record Changes His Mind.

Eighth Graders Lose.

The St. Clement's Juniors defeated the eighth grade team of St. Clement's school yesterday at Twenty-ninth avenue west and First street by a score of 29 to 19. The batteries were Lalonde and George Ceass for the Juniors and James Wade and Fred Lalonde for the eighth graders.

Falls Teams Win.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The White Earth Indian Baseball team, one of the fastest amateur aggregations in the Northwest, was defeated by the Thief River Falls team Sunday by a score of 6 to 1. Saturday, The Thief River Falls high school team defeated the Warren nine at Warren. The local students have not lost a game this season.

Herald Boys Want Games.

The Herald Newsboys defeated the West Duluth team Saturday by a score of 28 to 16. Matt Brown and Sam Lotz formed the battery for The Herald boys. Henry Azinsky, the manager of the newsboys, is after games with 15-year-old boys.

Says Manager Bill Morrow: "I've got one man on my team whose name will not appear in the box scores, but who will do more to win games than any ball player that ever lived. His name is Harmony, and just watch him work."

Wise old owl is Bill.

Any manager who can get Mr. Harmony to put his name on a contract is far ahead of the other managers, unless they sign up his brothers. Every other man on the team is lost in comparing individuals, they form a ball team which should give a good account of itself. Every man on the team swears by every other, and they all swear by the manager. Put a crowd like that in the field and they are going to win games. The big boys who knock splinters off the fence, and worry pitchers to death thereby, are all right. Any ball club does well to have them—providing they form a part of the team and not a part from it.

The fans don't place enough importance on the games at Virginia. The Sox weren't playing a lot of children. They were playing real, live ball players, men who have been in the game for years and know it from beginning to end. The Sox played together and Virginia did not. The Duluth boys were handed a good many advantages on errors, but they accepted everything that came their way, bunched hits with errors and scored runs, and in their ability to do so lies the secret of their success.

Nobody will make predictions before the season opens. In a month the fans will know where they stand better than they do now. Changes may be necessary in the team, and they may come away from Canada with the small end of the series. For the present, however, the performances of the boys have earned the allegiance of the fans, and it's up to the followers of the game to pull for victory and the team that represents them in the pennant race that begins Thursday.

At least the middleweight championship is getting down to a point where the follower of the fight game can see a little farther than the next block. Stanley Ketchell and Bill Papke are coming along neck and neck and it's up to one or the other to breast the tape and take down the money. Ketchell's victory over Jack Sullivan at San Francisco last Saturday was no inconsequential one. Jack Twin is one of the foxiest middleweights in the country. He may not have the punch, but he gets away with his particular style of game more often than most fighters with a wallop score with their manner of fighting. Ketchell's victory established a better claim to the title than any other man in the country has today.

Papke is the only one to be considered. Hugo Kelley was fairly beaten by the Illinois Thunderbolt. Tommy Ryan is too ancient to be considered. The field of four is narrowed down to two and the sooner they get together the better the fight fans will be pleased.

"The featuro of the game was a home run by Krick, with two men on bases."

The fan, reading the story of Sunday's game at Virginia gasped, read and gasped again. If there is one man in the entire league whose clouting of a home run in a pinch would cause heart failure, is is that same George William Krick. Many, many time has he torn terrible holes in the atmosphere at Athletic park while the agonized fans prayed that by some manner of means the ball would bound from his bat to one of the places "where they ain't." Many, many times have the fickle ball and frivolous bat smiled on others, while they gave not even the twinkle of an eye to the greatest of ladies' day pitchers the Northern league has ever seen.

But hist! Listen!!

'Twas in the sixth inning. There was a man on second and a man on third and Little Georgie stood at the plate, with nervously swinging club. The pitcher wound up and with a terrible swing sent the pellet toward the plate like a bullet from a Winchester. Little Georgie, with quavering heart, stood his ground, closed his eyes and with a murmured prayer for help, brought his club through the air with all the strength of his mighty arms.

Crack!

Well may he strut about,
Face luminous as the sun,
He hit the ball; it's going yet;
It was his first home run.

Note.—Krick's home run passed between the center fielder's legs, but the hit may be classed with the "too hard to handle" and he would be a hard-hearted scorer who would take from the matinee idol of the Sox the honor for which he has strived all in vain for y'ars and y'ars, and then some.

TO COACH FROM A SINGLE SHELL

Boat Club Crews Are Ready to Take to Water.

A novelty will be introduced in coaching the Duluth Boat club crews this year.

Dr. F. L. Lynam, who has charge of the crews, is an old-time single sculler and he will this year do most of the coaching from a single shell. A new single shell has been purchased by President Barnes and arrived here yesterday. It is being fitted up today and will be ready for use by tonight, when it is expected the crews will get on the water for the first time this year.

A good single sculler can trail along pretty close to an eight, and the coach, by taking a few lengths start of the eight, can watch it closely over the greater part of the course. Later in the season the coach will use the motor boat North Butte in coaching the crews, but for the first few weeks he will work the megaphone from the single shell.

The crews were ready to go on the water last evening, but the weather was too cold and windy to permit the eight to be launched. They will get out for the first time tonight, however, unless the northeaster again interferes.

The new eight-oared shell is on the way and it is something entirely new in this line. It is built in three sections, so that it can be shipped in an ordinary express car. Formerly the club was compelled to charter an old passenger coach in which to ship its shell, and the expense was heavy. The Belgian crew, which won the grand challenge trophy at Henley, used this kind of boat, and it is no experiment.

SPORTSMEN COMPLAIN

Allege That Fish Have Been Slaughtered at Rice Lake Dam.

Power Company Provided No Fishway for Spawning Fish.

Complaint is being made by some of the city sportsmen and others that the Great Northern power company has not provided fish-way at the dam at the outlet of Rice lake and that the fish which have been attempting to get into the lake to spawn have been slaughtered by the wagon load by men and boys armed with clubs, in the shallow pool between the dam and the bridge, when the water is shut off.

Rice lake has been a favorite spawning place for the fish that come up from Caribou lake and the Cloquet river, it is claimed by reason of the gravel bottom and the rice beds.

It is claimed that during the last spawning season the fish were packed so thickly in the pool at the foot of the dam that they formed one solid wriggling mass while farmers from the vicinity and the watchman at the dam slaughtered the fish by the wholesale, killing so many that they had to employ wagons to draw the fish away. While a large portion of the fish killed are said to have been suckers, the local sportsmen claim that there were a great many bass, perch, pike, pickerel and catfish among the number killed.

The fish are said to have been making an attempt to get into Rice lake as had been their custom, but on account of the dam constructed across the outlet by the power company they could not surmount the the barrier and, whenever the dam was shut off the low water left the fish at the mercy of their slayers.

In some instances the fish were chased down the creek into shallow pools and there killed with spoons and clubs. One Duluth man claims that a week ago Sunday he heard a farmer, through whose land the river runs, reading the riot act to some young men who were doing a wholesale fish-killing business, and threatening to have them arrested if they did not stop.

This alleged wholesale slaughter of fish has disgusted sportsmen and others in the city who believe in fishing for the sport of the thing and in giving the fish a show. They are indignant with the present conditions and urge that pressure be brought to bear to induce the power company to build a fishway, so that the indiscriminate killing of the fish during their spawning season will be checked. It has also been suggested that the game wardens would do well to investigate the matter.

SAM OLSON HAS PERFECT SCORE

Ten Straight Strikes Are Made for the Second Time in Duluth.

The first perfect score ever made on the Central alleys and the second since bowling was introduced at the Head of the Lakes was rolled last night by Sam Olsen, manager of the Central alleys, who made ten straight strikes in a competitive game of ten pins.

A perfect score in ten pins is counted an achievement among bowlers, and every frequenter of the alleys tries for it all his life, usually without success. The fact that bowling has been popular in Duluth for years, and only two perfect scores have been rolled, indicates how important Olsen's score is.

The first perfect score rolled in Duluth was by Gay Olsen three years ago on the old Empire alleys.

Hartleys Beat Olivers.

Chisholm, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Hartley nine and Oliver baseball team of Hibbing played a fast game of baseball Sunday on the Hartley grounds, with the score 4 to 3 in favor of the Hartley team. The batteries for the Hartleys were Evanson and Kline, and for the Olivers, Cobb and Currie. The Hartleys will go to Hibbing next Sunday morning to play the Hull-Rust team of that place.

ARTIE O'DEA IS HOPEFUL

Jim Leighty May Beat Thompson Out of Shortstop Job.

The Brandon team of the Northern league, with a pronounced crimp in its pennant aspirations, on account of three consecutive defeats at the hands of the Hibbing independent nine, arrived in Duluth yesterday morning and left last night for Brandon, where they will open the season Thursday with Fargo.

Artie O'Dea was disappointed, but still hopeful. The two victories over the Hibbing team last week had confirmed his belief that he had a squad of world-beaters. but when Hibbing slipped over three straight ones, Artie saw the light and conceded that he might have been mistaken.

O'Dea's pitchers fell down terribly at Hibbing. In Nelson, Smith and Dalgren, he thought he was well fortified, with Fay to do the whirling from the off side. All proved comparatively easy for the Hibbing squad and a bunch of errors in the infield contributed to the wreck.

O'Dea's absence from the game undoubtedly had a lot to do with the poor showing. Artie is a good ball player, with hitting ability and a great head and when he gets on the team, he will act as a balance wheel and may get better results. O'Dea has about fully recovered from his attack of tonsilitis and will be able to get in the first game at Brandon.

Brandon will probably retain Toot Thompson and Frank Summers. Thompson isn't wanted by Duluth, and O'Dea has the only claim to his services. He didn't play his usual game at Hibbing and there is a possibility that Jimmy Leighty who is also on the Brandon squad, will beat him out of the shortstop job. Fargo still claims Summers, but the case has been taken to the national commission, and O'Dea believes his claim will hold the Duluth boy.

The men on the Brandon squad now are: Catchers Mills and Custer, Pitchers Nelson, Smith, Dalgren and Fay, First Baseman O'Dea, Second Baseman Livingston, Third Baseman Wagner, Shortstops Leighty and Thompson, Outfielders Menefee, Summers and McGraw.

The opening will be a gala day at Brandon. It will be the first venture of the town into professional baseball and, according to the Brandon papers, the town is baseball crazy. The mayor has declared a half holiday Thursday afternoon and he will pitch the first ball. Excursion trains will be run from small towns in the vicinity of the Wheat City, and a record crowd will be gathered to see the opening.

Machines Save Money.

The two new flushing machines which are being tested by the city are proving quite satisfactory, and it is possible that the board will decide to purchase them. The machines, it is claimed, use more water than the hose in flushing a given amount of pavement, but the work can be done more rapidly and with a smaller crew of men, saving the city money. The cost of the machines is $2,000.

Many Lodgers During April.

During the month of April the police department furnished lodgings to 2,940 men, the largest number in the history of the city. This list has dwindled during the last few days, however, as the number of idle men in the city is reduced to a minimum at the present time. Not more than two or three men nightly apply for lodgings at the present time.

WHEAT HAS WEAK TONE

American Markets Are Soft and Close at Lower Prices.

Flax is Firm at End of the Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 12.—Under a steady selling pressure, wheat sold over a wide range today and closed weak, despite a rally during the last hour.

In most of the American markets, wheat declined more than a point from yesterday's close, during the session and while there was reaction at the close, it was not sufficient to bring prices up to those of the previous day. Shorts were good buyers during the last half hour.

Weather prospects were bearish and the cables were weak. Liverpool closed 1d to 1½d lower, Berlin ⅜c lower and Budapest 2½c higher.

Minneapolis stocks decreased 250,000 bus for three days.

Some wheat was worked for export by local exporters, during the session in Duluth.

The May option closed ⅜c lower in Duluth, 1c lower in Chicago, 1⅜c lower in Minneapolis, 1¼c lower in Chicago and unchanged in Winnipeg. The July option closed ½c lower in Duluth and New York, 1⅛@1¼c lower in Chicago, ⅝@¾c lower in Minneapolis and unchanged in Winnipeg.

July corn closed ⅜c higher in Chicago and ½d lower in Liverpool. July oats closed unchanged in Chicago.

Brennan's cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—As a result of the weaker American cables yesterday and the bearish reports, as given out yesterday, the market here was quiet and generally 5d lower. Following the selling, firmer pressure developed on the large arrivals off the coast and on passage, and values lost an additional 1d to 1½d, with the demand quiet. The nearby option, however, was steady and during the early morning advanced ¼d. Toward mid-day there was some covering by shorts and prices made a slight advance. At this time the market was dull and from ¾d to 1d lower than Monday, with September particularly under selling pressure.

"Corn was quiet and unchanged. The market was wholly neglected."

Primary receipts of wheat were 357,000 bus., last year 625,000 bus. Shipments 826,000 bus., last year 502,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 75,000 bus.

Bradstreet's reported a decrease of 6,888,000 bus., in the world's visible supply of wheat. In the United States and Canada, there was a decrease of 4,068,000 bus., and in Europe and afloat, a decrease of 2,800,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn 310,000 bus., last year, 521,000 bus. Shipments 250,000 bus., last year 269,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 1,976 bus.

The visible supply of corn decreased 1,263,000 bus.

Wheat was fairly active in the Duluth market. May wheat was inactive and closed ⅜c lower than yesterday at $1.05⅞.

July wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.06¾, went as low as $1.05, rallied to $1.06¾ and closed at $1.06 bid, a loss of ½c from yesterday. September wheat opened late at 9¼c and closed at 91½c, a loss of ⅞c from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed 1c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was active and closed strong here. May flax sold at $1.23½ and closed there, a gain of ½c over yesterday. July flax opened unchanged at $1.23¾, advanced to $1.24, declined to $1.22½ and closed at $1.23⅝, a gain of ¼c over yesterday. September flax opened ½c higher at $1.25 and closed unchanged from yesterday at $1.24⅜. October flax opened ¼c higher at $1.23½, declined to $1.23 and closed there, a loss of ½c from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Active Realizing and Good Weather Cause Weakness in Wheat.

Chicago, May 12.—Active realizing sales together with good weather in the Southwest caused a weak tone at the opening of the wheat market today. July wheat opened ¼@⅜c to ⅝@¾c lower at 90¼@90½c and sold at 89⅝c. May wheat declined to 99⅜c. It yesterday sold at $1.00 and closed at $1.01. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 210 cars against 182 cars last week and 627 cars one year ago.

The market was weak for the greater part of the day. The low point for May was 98⅜c. The low mark for July was 89½c. Late in the session a rally took place on covering by shorts and all of the loss regained. The close was steady with July ¼@⅜c lower at 90½c.

The corn market was weak because of the clear weather throughout the corn belt and in sympathy with wheat. July corn opened 1¼@1½c to 1½@⅝c lower at 63⅜@63½c and sold at 63½c. Local receipts were 185 cars with 32 of contract grade.

Prices rallied sharply in the latter part of the session and July moved up to 64¼c. The close was firm with July ⅜c higher at 64@64¼c.

The oats market was easy but prices were steadier than those of wheat or corn. July oats opened ¼c lower, at 46⅞c and sold at 46⅝c. Local receipts were 349 cars.

The provisions market was dull and prices were easy in sympathy with grain. July pork opened a shade lower at $13.57½ and sold at $13.52½. Lard was 2½c lower at $8.50. Ribs were a shade lower at $7.32½@7.35.

Close: Wheat—May, $1; July, 90¼c; September, 87c; December, 88c. Corn—May, 71½c; July, 64@64⅛c; September, 62⅜@62⅝c; December, 56½c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Fine Weather and Favorable Crop News Sends Wheat Downward.

Minneapolis, May 12.—With Liverpool a penny lower, the weather fine and crop news favorable, lack of new speculative interest and continued selling out of long July wheat, the market was lower again today. The Northwest figures were still bullish, but without marked influence. Local elevator stocks decreased 250,000 bushels, for three days, while today's receipts were only 109 cars against 211 and in Duluth only 25 against 344. After the noon hour the selling appeared to have spent its force and there was a quick rally of more than a cent when the short sellers turned buyers. Just at the close the market sold off ½c from high point. July wheat opened at $1.06⅜; high, $1.06⅝; low, $1.05@1.05⅛; close, $1.06@⅛c. September closed at 91½c; May closed at $1.07⅜.

The cash market was better for the good spring wheat and No. 1 northern was firmer at 2½@3c over July. No. 2 northern was unchanged at ½c over. Millers were good buyers. Cash closed: No. 1 northern, $1.06⅜, spot or to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.05⅞@1.06⅜ spot, $1.06⅛ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, 96c@$1.03⅜.

No. 3 yellow corn, 67½@67⅜c.

No. 3 white oats, 50⅜@50⅞c.

No. 2 rye, 75½@76¾c.

Barley was very dull, only four cars coming in but the tone was better and prices steady about a cent firmer than yesterday. Close, 59@67c.

Flax was strong at yesterday's advance and sold readily at the Duluth July price close $1.23⅝.

Bran, firm and in good demand at $21.75@22.00 in bulk.

Flour is 10c lower for patents and the whole list weaker. Demand is not so good, shipping directions for old orders not coming in so freely, and the outward movement is lighter. Shipments 23,926 barrels. First patents $5.45@5.60; second patents, $5.30@5.45; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.55@3.65.

STOCKS ARE UNSETTLED

Close Generally Weak, With Steel Preferred Leading Decline.

Some Stocks Carried to Lowest Point in Late Trading.

New York May 12.—Prices of stocks opened lower today than last night, partly influenced by declines in the American section in London and partly because of realizing in yesterday's strong stock. Chesapeake & Ohio dropped 1½, St. Paul 1 and Union Pacific, Reading, Ontario & Western and Denver & Rio Grande large fractions. A sprinkling of gains occurred amongst specialties in the less prominent class. Dealings were active and widely distributed.

A considerable part of the opening decline was restored before the market again weakened and drove prices lower than at the outset. The selling was largely concentrated against stocks which have had recent large advances such as Reading, St. Paul and the Harriman and Hill stocks. Some of the copper stocks showed resiliency, especially American Smelting. Southern Railway preferred advanced 1; Southern Pacific preferred, 1⅝, and United States Realty, 2.

Trading was dull and prices moved sluggishly but worked to a lower level. The market showed little power of rebound. Chesapeake & Ohio extended its decline to 3 points, wiping out all of yesterday's gain. There were numerous additions to the losses of a point or more. United States Realty rose 4. The copper stocks made some show of strength at noon. Bonds were irregular.

Special stocks were bid up sharply. The list generally did not fluctuate widely but the tone was improved.

The market closed unsettled and generally weak. Gains of 1 to 2 points were established in a variety of stocks, amongst the Southern and Southwestern railroads and industrials. Fluctuations in the general list were narrow and there was fresh yielding of prices late in the day. The recession carried some stocks, including United States preferred, to the lowest of the day.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The coppers were boiling today and all showed good gains. North Butte and Copper Range were leaders, with Corbin, Shannon, Franklin and Old Dominion following close. All indications point to higher prices tomorrow. Utah Consolidated, which has been inactive for a long time, was allowed to rully and easily reached 42¾.

The Cotton Market.

New York, May 12.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 7 points to an advance of one point with June relatively weak and July relatively firm. There was a big demand for July, while other positions showed the influence of disappointing cables and favorable weather. The July premium was increased to a matter of 47 points at one time, but at this difference there was considerable selling of July against purchases of the new crop and during the middle of the morning July was around 9.38 and October, 8.92, or 4 to 8 points net lower with the market unsettled.

Spot closed quiet, 15 points higher; middling uplands, 11.05; middling gulf, 11.30; sales, 1,500 bales. Futures closed steady; closing bids: May, 9.37; June, 9.39; July, 9.43; August, 9.19; September, 8.93; October, 8.86; November, 8.90; December, 8.92; January, 8.93; February, 8.95; March, 9.00.

FAST TIME BY FIREMEN

Make Good Records in the Annual Inspection.

Headquarters Make Hydrant Hitch in Twenty-Nine Seconds.

The city council and the board of fire commissioners made a round of the different fire halls of the city today in a chartered street car.

They first visited headquarters at Sixth avenue west and First street, where some fast records were made by the men in both floor and night hitch drills, though only two-thirds of the crew were on hand, the other third being off to lunch. The following is a table of the time made:

Floor hitch.	Night hitch.
Engine, 13 seconds	15 seconds
Hose, 9 seconds	14 seconds
Salvage, 9 seconds	12 seconds
Chemical, 9 seconds	12 seconds
Hook and ladder	16 seconds

At headquarters a hydrant connection was made from the corner to the McKay hotel in twenty-nine seconds.

From headquarters the party went to No. 3 fire hall, where the following times were made:

Floor Hitch—	Night Hitch—
Engine, 12 seconds	18 seconds
Hose, 10 seconds	18 seconds
Hook and ladder, 10 seconds	13 seconds

The party from there went to the Station at Fourteenth avenue east and Second street and from there out to Lakeside.

ASK INJUNCTION.

Chicago Railway Employes Want Court to Forbid Their Discharge.

Chicago, May 12.—Seven former members of Division 241 of the Amalgamated Associated of Street and Electric Railway employes filed a petition in the circuit court today, asking an injunction to restrain the Chicago Railways company, which operates the street car system on the West and North sides of the city, from discharging them at the request of officials of the association.

Political as well as labor differences enter into the suit, for the complaints charge that although the political affiliations of the division are about evenly divided, certain members expended $1,200 in support of the campaign of Mayor Dunne.

Dog Bit His Cow.

Because her dog was allowed to run at large after it has bitten a cow belonging to Patrick Doherty, Mrs. Emma Carr was arrested this afternoon and arraigned in the municipal court. Her hearing was set for tomorrow.

NOT BEFORE JUNE

Will the Lake Carriers' Association Start Their Boats.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 12.—At a meeting of the Lake Carriers' association here today, the time for the opening of navigation upon the Great Lakes was discussed. The association controls 95 per cent of the iron ore and coal carrying boats on the lakes.

No action was taken. The general business situation was considered so uncertain that another meeting will be held June 1 to determine this point. Meantime the vessels will remain in port.

MAKING A COAT.

Philadelphia Ledger: According to the United States bureau of labor, the old saw, "it takes nine tailors to make a man," is filled with misinformation, for in reality, the bureau finds, it takes thirty-nine men of different trades just to make a coat under the present system of shop manufacture. For the day when one tailors measured the customer, cut out the cloth and with his apprentices, shaped it into a finished and pressed garment, has practically passed. Today all one tailor may do through his entire life is to mark the place where buttons are to be sewed on. Another man never marks places for buttons, his specialty is to mark buttonholes. A third man spends the long day in sewing on buttons; a fourth in making buttonholes. Men who sew sleeves do not make armholes; the armhole men give place to shoulder-shapers, and these last do not touch collars, which are a distinct specialty. Even the men who manipulate the tailor's goose are divided into pressers of seams, edges, linings, sleeves and coat pressers. The basters stick to one distinct specialty of basting, and a separate functionary, the basting puller, undoes their work. Even the coat strap is a separate province. So that when the coat is finished it represents thirty-nine distinct varieties of work by as many men. And when a man finally puts on the coat, he is wearing the product of 312 fingers and 78 thumbs, not counting the digits of those who sheared the sheep, wove the cloth, dyed it, finished it, shipped it and cut it, nor the inkstained clerical hands which kept a book record of all the processes. Probably from sheep to wearer the coat was handled by at least 3,000 fingers.

ET TU, BUTTER.

If the food faddists keep on there will be nothing left up to put into our mouths except perhaps to suck our own thumbs contemplatively after having duly sterilized the same.

"Bacteriologists have shown us that ordinary butter is swarming with germs," declares Good Health. "A single teaspoonful of milk generally contains from 2,000,000 to 10,000,000 germs. The number may even be much larger than this.

"In the removal of cream from the milk the germs are taken with it and in the process of churning the germs are collected with the fat, so in the butter we have the concentration of a large part of the germs contained in the milk from which the butter was derived.

"So in a pound of butter derived from twenty pints of milk the number of bacteria must be almost beyond estimate. A brief computation will show that the number of bacteria contained in a pound of butter might easily reach the enormous sum of five or ten billions."

SATURDAY IS THE DAY

Everybody Expected to Pitch in and Clean Up Yards.

Civic Pride Will be Instilled Into School Children.

Mayor Haven has officially announced that next Saturday will be cleaning day in Duluth. Everybody will be expected to do what they can to assist in scouring up the city, and putting it in a more sightly condition.

Authorities hope to see the school children take an active part in the campaign. Principals of all the schools will be asked to instruct the teachers to give a talk to their children on civic pride, and point out to them the value of cleanliness, especially in the matter of yards, vacant lots, etc.

A particular effort will be made henceforth to keep the school children interested in the matter of keeping the city generally in a clean and sightly condition, not alone on days specially designated for the purpose, but at all times, in vacation and out.

"The children of today are the grown-ups tomorrow," said Mayor Haven, this morning. "Get them started right, and they will keep on right. If they get sufficiently interested in the cleaning campaign now, a civic pride will spring up in their breasts that will be of lasting benefit, bringing good results in the future as well as today."

Other cities of the country make it a practice to have an official cleaning day every spring. Spokane, Wash., is a notable example of this. Spokane is situated in a somewhat milder climate than is Duluth, and gets her cleaning over with earlier. The plan of having everybody pitch in on a certain day and make the dust and dirt fly has proven a good one in the Western state, and very satisfactory results have been obtained. Equally good results are expected locally.

New Theory of Earthquakes.

Prof. See believes that all great earthquakes are caused by the percolation of the earth's oceans or surface waters to the molten matter beneath the earth's crust. A scientific investigation also proves that golden grain belt beer is not only the purest of all beverages, but also the most beneficial to body and mind. A glass before retiring will insure restful sleep. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing Co.

PITTSBURG WOMAN IS VERY MUCH MYSTIFIED BY W. A. PITCHER'S DEATH

She Claims That They Were Married Sixteen Years Ago.

Also Said to Have Been Betrothed to Duluth Girl.

Was at Pittsburg Home Three Days Before He Perished.

A Pittsburg, Pa., dispatch the The Herald on Monday announced that a woman living there claimed to have been the wife of William A. Pitcher, formerly of Duluth, who was a victim of the recent hotel fire at Fort Wayne, Ind., and was said to have been betrothed to a Duluth girl. During his residence in Duluth Mr. Pitcher was supposed to be unmarried, but when news of his death came several old acquaintances said they knew he had a wife, but understood they separated years ago. The following story was published in the Pittsburg Dispatch on Monday:

"Mrs. William A. Pitcher of De Ruad street, this city, has just learned that her husband, a prominent oil man, lost his life in the Aveline hotel fire at Fort Wayne, Ind., and as a consequence peculiar complications have arisen.

"Mr. Pitcher, who for many years was connected with the Standard Oil company, was, according to advices received late Saturday night by Mrs. Pitcher, buried at Bellevue, Ohio, last Wednesday. She received another re-

CONGREGATIONALISTS

Discuss "The Church and Industrial Relations" at Conference.

Pittsfield, Mass., May 13.—"The Church and Industrial Relations" was the general topic at the forenoon session of the eighty-second annual meeting of the Congregational Home Missionary society held in the First Congregational church here today. Allied subjects were discussed by three speakers, Rev. Josiah Strong and Hugh R. Munro, both of New York, and C. R. Towson, secretary of the industrial department of the international committee of Young Men's Christian associations. Following the addresses the delegates engaged in an open discussion of the question of establishing a department of industrial relations.

SIX DIE IN TORNADO

Nebraska and Texas Are Visited by Frightful Winds.

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed.

Omaha, May 13.—At least five persons are dead, two fatally injured and a score or more badly hurt, and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed by a tornado which late yesterday afternoon passed over portions of Sarpy, Cass and Nemaha counties. The dead:

MRS. FRANK HESTER, near Louisville.

CHARLES LEADER, near Richfield.

MRS. MARKO, Bellevue.

MARTIN TIETH and son, JAMES, near Papillion.

Fatally injured: Edward Martin, near Meadow; Mrs. Trucelle, Bellevue.

Besides the damage done by the wind, the heavy rainfall caused floods which badly demoralized the railroads in the territory mentioned.

The heaviest property losses, so far as heard from, were sustained by the United States army post at Fort Crook and the Presbyterian college at Bellevue.

Texas Hard Hit.

Dallas, Tex., May 13.—One person is known to have been killed, several others sustained serious injuries and considerable property was damaged, resulting from a tornado which swept through the northern section of this state yesterday.

At Leonard, Tex., Mrs. A. T. Bowdry lost her life and her husband was injured when their home, a two-story structure was demolished. At this place a number of barns and small buildings were destroyed.

At Crandall, about fifty houses were wrecked and several persons were injured. Among the buildings destroyed were the Christian church and the Shelton hotel.

In the vicinity of Gainesville a number of small buildings were demolished. Both telephone and telegraphic communication with the stormswept section are interrupted and only the most meagre reports are as yet obtainable.

EVERY ONE STILL AT SEA REGARDING THE OUTCOME OF CONVENTION AT MINOT

No Possibility of Telling What Will be the Result.

Insurgents and Stalwarts Are Gathering in Large Numbers.

Division May Come on McKenzie and Anti-McKenzie Lines.

Minot, N. D., May 13.—On the eve of the state Republican convention, doubt as to the result, which has prevailed during the entire campaign for delegates, is still predominating. Though Minot has been filled with Republican politicians of both high and low standing from every nook and corner of the state, there is absolutely no possibility of telling just who is who and what will be done. Insurgents, McKenzie stalwarts and the straight Republican stalwarts, so called, are here in force, and each wing will make an effort to control the gathering here Thursday.

In Minot today is seen a most peculiar gathering of the notables in the political arena of North Dakota. Alexander McKenzie, that great large leader of men, has arrived to use his power in favor of the candidacy of C. B. Little for the United States senate. The latter gentleman is also here, both having quarters in the same hotel. Just across the hall Thomas Marshall has established quarters, while

POLICE BATTLE WITH STUDENTS

St. Paul, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last night the police had a battle with the Hamline students who were circling about a bonfire built of every wooden thing that was not screwed down for a radius of several blocks from the university. Monday afternoon Hamline won a baseball game from St. Olaf, and five or six wagons were secured and sent out foraging for wood and other inflammable materials. Sidewalk signs, fences, gates, shed doors, store signs, anything that could be moved and that would burn was loaded on the wagons and carted to the campus where it was dumped on the big bonfire which had been started and around which the mob of students were dancing and yelling.

The residents in the neighborhood, frightened at the noise, notified the police and a wagon load of "coppers" was sent out from Prior station to quell the disturbance. On arriving at the campus they charged the students, but could not make a dent in the crowd which threatened to tie them up to trees if they did not behave.

A call was sent for reinforcements and five or six mounted men were sent to the scene. The mounted men forced their horses through the crowd and soon broke up the war dance. Several students who were too prominent in resisting the breaking up of the little soiree were placed under arrest, but when the police attempted to take them from the college grounds they were held up and made to deliver their prisoners.

Though the police were baffled last night in their attempts to make any arrests, President C. H. Bridgman declares he will investigate the matter thoroughly and that arrests will surely be made despite student resistance.

NEW FEATURES IN GRAFT CASE

Minneapolis Student Says Reports of Poor Paving Were Ignored.

Minneapolis, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minneapolis paving graft case in which one Cressey, a university senior, is suing the Republic Creosoting company for $10,000 because of an alleged assault, took on new features when Cressey yesterday attempted to prove that his reports of poor paving were ignored by the city engineering department and that talk of graft was common. The defense is trying to prove that Cressey does not know what he is talking about.

The defense scored a point that while Cressey had reported less oil than the specifications called for, yet the company had never received any allowance for water caused by condensed steam. John Gilmore, an employe of the company, denied that he had ever said that graft existed or that improper inducements had been made Cressey. The testimony brought out the fact that the intricacies of inspection had been done away with by agreement and that the oil had been measured as to quantity in the tank rather than in the blocks.

DEMOCRATIC GOVERNORS PLAN TO DEFEAT BRYAN AND NOMINATE JOHNSON

Will Try to Induce Their States to Support Johnson.

They May Organize Committee to Make a Public Statement.

Johnson May Speak in Virginia Before Returning Home.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The movement to beat Bryan and make Governor Johnson of Minnesota the Democratic nominee for the presidency, has been taken up by a number of the Democratic governors in attendance upon the convention for the conservation of natural resources. There is reason to believe that assurances have been given by some of them to Governor Johnson that they will go as far as they can to induce their respective states to support his candidacy. These officials are even discussing, it is understood, the advisability of organizing a committee which shall make a public proclamation of their intention. It is not known whether the purpose of these men has been communicated either to Johnson or to Bryan, but as soon as it is made public the probability is that the friends of Bryan will make an effort to prevent the movement from gathering headway.

The governors who have this plan under consideration have gone too far to abandon their intention, and the likelihood is that when they get home they will do missionary work in behalf of Johnson, and at the same time cooperate with each other in order to insure unity of action at Denver. In the art of co-operation, without firing cannon, these governors appear adept. Immediately after the conference yesterday afternoon one of them was asked directly if the project of some such co-operation had been under discussion. He expressed much surprise that the news should have leaked out, but refused any further answer than that, when two or more Democratic governors met, it was reasonable to expect that the names of both Johnson and Bryan would be mentioned. All the Democratic governors have found time to talk politics, and the general air among those who are believed to be committed to this movement is unmistakably one of encouragement and growing confidence in Johnson. The Minnesota governor has been the center of attraction for the prominent Democrats assembled in Washington.

WISE USE OF OUR NATURAL RESOURCES IS THE GREAT MATERIAL QUESTION NOW

So President Tells Governors and Others at Washington.

Great Foresight Should Now be Used in Their Conservation.

Meeting of Governors and Prominent Men at Washington.

Washington, May 13.—The White House was the scene today of the assemblage of many of the most distinguished figures in the political and industrial life of the nation. It was perhaps one of the most notable gatherings that has ever met to consider a great public question in that historic mansion.

The occasion was the conference by President Roosevelt, with the governors of practically all the states and territories to consider the broad question of conservatism of the country's natural resources. The conference will continue through Friday.

The men who know how the natural resources of the country have been wasted—captains of industry who have dealt with these resources and experts who have studied the conditions—told of the nation's prodigality in the exploitation and consumption of its national resources.

Representing the government was the president of the United States, the vice president, the cabinet, justices of the United States supreme court and members of both houses of congress. The states were represented by their chief executives and the conferees appointed by them. The industries were represented by Andrew Carnegie, the iron master; James J. Hill, the genius of railway expansion; John Mitchell, the labor leader, and Dr. I. C. White, state geologist of West Virginia and perhaps the leading expert on coal in the United States. The specially invited guests included three Democratic presidential candidates—William J. Bryan, Judge George Gray of Delaware and Governor John A. Johnson of Minnesota.

The subjects to be considered include the use and conservation of mineral resources, resources of the land and resources of the waters.

Invited the Governors.

The conference is the outgrowth of the recommendation of the inland waterways conventions to the president. The suggestion of such a gathering met with the president's enthusiastic approval. Later the president made public a letter, inviting the governors of the states to attend the conference. In this communication the president declared that there is no other question now before the nation of equal gravity with the question of the conservation of the country's natural resources.

Long before the hour when the conference was called to order, in the famous East room in the White House by President Roosevelt, those who took part in the gathering began to arrive. The president received the governors, and shortly thereafter assembled in the East room. The conference was opened by the president with an address on "Conservation as a National Duty."

The program for the day included addresses by Andrew Carnegie on "Ores and Related Minerals" and by Dr. I. C. White, professor of geology in the University of West Virginia and state geologist of that state, on "Mineral Fuel." Former President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America, led the general discussion on coal mining.

LAPORTE MINISTER SAYS THAT MRS. GUNNESS WAS AN ATTRACTIVE WOMAN

Dressed Well, But Her Speech Betrayed Her Low Origin.

Ray Lamphere Denies He Made Confession to Clergyman.

Search to be Made for Men Who Entered Home.

Laporte, Ind., May 13.—Mrs. Gunness' hired man, Ray Lamphere, vigorously denied today that he has made any confession or promised any to the Rev. E. A. Schell or to anyone else. Lamphere is under arrest here charged with complicity in the wholesale murders at the Gunness farm.

Baltimore, Md., May 13.—Rev. Dr. E. A. Schell of Laporte, Ind., in talking again today about the Gunness farm tragedy, denied that he said that Ray Lamphere helped to kill the Gunness children but had no part in slaying any men except Helgelein. "I have made no statement regarding this or any detail of my interview with Lamphere, except to say that Lamphere's communications to me were wholly privileged and unless he shall himself make the statements to Prosecuting Attorney Smith, will be maintained as an inviolable secret."

Dr. Schell added that, like many others, he believed that Mrs. Gunness was alive, but that he had no knowledge of the fact. It was merely his personal opinion. Speaking further concerning the case and some of the persons connected therewith, Dr. Schell said:

"Mrs. Gunness was an attractive woman in her way. She dressed richly, and even, you might say, in good taste, but her manner of talking and her speech itself—her vagaries of grammar—betrayed a low origin. She could best be described as 'Mrs. Neverich.'

"Lamphere is a man who drinks hard and has borne an unpleasant reputation. He was the son of a drunkard and a man to be pitied because of his ancestry and training, or lack of it. On two or three occasions recently he has come into town with a roll of bills, which he has generally managed to get rid of overnight. Some time ago I constituted myself a sort of civic league and went after certain saloonkeepers in the town who were violating the law, and I found a slot machine running in one of them in which

BEFORE THE CONVENTION

The Followers of Bryan Holding Meetings at St. Paul.

Rumor That Bryan Has Sent Word to be Conservative.

St. Pau, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—It was persistently rumored today that William J. Bryan had sent word to his lieutenants in this state to act in a conservative manner in making a fight against the candidacy of Governor Johnson for the Democratic nomination. The report could not be confirmed, but T. T. Hudson of Duluth, who was currently reported as having received this word from Mr. Bryan did not deny it, but at the same time he would not sanction it.

"I really can say nothing about it," he said.

"Has Mr. Bryan sent word that he will leave the matter to the discretion of his followers in this state?"

"From my knowledge of Mr. Bryan," said Mr. Hudson, "that is much more likely to be what he would say than the other thing."

The Bryan leaders were in conference for the greater part of the day in the Merchants hotel and declared that they would probably be locked in for the greater part of the day. They refused to say what action had been determined upon and declared that the story that they intended to hold a rump convention tomorrow in the event of their losing out in the contests be-

HOW TO TREAT YOUR HUSBAND

Preacher Presents Set of Rules for Wives to Follow.

New York, May 13.—In his sermon on "How to Treat Your Husband," Dr. Scudder of New Jersey City, recommends wives to follow his set of rules and they will be happy, and so will be their husbands. These are some of the rules and comments made on married life by the preacher:

"No wife can be as free and frivolous as she was before her nuptial days. Her station demands a certain matronly dignity.

"Don't be one of those autocratic creatures that says, marriage makes two one, and I'm the one.'

"The man who is married to one of those female tyrants with firm chin and haughty demeanor has no need of purgatorial fire in the life to come.

"A qualification of a model wife is to keep her temper and control her tongue.

"A cross, cantakerous jade loves to give her husband a piece of her mind, and usually, like a mosaic, her mind is composed of many pieces.

"Scolding wives live long and die hard. "If he persists in going around in his shirtsleeves, and leaves his clothes about the room when he should put them in the closet, never mind such trifles."

TIDAL BORE KILLS MANY

Over 10,000 Chinamen Are Drowned at City of Hankow.

Water, Twenty-Six Feet High, Sweeps Everything Away.

Seattle, Wash., May 13.—News of one of the greatest disasters that China has ever known, a sudden tidal bore in the Yangtse Kiang, which involved the loss of nearly 10,000 lives at Hangow, was brought by the steamer Titan, which arrived last night.

A bore, twenty-six feet in height, flowed without warning down the river, wrecking thousands of junk, sampans and small boats, and some large river steamers.

Some 3,000 Chinese were sleeping in sampans and small craft, and mat sheds and huts by the riverside at Hangow and they were enveloped by the great wave, which swept broken junks, splintered sampans and made a heterogeneous mass of debris, with swarms of drowned Chinese mixed with the wreckage. The scenes for many days after the disaster were horrible, the riverside being strewn with dead and debris of wrecked craft for many miles.

NEGOTIATING TREATY.

Stockholm, May 13.—The governments of Sweden and Denmark are at present negotiating a treaty which will provide for the arbitration of all questions arising between the two countries.

MURDER IS THE CHARGE

Henry Wilson is Indicted for Murder in First Degree.

Settler is Charged With Burning Down Neighbor's Home.

Henry Wilson will have to stand trial for murder in the first degree.

The grand jury at noon today returned an indictment charging him with the murder of his wife, Florence, in West Duluth on the morning of March 27.

The indictment was read to him, but no plea has yet been entered. He will doubtless plead not guilty, and insanity will probably be the defense.

Charles Heikkila was also indicted this afternoon on the charge of assault in the second degree. He is claimed to have fired two shots at Officer McDermott on March 28.

Leonard Jackola of the town of Labelle was indicted on the charge of arson in the third degree. It is claimed that he set fire to the home of Hilda Antilla, a neighbor.

The grand jury will probably complete its work and present its final report tomorrow.

The district court is now busy with civil cases, but the criminal calendar will probably be reached Monday.

JIM MARTIN'S BIRCH.

New York Press: Jim Martin was a great lumberman in the forests of West Virginia. His handspike for rolling and toting logs was made of Green River birch, and was so heavy that no other man in the camp could use it. When the Mexican war broke out a recruiting officer visited the camp, and Jim was among the first to enlist. Instead of throwing his handspike on the ground, he stuck the end of it in the mud on the bank of the Pond Fork branch of the Little Coal river. Jim was killed and buried in Mexico. The handspike took root and grew into an immense tree, and is today pointed out as Jim Martin's monument. Neither man nor boy would touch it with an ax for $1,000,000.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY

Liquor Dealers and Aldermen Awaiting It With Interest.

It May Take Up Question of Enforcing Liquor Laws.

Will the grand jury in its report censure some of the council members for the stand they have taken on the revoking of saloon licenses, and also indict certain saloonkeepers for violations of the law?

That is the question which is of particular interest to those concerned, at the present time. The state laws make it a misdemeanor for an alderman to vote to renew the license of a man who has been convicted of a violation of the liquor laws within the twelve months preceding his application for a renewal. There is nothing to compel the aldermen to revoke a license of a man convicted, but the law forbids the renewal of such a license.

It is not likely that the grand jury will attempt to single out any member of the council, but it is possible that a report censuring the council's stand will be returned.

There is also some talk that indictments will be returned against liquor men who have violated the laws, and that an effort will be made to prosecute them even though they have been already prosecuted under the city ordinances.

Washington, May 13.—The rules committee of the house will this afternoon bring in a rule for the passage tomorrow of the Vreeland currency bill, under suspension of the rules. Case Goes to Jury.

The jury in the case of George E. Hamilton vs. Max Zalk went out last night and had not returned up to noon today. Hamilton claims a commission on plans submitted for a building, which was estimated to cost $7,500. He claims that if he received the contract, he was to charge nothing for the plans, but otherwise was to receive 3½ per cent. The plans were not accepted by Zalk, who denies the agreement. About $280 is involved.

The suit is to recover $600 damages, which the Ascher company claims is past due for a bill of millinery. The goods were purchased when Mrs. Lanyon was in business at Virginia.

THE DOCTOR HABIT.

Success Magazine: One of the tendencies of ill health is to make one morbid. People who are constantly thinking about their ailments, worrying about their troubles, suffering pain, often develop a morbid passion for sympathy. They want to tell everybody of their aches and pains, to describe their symptoms.

Have you ever known a woman who has acquired the doctor habit; a woman who loves nothing in the world quite so well as an opportunity to tell the doctor of her ailments? She has poured them out to unwelcome ears, to forced listeners, till she longs for some one who can really appreciate it all, who sympathizes with her in her troubles; so she sends for the doctor, or goes to see him.

This becomes almost a mania with some women, who have few outside activities to divert them. Their minds naturally revert to themselves and they think of their unfortunate condition until they become saturated with the poisoned thought.

A SILENT TRAGEDY.

Edwin Markham in Success Magazine: The national bureau of labor is now making an extended investigation into the conditions of women and children in our American industries. Light is certainly needed on this grave matter. A nation that will not care for its working women and children should have its name blotted from the book of life.

Most pitious is the silent tragedy of the working child—the child who is, in this era of machinery, whirled in for the first time to slave by the side of grown-up men. The sacrifice of children in some sudden catastrophe arouses the instant compassion, the swift defense of the nation. With quick accord, the people demand that no more forever shall there be a Slocum, or a Boyertown, or a Collinwood disaster. But if we could all realize the long misery, the distressful torture, the sure destruction of the host of little ones drawn into child labor, little ones dying sometimes as surely, though seldom so spectacularly, as the children of the world-watched tragedies—if we could realize it all, how long think you, friends, would this crime of civilization stand against the cyclone blast of an aroused public opinion? Child labor has come in so gradually, it is carried on so quietly, it is defended so skillfully by those interested in grinding children into dividends, that few parents of America realize that even the deficient census of eight years ago gives a total of nearly two million children under labors.

The Beer That Made Milwaukee Famous

Lamphere had lost $50 a night or two before. They say he lost it playing the slot machines, but the suspicion is that he got drunk and was 'relieved' of the money.

"Lamphere sent for me and told me his story, and that is how I got mixed up in the case. Despite the advice of his lawyers, I believe that he will tell the whole truth when he goes on the witness stand. I did not know personally any of the supposed victims of Mrs. Gunness. Jennie Olsen, I am told, came to our Sunday school once or twice, but I never met her. I had seen the man Helgelein—he was a big, strapping fellow—but I did not know him personally, of course. I know very well all the lawyers connected with the case. Prosecutor R. N. Smith is a member of my church and leader of a large Bible class. Sheriff Smutzer is also an attendant at my church, he and his family. He is a Lutheran, but has been refused communion at his church because he joined a secret beneficial organization known as the Sons of Ben Hur. That may give you an idea of some of the questions that agitate our community.

"Worden, the lawyer engaged by Lamphere, is a law partner of Mayor Darrow of Laporte. The house in which Mrs. Gunness lived, Dr. Schell said, had borne a bad name for years, a house of crime, he described it, and twenty years ago a resort for the gilded youth of Chicago—which is only fifty-nine miles away—and for some men of wealth and prominence who were not exactly youths. When the woman who ran it then sold it, another took it up, and it became a disreputable house.

"Three years ago when Mrs. Gunness came from Boston and bought the house, people thought its character would change, but at that time she was looked upon as entirely respectable. The place was a rather imposing one for the neighborhood, the house being worth $7,000 or $8,000, and the farm containing seventy-five acres."

NEVER LEFT HOUSE.

Identity of Men Seen at Gunness Home to be Sought.

Laporte, Ind., May 13.—Unless the sifting and sluicing of the powdered debris taken from the cellar of the ruined Gunness farm house results in startling discoveries today, the production of further tangible evidence in the big tragedy is not likely. Yesterday's developments exhausted most of the sources from which have sprung the sensations of the case, and the authorities are now confronted with the task of endeavoring to find the corroborative details of the main points already deduced, and of forming the missing links in the chain of testimony with which they are binding the more or less scattered parts of the baffling case into a coherent whole.

Just how successful they will be in this work is not likely to be revealed until Ray Lamphere is brought to trial. Prosecutor R. N. Smith has evidently modified his previous determination to rush the case into court, finding that the state's side may be strengthened in many particulars. He insists that the evidence already available is sufficient to prove the state's contentions, but the recent activity of the defense, and the strengthening of its forces, show that a desperate fight is to be made on behalf of Lamphere. With both sides of the Lamphere case working behind the scenes, and with Sheriff Smutzer occupied with the slow-going sluicing operations at the farm, there is little in sight to satisfy the public curiosity in the affair.

Coroner Mack has received and made public the results of his investigations on all the known bodies except that supposed to have been Ole O. Baudsberg of Iola, Wis. The four burned bodies found in the ruins of the house are dead issues, so far as further investigation by the coroner is concerned, and he has also received reports from the examining physicians on the Helgelein and Jennie Olsen cadavers.

Other Bodies Not Identified.

None of the other bodies have been identified to any degree, and it is scarcely likely that they will be. The decomposed state of the fragmentary masses of flesh and bones almost precludes such a possibility. What developments are to come will be in the direction of establishing the identity of more of the mysterious men who were seen to enter the farmhouse, but never to leave it. Yesterday, three such persons were connected up with the Gunness woman, the evidence regarding John Moe of Elbow Lake, Minn.; and Henry Gerholt of Scandinavia, Wis., being almost conclusive. The fate of George Brady of Tuscola, Ill., is less certain.

Moe was traced to the farm by means of the banking actions which preceded his visit. The facts shown were similar to those brought to light in the cases of Ole O. Budsberg and Andrew Helgelein. Each of the men cashed a check, draft or note for a considerable amount at one or the other local banks, and at the desks of the cashiers all the trails end.

Books May Show Others.

It is considered probable that an inspection of the books of the bank would reveal further evidence of a similar nature and perhaps determine the fate of several individuals whose relatives have lost track of them. The officials of the Le Porte financial institutions, however, seem loath to impart such information, if they have it, although willing enough to reveal full details when once the identity of a particular transaction is known. Because of this the authorities are investigating every clew regarding missing strangers which reaches them, provided that the information is sufficiently definite to give them a basis of action. Scores of letters asking about supposed visitors to the Gunness farm have been received, but the vast majority of these epistles are either vague, illegible or anonymous. Budsberg and Moe were found through inquiries emanating from the Farmers' State Bank of Iola, Wis., the letters being complete in detail and definite as to dates and places. Such letters are sure to receive consideration by the local authorities.

B. J. Hunter, the mail carrier on whose route the Gunness farm is situated, said today that Mrs. Gunness carried on her matrimonial business under three names. He said he had delivered scores of letters to Mrs. Gunness under the names of "Mrs. Belle Sorenson," "Mrs. Belle Gunness" and "Mrs. Jennie Hinckley."

One of the watches found in the ruins of the Gunness home was shown today to be a watch of Ole Budsberg, one of the supposed victims of Mrs. Gunness, from Iola, Wis.

A letter was received today by Coroner Mack from Iola saying that Budsberg's watch was an open face gold timepiece, No. 1719698, with a No. 18 Waltham movement, seventeen jewels, No. 14041244. This description tallies according to Prosecutor Smith, with one of the watches found in the ruins.

Prosecutor Smith said today that the silver watch taken from Lamphere when he was arrested has been declared by Ask Helgelein to resemble the one which his brother Andrew owned. Lamphere's watch was a present to him from Mrs. Gunness.

Officials of the three Laporte banks held a conference today to determine the most effective way in aiding the authorities in untangling the murder mystery. It was decided that the First National bank of Laporte, the Citizens' Savings bank and the State Bank of Indiana should furnish a list of all transactions in which Mrs. Gunness paid out, deposited or received money. With a complete list of this kind Prosecutor Smith expects he will be able to secure valuable information.

WISE USES OF OUR NATURAL RESOURCES

conference accorded with the importance of the discussion and with the prominence of the men in attendance. Almost complete transformation of the East room was effected. Along the east wall was placed a combined frame work and platform fifty-two feet long and nineteen feet high. This was artistically covered with green velvet, trimmed with gold rope. This frame work afforded a proper setting for two giant maps of the United States, each of which is colored to graphically show the various resources of the country. The governors occupied the seats of honor just in front of the platform. The other conferees and delegates were seated in the order of their arrival at the meeting.

President Roosevelt's reception by the governors and the 500 distinguished attendants on the conference as he entered the East room by the side of Vice President Fairbanks, was the first evidence that the assemblage was not to be bound too closely by dignity. It was precisely 11 o'clock when the president stepped on the platform. When the presidential honors by the Marine band had been given the governors stood up, clapped their hands and cheered. The president took up a small gavel and this history-making conference was on.

Previous to the appearance of the president the East room had for an hour been the scene of an animated conversation as the governors and conferees gathered. Senators and representatives indicated by their numbers that the session of congress might have to proceed without a quorum. The Marine band, stationed in the spacious lobby adjacent to the East room, vied with the conversational powers of the distinguished conferees while attendants were busy furnishing additional seating facilities.

Members of the president's cabinet and the justices of the supreme court were invited to take hastily arranged seats on the long platform, the back of which furnished the setting for the huge maps and the arrangement for the colored glass illustrations which were to give point to the various speeches.

The East room lacked nothing as a fitting setting for the occasion. The richness of its pure white walls with hangings of old gold plush, three magnificent cut glass chandeliers suspended from the ceiling in the center of the room, were added to by the slender gilded chairs which filled the entire floor space.

When the president had taken his place, the Rev. Edward Everett Hale, chaplain of the senate, arose and read a portion of the scriptures descriptive of the promised land and then pronounced a feeling invocation, in which he asked heaven's help in the deliberations to be had. At the conclusion of the invocation the president without preliminary ceremony began his address to the governors. The president said:

Remarks by President.

This conference on the conservation of natural resources is in effect a meeting of the representatives of all the people of the United States called to consider the weightiest problem now before the nation; and the occasion for the meeting lies in the fact that the natural resources of our country are in danger of exhaustion if we permit the old wasteful methods of exploiting them longer to continue.

Every step of the progress of mankind is marked by the discovery and use of natural resources previously unused. Without such progressive knowledge and utilization of natural resources population could not grow, nor industries multiply, nor the hidden wealth of the earth be developed for the benefit of mankind.

It is almost impossible for us in this day to realize how little our Revolutionary ancestors knew of the great store of natural resources whose discovery and use have been such vital factors in the growth and greatness of this nation, and how little they required to take from this store in order to satisfy their needs.

Growth of the Nation.

Since then our knowledge and use of the resources of the present territory of the United States have increased a hundredfold. Indeed, the growth of this nation by leaps and bounds makes one of the most striking and important chapters in the history of the world. Its growth has been due to the rapid development, and alas! that it should be said, to the rapid destruction, of our natural resources. Nature has supplied to us in the United States, and still supplies to us, more kinds of resources in a more lavish degree than has ever been the case at any other time or with any other people. Our position in the world has been attained by the extent and thoroughness of the control we have achieved over nature; but we are more, and not less, dependent upon what she furnishes than at any previous time of history since the days of primitive man.

The wise use of all of our natural resources, which are our national resources as well, is the great material question of today. I have asked you to come together now because the enormous consumption of these resources, and the threat of imminent exhaustion of some of them, due to reckless and wasteful use, once more calls for common effort, common action.

Exhaustion of Resources.

This nation began with the belief that its landed possessions were illimitable and capable of suporting all the people who might care to make our country their home; but already the limit of unsettled land is in sight, and indeed but little land fitted for agriculture now remains unoccupied, save what can be reclaimed by irrigation and drainage. We began with an unapproached heritage of forests; more than half of the timber is gone. We began with coal fields more extensive than those of any other nation, and with iron ores regarded as inexhaustible, and many experts now declare that the end of both iron and coal is in sight.

The enormous stores of mineral oil and gas are largely gone. Our natural waterways are not gone, but they have been so injured by neglect, and by the division of responsibility and utter lack of system in dealing with them, that there is less navigation on them now than there was fifty years ago. Finally, we began with soils of unexampled fertility, and we have so impoverished them by injudicious use and by failing to check erosion that their crop-producing power is diminishing instead of increasing. In a word, we have thoughtlessly, and to a large degree unnecessarily, diminished the resources upon which not only our prosperity but the prosperity of our children must always depend.

It is time for us now as a nation to exercise the same reasonable foresight in dealing with our great natural resources that would be shown by any prudent man in conserving and widely using the property which contains the assurance of well-being for himself and his children.

One Coherent Plan Needed.

We are over the verge of a timber famine in the country, and it is unpardonable for the nation or the states to permit any further cutting of our timber save in accordance with a system which will provide that the next generation shall see the timber increased instead of diminished. Moreover, we can add enormous tracts of the most valuable possible agricultural land to the national domain by irrigation in the arid and semi-arid regions and by drainage of great tracts of swamp land in the humid regions. We can enormously increase our transportation facilities by the canalization of our rivers so as to complete a great system of waterways on the Pacific, Atlantic and Gulf coasts and in the Mississippi valley, from the Great Plains to the Alleghenies and from the Northern lakes to the mouth of the mighty Father of Waters. But all these various uses of our natural resources are so closely connected that they should be co-ordinated, and should be treated as part of one coherent plan and not in haphazard and piecemeal fashion.

Finally, let us remember that the conservation of our natural resources, though the gravest problem of today, is yet but part of another and greater problem to which this nation is not yet awake, but to which it will awake in time, and with which it must hereafter grapple if it is to live—the problem of national efficiency, the patriotic duty of insuring the safety and continuance of the nation. When the people of the United States consciously undertake to raise themselves as citizens, and the nation and the states in their several spheres, to the highest pitch of excellence in private, state, and national life, and to do this because it is the first of all the duties of true patriotism, then and not till then the future of this nation, in quality and in time, will be assured.

SAID HE WAS BAD MAN.

Minneapolis Police Succeed in Putting Irons on Alleged Forger.

Minneapolis, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Bader, charged with being a forger, barricaded himself in his room in the Mankato hotel on Washington avenue south Monday, on the appearance of Detective Martinson and threatened to shoot if disturbed. He gave it out that he was a bold, bad man and would do what he said.

Telling him to shoot, the officer broke in the door and after a short struggle had the irons on Bader's wrist. In the meantime Bader had thrown his revolver out of the window. In the struggle the detective was bitten in the hand. Bader's receipt was a badly clubbed hand.

At the police station Bader would say nothing except that the charges were false. He is reported to have passed a number of worthless checks.

BUHL PLANS MUCH WORK

Faith in Town's Future Will be Shown This Year.

Will Pave and Macadamize Six Blocks of Property.

Buhl, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—While the mining industry in this immediate vicinity is very quiet at present the village authorities and the citizens generally have such a strong faith in the ultimate prosperity of the town that they are planning extensive improvements the present summer. They figure on expending between $45,000 and $50,000 for these improvements and there is already nearly a sufficient amount of money in the treasury to meet the cost. The principal improvement contemplated at this time and practically decided upon is the grading and paving with macadam of six blocks of the principal business street, known as State street. It is the purpose to put in concrete gutters, with substantial curbing to be set in the concrete. As a preliminary move toward this improvement the council passed a resolution instructing the property owners along the street to make connections with the water and sewer mains so that it will be unnecessary to tear up the pavement for this purpose after it is laid.

During several seasons past the water and electric light plant owned by the village has been going behind, the expenses running from $2,000 to $2,500 per annum more than the income. This is largely because of improper equipment. The well from which the village procures its excellent water supply is 145 feet in depth. The first 100 feet is through surface and the last forty-five feet in solid rock. The first 100 feet is timbered, and in order to keep the water from reaching the timbers and thus become contaminated it is necessary at present to pump a great deal more water than is consumed.

A large Comeron pump is constantly at work to keep the water down below the timber. This results in the burning up of a large quantity of fuel unnecessarily. To put an end to this it is proposed to put in concrete curbing down as far as the ledge and then let the water raise in the well as high as it desires, pumping only sufficient quantities to keep the tank well filled. A new pump will be installed to be operated by an electric motor. It is also proposed to install a new and larger electric dynamo as well as two new 250-horse power high pressure boilers. To cover this new machinery a new solid brick house will be constructed. The total cost of these improvements to the light and water plant will be in the neighborhood of $15,000, but it is expected that the money thus expended will soon be saved in greater economy of operation.

The business men of the village at present derive much of their trade from the people residing at the locations around the Kinney mine to the east and at the different mining properties between Buhl and Chisholm to the west. The trip to the Kinney location is made difficult at present on account of the roundabout wagon road making the distance to travel over three miles. To overcome this difficulty the township is now cutting out a new road that will run in almost a straight line and cut down the distance to a mile and three-quarters. This will be a great convenience both to the Buhl merchants and the residents of the location. Other road improvements are in contemplation by the township board, which will give Buhl merchants easier access to the mining locations to the west.

PURCHASE SITE FOR NEW HALL

Hibbing Council Takes Final Step in That Direction.

Hibbing, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the council last night the final steps toward the purchase of the house and lot on Center street, belonging to Mrs. Hooker, for the new city building were taken. Everything is now in readiness for the receiving of the architects' plans to be opened on the 15th inst. The council also bought a lot on Center street, on which it is the intention to move the Hooker residence. This property in turn will be turned over to Mrs. Champion for her property adjoining the lighting plant. It is the intention of the council to use the Champion lots for tanks and storage.

It was decided by the council to raise the salaries of Police Chief Wring from $100 to $125 per month and Officers Braeding and Donohue from $75 to $85 per month.

G. F. Peterson addressed the council on behalf of the fraternal organizations relative to Memorial day services. The president was authorized to appoint a committee to act on behalf of the city in connection with the memorial services. Councilmen Roddy and Rogalsky were appointed.

The bids for the contract to sink the city well another 100 feet were all rejected and bids will be advertised to be received May 19. The well is already 200 feet in depth.

The county voted to pay the expenses of the three delegates of the fire department to the State Firemen's convention to be held at Mankato Jun 9 and 10.

FARMERS COMPLAINING.

Allege Eveleth Merchants Do Not Give Them Fair Prices.

Eveleth, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The farmers in this vicinity who bring their products to market here, are indignant at the local grocery merchants, claiming they do not give them the market price for their products. One of the farmers brought a load of potatoes to town the other day and tried to sell them to the grocery men, who offered 10 cents below the market price on each bushel. The farmer finally had to sell at that figure, but said he would never trade here again. These cases are very frequent almost all over the country, but the farmers say they should not be compelled to sell their products at less than market figure besides delivering them from ten to twenty miles. A number of the business men, seeing the wrong that is done the farmer, and wishing to keep the farmer's trade here, are trying to do what they can to put the farmers' products on the same price basis with those shipped in from Duluth. If this movement is successful it will tend to bring the farmers' trade here that would otherwise go to surrounding towns.

GAME IS KILLED BY POT HUNTERS

Law Breakers Ruthlessly Slaughtering Animals on Mesaba Range.

Virginia, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is no doubt that the territory adjacent to the range is rapidly depleted of both game and fish through the depredations of a gang of pot hunters who are continually carrying on their nefarious operations. Almost at any time they can be seen scurrying through the woods with rifle in hand and a packsack strapped to their back in which to bring in the quarry.

Jack Parrish, who has leased his father's homestead on the shores of Sand lake, when in town recently said that he had been cruising around in the woods considerably of late and had run across a number of carcasses of deer that have been slaughtered and left in the woods to rot on the ground, in some cases one or both hind quarters having been removed by the pot hunters. He says that in most cases these are does that would soon have brought forth young and as a result of these depredations deer hunting in the vicinity next fall may be expected to be exceedingly poor. At this time of year the does, being heavy with young, are easy marks for these pot hunters. From almost every town on the range come reports of similar operations. In most cases the men who do this work are foreigners who have neither regard for the game laws nor common decency in the matter of killing game. All the lakes and streams are dynamited, seined and trapped for fish, with the result that both game and fish are rapidly being exterminated.

In the early days of the range partridges were particularly plentiful, but now they are found but rarely, owing to the constant war of extermination that has been carried on, principally in the nesting season.

There is general complaint that the state game and fish commission does nothing to prevent this condition of affairs.

EVELETH'S NEW SCHOOL.

Work Upon Building Progressing at a Satisfactory Rate.

Eveleth, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work on the new school building is progressing rapidly. The men are starting in on the second floor. TO MUSTER COMPANY.

Colonel Resche of Duluth Will Officiate Thursday Evening.

Hibbing, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Col. Rescue of Duluth will come here tomorrow and tomorrow night he will muster in the Hibbing company of militia, according to advices that George O'Sullivan, who has been prominent in bringing about the organization, has received. The mustering in will take place in Tapio hall and the indications point to a membership of about sixty. It is expected that at the election of officers Mr. O'Sullivan will be elected captain.

MINING COMPANY IS TO CONSTRUCT SIDEWALK.

Virginia, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Interstate Iron company, which operates the Lincoln mine in the Virginia district, has decided to construct a four-foot sidewalk from the mine to the city and work thereon will be started at once. All efforts to procure road and other improvements from the township board have been futile and so the company has decided to bear the expense of this convenience itself rather than to go without it any longer. On account of this condition of affairs some of the mining companies are now in favor of having their property annexed to the city.

At the regular meeting of the Commercial club to be held this evening this matter of annexing more territory will come up for action as well as several other matters of importance. It is especially desired that the members of the advisory committee on home rule charter be present at this meeting that some plan of action may be decided upon. The question of the county establishing an agricultural school will also be discussed.

VIRGINIA CITY COUNCIL.

Poundmaster Appointed and Other Affairs Disposed of.

Virginia, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The council, last evening, appointed John Bishop poundmaster and fixed his salary at $60 per month. He will also act as dog catcher. The appointment of William Stearns as assistant to the health officer, at a salary of $60 per month, was confirmed. The ordinance, designating the public pound, received its third reading and was passed.

Petitions were received for sidewalks on Spruce street, from Virginia to Central avenue, on the south side of Beech street, from Mesaba to Railroad avenue. Karon Bros. were granted a permit to build a cement sidewalk in front of their new business block. A petition was presented for an arc light at the corner of Virginia avenue and Beech street, and was referred to the light and water committee.

The plans and specifications, prepared by the city engineer, for a sewer in Poplar street, between blocks 40 and 53, were read and accepted.

TOO MUCH OLD BRICK

County Unable to Get Good Price for Its Buildings.

Forced Sale Brings Small Fraction of Their Value.

The large quantity of old brick which is on the market as a result of the tearing down of the buildings along the Wisconsin Central right of way, kept down the bids on the buildings which must be removed from the courthouse site and the county realized but a fraction of their value at the sale yesterday.

Bids were opened yesterday by the county commissioners. County Commissioner Kauppi wanted to reject all bids and advertise again, but the other members of the board objected and the buildings were disposed of to the highest bidders. Notices have already been served on the tenants to vacate within ten days, and the purchasers have sixty days in which to remove the buildings.

No bids were received for the McDougall homestead and this will be sold at private sale to the highest bidder.

The Barker property at 211 and 213 Fifth avenue west went to Alexander Carlson for $450. The Barker flats at 501-503-507 West Second went to J. A. Johnson for $1,100 and the Spalding residence was sold to H. P. Walter for $1,006. David Mair secured the Cash property for $150.

Commissioners Kauppi, Sundeen and Tischer are the committee to sell the McDougall property.

UNEXPECTED PRESENT.

Minneapolis Woman Receives Jewels From an Unknown Source.

Minneapolis, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—To open an innocent looking parcel received by mail and to have her eyes dazzled by the blaze of gold and jewels, was the strange experience of Mrs. Frank P. Hough of 3226 Columbus avenue.

When the lady cut the string with the family scissors and parted the folds of paper she found a solid gold bracelet, garnished with diamonds and sapphires of value, a costly and beautiful trinket.

There was nothing in or about the parcel to furnish a clew to the sender, for the postmark was illegible and there was no message of any kind. The address was so plainly written that there is no occasion to believe a mistake was made by the sender. The lady appealed to her husband and then to the city police to help unravel this Oriental mystery.

The police have been working on the case, but have thus far found nothing.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The Duluth art school is in need of more casts for the antique room and the board of managers is hoping that some Duluth people will be found who will be willing to loan or give to the school some copies of the famous casts. The antique room has been furnished in part through the donation of a number of casts by Mrs. L. Mendenhall and lately Dr. A. E. Schlitz of this city has loaned the school three more beautiful models. A full length figure and other pieces may be used to advantage for the benefit of the drawing class and any one who has such a gift for the school is requested to communicate with a member of the board of directors or with C. C. Rosenkranz.

The evening class of the school, which has been meeting in the art room of the Central High school, will now meet at the regular rooms of the art school, as lights have been installed, making it possible for the class to work to good advantage. The evening class, which meets Monday and Friday evenings, is one of the most enthusiastic of the school and great progress is shown even during the few weeks. The class draws from a costumed model and any one interested is invited to visit the classes on either of the evenings.

DESIRABLE HUSBANDS

The Round Face Variety Especially Recommended.

A certain Dr. Julien von Bernauer has been devoting his attention to the characteristics of a good husband and how they may be ascertained, says the London Globe. He suggests that the man with a round face is most desirable, although this is not a sine qua non. The ideal age of marriage for a man is 25, but to the woman he leaves a wide range—from 20 to 40 years of age. The doctor inclines to the view that the happiest marriages are contracted, as far as the woman is concerned, when she is about 35 years of age. A widow often makes a good second selection, profiting by her former experience. The most unhappy marriages are those in which a young girl falls in love with a spendthrift or a dandy, and marries him either on account of his profusion or his dress.

COMPLIMENTS WOMEN

Exquisite Tribute to Sex in a Late Book.

In the American Magazine William J. Locke, author of "The Beloved Vagabond" and "The Morals of Marcus," begins his new serial novel, "Simple Septimus."

Septimus Dix—Simple Septimus—is a genius, an inventor of guns. He is as eccentric as such men often are, and all his movements are wonderfully interesting. But, withal, he has a marvelous power to express truth directly and beautifully. Listen, for example, to this speech of his, as it came out in the course of a conversation with Zora Middlemist, the heroine:

"Whatever one does or tries to do, one should insist on remaining human. It's good to be human, isn't it? I once knew a man who was just a complicated mechanism of brain encased in a body. His heart didn't beat; it clicked and whirred. It caused the death of the most perfect woman in the world."

He looked dreamily into the blue ether between sea and sky. Zora felt strangely drawn to him.

"Who was it?" she asked softly.

"My mother," said he.

They had paused in their stroll, and were leaning over the parapet above the railway line. After a moment's silence he added, with a vague smile:

"That's why I try hard to keep myself human—so, that, if a woman should ever care for me, I shouldn't hurt her."

A green caterpillar was crawling on his sleeve. In his vague manner he picked it tenderly off and laid it on the leaf of an aloe that grew in the terrace vase near which he stood.

"You couldn't even hurt that crawling thing—let alone a woman," said Zora. This time very softly.

He blushed. "If you kill a caterpillar you kill a buterfly'" he said apologetically.

"And if you kill a woman?"

"Is there anything higher?" said he.

Spring Salads.

A delicious salad has the skin taken from round tomatoes, a slice removed from the stem end of each, the pulp scooped out to make a cup and the fruit left turned bottom upward for an hour. They are then filled with an equal mixture of tart apples and celery, dressed with mayonaise and arranged on lettuce leaves.

At a luncheon this week the salad consisted of green peppers filled with a mixture of sweetbreads, cucumbers and celery, only a small portion of the vegetables, both of which were cut very fine, being used. Mayonnaise dressed the salad.

For a delicious fruit salad, remove the pulp from grape fruits that have been cut in half and refill with the pulp mixed with half as much celery cut fine. Some of the juice of the grape fruit should be drained off. Dress with mayonnaise and serve with cheese balls.

Mince celery and green pepper fine and work them into cream scheese, moistening the mixture with cream. Serve in balls on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise.

Extravagant Women.

Mrs. Belle DeRivera says that some men's treatment of women is like old Hiram Doolittle's treatment of his wife, says the Washington Star. He made her keep a cash account, and he would go over it every night, growling and grumbling like this:

"Look here, Hannah—mustard plasters, 50 cents; three teeth extracted, $2. There's $2.50 in one day spent for your own private pleasure. Do you think I'm made of money?"

READY REPARTEE.

Quick Wit of Susan B. Anthony Always Evident.

Few lives so lend themselves to dramatic narration as Susan B. Anthony's, says the June Delineator. It ranged from tragedy to comedy, with scattered bits of melodrama, she ever in the center of the stage. With her everything was always intensely realistic—not acting.

Miss Anthony had a peculiar faculty of condensing a whole speech into a single sentence. For instance, when she heard men lamenting that the profession of teacher was not respected as much as the other professions: "Do you not see that so long as society says woman has not brains enough to be a doctor, lawyer or minister, but has plenty to be a teacher, every man of you who condescends to teach tacitly admits before all Israel and the sun that he has no more brains than a woman?" And when Horace Greeley said to her at Albany: "You know the ballot and bullet go together; if you vote, are you ready to fight?" instantly she retorted: "Yes, Mr. Greeley, just as you fought in the late war—at the point of a goose quill!" Again, when she was talking on divorce, and the Rev. A. D. Mayo, thinking to annihilate her, said: "You are not married, you have no business to be discussing marriage." "Well, Mr. Mayo," she answered, "you are not a slave; suppose you quit lecturing on slavery!"

In Honor of Bride.

Miss Esther Murray entertained last evening in honor of Miss Winnifred Holmes at her home, 428 North Fifty-seventh avenue west. Miss Holme's wedding to O. Jacobs of Itasca will take place in June at the home of the bride at Washburn, Wis. Gifts of china plates were presented the bride by the guests and a pleasant informal evening was enjoyed by the following:

Mrs. Schulte.
Misses
Nellie Sullivan, Mamie Monahan,
Jean Melbrum, Bertha Lannigan,
Nancy Hanson, Madeline Murray,
Ruth Brown, Polly Fawcett,

For Storing Furs.

A cedar chest makes an excellent receptacle for all winter garments.

Either turpentine or camphor serves as an excellent prohibition against the attentive moth.

The furs should always be first wrapped in layers of tissue paper.

White furs must be laid in blue tissue paper, as white causes them to assume a yellow tinge.

Camphor should not be used on either sable or chinchilla, as it spoils the color of both.

Black furs do not require the same tender care as do gray, brown or white ones.

It is a mistake to put away white or grey furs when they are soiled.

Powdered chalk or cornmeal shaken well in and dusted out the next morning will cleanse the fur.

Birthday Party.

The members of Trinity branch of the Women's Auxiliary of Trinity Procathedral were hostesses at a birthday party this afternoon at the Guild hall. The guests were entertained from 3 to 5 o'clock. During the afternoon Miss Mary Morrison sang and a reading was given by Miss Kathleen Watterworth and a violin number by Miss Senta Erd. Mrs. J. D. Morrison gave an informal talk on the birthday plan to be followed by the guild.

Surprise Party.

Mrs. William Longstreet was the guest of honor at a pleasant surprise party last evening at her home, 225 Seventh avenue west. A pleasant evening was spent by the guests among whom was Mr. Longstreet's mother, a lady 80 years of age, who was one of the most active and delighted participants in the affair. The guests were:

Messrs. and Mesdames—
A. Duff, Paull,
French, Ashworth,
Forrest, Philip Lawrence.
Forrester,
Mesdames—
R. Burke, Hepperman,
J. Holmes, Dick,
Longstreet, Cox,

Household Helps.

Knives will take a brighter polish if a little baking soda is mixed with the knife polish.

Nothing is better than good mutton tallow for softening hands which have become hard or rough from their contact with water.

With leaking preserve jars, if all other means fail to insure their being airtight, the edges of the lid should be covered with paraffin.

Kerosene may be removed by the use of fuller's earth. Cover the stain with a thick layer of hot fullers' earth and allow it to remain for twenty-four hours, then brush off.

After oiling a sewing machine it not infrequently happens that a drop of oil, which has not been absorbed, stains the material which is being stitched. To remove the mark a lather made with soap, cold water and a tablespoonful of ammonia will usually prove successful; but, in the case of colored linens and cottons, the ammonia should be employed cautiously, as it is apt to fade the color.

Glycerine rubbed into coffee stains will remove them from woolens and other materials.

Wash woolen stockings quickly in lukewarm lather, and do not let them lie in the water and soak. Rinse in the same temperature of water.

Rats have been found to possess a strong antipathy to the odor of peppermint, and will flee from any place where it can be smelled.

If starched clothes become wet with rain on the line, do not take them down, but allow them to remain until the sun dries them, and they will have lost none of the stiffness.

Velveteen which has served its purpose as a dress or blouse, should be preserved and made into polishing cloths. In this connection velveteen is almost as good as chamois leather, and can not only be used for obtaining a fine polish on satin-wood and mahogany furniture, but as a means of brightening the silver and plated goods. When soiled the velveteen may be successfully cleaned by washing it in a soapy lather.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Egg plant, 20 to 30 cents each.
Olives, 10 cents a bunch.
Head lettuce, 10 cents a head.
Green peppers, 3 for 25 cents.
Cracked pecans, 25 cents a lb. package.
Squabs, 60 cents a pair.
Shad roe, 45 cents a pair.
Cottage cheese, 12½cents a lb.
Flank steak, 15 cents a lb.

Squabs, unfinished looking little animals, in a state of more pronounced dishabille than even nature intended, are lying stark and cold on the ice at the butchers. Their long, thin and haggard-looking necks connect their emaciated looking bodies with a small head, the eyes of which are sunken and closed. Their wings are spread out helplessly and their feet are relaxed in the perfect abandon of death. They are pitiful-looking, and even the thought of them broiled to a delicious brown, and their wings and feet forced into a nearer proximity with their little bodies, can hardly repay one for even a single glance at their cold, stark corpses on the ice.

If your susceptibilities are bothered by the youth and innocence of the squabs, you may buy flank steak, about which there is a certain decision which only age and maturity can bring.

WOMAN BADLY BURNED, HER HOME DESTROYED.

Aitkin, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has just reached here from Pliny, on Snake river, of the destruction by fire of the home of ulius Wilkowski and the serious burning of his wife, who has been taken to a neighbor's and may die. Wilkowski, desiring to calk the boat he used in crossing Snake river, placed a kettle of pitch on the stove. The stuff boiled over and took fire. In he refforts to remove the burning kettle of pitch, Mrs. Wilkowski was burned about the arms and body so frightfully that, in a desperate attempt to save her life, her husband picked her up in his arms and swam the Snake river, taking her to the home of a neighbor. The burning pitch set fire to the home, which was destroyed.

AT POINT OF GUN

Seattle, May 13.—R. W. Fullerton, Cornell graduate and son of S. P. Fullerton of St. Louis, president of the Chicago Lumber and Coal company, was taken at the point of a gun by two New York detectives from his office, Saturday noon, placed in an automobile and taken aboard the steamship Watson just before sailing for San Francisco.

The arrest was made upon request for a requisition by Governor Hughes of New York.

John B. Collins, coast manager of the company, received a short, hurriedly written note from Fullerton Saturday night as follows:

"Am arrested and on my way to New York. Prerogative of habeas corpus denied me. Wire father full particulars. Too much ammunition in my face."

The young man is charged with a crime against Gladys Hobart of New York city and with breach of promise.

Requisition papers were obtained by Rowland Fitzsimmons as an agent of District Attorney Jerome at Olympia, Friday.

THE MICHIGAN 'VARSITY SECRETARY IS SHORT.

Chicago, May 13.—James H. Wade, the venerable secretary of the University of Michigan, is said to be in Chicago while the accounts of his office are under investigation, with a possibility that discrepancy of several thousands of dollars may be discovered.

The sum mentioned is $3,000, but it is said by his friends that if there is any shortage Mr. Wade did not profit by it—that it is due to an error in bookkeeping.

Mr. Wade has been visiting at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Walter F. Slocum, but his son-in-law today denied that he was there.

Advices from Michigan are to the effect that Attorney General John E. Bird of that state was in Chicago yesterday to confer with Mr. Wade, who is nearly 75 years old.

It is known that Mr. Bird is investigating the office of Mr. Wade, who had been secretary of the university for the last twenty-five years, acting in the capacity of business manager.

The purpose is to ascertain whether Mr Wade and Hamilton Reeve, who is superintendent of buildings and grounds, can account for coal and other supplies which the university paid for and which it is alleged have been diverted to other than university uses.

FIERCE PRAIRIE FIRE.

Hundreds of Square Miles Devastated in Canadian Northwest.

Edmonton, Alta, May 13.—Contractor Tompkins of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway has arrived here from the right-of-way of the railroad and tells of the worst prairie and bush fire in the history of Western Canada. Hundreds of square miles of valuable timber have been devastated, at a loss of several million dollars. Homesteaders living in the path of the fire lost all they possessed and fled for their lives. For two days and two nights, men employed in construction camps fought against the fire expecting each moment to se their camps and supplies go up in smoke, but when the fire fighters had reached the stage when they were unable to move a hand to save their possessions, the wind veered, carrying the fire off in another direction. From the meager accounts to hand, no lives have been lost, but it is fully expected that when the fire has died out it will be found that some of the homesteaders are missing.

Beware of Imitations

Cheap Substitutes and "Just As Good As."

Unscrupulous dealers, mindful only of profit and caring nothing for the health of their patrons, are offering for sale low-grade, impure whiskey, which they tell you is as "good as Duffy's."

It is a cheap concoction and fraud, intended to deceive the people. Of course, when a remedy has been before the public so long, has been prescribed and used by the best of doctors and in all the prominent hospitals, and has carried the blessing of health into so many thousands of homes as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has, imitations are bound to arise. But they can imitate the bottle and label only—no one can imitate the contents.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sentitive stomach.

Any firm that will sell imitation or substitution goods will sell impure goods. The firm that is dishonest in one thing would not hesitate to be dishonest in another. Whenever you see imitation and substitution goods offered for sale by a firm, beware of anything and everything put up by that firm. You endanger your own life and the lives of your family and friends by dealing with them.

BEWARE OF FRAUDS!

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is sold in sealed bottles only—never in bulk. A fac-simile of the genuine bottle is printed here so that you may easily recognize it. It is our own patented bottle—round, amber colored and with the name "Duffy Malt Whiskey Company" blown on the glass. The trade-mark—the Old Chemist's Head—is on the label, and over the cork there is an engraved paper seal. Be certain this seal is not broken.

It is the only whiskey recognized by doctors everywhere as a family medicine. At all druggists, grocers, dealers, or direct. $1 a bottle.

TEACHERS' BIG MEET

Annual Gathering of National Association at Cleveland.

Secretary Shepherd of Winona Has Issued the Official Program.

Winona, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Irwin Shepard of this city, secretary of the National Educational association, has issued the official program bulletin of the association's forty-sixth annual convention, to be held June 29 to July 3, at Cleveland.

The program includes many addresses and papers on questions of educational policy which are now prominently before teachers and educators generally. Among the speakers at the general sessions will be Andrew S. Draper, New York's commissioner of education, who will discuss the adaptation of the public school to industrial ends; Booker T. Washington, who will have for his text, "Negro Education and the Nation;" Jane Addams, who will speak on "The School and the Immigrant Child," and probably C. S. H. Brereton, division inspector for the London council, whose topic is "Compulsory Education in Industries in the Schools of London."

Among the interesting topics for discussion at the departmental sessions will be the preliminary report of the committee on moral training in the public schools; a report of the committee on industrial education for rural schools, by Prof. L. D. Harvey, principal of the Stout manual training school, Menominie, Wis.; the cosmopolitan high school curriculum; college ethics, some avenues of usefulness in education; the relation of art education to culture and industry; criticisms of the teaching of physical education; school architecture.

Provisions are being made by the people of Cleveland for the entertainment of the largest attendance in the history of the association, as favorable rates have been granted by the Central Passenger association and the Trans-Continental association. It is expected that equally favorable rates will be granted by the other passenger associations.

Will Be Semi-Centennial.

After organization in 1857, the first convention of the association was held in Cincinnati in 1858, and so the Cleveland convention next month will be the semi-centennial anniversary of the first meeting, when seventy-five educators were in attendance. The association now has twenty-one departments, an active membership of 20,000 or more.

Among the features of the convention will be a spelling contest to be held the forenoon of the first day of the convention. The contest will be limited to eighth grade pupils. Cleveland and Pittsburg have already entered and other cities are expected to enter.

Many of the shops, mills and manufactories will open their doors to members of the association, a feature which is expected to prove of especial interest to all engaged in industrial education.

Lake trips and trips to vacation resorts will be arranged, and the reports from Cleveland are to the effect that everything possible will be done for the entertainment of visiting teachers.

CAT TAKES THE HOOK.

Crookston Feline Swallows Fish Bait With Dire Result.

Crookston, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A cat instead of a catfish was the result of the efforts of a local fisherman. Some boys who had been fishing without good results returned home and left their fishpole in the yard of Charles Dresck, and liver which was used as bait was left on the hook.

The family cat happened along in the morning and swallowed the liver, hook and all. Charles Seibeck discovered the cat cutting up didos and finally discovered what the trouble was. It took about a half hour to get the fishhook out of the cat's mouth and was quite severely scratched and bitten during the operation.

LOWENTHAL HAD GRUDGE.

Angered at Wellman, He Scattered Fake Report, Says Hersey.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Maj. H. B. Hersey of the local weather bureau, who accompanied Walter Wellman on his attempted polar expedition, is considerably amused over the story sent out under a Paris date in which an engineer named Lowenthal is quoted as saying that the Wellman expedition was an "American bluff." Major Hersey takes no credit for being "the only serious member of the expedition," and denies that he hung his instruments in the shed with the "hams and sausages." On the contrary, they were placed where they would do the most good in making records of the weather and conditions which he was sent to gather.

"That man Lowenthal, or Lewantaal, which is his right name, was an unbalanced character who was discharged by Wellman when we returned from Dane's island the first year," said the major. "He threatened at that time to write a letter and send it all over the United States, telling what he pretended to know about the expedition. He seems to have kept his feelings bottled up until the present time. What he says is the purest nonsense, of course, and only represents his feelings on account of being dropped as one of the members of the expedition. He is a native of Finland and an engineer."

OMAHA FIREMAN SAVES.

Gives Signal to Wisconsin Central Train of Danger.

Eau Claire, Wis., May 13.—An attempt to wreck the Wisconsin Central passenger train between here and Chippewa Falls Tuesday was averted by the fireman of an Omaha freight train, who waved his hand as the trains passed near the junction, calling the passenger engineer's attention to the track where the rail had been removed.

THEY HAVE CLOSE CALL.

Party of Students on Steamer Nearly Go Over Dam.

Appleton, Wis., May 13.—The steamer Theresa of Oshkosh was partially wrecked and was saved only by a narrow margin from going over the upper dam of the Fox river in this city late Monday night, when returning from Clifton with a party of forty-five members of the Beta Sigma Phi fraternity of Lawrence university and their lady friends.

The captain of the boat attributes the accident to the bridge tender of the Milwaukee road draw bridge, who, he says, was slow in opening the draw after getting the signal. Because of the swift current it was impossible to anchor the craft in time to prevent colliding with the bridge.

When the draw was swung open the boat was disabled and was saved from going over the dam, only 100 feet away, by grounding on the shore. The students were landed by means of small boats.

CLAIM SIMMONS IS TOUGH ONE

Grand Forks Authorities Would Extradite Him From Minnesota.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—George Simmons, arrested at Oslo, Minn., refuses to return to the state of North Dakota to face a charge of burglary and safe blowing preferred by the officials of Grand Forks county and accordingly, application was made last evening to Governor Johnson of Minnesota for extradition papers. Simmons was captured by the village marshal at Oslo while skulking along the woods. He refuses to make any statement relative to his past, and his refusal to cross the boundary line into North Dakota was somewhat of a surprise to Grand Forks officers.

In the arrest of George Simmons, the authorities believe that they have all the members of the gang which operated so successfully on the safes of the Manvel postoffice and the C. E. Colosky store in that city Sunday morning. Tom Payne and Joe Miller are the other men in the toils in connection with the affair. They are to have a preliminary examination today.

"GOOD-BYE, LITTLE GIRL,"

Writes Grand Forks Man After Leaving His Wife.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. B. Bowers, a deliveryman for a local dairy, has either deserted his wife of a year, or has taken his life, according to his friends, who are unable to account for his strange disappearance, Friday evening. He sent a letter to his wife, enclosing a check for $100. In this letter he advises her to take good care of herself, also of Dewey, a pet dog. The man bore a good reputation. He recently had some trouble with one of his arms, which worried him a great deal, and some fear this may have unhinged his mind to such an extent that he took his life.

The letter to his wife, which she received Sunday, follows:

"Lena—I have to drop you a few lines. You will get a letter and check for one hundred dollars. Excuse me for doing such an act as I got trouble of my own. I was never without it. Good-bye, little girl. Take good care of yourself and do not stay in the dairy very long. Take good care of yourself and money, also of Dewey. Give them all good-bye for me. This is all, for I am off. Good-bye, dear.

"C. B. BOWERS."

NORTH DAKOTA DOCTORS

Annual Convention of Medical Men at Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Men of medicine from all over North Dakota are attending the annual convention of the North Dakota Medical association which began here yesterday and will conclude today. Mayor J. D. Taylor welcomed the visitors yesterday and Dr. F. R. Smyth, mayor of Bismarck, responded to the welcome. Papers upon various subjects having to do with the profession were read and discussed yesterday. Last night there was a banquet at the Commercial club. Officers will be elected today.

This morning addresses were made by the following: Dr. Carl Kachelmacher, Fargo; Dr. August Eggers, Grand Forks; Dr. H. C. Windell, Williston; Dr. I. Almklov, Cooperstown; Dr. Charles H. Mayo, Rochester, Minn.

The program for this afternoon includes addresses by Dr. H. H. Erenfeld, Anamoose; Dr. Gustav F. Riedigger, Grand Forks; Dr. A. C. Morris, Fargo, and Dr. Alex R. Volvin, St. Paul.

KILLS HIMSELF AFTER INHERITING FORTUNE.

Beloit, Wis., May 13.—E. H. Smythe of Beloit, aged 66 years, a wealthy retired farmer, who has large property interests at Betram, Neb., committed suicide on a train yesterday at Davis Junction, Ill., by shooting himself in the head. He was returning gto Beloit from the West, where he had just acquired a large property through the death of a relative. He leaves a large family. No reason is given for the act.

WANT REWARD FIRST.

Iowa Captors of Alleged Minnesota Murderer Take No Chances.

Lake Benton, Minn., May 13.—Martin Schwab, supposed to be the slayer of John Lorenzen, has not been returned to Lake Benton for the reason that his captors at Esterville, Iowa., are waiting for the reward money before giving him up. It is said that the money will be sent at once. This is the home of the county attorney, and the examination will probably take place here. The authorities are firmly convinced that Schwab is a murderer. His hurried departure immediately after the crime and the fact that he was seen to have money after Lorenzen's pockets had been looted, when he was penniless the day before, are believed to give room for a strong presumption of guilt.

GREEKS ARE ROUTED.

Worsted in Race Riot, They Flee From Carlisle.

Carlisle, Minn., May 13.—This section of Ottertail county is considerably worked up over a sensational race war that broke out late Sunday night, when a Great Northern car in which some Greek laborers employed by the railroad were living was attacked by persons living in that vicinity.

The mob at first threw stones at the car, but later fired revolvers and shotguns, breaking all the windows in the coach and riddling it with bullets. The Greeks crouched on the floor of the car and escaped injury. Six members of the mob were arrested yesterday. The Greeks, fearing further violence, have left the county. The Greeks had interfered with no one.

SHOPMEN LAID OFF.

Forty Men Are Unexpectedly Out of Employment.

Devils Lake, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new order has been issued by the Great Northern that lays off forty men from the shops here permanently. This comes somewhat as a surprised as it had just been reported that the end-of-the-month layoffs which began in March were to be discontinued and this was taken as a hopeful sign. It seems, however, that it was but the preliminary to the permanent lay off of the men who have been discharged by the latest order. The blow is a hard one to the men effected by the order as many of them will find it hard just at this time to get work in their line.

YOUNG MENOMINEE BOYS ARE ACCUSED OF THEFT.

Menominee, Mich., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Bird and Ernest Damer, 15 and 13 years of age respectively, have been arrested on charges of robbery. The barn at the Bird home was searched and several re-enameled bicycles were found which were later claimed by local residents. The younger lad broke down and confessed, but the Bird boy retained a sullen mood.

MOTHER AND CHILD BOTH LOSE LIVES.

Coopertown, N. D., May 13.—Mrs. G. L. Woodrick, wife of a McHenry liveryman, poured kerosene upon the kitchen fire. An explosion followed and she and her babe died from the effects of burns a few hours later. Her little son was also burned, but may recover.

HIS SKULL FRACTURED.

Ashland, Wis., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gus Miller of Ashland was perhaps fatally injured at the quarry near Washburn yesterday morning, a piece of machinery striking him on the head. He was brought to St. Joseph's hospital, where it was discovered that the skull had been fractured. His chances for recovery are about even.

DULUTH CONTEST CASE APPEAL IS FILED.

St. Paul, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court Monday received the appeal of the Duluth contested election case. George J. Bloedel is contesting the election of James L. Cromwell as alderman of the Second ward.

Rochester, Minn., May 13.—Harrison Engle, 5-year-old son of Harrison Engle, living four miles southeast of this city, was drowned two days ago. Carry Them With You—Don't Wait Till Night

Cathartics are taken at bedtime, because they cause griping. You want it to occur at night.

So you go through the day with a headache—a dullness. And the day is lost.

That is wrong because it is unnecessary.

There is a laxative that never gripes—that gives instant help when you need it.

A laxative in vest-pocket boxes, so one may always have it ready.

That laxative is Cascarets.

Don't delay helping the bowels until you need a violent physic.

Harsh physic wrecks both the stomach and bowels. It leads to dyspepsia—to constipation.

And think of the days you lose.

Keep yourself always at your best, by taking one Cascaret the moment you need it.

In a little time all will be right.

You can't do this with cathartics, but you can with Cascarets. For Cascarets are as harmless as food.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

Cascarets

DEAD FOR THREE WEEKS.

Ontario Farmer Makes Startling Discovery on Visit to Neighbor.

Winnipeg, Man., May 13.—William Allison, a farmer, living on the Lake of the Woods, fifteen miles south of Kenora, made his first call since winter on his neighbor, Walter Beckett, another farmer, who lived with his wife and four children on an island, eight miles from Kenora, and made the grewsome discovery that Beckett had been lying dead for nearly three weeks in one room of their shack, while the widow and children had barricaded themselves in the kitchen of the shack. Beckett had died of heart disease.

This was Allison's first trip to Kenora, the ice having gone out so he could reach the island on which the small farm of the Becketts was located. He had to break through fully a quarter of a mile of floating ice before he could reach the island.

Taking in the situation quickly, he at once took Mrs. Beckett and the children to the mainland in his boat and brought them to Kenora yesterday. He then returned with another man to bring in the body of Beckett.

TO ADOPT HER FRIEND.

Montana Woman Will Make Lifelong Companion Her Heir.

Chicago, May 13.—Miss Casa Granda of Billings, Mont., who is stopping at the Sherman house, yesterday confirmed a report that she would adopt Miss Alice Moore, a lifelong friend, in order that the latter might inherit her estate in case of her death. The estate, she said, was inherited from an uncle in Billings, and its value is estimated at between $250,000 and $350,000. The adoption papers, she declared, are to be filed in the courts here.

NO NEW BILL FOR THE RAINY DAM EXTENSION.

Washington, May 13.—All notion of getting up a new bill for extension of the time for construction of a dam across Rainy river at International Falls has been abandoned because of the probality that congress will adjourn within a comparatively short time. It is said on good authority today that whatever action congress may take in the matter will be on the original bill, on which the president based his veto message discussing the need for taxation of grants for the use of water powers.

The subcommittee in charge of the bill of which Representative Stevens is chairman will prepare a report to the full committee which will be presented Friday. The question to be considered is whether the full committee will be asked to report the bill back to the house with the recommendation that it be passed over the president's veto.

Whether or not the subcommittee or full committee will make such a report is uncertain. There is no certainty, either, that the house will adopt the report, if it should be presented, as there is a pronounced sentiment among members on both sides in favor of the president's taxation proposition, and it requires two-thirds vote to pass a bill over a veto.

COST BELOW ESTIMATE

Commission Received and Opened Nearly 400 Bids Tuesday.

Instead of costing more than was originally estimated, it is now believed the cost of the new courthouse will be from $250,000 to $300,000 less than the figures furnished by the architects and courthouse commission. The bids for the different classes of work on the building have not been totaled yet, but from the several sets of figures submitted it is evident that the cost will be much lower than expected.

Bids were necessary on thirty different classes of work. When the plans were finished, D. H. Burnham & Co., the architects, estimated the total cost of the structure at from $1,250,000 to $1,400,000. Now it is believed the total cost on construction will not pass the $1,000,000 mark.

Nearly 400 bids were received and opened yesterday by the courthouse commission at the Builders' exchange rooms in the Lyceum building. At first it was intended to open them at the office of the commission in the Providence building, but owing to the large crowd present, the meeting was adjourned to the Lyceum building. The task of opening the bids was a long and tedious one. A hasty report of the bids was drawn up, and then they were again sealed. For the next two weeks the commission and representatives of the architects will be busy examining, tabulating and classifying them. Most of the bids were for only one class of work, while some of them were for two or more classes. Five were general, taking in nearly every class. Three of these were by local contractors, McLeod & Smith, G. H. Lounsberry and J. F. Schleunes.

The contractors who failed to enclose checks with their bids, and those who did not otherwise qualify properly, may not be considered when the contracts are let, for it was carefully explained just what steps should be taken when the bids were first advertised for. The lowest bids of reliable contractors in all thirty classes will be added together, to get the total cost of building, and should they together be lower than the lowest of the general bids, the contracts will be awarded to them. Thus there may be thirty contractors in charge of the work, or there may be only one firm.

The commission will report to the county commissioners, making recommendations of how much of an appropriation will be needed for the completion of the courthouse, in addition to that already made.

Sixty-two bids were received in Duluth, and representatives of Burnham & Co. brought over 300 bids with them from Chicago.

JUDGE AT CONFERENCE.

Fargo, N. D., May 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Charles A. Pollock of Fargo has become one of the leading figures in the general conference of Methodists which is being held at the present time at Baltimore, Md. Rev. S. A. Danford, presiding elder of the Fargo district of the Methodist church, who is attending the convention, writes that Judge Pollock was "cheered to the echo."

EVERY ONE STILL AT SEA

further along M. N. Johnson, another United States senatorial candidate, has established himself for the convention. Senator Hansbrough, whose position the three candidates above named are endeavoring to secure, is also on the scene. An effort will be made by the Little or McKenzie faction to indorse that gentleman for the senate, but a fight will be made on this proposition by both Hansbrough adherents and the Johnson followers.

It is hard to size up the delegates here already. Just how they will line up when the convention is called is hard to tell. If the insurgent wing is tested by the adherence of its members to the standard of the party wing paper, the Grand Forks Herald, it will have about 100 delegates in the convention, while the stalwart wing measured by the generally accepted rule would number more than 300. To be particular, if the fourteen delegates from Stutsman county, who are non-committal and whose mission is to work for the candidate for the Jamestown postoffice, the seven from Wells who are doubtful, and the six doubtful from McIntosh, and allowing the insurgents the advantage of the contested delegations from Dickey and Eddy counties and the stalwarts the one from Rolette, the lineup of the convention would be 321 stalwarts to 98 insurgents, and this insurgent strength represents those who have followed the tenets of faith laid down by the party publications and its satellites. This is a material falling off of strength as compared with two years ago so far as the insurgents are concerned, if it be taken for granted that the only inerrant doctrine is that preached by certain leaders of that wing.

Another lineup of the delegates which is much talked of by those who are here as the convention advance guard today is McKenzie and anti-McKenzie. Those who are presenting the claims of the Burleigh county leader assert that if he cares to line up his followers tomorrow he will be able to dominate the convention with greater leverage than he has ever done in the past. But this claim is not borne out by the analysis of the figures. Of the delegates placed in the Stalwart column in the preceding estimate, 101 are either pronounced anti-McKenzie men or they were elected by counties which passed strong anti-McKenzie resolutions, so that their standing is well defined as that of any delegate could be. If this number be taken from the Stalwart strength, as indicated before, it would leave that faction with but 220 delegates, which is four short of the necessary number to control. McKenzie leaders, however, claim to be able to make up these four delegates if need be, while those who are Stalwarts but against the McKenzie party management claim that there are forty delegates who would join them to down McKenzie.

This condition, if it should prove true in a strength of test in the convention tomorrow, would leave it split into three factions with neither one strong enough to control. If the Insurgents and the anti-McKenzie adherents should unite they would have less than 200 votes and would be unable to control the convention. If the McKenzie and the anti-McKenzie adherents should unite they could dictate matters.

There are abundance of candidates in the city for every office within the gift of the party. It is a regretable fact that the state cannot be divided into several districts in which the regular state ticket could be elected.

The arrival of Senator Hansbrough served to clarify the atmosphere to some extent so far as the senatorial matter was concerned. Soon after his arrival in the city it became known that he was opposed to the attempt of McKenzie or Little to secure the indorsement for the senatorship, and this fact had a dampening effect upon the ambitions of these gentlemen. The special train from Grand Forks and Fargo arrived here this morning and the delegates are whooping it up in great style for the small army of office seekers from Cass county. One of the lieutenants of one of the candidates was telling an open-mouthed crowd of listeners that his candidate would get every vote in Cass county with the exception of those of the candidates. "Well," said one of the bystanders, "that gives him a blank from his own county."

Resolutions indorsing Taft for the presidency will be passed, every county in the state having instructed its delegates for him.

PITTSBURG WOMAN IS VERY MUCH MYSTIFIED

port that the interment was made at Oberlin, Ohio, and last night the Dispatch received a telegram from Fort Wayne stating that Pitcher's remains were accompanied from Fort Wayne to Duluth, Minn., by a young woman who was supposed to be his fiancee.

"The telegram from Fort Wayne is as follows: William A. Pitcher, who died in the Aveline hotel fire, was supposed to be unmarried. His remains were accompanied from Fort Wayne to Duluth by Miss Ora Russell, supposed to be his fiancee. The Fort Wayne police have received a letter from Mrs. William A. Pitcher, 2035 De Ruad street, Pittsburg, who claims to be his wife.

Widow Is Mystified.

"Mrs. Pitcher was astounded last night when shown the telegram. She had never heard of Miss Ora Russell, and declared that if such a person took charge of her husband's body it must have been due to a mistaken identification of the corpse.

"Mrs. Pitcher will at once make an investigation into her husband's death and his place of interment. There are several incidents connected with the case which are peculiar, among them that she was not officially informed of his death.

"Mrs. Pitcher received no positive information that her husband had been killed until Saturday evening. Then she sent a telegram to Bowser & Co., oil dealers of Fort Wayne, asking for information concerning the whereabouts of Mr. Pitcher's body. This brought back the answer that the remains were interred at Bellevue, Ohio, last Wednesday, but no further particulars were given.

Mr. Pitcher Traveled Much.

"Mrs. Pitcher and the oil man who lost his life were married sixteen years ago. For about a year Mrs. Pitcher has resided in Pittsburg. Her husband's business, she said last night, brought him to this city frequently, and he was at their home on De Ruad street not later than a week from last Thursday—three days before he met his death.

"'Mr. Pitcher,' said his widow last night, traveled almost constantly, and Pittsburg was the center of his district. That is the reason that I did not reside at Fort Wayne, where are the offices of Bowser & Co., with which he was connected.

"When my husband last left me he intended going to New York. He told me to address his mail to the Hotel Belmont.

"When I read in the newspapers of the Fort Wayne hotel fire I saw that William Pitcher was listed among the dead. The address given was Duluth. The name is by no means an uncommon one in Fort Wayne; therefore I paid little attention to it, never at all thinking that the man was my husband.

"Not receiving any reply to letters that I wrote to Mr. Pitcher, I wrote to his employers on Friday, asking if the William Pitcher who perished in the Aveline hitel fire was my husband. Late Saturday I received a telegram stating that such was the case; that his remains had been buried Wednesday at Bellevue, Ohio.

Thinks Mistake Was Made.

"My husband, to the best of my knowledge, had no intimate women friends. He was devoted to me and his business alone. If it is true that Miss Ora Russell took charge of his body she must have mistaken the remains for those of some one else. From what I have been able to learn the victims of the fire when extricated from the ruins were burned almost beyond recognition.

"But what puzzles me,' continued Mrs. Pitcher, 'is the report that my husband's body was sent to Beelevue for burial. He had no relatives residing there and no close friends of whom he had told me. Then a telegram that I received from Fort Wayne friends last night mystifies me. It states that Mr. Pitcher's remains were sent to Oberlin, Ohio, for burial. This seems quite plausible for the reason that his two sisters and a brother, I believe, reside in that town. But why should they have taken charge of the funeral without notifying or consulting me?'

Sends for Particulars.

"Mrs. Pitcher last night wrote to the Fort Wayne authorities for full particulars concerning her husband's funeral. She asked particularly concerning the Miss Ora Russell mentioned in the telegram.

"Mr. Pitcher was a thirty-second degree Mason, carried heavy life and accident insurance and was reputed to be well to do.

"Mrs. Pitcher said that her husband seldom ever discussed his financial affairs with her, although he had frequently told her that he carried a large amount of life insurance. Mrs. Pitcher believes the policies to be in the safe deposit vaults of some bank. Last night she exhibited an accident insurance policy for $500 which her husband had given her during one of his recent visits home.

"Pitcher made his permanent home in this city until about twelve years ago, when he entered the commercial service of the Standard Oil company. He was regarded as one of the best salesmen in the employ of the corporation. He engaged with Bowser & Co. about one year ago.

"Mrs. Pitcher, who is a highly cultured woman, has no children."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Detectives who have been searching for a woman supposed to be Mrs. Belle Gunness, who came to Pittsburg Sunday on a train from Alliance, Ohio, according to the conductor, have located the woman. She is Mrs. Shirley Roff of McKeesport, Pa., an adjoining city.

William Montgomery, cashier of the Allegheny National bank of Pittsburg Pa., until last Thursday, when he was arrested upon complaint of National Bank Examiner William L. Folds, charged with the embezzlement of $469,000, was surrendered by his bondsmen Tuesday.

Seven mine workers were instantly killed and more than a dozen injured Tuesday afternoon in an explosion in the Mount Lookout colliery of the Temple Coal & Iron company at Wyoming, near Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Antonio Lanasa, a wealthy Baltimore fruit dealer, was sentenced Tuesday to ten years in jail following his conviction of the charge of conspiracy in the alleged Black Hand attempt to blow up the residence of John Di Giorgio. He was admitted to $10,000 bail on a motion for an appeal.

MICHIGAN IS ALL FOR TAFT

Republican Convention Instructs Delegates for the Secretary.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 13.—Michigan's delegation to the Republican national convention was yesterday afternoon instructed by the state Republican convention which met here to "cast" an undivided vote of the whole state in favor of the nomination of Secretary Taft."

The following are the delegates at large chosen by unanimous vote: E. D. Stair, Detroit; John W. Blodgett, Grand Rapids; Frank W. Gilchrist, Alpena, and James McNaughton of Calumet.

The alternates are: Charles B. Warren, Ann Arbor; Walter J. Hunsaker, Saginaw; Col. H. A. Framback, Cheyboygan, and John W. Pfeiffer, Edmore.

The presidential electors at large are: Capt. F. M. Alger, Detroit and George Clapperton, Grand Rapids.

The only contest of the day was in the election of a state chairman, George W. Cook of Flint unsuccessfully opposing Congressman G. H. Dilekema, who was re-elected to that office.

The Resolutions.

The resolutions presented by the committee and adopted by the convention "renew and reaffirm our allegiance to the time honored principles of the Republican party and congratulate the people of this state upon the fact that we have, during the last 12 years enjoyed a most unexampled prosperity as the result of the application of Republican principles and policies to the affairs of the government."

They continue: "We most earnestly and enthusiastically endorse the administration of that great Republican Theodore Roosevelt.

"We believe that the best interests of the people of the nation will be subserved by a continuation of the policies advocated and carried into effect by President Roosevelt and in view of the fact we hereby unqualifiedly endorse the candidacy of William H. Taft of Ohio for the presidency of the United States and instruct our delegates from the state of Michigan to cast an undivided vote of the whole state in favor of his nomination."

Taft Indorsed.

The Michigan congressional delegation is endorsed, and admiration expressed for their consistent and able support of the president in all important reforms he has advocated; the revised state constitution, prepared by the recent constitutional convention, is recommended for adoption, and the addition of two new members to the state central committee to be nominated by the Michigan Republican Editorial association to represent the state Republican press is provided for.

MAYOR SMITH'S GOOD-BYE.

St. Paul Veteran Retiring Executive Says Farewell to Council.

St, Paul, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)--May 11, 1853, a young man, 25 years old, arrived at St. Paul from Indiana to take the place of secretary to the territorial governor. Monday afternoon, after completing fifty-four years' residence in the city, he, as mayor and chairman of the conference committee, bade farewell to that body as it sat in the last session over which he will preside.

During the fifty-four years he has spent there, Robert A. Smith has held public office forty-one years and six months and will in three weeks step out of the mayor's chair which he has occupied almost continuously for fifteen and one-half years.

"This is the last time I will meet with you," said the mayor, with a suspicion of a catch in his voice. "My relations with this body have always been pleasant. I am sorry to part with you, but it is one of the inevitables."

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

L'Anse, Mich., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)---Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Dault, well known residents of L'Anse, yesterday observed the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. The event was celebrated by a mass in Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock and a reception at the opera house in the evening. Mr. Dault is 75 years of age and his venerable wife four years his junior. The couple were married in 1858 at Assinins by Rev. Father Jacker, the well known missionary.

COUNTING MONEY DANGEROUS.

Oshkosh Man Badly Burned During Act and Death Results.

Oshkosh, Wis., May 13.—While counting a roll of bills, John Nicholas Naumer of the town of Oshkosh was badly burned and the burns produced pneumonia and pleurisy which led to his death. He was 80 years of age.

The fatal accident was a peculiar one. Two weeks ago he retired to his room early in the evening, and, sitting on the edge of his bed, started to count a number of bills which he carried on his person. Unable to see the denomination of the bills in the twilight, he lighted a small lamp on the stand near the bed. He then felt the sensation of burning on his back and discovered his clothing was on fire. He tried to reach the door, but fell back upon the bed, the bedding taking fire.

Relatives broke into the room and rescued him, stripping the clothes from his body. It required quite a struggle to put the fire out. About $35 in bills were destroyed and about $70 was burned partially, but it will be redeemed by the treasury department.

PRESIDENTIAL PROSPECTS.

There is only one thing that could give the prospect for Republican success in the coming presidential contest a rosy hue of certainty, and that would be the nomination of President Roosevelt. That seems altogether improbable now, in spite of the fact that the growth of the Johnson sentiment has scared many Republican leaders into joining in the third term cry. The nomination of Taft is as certain as anything could be under the looming shadow of Roosevelt domination. Taft's opponents in his party said that his "boom" would stop short of the border states of Maryland and Kentucky, and that from that time onward his star would decline. They were wrong; both Kentucky and Maryland declared for him. He has nearly enough votes to nominate him now, and unless something unexpected happens his will be the only name heard above the din at the Chicago convention.

With Taft nominated as the head of the ticket, what of the prospects then?

Again much depends upon the nomination made by the Democratic party. While Mr. Bryan has a very large and very loyal following, it should be remembered that except in Minnesota the Hearst Independence party will draw from his staunchest supporters to an extent now unknown. The Minnesota politicians who have been most vociferous in their support of Mr. Bryan were all Hearst men four years ago, and Hearst will have a ticket in the field this year. In spite of this defection, Mr. Bryan would command nearly the full strength of his party, and would be a dangerous opponent to Taft.

But if Governor Johnson of Minnesota were to be nominated as the Democratic candidate, The Herald firmly believes that he would be elected, and that his victory over Mr. Taft would be comparatively easy. He would poll the full strength of his party except perhaps the Hearst men, who are likely to desert anyway, and he would draw thousands of votes everywhere from men who have hitherto been Republicans, but who are weary and ashamed of the relationships between the Republican leaders and the "interests," and who have small faith in the virtues of tariff revision conducted by these leaders. His marvelous powers of attraction, which have been evident not only in his contests in Minnesota but at every step of the way he has taken in his several journeys outside of this state, would draw to him a following all over the country that would be strong enough to turn doubtful states and to change some Republican states into doubtful ones.

Mr. Taft, on the other hand, goes into the campaign without any personal following whatever. His nomination will come largely from the influence of President Roosevelt and federal officeholders. He will meet with dangerous conditions in several doubtful states because of the Brownsville case and its effect upon the colored vote; he will find dangerous conditions in other doubtful states because of the opposition of labor interests; and all over the country he will meet with dangerous conditions growing out of the popular resentment of the manner in which the Republican majority in congress has played into the hands of the "interests" in defiance of popular indignation and protest.

CLEANING DAY SATURDAY.

While any pleasant day in spring time is a good time to get your yard cleaned up, Saturday will be the official cleaning day for Duluth, Mayor Haven having announced it as such in The Herald last night, and it is to be hoped that everybody who has not already attended to this important civic duty will get to work on that day.

Mayor Haven's suggestion that the children should be interested in this work is a good one. As he says, the children of today are the citizens of tomorrow, and the character of their citizenship depends in a large measure upon their training of today. If in their youth they are taught the duties they owe to their country, their state and their community, when they are grown they will surely be patriotic and public-spirited citizens.

The plan of having a fixed day for municipal housecleaning has spread throughout the country, and it has done much good. While nobody need wait until the official day, the practice of getting together and making something of an occasion out of it does much to spread a proper civic spirit.

The foundation of everything that makes for the upbuilding of a fine city is cleanliness. Without it there can be no beauty, no sightliness, no health. Duluth has been endowed with all these advantages by nature, in a bountiful measure, but to realize them in their fullness the virtue of cleanliness must be practiced assiduously by the city and its citizens.

A MOB IS A MOB, EVERYWHERE.

It was regarded as peculiarly American, and Americans were accordingly ashamed of it, when the curiosity of a crowd seeking to get a good view of Mrs. Longworth, the president's daughter, on her first visit to Columbus after her marriage to the Ohio congressman, imperilled the lives and limbs of many. The occasion was the unveiling of the McKinley memorial, and so great was the crush resulting from the anxiety of the mob to catch a glimpse of the president's daughter that it was necessary to adjourn the exercises to another place and another hour. Necessarily, the conduct of the crowd involved a certain amount of rudeness of which the nation was properly ashamed, particularly as it was charged that the reckless pursuit of curiosity there displayed was characteristic of American crowds when notability is on view.

However, great as was the need of shame, the charge that such actions are peculiar to American crowds is a libel, wholly without foundation. A mob is a mob, everywhere; no less in the respectable purlieus of Columbus than in the nobility-loving streets of London or in the savage jungles of Africa; a little more polish here and a little more naked savagery there, perhaps, but nowhere is a crowd, turned into a mob, a pleasant thing to contemplate.

If proof were needed, it was furnished the other day in Buda-Pesth, and an American girl was the center of attraction. There was a circus, and everybody was there, including Count Scz—Schsc—Shcsxcsz—oh, you know, the count that Miss Vanderbilt married—and the Countess Ditto, who used to be Miss Vanderbilt. Everybody wanted to see the gold-trimmed American girl which the Hungarian count had brought back in triumph from the auriferous shores of the land of money.

All interest in the circus was lost. The elephants, the giraffes, the only hippopotamus in captivity, the two-headed dwarf, the peanuts, the pink lemonade, the sacred cow, the merry clowns and the sprightly acrobats—all paled into insignificance. The people wanted to see the American countess, and to observe whether her dress was of beaten gold and her shoes spangled with diamonds and rubies. So they crowded into the reserved seat section, stepping on each other's toes, climbing upon each other's shoulders, thrusting their elbows into each other's ribs. Finally two Hungarians, angered by their sufferings in the jam, came together and tried to take revenge upon each other. They drew knives and began to fight, and they continued until both were so badly wounded they had to be hurried to the hospital. The countess, horrified at this exhibition of Hungarian hospitality, was scurried back to the hotel, while the count angrily threatened to deprive Buda-Pesth of the favor of his countenance forevermore.

So the ardent desire to witness notability, which makes crowds forget the duties of politeness to each other, is not peculiar to America, and, beyond this, there is one marked point of advantage in favor of the American crowds: they do not get angry about it, but retain their good nature under circumstances that must try it to the uttermost point of resistance.

THE CITIZENS' STAFF.

Membership in the citizens' staff which has been formed to take from the shoulders of the veterans of the Civil war some of the burden attending the proper celebration of Memorial day is something every citizen should be proud of accepting.

The pathetic thinning of the ranks of the legion of veterans that has come about, and the waning strength of these men who in their youth offered their lives and energies to their country, makes it necessary that others should begin to take up the work of preparing the Memorial day observances. The doing of this work, in honor of the soldiers who are living as well as of the soldiers who are dead, should be a pleasure to every patriotic citizen.

The least that any man can do is to become a member of the staff, even if he finds it impossible to take an active part in the work. Membership involves payment of a nominal due of $1 per year, and this dollar goes to swell the fund required to pay the expenses of the celebration. Thus every membership helps, and there should be enough members of the staff so that it would not be necessary to call upon the veterans themselves to pay a single penny of the expense. Those members who take an active part in the arrangements for the exercises do still better, but their work is made possible by a large membership that will pay the slight dues called for.

The time has come when the citizenship of the land, the younger generation that has come up since the war time, should assume the full burden of work and expense connected with the observance of Memorial day. The veterans have shouldered this burden long enough, and henceforth they should be the honored guests of the citizens' staff which has been formed to do the work they have done alone so long.

THE PASSING OF THE PISTOL.

Here's a how-de-do to Texas, and congratulations upon its recovery from the pistol-toting and pistol-using stage. Many people, we fear, believe that Texas still totes its "gun" in plain view, and uses it where another state would use a slap on the wrist or an irritated "Now, please behave!"

But Texas has repudiated that reputation, and is doing its best to live it down. It would have you revise your ideas, if you think it is a state where men fight at the drop of the hat, and where shooting is as commonplace an incident upon a city's streets as the passage of the waterwagon on a dusty day is in other states. It would have you take notice that it has a law against carrying concealed weapons, and that, furthermore, it is enforced.

The other day at San Antonio a man was found guilty of carrying a revolver, and the court sentenced him to pay a fine of $200, and to serve a term of hard labor on the country roads. The circumstances under which his arrest and conviction occurred have not come this far north, but perhaps they were unusual. If they were not, Texas is most assuredly making a determined effort to enforce its rule against "pistol-toting" that other states without its reputation would do well to emulate.

Texas is to be commended for its desire to live down the pistol-carrying days. They have passed there, as anybody who has visited the state in recent years knows, and the fact that the state's reputation for pistol-using has lagged behind the passing of the practice itself is doubtless very irritating to loyal Texans; and by the way there isn't a state in the Union with a population more loyal to the commonwealth than Texas. Judging from newspapers like the Houston Post, which is a fair representative of the Texas press, every Texan must be a booster for Texas and his home town.

The old days of pistol-carrying were picturesque days, but they belong now between the covers of novels and histories. Then, every man was a law unto himself, and the only semblance of order was the occasional vigilance committee, which dealt out a kind of rough justice marked more by the certainty of its results than by the deliberation of its processes. Law has come to Texas and it has come to stay, as the San Antonio man who was caught lugging around a gun found out to his bitter cost. The frontier has vanished, with its "bad men," its vigilance committees and its "red liquor." Texas, where that frontier lingered as long as anywhere, is not only governed by law and order quite as much as Massachusetts, but its red liquor is giving away before the steadily advancing march of prohibition, which has conquered about half its counties and threatens to engulf the whole state.

There will be no regret for the loss of the "wild and woolly" days of the "bad man from Bitter creek" and his deadly pistol. The romance of those days lives in the pages of fiction, where there is more of it than there ever was in real life, and much as we may criticize civilization, it is a lot better than the wild, free violence of the vanished frontier.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Does life insurance promote suicide?

This was one of the questions asked by A. G. Metcalf at the Lenox hotel last evening. The subject came under discussion by reason of the fact that only recently a man prominent in New York financial circles committed suicide, after providing for his family to the extent of taking a $100,000 life insurance policy.

"Some years, or a good many years ago, in fact," explained Mr. Metcalf, "one of the large New York companies inaugurated what was known as the incontestable policy. This policy paid its benefits to the family of the deceased, regardless of what means he had come to his end."

Mr. Metcalf stated that the inauguration of this policy was the means of increasing the business of the company to a tremendous degree. It was often suggested that this sort of policy was an encouragement to suicide, but the officials of the company, who kept tabulated records of all cases of suicide, claimed that such was not the case.

Now, however, according to Mr. Metcalf, who is an insurance man, a change of sentiment upon this sort of policy has taken place. This change of sentiment was not caused so much by the suicide of the man who had taken out the large policy so much as it has been caused by a number of other cases of suicides, which it is pointed out are more frequent during times of financial distress.

The number of persons who have ended their lives and left a substantial legacy to their heirs, through the medium of the incontestable policy has led the officials of the company to lean more toward the view that after all the conditions of the policy may have been the last consideration that led some unfortunate person into the desperate act of taking his life.

The frequency of suicides has led the officials of the company to pass a rule declaring that no policy for more than $100,000 will be issued under the conditions named in the incontestable policies. This is not exactly an admission that these policies encourage suicide, explains Mr. Metcalf. The officials believe that more than that amount would prove a temptation that might influence some hard pressed financier—also, doubtless, the officials of the company are not overlooking their own risks in the matter.

George Du Freine, at the St. Louis, was telling of the failure to successfully carry out the project of establishing a cat farm at Burdett, Kan.

A cat fancier was full of enthusiasm for the idea, so he purchased some land at Burdett and imported a number of Angoras, some grinning Chesshires and many other kinds of cats that natural history devotes a chapter or more to.

Sunlight was bright and strong at Burdett, and the cats began to thrive. The colony increased rapidly and its fame spread. Old maids used to come from as far as Kansas City and Topeka, to select their fireside companions. The place began to thrive. So joyous were the lives of the feline inhabitants of the farm that the air was loud with the continual purr of contentment, which sounded like the hum of some giant dynamo.

Naughty cats sometimes quarreled among themselves, but the hiss and spit of cat anger was as scarce as an offering of prayer at a meeting of trust directors. No foe entered the precincts of the cat farm.

Farmers used to carry milk for the morning's breakfast of the tabbies, but they always heeded the instructions of the proprietor to leave the canines at home.

Then Len Robinson, over about three sections, gave a rabbit bee. That is, he invited all the neighbors and, more important still, their dogs, over to his place to drive all the rabbits off that section of the country. Glad of a day of fun, about all the neighbors in that section of the country responded to the call that Len sent out.

The direction taken by the fleeing bunnies led over past the cat farm. Do you suppose a dog would chase a rabbit he stood little chance of catching, when there was a multitude of nice cats around? Well, anyway, these dogs didn't.

They just left the trail of the long-eared quarry and started at the cats that lay sunning themselves in the cat studios.

A delegation of old maids from K. C., Mo., was on hand that day, and they screamed with horror and added to the general din as they saw the cats making out over the treeless prairie, closely pursued by the dogs. How many miles those cats ran in pursuit of a tree will never be known. Some were later found twenty miles away.

The neighbors felt sorry for the cat professor and organized a hunting expedition to round up the cats. Some of them were recovered, but they could never be persuaded to stay on the farm. The bark of a dog would instantly cause a stampede. So, after unsuccessfully trying to combat the fear among his felines, the cat fancier gave it up as a bad job.

At least that is the tale Mr. Du Freine tells.

THE WEATHER.

The clouds broke yesterday afternoon and the rain ceased, but the northeast wind kept going, and it brought bitter blasts of cold from the lake. This morning it was clear, but the wind was still fresh and cold. The weather man says it will be partly cloudy tonight and tomorrow with possibly more showers, and that the northeast wind will continue. Last night's lowest temperature was 34 degs., close to the freezing point, and yesterday's highest was 41 degs.

A year ago today there was a northeaster of wind and rain, during which the first thunderstorm of the season was staged.

The sun rose this morning at 4:33 and sets tonight at 7:34, making 15 hours and 1 minute of sunlight.

Says Mr. Richardson of conditions: "An area of low pressure which moved from Utah to Kansas during the past twenty-four hours has caused rains throughout the West and Northwest, the lake region and Central valleys, and, in connection with an area of high pressure in the lake region, is causing cool weather and strong northeasterly winds in the latter districts. The barometer is also high over South Atlantic states and low over British Columbia. Freezing temperatures prevailed this morning in portions of Wyoming, Nevada and Utah. Indications favor partly cloudy, windy and cool weather in this locality tonight and Thursday with possibly showers."

"JOHNSON OF MINNESOTA."

Detroit Journal: A doting biographer declares that "Governor Johnson might have been a major league baseball player." He may have to content himself with the presidency of the United States.

Milwaukee Sentinel: No, Governor Johnson's candidacy is not alarming Mr. Bryan. It is Mr. Taft who is apprehensive about it.

Anoka Union: The very ones who a few weeks ago were so cock sure that no other name than Bryan's would be mentioned at the Denver convention are now advocating the abolishing of the time honored custom which requires a two-thirds vote to nominate. This is a concession on their part that Bryan may not be able to muster the necessary two-thirds, but might win on a majority vote.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: The Johnson knockers got their's good and plenty Wednesday, and it served them right. A bunch of sore-heads, with money to spend, trying to discredit a popular favorite son is not a very handsome spectacle, even if it is a Democratic family row, and Minnesota is heartily ashamed of the "welchers."

Sandstone Courier: The Johnson boom has grown to such proportions that the big Republicans are beginning to set up and take notice. They consider that Johnson is the candidate who will make the best race and would like to see Bryan get the nomination.

Chicago Evening Journal: Governor Johnson has carried Minnesota against Bryan, which indicates that he might carry it against Taft. This is worth thinking about.

Moose Lake Star-Gazette: Governor Johnson may not get the Democratic nomination for president, but the Democratic primaries in Minnesota yesterday showed that the great majority of Democrats in his own state believe that he ought to have it.

Ogilvie Sentinel: Governor Johnson captured his home state delegation to the Denver convention. This is a just tribute to the governor and an honor well-merited—notwithstanding he may not knock out Bryan on the home stretch.

Chicago Evening Journal: Governor Johnson's triumph in Minnesota is all the more gratifying because Mr. Bryan's friends went up there and announced that they were going to capture the state.

St. Cloud Times: The Democrats of Minnesota have spoken, and they have sat down hard upon the attempt of a few radical and impractical Democrats of the Mamalian-Hudson-Buck-Larrabee-Bennett stamp to humiliate Minnesota's governor in his own state. All of these "leaders" fell outside the breastworks. Minneapolis goes 3 to 1 for Johnson, Duluth (Hudson's home) was swept by the governor's friends. In Buck's home (Winona) every precinct went Johnson. In fact, the state is as it should be—practically solid for "Minnesota's candidate for president."

Pine River Sentinel: The Johnson scare which has been thrown into the G. O. P. by the growth in strength Minnesota's governor is gaining for the Democratic nomination for the presidency is beginning to make a lot of level-headed Republicans think the Chicago convention will be stampeded for Teddy. Worse things could happen at this stage of the game.

Hint for Bryan.

Detroit Free Press: If Minnesota is infested with smallpox, as the Canadian authorities declare, Bryan might have Johnson quarantined.

Is It Mutual?

New York Mail: Bernard Shaw is being asked whether he is willing to stand for parliament. He is; and parliament, we hope, will reciprocate.

LAUGHING LINES.

Houston Post: "People's habits change after marriage, don't you think they do, John?"

"Yes; before we were married you used to sit by my side for hours saying nothing."

Baltimore American: Ward Politician—Why did you refuse to hold consultations with that contractor as you used to do, in his library?

Go-Between—Good heavens, man! That library is octagon-shaped and has a bookcase on every side.

Baltimore American: Beauty Doctor—Madam, let me give you a wrinkle.

Customer—Excuse me, doctor, but I came to you to get rid of those I have.

Washington Star: "Why wouldn't the speaker let me deliver my speech in congress?" asked the ambitious orator.

"I don't know," answered the cruel colleague. "Maybe he belongs to the Society for the Prevention of Useless Noises."

Chicago Tribune: Mrs. Pneuritch—Do you mean to say you would allow your daughter to marry a conductor?

Mrs. Higgins—Why not, madam? He is a musical conductor.

Mrs. Pneuritch—Oh!

Philadelphia Ledger: "Ever get shocked by talking over a telephone wire during a storm?"

"Only once. I called my wife up while she was housecleaning to say that I'd bring a friend to dinner."

Houston Post: "She broke her engagement to him when his father cleaned up $1,000,000 in Wall street."

"Prejudiced against wealth, eh?"

"Not very; she broke her engagement to him and married his father."

Washington Star: "Father," said little Rollo, "what is an epigram?"

"As a rule, my son, an epigram is an old quotation with the phraseology changed sufficiently to avoid the charge of plagiarism."

Chicago Tribune: "Who was James Boswell?" asked the teacher of the class in English literature.

"He was Dr. Samuel Johnson's press agent," answered the young man with the bad eye.

What Johnson Would Mean.

Detroit Evening News: While Governor Johnson's election to the presidency this year may not be probable or possible, his nomination by the Democrats might—nay, we feel almost certain would—result in the restoration of that party to the status of a competent and sane opposition, which is as necessary in a representative form of government as a majority party with those qualities.

In England, since Disraeli's time, the minority party in the commons has been called his majesty's opposition, as a recognition of its usefulness in a constitutional regime. Without it government would degenerate to oligarchy, whatever its forms remained. The election of Bryan, who is the only alternative for Democracy, is believed by a great section of the Democracy to be absolutely impossible, but that would not be the worst result of his third candidacy. It would convince the whole country that it was vain to look to the Democracy to supply to our government the criticism of a respectable and stable minority in the legislative branch of the government, and that party would simply dissolve into political chaos.

The stigmata of Bourbonism which have so long clung to the party would be fixed forever, and its case would be as hopeless as that of the royal family from which the term was derived.

BREAD LINE IS NO MORE

Free Breakfasts Are No Longer Served at Bethel.

Received Much Praise and Much Abuse During Winter.

The Bethel's famous "bread line" is a thing of the past; a lingering memory of a hard winter in Duluth.

No more free breakfasts will be served except on Sunday, when one will be held to attract the men to the gospel services which are held then.

But the regular old free breakfast, every morning at 6:30 if you have a woodyard ticket, has been abolished, for the reason that the Bethel authorities do not think there is any further need for it.

The bread line has been dwindling all spring, and only twenty-six of the faithful sat down to the last spread. This was a mere handful, when it is recalled that during the winter, the enrollment at a single meal passed the 300 mark.

When they had finished their sandwiches and coffee, the twenty-six sadly filed out, in search of work, and said good-by to an institution which probably received more praise and more abuse in a shorter time than anything ever attempted in Duluth before.

During the winter hungry men huddled into the dingy rooms of the Bethel, to sleep on the floor and be therefore entitled to the sandwiches and coffee which came gratis in the morning. Most of the men were good workers, out of jobs and out of money. Some of them were several chips shy as to clothing.

The Bethel undertook to house these homeless bankrupts at night, to feed them in the morning, and to find work for them during the day. Many jobs were secured. It was stated at the Bethel today that something like 637 positions had been secured for the bread liners during the past four months.

As the winter wore on, the bread line lengthened to alarming proportions. A suspicion that in the long line were a number of undeserving persons, hoboes drawn to the Bethel by the prospects of free meals, led to the introduction of a plan which provided that so much work would have to go with every breakfast.

So the famous woodyard crew was set to work. All the bread liners who would eat the Bethel rolls and coffee in the morning had to work in the woodyard for an hour, earning a breakfast ticket. This had the desired effect of weeding out a number of chairwarmers and lonfers.

Time and circumstances demonstrated finally, however, that most of the bread liners were deserving of all the help they got, at a time when jobs were mighty scarce and the days were chilly. Most of them have by this time said good-by to the Bethel and are earning dollars to pay for their own breakfasts somewhere.

WHERE TO GO TONIGHT.

LYCEUM—"Brewster's Millions."

"BREWSTER'S MILLIONS."

Refreshing Comedy Presented at Lyceum by a Capable Company.

Melodrama, comedy, farce—whatever it is, "Brewster's Millions" certainly cannot be criticised for being slow or uninteresting. The situations are, of course, highly improbable, but there is something about the plot that touches the sense of humor, and young "Monty" Brewster's stage fight to spend a million in a year holds the tense interest of the spectators, just as the story did its readers.

At times the play tinges on the melodramatic, especially in the very exciting yacht scene, in the third act; which rivals the famous football scene from "The College Widow," and the race in "Checkers," as a thriller.

For an evening of thorough enjoyment, punctuated with numerous laughs, Duluth people are safe in taking a chance on "Brewster's Millions." Anyone searching for a moral to it will be disappointed. There isn't any, but it is clean, wholesome play, and one that anybody should be able to enjoy.

Piquant, attractive and possessing some charming mannerisms, Miss June Mathis makes a very attractive Peggy, and is admirably adapted to the role.

Robert Ober has the title role of Montgomery Brewster. The part is what is known as a "fat" one and the situations are laugh-producing in themselves, requiring no great ability on the part of the actor to make them go. Mr. Ober fills the role very acceptably, however, and gains the sympathy of the audience for young "Monty" from the start.

James H. Montgomery as Archibald Vanderpool, John Junior as Joseph MacCloud, James W. Horne as Frank Bragdon, Edmund Mortimer as Horace Pettingill and George Crosette as Subway Smith, the "Little Sons of the Rich," look and act like natural, everyday young men, as they were supposed to be, and their efforts to save some shreds of the fortune which "Monty" was so desperately trying to dissipate, furnish some of the comedy of the play. The parts of "Mrs. Dan," Barbara Drew and Janice Armstrong are acceptably filled by Miss Nettie Black, Miss Ada May Talbot and Miss Olive North.

The play will be repeated this afternoon and this evening.

ATTRACTS ATTENTION.

Something New in Vaudeville Line Presented at the Bijou.

"Baggars," the little sketch by Ann Hamilton, which is being presented at the Bijou this week, is attracting quite widespread comment in the city, and is attracting large crowds to that theater at every performance.

It is a little single act tragedy in which Ann Hamilton, as Charita, a Mexican street singer, well assisted by Percy Herbert, a wealthy Mexican, and James Hughes, as Phillipe, Charita's father, appear.

The scene of the playlet is laid in Mexico. Don Martiez, the wealthy Mexican, who has killed Alphonso, Charita's real lover, wishes to marry her against her will. The play ends in a very well acted and tragic scene, in which Charita dies by the dager of her rejected lover. Miss Hamlinton's portrayal of death is very vivid and startlingly realistic.

T. W. Eckert, in a musical act with Miss Emma Berg, is also making a big hit by his clever imitations of stringed instruments on the piano.

Clay Clement.

Clay Clement's program for the Duluth engagement is as follows: Thursday and Friday, "The New Dominion;" Saturday matinee, "Hamlet;" Saturday night, "The Bells."

TAMMANY TO MOVE.

East Fourteenth Street Home No Longer Central Enough.

New York, May 13.—Tammany is to leave its historic home on East Fourteenth street and move uptown.

It is expected that it will take at least a year to erect a building suitable to the needs of Tammany society and of Tammany Hall. It is the present intention of the sachems to erect a large modern hall, which can be hired out for public meetings and social gatherings.

Those advocating the change insist that it will be very profitable to Tammany. There has been recently a great demand for the property on which Tammany hall, Pastor's theater and the Academy of Music stand as sites for modern buildings. If Tammany moves, Pastor's theater, owned by the society, would have to go also, and it is regarded as certain that the entire block frontage on East Fourteenth street will be purchased and modern buildings erected upon it.

The main inducement to the change is that Tammany is no longer centrally located. A site not lower than Thirty-fifth street, and perhaps even north of Forty-second street, is desired.

WOULD SWEEP COUNTRY.

Charles A. Marshall Booms Governor Johnson in New York.

The New York Telegraph says: C. A. Marshall, of Duluth, Minn., proprietor of Theatres in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan, is in New York for a few days. He says the business in his territory has dropped a little, but with good crops and sane policies it will recover speedily. Mr. Marshall comes from the same state as Governor John A. Johnson and has this to say of the latter:

Governor John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, should be nominated at Denver by acclamation. He would sweep the country. He is the man of the hour, having come up through the ranks, and is clear-minded, honest, able and willing to give his life to the service of his country. He is beloved by all classes and trusted by labor and capital alike. He is the Abraham Lincoln of the present day to bring emancipation to the white people. He will restore conditions in the United States to the normal. Let Democracy have a chance! No man or party is so great that a successor cannot be found in our great country."

DEATH RATHER THAN ONE LEG

Despondent Over Loss of Limb, Calumet Man Hangs Himself.

Calumet, Mich., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Rather than go through life with only one leg, Victor Vachan, a resident of the Florida location, preferred self-destruction and he accordingly hanged himself with a clothesline fastened to a ladder leading from his bedroom to the garret of his home. About a year ago Vachan contracted a running wound on one leg that refused to yield to treatment, and about five weeks ago the leg was amputated above the knee. The loss of his limb preyed on Vachan's mind and he became despondent. Yesterday afternoon he sent his wife and five small children into the garden saying he would join them soon. His failure to come aroused Mrs. Vachan's suspicion and hurrying to the house she found him suspended by the neck and in death throes. He lingered several hours, but died without regaining consciousness. Vachan was about 35. Coroner Fisher called in a jury that decided it was a case of suicide.

TWO SALOONS BURNED AT EAST GRAND FORKS.

East Grand Forks, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local fire department, assisted by that of Grand Forks, N. D., fought a stubborn fire here yesterday afternoon that for a time threatened to damage much property. The saloons of Charles S. Reed and Longtime & Karnes were gutted and the building in which they are located damaged about $2 000. The Reed saloon was damaged about $6,000 and the other about $4,000, both being practically total losses.

TWO INCENDIARY FIRES AROUSE FLAXTON, N. D.

Flaxton, N. D., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—This town is excited over two recent fires, both evidently the work of firebugs. The Stevens hotel was discovered on fire late at night by the night clerk, who gave the alarm in time to arouse several guests who were asleep and to notify the department which soon extinguished the flames. One guest was rendered unconscious by smoke. Kerosene had been used to saturate the walls of the building and a match applied. Later the same day a fire was discovered in the Pioneer building under suspicious circumstances and the proprietor, Alfred Gordon, has been arrested on a charge of arson. Mayor Nestler has called a mass meeting to devise some way to run to earth the criminals responsible for the fire in the Stevens hotel that might have sacrificed several lives.

PUGILIST SUFFERS CONCUSSION OF BRAIN.

Peoria, Ill., May 13.—Kid Farmer, who was knocked out by Jack Morgan of Indianapolis last night, did not recover promptly and after half an hour's work by three physicians he was removed to a hospital, where he lies in a semi-conscious condition. Examination showed the man to be suffering from concussion of the brain with slight chances for recovery. Morgan and his seconds, Charles Barthon, the promoter, and Referee Ryan, were arrested pending the outcome of the injuries.

SULLIVAN RESTORED.

THE BEARS AS ASSETS

Creditors Can Levy on $100 Worth of Cubs.

White City's Liabilities Will Greatly Exceed the Assets.

Forty-three creditors of the Duluth Amusement company, owners of the White City, will do some whistling for their money, according to the schedule of assets and liabilities filed with the clerk of the district court this morning. The claims aggregate $21,234.05 and the assets of the company consist of equipment subject to lien and estimated to be worth $6,100.

The leases of the ground on which the amusement company held unprofitable sway have been cancelled, and the buildings, fences, stands and other equipment, exclusive of the Ferris wheel, are worth but $5,000 with an alleged lien on them. There is $1,950 unpaid on the Ferris wheel and the amount it is worth to the company, $1,000, is also subject to lien. The four little bears, the delight of the children, are estimated to be worth $100.

The creditors are nearly all Duluth business houses. A loan of $8,000 from the City National bank is the heaviest claim, and Carpenter, Glass & Co., claim $2,635.11 for materials. The Plaaten orchestra has $1,728 coming and the Burgess Electric company has a lien on the buildings to satisfy a claim for labor and materials.

E. P. Towne, to whom the property was assigned for disposition and satisfaction of claims, filed his bond with the court this morning.

nor John A. Johnson arrived in Washington yesterday, he was immediately besieged by Democratic members of congress and other public men anxious to discuss the presidential situation with him, while a score of newspaper correspondents were on hand to secure his views. The train on which he arrived also carried Vice President Fairbanks and Mr. Bryan, but none of them knew that the other two were to be his traveling companions.

Breakfast With Bryan.

"We had not been on the train long before we were informed that Mr. Bryan was a passenger," said Governor Johnson, "and of course we were not long in meeting.

"We had a very delightful visit, and after a while Mr. Fairbanks joined us. In the evening Mrs. Johnson and I were guests o fthe vice president for dinner with Governor Buchtel of Colorado. In the morning Mrs. Johnson and I ate breakfast with Mr. Bryan."

"Did you and Mr. Bryan talk any politics?" the governor was asked.

"Very little, and that quite by accident. Somebody laid a morning paper on our breakfast table. On the first page was an interview with me and one with Mr. Bryan, under Chicago date lines. Both of them were largely imaginative, which fact we quickly confided to each other. Then Mr. Bryan remarked something to the effect that he was glad to have me for a companion in the matter of newspaper misrepresentation. He said he had been subjected to it for a long time, and supposed that I, too, would have my full share of it. This was about the extent of politics that we talked. We had nothing to say about the presidential situation in the Democratic party."

Bryan Did the Talking.

"Well, if you didn't talk politics, what did you talk?"

"We talked about Mr. Bryan's trip around the world, and he told us many delightful things regarding it. We talked about the work of the governors' conference at the White House, and about things which in our judgment, were most needed for the American people.

"Mr. Bryan was very entertaining, and I hope he enjoyed the visit as much as Mrs. Johnson and I did.

"I shall probably be here until about Saturday, when I hope to start for home. Mrs. Johnson will visit friends here and will spend one day at Annapolis and one at Mount Vernon."

"Are you to deliver an address in Virginia on the twentieth?" he was asked.

"I don't know. I had declined the invitation, but discover that, through my managers, I am about half committed to the Virginia address. If the situation should seem to demand, I shall deliver it, but I really expect to be on the way back home on Saturday."

The Political Outlook.

Asked his opinion regarding the political outlook, Governor Johnson said:

"There seems to be a split in the Republican party, which, no doubt, will injure it considerably. Also the Republican party will be called upon to explain several vital questions, such as the incipient financial panic which swept the country last fall. All this taken into consideration, I am convinced that the Democratic party has an excellent chance of success in the approaching campaign."

"Would you support Mr. Bryan if he is nominated?" Governor Johnson was asked.

"To be sure," he replied vigorously. "Why not? If the Democratic party feels that Mr. Bryan is the man most suited for the presidency, I shall gladly aid him in his campaign. I will support Mr. Bryan, or any other Democrat who is nominated, for I want to see the Democrats carry the country.

"If the people believe that I can get enough votes for election, I will gladly enter the fight and do all in my power for the success of the party. I am relying principally upon the masses for a decision.

"Will Mr. Bryan support me if I am nominated? I think Mr. Bryan could better answer that question. But I can see no reason why he should not. Like myself, he is desirous of the party's success, and I believe that he will support any man selected by the party."

A True Democratic Platform.

H. B. Martin, national secretary of the American Anti-Trust league, came out yesterday for Johnson as the Democratic candidate for the presidency. He said:

"Of all the political speeches delivered in America in recent years not one will rank higher for statesmanship than that of Governor Johnson on "The Landmarks of American Liberty" at Houghton, Mich.

"Here, in compact and forceful form, is a true Democratic platform of principles announced by a real Democratic candidate whereon the party can unite and sweep the country at the coming election.

"Should the party be wise enough at Denver to not only adopt that platform, but also to nominate the author for president, the election of a Democratic president and house next November would be well assured, and the doom of those two great obstacles to liberty and progress—personally centralized federal power and personally centralized predatory wealth—would be certain."

Governor Johnson is not expecting that he will have anything to say at the White House conference. The official program has been so changed that none of the governors is down for any formal talk.

"Generally debilitated for years. Had sick headaches, lacked ambition, was worn-out and all run down. Burdock Blood Bitters made me a well woman."—Mrs. Charles Freitoy, Moosup, Conn.

fore the committee on credentials is premature.

"We don't know what we will do," said Frank Larrabee of Minneapolis, one of those in the conference. "Possibly by tonight we will have settled on something, but thec hances are that we will not announce it even if we have."

When asked if Mr. Bryan had counseled conservatism on the part of his followers, in a letter to Mr. Hudson, Mr. Larrabee said:

"No such letter has been read before this meeting of ours."

The arrangements for the convention are still in large measure indefinite. The chairman has not yet been determined on, and probably will not be named until late tonight or to tomorrow morning, just before the opening of the convention. Martin O'Brien of Crookston has been mentioned for the place, but after his arrival today he said that he did not care for the place, but he will take it if he can be of any service in so doing. It is possible that the honor may be given to some man in the northeastern part of the state, for the purpose of htaling some small friction that has arisen in that quarter of the state.

Aubury is to confer, it is said, with President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Interior Garfield.

A MEETING IS CALLED

A Playground Association Will be Organized Next Saturday.

The First Experimental Work Will be Started Immediately.

A Duluth playground association will be organized next Monday morning. Mayor Haven has called a meeting for 10 o'clock in the city council chambers. About twenty-five leading citizens, who have expressed an interest in the movement, have been invitd to be present and participate in the proceedings. It will be a mass meeting in no sense of the word. Only those who are likely to take an active interest have been invited to this first meeting, for it is believed much better results can be attained that way.

The association will be formed along lines very similar to organizations of the kind in other parts of the country. A full set of officers will be elected and a constitution will be drawn up. The work of starting the movement and carrying it on will be gotten down to a fine system and everything possible looking to the promotion of the movement will be done. While the city will have general charge of the playgrounds proposed, they will be under the supervision of the playground association.

It is not the intention of people behind the movement to start in on a big scale. The work to begin with will be largely experimental. Probably only one or two of these outdoor amusement places will be established to commence with, and after the success of these has been proven others will be started in different parts of the city. It is expected that there will be one or two directors immediately in charge of each playground with one general head over them all. It is likely that the physical director of the Y. M. C. A. will be selected to have general supervision over all the directors. It is believed he will have time to take care of this work in addition to his regular duties at the Y. M. C. A.

People of Duluth have taken a keen interest in the playground movement, and there seems to be no doubt that the plans of the mayor and others in regard to them will work out successfully. There will be no great expense attached to proceedings this year, for it is the intention to secure possible sites by lease, or by mere payment of taxes this year. After the success of the project has been proven beyond a doubt it is expected the playgrounds will be purchased outright.

FIRE AT THE DYE WORKS

Capt. Dunbar and Fireman McDonald Burned About Faces.

Fire Team Crashes Into Show Case on Superior Street.

Capt. James Dunbar of Truck No. 1, and Fireman Angus McDonald of Company No. 1, were burned about the face and hands in a fire at the Zenith City Dye works, 232 East Superior street, shortly before 9 o'clock this morning. Neither was injured seriously. Damage to machinery and building will not exceed $1,200.

The main building did not catch fire at all. The flames were confined to a two-story frame shack in the rear, where machinery for carrying on the work of the main plant had been installed. The building itself was damaged to the extent of about $150 or $200. Probably the total will not amount to that much. Machinery was damaged to the exent of about $1,000.

In responding to the alarm, engine No. 1, coming on the run down First avenue west, was unable to make a quick turn into Superior street, and the horses were not brought to a standstill until on the sidewalk in front of Giddings store. A show cas in front, and the glass doors, were broken. A number of shoppers and the clerks near the door were badly scared, and one woman just escaped being run down by the team.

The blaze is said to have been caused by friction in the machinery, located on the second floor. Cans of gasoline stored there became ignited, and a stream of the blazing oil, penetrating to the lower floor, set off more gasoline. The flames, springing from the gasoline, leaped from the doors and windows so quickly that Dunbar and McDonald did not have time to escape them entirely. Some of the other firemen were slightly burned. After sticking to his post an hour, and seeing that the fire was under control, Capt. Dunbar went to the hospital and had his wounds dressed.

The fire was under control before the building was destroyed. The interior was badly burned, but the frame and roof of the structure is still standing. The machinery was insured, but the building was not considered worth insuring.

F. L. Rittel is proprietor of the Zenith City works.

LEAVE FOR CONVENTION

A Solid Johnson Delegation Goes From St. Louis County.

Bryan Enthusiasts Will Hold a Pre-Convention Conference.

A joyous Johnson crowd left for St. Paul this afternoon over the Northern Pacific. Most of the delegates to the state convention left this afternoon, a few leaving yesterday and a few more will take the trip down tonight. James Traverse and a few delegates went over the Great Northern this afternoon.

T. T. Hudson, leader of the local Bryan workers and high in the state councils of the Bryan Democrats, left yesterday afternoon for St. Paul to participate in the conference of the Bryan supporters. At this conference the Bryan men will decide just what action they will take in the form of protests against a Johnson delegation. It is also probable that the plan of the Bryan delegations on the floor of the convention will be mapped out at this pre-convention meeting.

Tomorrow's convention promises to be in the nature of a love feast. There is hardly enough minority votes to create anything bordering on any inharmonious action, and while the Bryan delegates may make some rumpus on the floor of the convention their numerical strength will not be sufficient to cause anything more than a little pleasant diversion to a convention that promises to be bereft of political excitement by the very unanimity of the Johnson sentiment.

Hitumors are rife, however, to the effect that the Bryan crowd will bolt and organize a rump convention. There have been some long knives sharpened by the Bryan crowd, who are not at all pleased with the way things have shaped themselves, and reports from St. Paul have it that these members are loath to sheath their weapons again.

T. T. Hudson will probably meet with political decapitation at the convention. His place as national committeeman will probably be taken by Fred B. Lynch, a close friend of Governor Johnson.

A. C. Weiss of Duluth, T. D. O'Brien of St. Paul, F. G. Winston of Minneapolis and N. S. Hammond of St. James are the most prominently mentioned as delegates-at-large to the Denver convention. E. J. Conroy of Minneapolis and Ed Stevens of the same city, as well as Swan J. Turnblad of Hennepin, are also mentioned as possibilities.

Just what action the Bryan men will take depends in a great measure upon what the Johnson delegates are willing to allow them in the way of recognition of Bryan as second choice in the instructions to the national delegates. The Bryanitse may start trouble, but in any event anything they may do can have no possible bearing upon the main purport of the convention, which is to send to Denver a delegation thoroughly and heartily in support of John A. Johnson as the first choice of the citizens of Minnesota for the Democratic nomination.

RAILROADS OUT OF COMMISSION

Tornado Knocks Out Four of Six Running Into Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., May 13.—Only two of the six railroads between Omaha and Chicago were in working order this morning, the other four being out of commission because of washouts following the tornado of last night.

Great Western tracks are badly damaged and trains on that road are running on Illinois Central tracks to a point in Central Iowa, where the lines cross.

The Rock Island and St. Paul roads are both using the Northwestern tracks for about 100 miles.

Burlington trains from Chicago are being routed down the Nebraska side of the Missouri river for twenty-five miles and sent in a round about way to their destination.

The United States weather bureau has issued a warning that further cyclonic disturbances may be expected this afternoon and tonight.

CHANGE IN FOOD

Works Wonders in Health.

It is worth knowing that a change in food can cure dyspepsia. "I deem it my duty to let you know how Grape-Nuts food has cured me of indigestion. "I had been troubled with it for years, until last year my doctor recommended Grape-Nuts food to be used every morning. I followed instructions and now I am entirely well.

"The whole family like Grape-Nuts, we use four packages a week. You are welcome to use this testimonial as you see fit."

The reason this lady was helped by the use of Grape-Nuts food is that it is predigested by natural processes and therefore does not tax the stomach as the food she had been using; it also contains the elements required for building up the nervous system. If that part of the human body is in perfect working order, there can be no dyspepsia, for nervous energy represents the steam that drive the engine. When the nervous system is run down, the machinery of the body works badly. Grape-Nuts food can be used by small children as well as adults. It is perfectly cooked and ready for instant use.

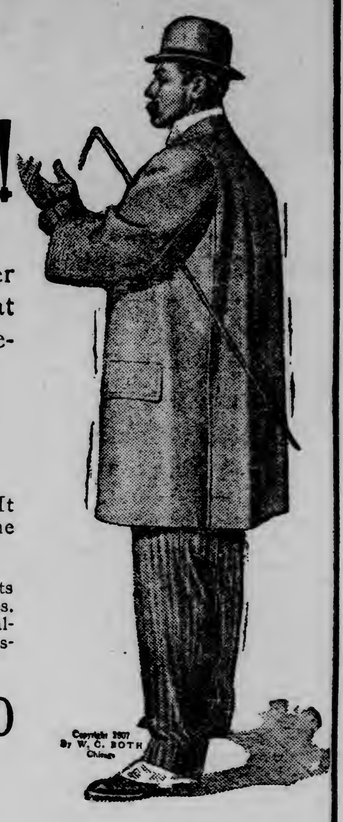
TOMORROW AT THE COLUMBIA

Special Sale of Spring Coats!



An overdose of optimism on the part of our buyers and the fact that the weather caused most men to stick to their heavy winter coats till now, have turned our overcoat men into pessimists. They are suffering from an overstock of Spring Coats. A reduction of the stock is to be forced by reduction in the prices. Therefore we say:

20 Per Cent Off For One Week.

No re-marking will be done. Select your coat and take 20 per cent or One-Fifth Off the price. It brings the $40 coat down to $32, and the $10 coat down to $8, and those between in proportion. At the end of one week the old regular prices will be restored.

From the fact that we had hardly any garments left from last season, these reduced prices should be of double interest to you, as every garment is brand new and a 1908 model. We can safely say that never in the history of this store have Duluthians had access to such a beautifully tailored stock of Stein-Bloch, Mossler-Hoffman and Sincerity Coats; nor to such swell coats made by tailors that specialize on Young Men's extreme styles.

This sale is for one week only, which should suffice to balance our stock. Positively no reduction after next Wednesday.

In this sale we will include about 25 Rain Coats—Automobile style—R. & W. make—$25.00, $30.00 and $35.00 ones at $15.00

LONG GRIND COMMENCED

District Court Hears First of Personal Injury Cases.

Street Railway Company and Box Factory Are Defendants.

The first personal injury suits in the long list on the May calendar in district court were taken up this morning. The case of Frank Norton, who wants $25,000 from Carl J. Petruschke for the loss of a hand was opened before Judge Dibell and the case of Peter K. Peterson, who demands $8,000 from the Duluth Street Railway company for injuries sustained by his little daughter by colliding with a car while coasting, was taken up before Judge Cant.

Peterson's daughter, Freda Minerva Peterson, aged 8 years, was sliding on the east side of Tenth avenue east Nov. 25 last. The grade of the hill caused her to cross Fourth street and, according to Peterson's allegations, she collided with an East Fourth street car through the negligence and carelessness of the employes of the company. She sustained injuries about the head and body. The company claims that the parents were negligent in allowing the child to slide on the avenue and cross the tracks, where they knew danger lurked.

John Jenswold, Jr., is appearing for the plaintiff and the street railway company is represented by Thomas S. Wood and Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer. The morning session was consumed in selecting a jury and the case will probably run into tomorrow.

In the Norton case, a jury was secured this morning and Norton took the stand to tell his version of the accident by which he lost his right hand. He was working for Petruschke last summer in the defendant's box factory at West Duluth. According to his story, a loose pulley or a loose belt, enabled the belt to slip to a live pulley and set the machinery in motion while he was oiling the dove-tailing machine, on which he was employed, the knives severing his aand before he had time to withdraw it from the machine. Petruschke claims that Norton put his hand between the knives before the machine had stopped.

The case was tried at the January term of court and the jury disagreed. Norton is represented by Samuel A. Anderson of St. Paul and Howard T. Abbott appears for Mr. Petruschke.

Judge Ensign's court was engaged with the case of D. Simon vs. Panton & White. Simon claims a balance on some decorating contracts he carried out for the company last summer.

FISH ARE SEIZED.

Brainerd, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A large consignment of wall-eyed pike were seized at the office of the Northern Express company here yesterday by J. P. Saunders of the state fisheries department on the ground they had been taken with a net. The fish were shipped by J. Tjefson at Mille Lacs, to Sprague & Co., and bore evidence of having been caught in a net. J. L. Kramp was brought in from Gull lake during the afternoon by Deputy Warden Rardin and fined $10 for catching one black bass out of season.

AFTER LID TILTERS.

Brainerd, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lid-tilting must stop in this city if the agents of the State Anti-Saloon league can accomplish anything in the way of securing evidence and arresting offending saloonkeepers. Two agents, who have been doing a little Sherlock Holmes stunt here for a few days, have sworn out complaints against a number of bartenders and saloonkeepers who will have a trial tomorrow.

CLERK GETS VACATION.

Aitkin, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—G. S. Westcott, the postal clerk who was in the wrecked car last week, upon arriving at Duluth was met by the superintendent and after being congratulated upon his lucky escape was told that he could have thirty days' vacation in which to recuperate. He went out to his Cedar Lake home.

Charge of Desertion.

Charles J. Dittmer, was yesterday arrested on the charge of having deserted his wife who lives at Green Bay, Mich., where he will be arraigned.

Dittmer has lived in Superior for ten years. Last March he instituted a suit for divorce from his wife, on the grounds that they had voluntarily separated a year after their marriage which took place in Green Bay thirteen years ago. Mrs. Dittmer contested the suit and no decree of divorce was granted. She then tried to bring about a reconciliation between her husband and herself, but failed.

Want Lower Tax Rate.

At the council meeting last evening steps were taken, towards keeping down the state tax in the city and county. According to a communication, from Mayor Crumpton, as far as Douglas county is concerned, the tax has been increasing each year. The mayor stated that the city had been charged out of proportion to the other counties. This, he claimed, to be the result of the high valuation made by the tax commission. The communication recommended that the mayor, City Assessor Tiedeman, and City Attorney Lyons, be authorized to appear before the state board of equalization which will meet the latter part of the matter adjusted.

"WHO STEALS MY PURSE."

Success Magazine: When Hall McAllister was playing in "Brewster's Millions" in Chicago, he was in the habit of running across the alley during his idle second act to visit Jack Barrymore, who was playing "The Boys of Company B," in the theater next door.

One night, as he started over, he thought of the $30,000 in stage money which he must have in the last act, and, to reassure himself, he opened his coat and took the package half out of his pocket. In another minute he found himself pushed hard against the door, the imitation money gone, and two figures disappearing in the darkness.

"It nearly spoiled the play," says McAllister. "I had to give Brewster $85 in real money and the rest by check. But, after all," he added, sympathetically, "perhaps even thugs have families to support."

Secret Makes Thin Women Plump.

Madame Moneaux, deceased beauty specialist of New York, long possessed the greatest of all secrets pertaining to feminine charm. And what is this great secret, so much desired by women—the secret that has made a vast fortune for the madam's heirs, and that brought her all the famous actresses and society leaders for patrons?

"What, you don't know?"

It is a simple, but sure method of developing the bust, arms and neck of women, who, through defect of nutrition and circulation, are humiliated by undeveloped arms, neck and bust. The treatment consists of applying a powerful but harmless nerve-stimulant to the cells of the skin, to be absorbed and utilized as nourishment to the flesh cells and tissues. Beautiful changes are wrought. Ugly, deformed women are developed into charming personages, with well-rounded arms and neck and full normal bust of exquisite curve and proportion so much admired in our great actresses and society leaders. Any leading druggist will supply the ingredients to mix at home, and as they are used for various prescriptions no one need be the wiser as to what they are to be used for, which is as it should be for modest womanhood. Get separately "two ounces glycerine," "three ounces Rose Water" and "one ounce Tincture Cadomene" and 5 cents worth of borax. Take home, mix the glycerine with Tincture Cadomene, shake and let stand two hours; then add a teaspoonful of borax and the rose water. Shake well and apply to the neck, arms and bust, rubbing and massaging until completely absorbed; then wash thoroughly with hot water and soap and dry thoroughly. Apply morning and night regularly for several weeks and the most beautiful development will begin to reward the efforts. It is believed by experts to be the most necessary and effective prescription ever conceived.

This is worth keeping, if not for yourself, for some dear friend who needs it.

DO ANIMALS REASON?

English Naturalist Tells Some Tales to Prove That They Do Not.

One is often inclined to suppose that individual creatures of different varieties do think or reason. But if you look closely into any apparent process of reasoning you will probably come to the conclusion that at most it is subconscious, says Pearson's Weekly.

In other words, creatures are not cognizant of the why and wherefore of facts; they make an occasional instance arrive at the obvious result; but they fail, generally, to make the simplest deduction.

Dogs and horses most nearly approach the brink of connected and deductive thought; personally, I have a high opinion in this respect of cats among domestice creatures and foxes and rats among wild.

Cunning of a high order you may witness in a creature; that cunning in result may be often smarter than the outcome of conscious reasoning.

Here is an instance which I frequently see. An experienced cock pheasant flies out of a wood straight for an inexperienced sportsman making a deal of noise with his gun. On catching sight of him the bird swerves off to a respectful distance, but in so doing brings himself within easy range of another sportsman.

Now, seeing that the pheasant deliberately avoided No. 1 by flying 50 or 60 yards to the left or right, why could he not have avoided both by simply flying higher?

Because he possessed not the gift of thinking, reasoning or deduction—call it what you will—of the conscious type possessed by men, exclusive of idiots.

That necessity is the mother of invention (which is productive thought) is a generally accepted axiom. But when you see a horse in a field from which it badly wants to escape, you can scarcely credit that horse, though it may be ever so clever a jumper in the hunting field, with thinking when he gallops around and around the inside of a low fence without any effort at the obvious solution of his difficulty.

Surely, if he thought at all, he would at once have jumped over the fence, perhaps but half the height of those he jumps by the dozen when hunting.

In the matter of cunning rabbits are not by any means the innocent creatures they are oftened considered to be. They, like rats, soon learn to avoid traps and snares. Where trapping has been much persevered with a rabbit will stay and starve for a week inside a trapped burrow. If it thought it could easily scratch its way out safely.

I once saw a rabbit quietly approach a net over the hole it had been driven to by a ferret, and then, with the utmost composure, cut a mesh with its teeth and hop through the aperture.

Though it looked like it, this act was not the result of thought for a means to an end—just the usual instinctive method of dealing with brambles which bar its path.

Amid rabbits always make an elaborate nest of dry grass and their own fur for their young, but never think of any cozy structure for their comfort in winter, although from the positions chosen for their seats—such as the sheltered side of an underwood stump—comfort, warmth and protection from wind, cold and rain are evidently desired.

Hedgehogs will tumble one after another into a pitfall, in spite of the sight and perfume from its brink of the accumulating token of their foolish friends and relations. A glimmer of thought would deter them from such an act of folly. And yet a hedgehog never forgets to arrange a comfortable nest for its siestas as circumstances permit.

A clever cat would almost appear to think. For instance, I have watched one that was accustomed to lap water from an open tank while balancing on its edge. When she found the water was too low for direct lapping she would stretch down a front paw and from it lick the adhering drops.

I had an old cat which was particularly energetic at bringing young birds one by one from their nest to her kittens. But one day, for the time being, I thought it must have dawned upon her that this plan was a waste of time and labor, for she bagged a nest in her mouth, and thus brought a whole brood of nestlings at once.

Yet she could not really have thought, since on this occasion only we knew her to adopt the very obvious improved plan; then she went back to the old one-at-a-time method. So the one occasion of apparently direct reasoning must have been the result of chance.

The owl that dashes into water, and thus to its death, on catching sight of its own reflection—in spite of the fact that owls are credited with proverbial wisdom—can scarcely be said to give the matter a thought!

PET ANIMALS IN WILLS.

A farmer near Toulouse who died a short time ago left his entire estate to "my red horse;" one John Spooner of Chicago bequeathed £400 to his dog, "in recognition of his sympathy and tender nursing when I was seriously ill," and the will of a Mr. Garland contained this clause, "I bequeath to my monkey Jacko the sum of £100 per annum, and to my faithful dog Shock and my well beloved cat Tib a pension of £5."

A good many years ago an old lady bequeathed her pet parrot to Queen Victoria, with 100 guineas a year for its keep, on the amusing condition that "her majesty publicly exhibits it before her court twice a year, to prove that the person entrusted with its care has not wrung its neck."

TRIALS OF A PRESS AGENT.

James L. Ford, in Success Magazine: In order to supply all this matter, there devolves upon the press agent one of the most difficult duties in the whole theatrical profession—that of inducing the star players to sit for their photographs. For, delighted as actors and actresses are to have their pictures printed, there is nothing they hate more than devoting half of a bright sunny afternoon to sitting for them in costume in a photograph gallery. Nor is this to be wondered at when we consider the trouble that it involves and the agreeable and profitable manner in which the time might be spent in walking up and down Broadway or driving on the Avenue. Sometimes it is necessary to bring the photographer to the theater after rehearsal and hold the actresses almost by main force until their pictures are taken. The press agent must also, be ever on the alert to pick up and elaborate items of news connected with his attractions, and, failing these, to invent items that look like news, and to prepare them in an attractive form for the Sunday paper. He must also make suggestions to reporters, put them in the way of securing interviews and other readable matter, entertain visiting journalists from all parts of the country—and not one of these while in New York fails to call on every press agent whose matter it has been his good fortune to "run" during the year—write advertisements, keep the quarrels between manager and star and all other tidings suggestive of disaster out of the papers, and to cast a rosy glow over everything that bears the managerial stamp of his employer. In addition to all this, he frequently edits and writes a press sheet containing several thousands words of cheery, readable matter relating to his shows.

A LIBRARY FOR NOTHING

Success Magazine: It is comparatively easy, for any one who has enthusiasm and patience, to borrow in the course of time a fairly respectable library. The advantages of such a library are manifest. It costs nothing except a little grace, a little condescension, and, perhaps, a shade of discrimination. Your unspecting friend, full of enthusiasm for his book, insists that you ought to read it. He thrusts it upon you. You must take it home with you. Or, if it happens that he has already had some experience with you, and suddenly at this point becomes silent, it is easy for you to take up the thread, thank him warmly for his information, and, if he is "quite through" with the book, will he lend it to you "for a few days?"

Of course there is nothing for him but to comply, and thus your library swells. Indeed libraries have been known, under these favorable conditions, to grow to such proportions that it has even been necessary to return some of the books borrowed in order to make room. Under these happy circumstances it is better perhaps to exchange the book returned for others which are more desirable, thus constantly raising your standard.

The unfortunate necessity of returning any books may be avoided, in these days of sectional bookcases, if you have the tact to borrow an unused section from each friend whose library you have depleted.

It is by some considered desirable to shelves. Of course, it is possible under favorable circumstances to borrow from a friend a complete set of Thackeray or Dickens—under the plea that one is compiling a calendar or something of that sort. But, after all, isn't it better to take only those books which one really wants? Thus we shall have only the cream of each author.

Of course, if we ever came to dispose of the books, we should not be able to get so much for them at auction in broken lots.

Even with proper care and a wide circle of friends, however, certain books will not be attainable in any way except by buying.

The danger of this is, of course, manifest. It makes one careless about money matters, and may develop into a habit.

It should, therefore, only be indulged in in cases of absolute necessity, when other means have failed.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

READY FOR FLAG RACE

Duluth White Sox Leave for Winnipeg to Open Season.

Fargo and Winnipeg Are Unknown Quantities to Fans.

With a pennant raising at Winnipeg and a big celebration at Brandon, the first season of the reorganized Northern league will open tomorrow, Duluth playing Winnipeg and Fargo opposing Brandon.

Secretary-Treasurer Al Knehnow and thirteen men of the Dalton club left last night for Winnipeg and tomorrow they will begin the race with high hopes of victory. Duluth was never more anxious to get a pennant than this year. Should the city show the right baseball spirit, there is a possibility that it berth will be landed in the Western league next season and the team is out to win games to get the proper support of the fans.

The strength of the Duluth and Brandon teams is pretty well known to the Duluth fans, but Fargo and Winnipeg are more of unknown quantities. Sheehan, McLaughlin and Brooklins are the only men on the Fargo team known to the league. The team has been slow to report at the North Dakota town and only a few exhibition games have been played. McNeil and Sheehan behind the bat, Burke on first, Griffin at second, Brookins at third and McLaughlin at short. Wilhelms in the outfield is supposed to be a slicker of purest ray serene and there are five pitchers on the squad, not one of whom has set the world on fire in the exhibition games. Fargo is making a fight for the possession of Summers for the outfield and in the emantime Metcalf and Heater are playing in the gardens.

Eddie Herr has Glencke, Terry, King and Sensenback of his old squad, with Henderson to report June 1. Nothing is known in Duluth of the remainder of the team and the corpulent Edward may have another gang of world-beaters gathered together. Reiser and Niemans make up the pitching staff, with Ulrich doing the heavy end of the receiving. If the four pitchers don't deliver the goods, Herr threatens to pitch again, which might be very destructive to the team's chances for victory.

The Duluth and Fargo teams are in the North for two weeks, changing places May 21 and playing the final games of the trip May 26. Duluth opens at home with Winnipeg May 28 and on the same date Brandon opens at Fargo. Both American clubs will entertain the Canadians before they get together.

The Northern league, with its four-club circuit, is coming in for its usual raps. The ardent fan, who would rather see a good game of baseball than eat a 2-inch steak, "with the gravy just a-oozin' out of it," expects to meet the advances of the pessimists every spring. "Apathy" is their howl and because every man, woman and child they meet on the street doesn't have a baseball guide in hand and a season ticket in his pocket they think that the local league is going to the shoals on the baseball shore.

Professional baseball of Class C calibre has been firmly established in Duluth to be allowed to die by the fans. If the powers of the team and of the league do their part, the fans will undoubtedly turn out to see the games. Baseball, at least a few times each season, has come to be almost a necessity to the good American and the city of 80,000 people without a team in some sort of a league, may as well pull up stakes and move over to the South Sea islands, where it may find its element.

The Northern league had a very poor season last year. And why not? Winnipeg, exceeding the salary limit by some $50, had an aggregation of stars that won games without furnishing interesting exhibitions. The two misfit outfits from the Copper country weren't attractive enough to induce the kids to peek through the knot holes. The Duluth team wasn't good or bad, but very indifferent. It isn't any wonder that the fans chucked over the whole proposition and waited for something better to come along. There was nothing to fan the flames of baseball interest in their makeup and they burned away down low.

This year, unless the paper calculations are off, the teams are more evenly matched. Winnipeg has lost the stars, who played good ball, but didn't have opposition enough to bring out their best. Duluth has discarded the hitless excuses and taken on men, who are presumed to be ball players. If they aren't, they will be made to walk the track.

Brandon has a good hitting squad that will be an attraction here on account of the men being known. Fargo is back in the game with old Bill McNeil at the helm and should be able to furnish some interest.

The whole league looks better, if no bigger. It is a kind of a little family circle, with the fans knowing all the men. Once the season gets into swing, there will be interest enough in the games. If there is no runaway race and the league gets a fair shake on the weather, the season will be the best ever and the pessimists of today will be the optimists of next September.

Tomorrow night at San Francisco, Joe Gans will come back to life, with Rudy Unholz as the medium. The bout is for twenty rounds, and the Boer should be heartily pelted, unless all the dope is wrong. There are some, who claim that Unholz is the stronger and can take more punishment than the wily black. Gans hasn't been fighting all these years without learning something of the game. The Boer is practically an unknown quantity. He may have caught Memsic and Nelson napping, for nobody counted his ability sufficient to lick either of them. Looking from all six sides, it appears that Rudolph is in for a beautiful hammering and Gans will take down an easy piece of coin.

The fan with the grouch may wonder why Jim Haney is on the Duluth ball team, but he who goes to the park to be amused wouldn't have Jim released for the world. He's one big scream from beginning to end. At Virginia, he had the crowd forgetting the misfortunes of their ball players in enjoyment of his antics. Red feather in cap, voice pitches in G, legs and hands working all at once, he's the grandest thing in the coaching line the league has ever seen. He's a card wherever he goes, with tight-rope walking, Merry Widow waltzing and a line of rube talk that has the hayseed of the stage tied to the post forty blocks back.

KAUFMAN WINS FROM JOE GRIM

California Heavyweight Returns to Ring and Plucks Juicy One.

Oakland, May 13.—Al Kaufman, the California heavyweight, was last night awarded the decision, at the end of the sixth round, over Joe Grim of Philadelphia. It was a tame and rather uninteresting bout throughout.

Kaufman landed whenever and wherever he pleased. On the other hand, Grim scarcely landed a blow. He stalled at every opportunity, kept in close and fought almost entirely on the defensive.

Kaufman scored repeatedly on the face and body, but never being able to force his clumsy antagonist at arms length, found it impossible to land a blow with sufficient force to score a knockout. Last night's fight signalized the return of Kaufman into the ring after several months' retirement.

Pool Match.

In the handicap pool match which began Monday night at the Central billiard hall, in which Campbell is to score 1,000 while Nolan pockets 750, Nolan won from Campbell last night, 115 to 109. Nolan was in much better form than on the opening night, making up some of the margin. The total score is: Campbell, 209; Nolan, 149. The men will play each evening until one or the other goes out.

May 23—Board of Trade vs. Wolvin Building.
May 30—Open.
June 6—First National vs. Wolvin.
June 13—Patrick vs. Board of Trade.

July 25—Patrick vs. Board of Trade.
Aug. 1—Wolvin vs. First National.
Aug. 8—Patrick vs. First National.
Aug. 15—Wolvin vs. Board of Trade.

At a meeting of the Commercial league held last night in the First National bank, the number of teams was reduced to four teams by the dropping of the Kelley-How-Thomson team and the league will go through the season with four clubs.

The schedule as adopted will begin next Saturday, with the F. A. Patrick and First National bank teams playing and will extend to Aug. 15, when the final game is scheduled. Each team will play in the league series two Saturdays each month and the other Saturdays will be open for games with other clubs representing commercial houses.

All of the teams are now in practice and they promise to put up a good class of ball. The Wolvin building men are out nearly every night and, from the showing made by the candidates, it will be a strong contender for championship honors. The other houses represented in the league number a large number of ball players among their employes and the league will play up to the standard of most of the amateur teams of the city.

The open dates will see the league teams in some good games. The Board of Trade has arranged games with the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, and Chicago Board of Trade and the Wolvin men will play the Oliver and Hull-Rust teams at Hibbing and other office forces on the range. The Bankers will get after other bank teams and the Patrick club will play teams representing different wholesale houses in Duluth.

Another meeting of the league will be held at 7:30 Friday evening at the First National bank, when the other details will be arranged before the opening Saturday.

BIG MEET AT ASHLAND.

Northland College Invites High School Athletes to Compete.

Ashland, May 13.—Northland college is making arrangements for a monster field meet to take place on the campus of the college on Friday, May 29, the day before Memorial day. Invitations have been extended to all of the high schools in this Northern country to take part in this meet, and a great many of them have signified their intention of doing so. The balance of them will probably do so also, though they have not been heard from as yet. The following high schools have been invited: Ashland, Washburn, Bayfield, Iron River, Superior, Hurley, Mellen, Ironwood, Bessemer, Glidden, Butternut, Park Falls, Phillips and Spooner.

Some great records will probably be made when this aggregation gets together with Northland college in a field meet. A great deal of interest is being taken in the affair all over Northern Wisconsin.

"THE" ALLEN DEAD.

Well-Known Sporting Man Dies Suddenly in New York.

New York, May 13.—Theodore Allen, known throughout the sporting world as "The" Allen, died suddenly last night at the home of his son-in-law, Clarence E. Owen, in West Eighth street. Two hours later the coroner interrupted preparation for the embalming of the body and ordered an autopsy performed. Members of the family were summoned by the coroner and examined. Allen's physician, Dr. Herman Bowker, reported that "The" had died from locomotor ataxia, but one of the dead man's brothers, Martin Van Buren Allen, declared it his belief that "The" had died as a result of foul play. Allen was 77 years of age and had a notable and spectacular career. He was best known as a promoter of pool rooms and as a bookmaker. In connection with pool room operations he was arrested no less than eight times, but managed to escape penal sentences.

HOUSE DYNAMITED.

Port Henry, N. Y., May 13.—Dynamiters attempted to wreck the $125,000 residence of George D. Sherman near here early yesterday. A heavy charge of the explosive tore off the plazza and broke all the windows on one side of the house. Mr. Sherman and his family were not injured. The dynamiters gave warning of their intention in a note received by Mr. Sherman Monday night. Mr. Sherman had discharged three men from his employ on the day the note was received.

Liggett, who with Mr. Wathey, recently established the Fargo Independent, a weekly publication, left Monday afternoon for the coast country, where he announces he has secured a position as sporting writer on the Seattle Times. Mr. Wathey dropped out of the firm a short time ago and Mr. Liggett has now sold his interest in the publication to Mr. Smethhurst, formerly of the Journal in this city.

MRS. PAYNE IS FREE.

Peculiar Matrimonial Tangle Ends in Her Liberty.

Grand Rapids, Wis., May 13.—Considerable local interest has been manifested in the case of the state of Wisconsin vs. Violet P. LeVin, on the charge of bigamy. This case was set for trial at the spring term of the circuit court for this county, which convened Monday. The defendant, through the efforts of her attorney, George P. Hembreicht, was brought up for hearing on habeas corpus proceedings yesterday, and was discharged from custody, and she immediately left the city for California, where she will make her future home. The case is the result of a peculiar matromonial tangle and was started last December, when Sheriff Welch of this county went to Janesville and arrested the defendant, who was known here as Mrs. George C. Payne. The writ of habeas corpus was asked for, and was granted on the theory that Payne was not the proper party to institute the criminal action.

S.S.S.
OLDEST AND BEST BLOOD PURIFIER

We have never claimed that S. S. S. was a medicine to work wonders, nor one that would cure every physical ailment or disorder. More than forty years ago it was placed on the market and recommended as a blood purifier, and today, after a long and successful career, and when its use has become almost universal, only the same honest claim is made for it—that it is a cure for those diseases and disorders arising from an impure or polluted blood. Time makes no mistakes, and the very best recommendation of S. S. S. is the fact that it has stood a long test and is now more generally used, and has the confidence of a greater number of people than any other blood medicine.

The blood is the most vital force of life; every organ, nerve, muscle, tissue and sinew of the body is dependent on it for nourishment and strength, and as it circulates through the system, pure and rich, it furnishes to these different members the healthful properties needed to preserve them and enable them to perform their various duties. So long as the blood remains free from infection we are apt to escape disease, but any impurity, humor or poison acts injuriously on the system and affects the general health.

Pustular eruptions, pimples, rashes, and the various skin affections, show that the blood is in a feverish condition as a result of some humor, or the presence of an irritating, fiery acid. Rheumatism comes from an excess of uric acid in the circulation, while Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula and Contagious Blood Poison, are all deep-seated blood disorders that will continue to grow worse as long as the cause remains. Bad blood may come from various causes, such as a sluggish condition of the system, imperfect bowel and kidney action, indigestion, etc., or the trouble may be inherited; but whatever the cause the blood must be purified before the body can be healthy.

S. S. S. is a natural blood purifier and tonic. It is made entirely of the harmless juices and extracts of roots, herbs and barks of recognized curative ability, and being free from all harmful minerals is an absolutely safe medicine for young or old. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and removes any and every trace of impurity, humor or poison. It freshens and enriches the blood and cures promptly and permanently Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Scrofula, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, and all other blood disorders. S.S.S. is the most reliable and at the same time a most pleasant acting medicine for those whose blood has become weak and who are suffering with Anaemia, Malaria or some other debilitating sickness.

A blood purifier is especially needed in the Spring to cleanse the circulation of the impurities which have accumulated during the shut-in life of Winter, and S. S. S. is the most reliable and certain of good results. Book on the blood and medical advice free. S.S.S. is for sale at all drug stores. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Having used S. S. S. extensively I can testify to its merits as a blood purifier and tonic. It enriches, purifies and cleanses the blood of all impurities, and at the same time is a wonderful invigorater, tonic and system builder. It is also a fine remedy for Rheumatism. It is master of this very painful disease, and as a tonic to give appetite, strength to the nerves and build up the system it has no equal.

It is a very fine medicine indeed, and I have every confidence in it.

DOCTOR'S ALL AGREE THIS TIME.

The most eminent writers on Materia Medica, whose works are consulted as authorities and guides in prescribing by physicians of all the different schools of practice, extol, in the most positive terms, the curative virtues of each and every ingredient entering into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. In fact it is the only medicine, put up for sale through druggists for the cure of all diseases of the mucous surfaces, as nasal catarrh, throat, laryngeal, and bronchial affections attended by lingering, or hang-on-coughs that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any amount of lay or non-professional testimonials.

Do not expect too much from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It will not work miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. Nor is the "Discovery" so good for a sudden attack of acute cough, but for the lingering, obstinate, hang-on-coughs, accompanying catarrhal, throat, laryngeal and bronchial affections, it is a most efficacious remedy. In cases accompained with wasting of flesh, night-sweats, weak stomach and poor digestion with faulty assimilation, and which, if neglected or badly treated are apt to lead to consumption, the "Discovery" has proven wonderfully successful in effecting cures.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, bitter or sour "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or billousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, totter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by enclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver or billousness and all catarrhal diseases whoever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value.

Some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for healing ulcerations, regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

It's an insult to your intelligence for a dealer to endeavor to palm off upon you some nostrum of unknown composition in place of Dr. Pierce's world-famed medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Most dealers recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines because they know what they are made of and that the ingredients employed are among the most valuable that a medicine for like purposes can be made of. The same is true of leading physicians who do not hesitate to recommend these medicines, since they know exactly what they contain and that their ingredients are the very best known to medical science for the cure of the several diseases for which they are recommended.

With tricky dealers it is different.

Something else that pays them a little greater profit will be urged upon you as "just as good," or even better. You can hardly afford to accept a substitute of unknown composition and without any particular record of cures in place of Dr. Pierce's medicines which are OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and have a record of forty years of cures behind them. You know what you want and it is the dealer's business to supply that want. Insist upon it.

REPUBLICANS ARE CONFIDENT

Hope to Put Vreeland Bill Through the House Thursday.

Washington, May 13.—Under whip and spur the Republican leaders in the house expect to put through the Vreeland currency bill on Thursday of this week. They expect to do it in the face of a practically solid Democratic opposition and despite the Republican insurgency, whose leaders are Representatives Fowler of New Jersey, chairman of the banking and currency committee; Prince of Illinois and Hayes of California.

Presuming that every member of the house will be in his seat and that all the Democrats will vote against it, twenty-nine insurgent Republican votes will defeat the bill.

Mr. Watson of Indiana, as Republican whip, has pledged every Republisan to be in his seat next Thursday. The insurgent leaders claim their total strength at thirty-six, the requisite twenty-nine and seven to spare, and the prospects are bright for holding these three dozen firmly together.

An informal cloakroom conference called by Minority Leader Williams last evening, developed an apparently solid Democratic front against the bill. The Republican "organization" leaders made this statement immediately after recess of the house:

"It looks very good for the Vreeland bill. The insurgent claims are overslated. There is excellent reason to believe that the bill will go through on Thursday. The decision of the Democrats to present a united front against us will simply serve to arouse party spirit among the majority and strengthen rather than weaken our line."

Valued Same as Gold.

B. G. Stewart, a merchant of Cedar View, Miss., says: "I tell my customers when they buy a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills they get the worth of that much gold in weight, if afflicted with constipation, malaria or billousness." Sold under guarantee at all drug stores. 25 cents.

SENATE PASSES THE POSTOFFICE BILL.

Washington, May 13.—The senate passed the postoffice appropriation bill, carrying amounts aggregating $229,027,367. As passed, the bill allows $1 per day expenses for railway postal clerks when away from terminals, which will incur a total expense of about $1,000,000.

Amendments adopted by the senate provide for weighing the mails annually, instead of every four years, and add to the Gallinger provision concerning the improvement of ocean mail service to the Philippines, China, Japan, Australia and South American ports.

CASES OF INTEREST

ARREST OF VAGRANT WITHOUT WARRANT—The penal code of California holds vagrancy a misdemeanor which may be committed in the presence of an officer, and may subject the vagrant to arrest without a warrant. A report came to the officers that defendant, who had been known to them for several months as a vagrant, had assaulted and beaten a man. Being unable to arrest him on the battery, without a warrant, they arrested him as a vagrant. In people vs. Craig, 91 Pacific Reporter, 907, the California supreme court held that, although defendant would not have been arrested had he confined himself to vagrancy, his arrest for that offense, when the circumstances of the battery became known, was rightful.

DISTINGUISHING MARKS ON ELECTION BALLOTS—The statutes of Tennessee provide that in all elections ballots shall be of certain dimensions, and that, if any picture, sign, mark, etc., is placed thereon, the ballots shall not be counted. In Cross vs. Keathley, 95 Southwestern Reporter, 851, the supreme court of Tennessee held that ballots containing the word "for" preceding the name of the office, or the direction to vote for two, etc., contained distinguishing marks, and could not be counted. Also that, where the ballots were of the regulation size when cast, they could not be rejected because they were clipped after they were voted.

WRONGFULLY ISSUING MARRIAGE LICENSES—In Jackson vs. Bannister, 105 Southwestern Reporter, 95, a parent brought an action against a clerk of the court for issuing a marriage license to a daughter scarcely 15 years of age. The statute of Texas makes it a penal offense for a clerk to issue a marriage license to a girl less than 18 years of age without the consent of the parent, but common-law marriages are valid. The court of civil appeals of Texas held that, although the clerk committed an offense, the marriage was valid. The parents, losing the right to her services by reason of the marriage, had no cause of action.

IMPUTATION OF KNOWLEDGE OF ATTORNEY TO CLIENT—The maker and the payee of a note employed the same attorney. It was contended that, as the maker was insolvent, and the attorney knew of it, the payee was chargeable with notice which should have been imparted to a surety, and that a failure to do this operated as a discharge. In the case of Citizens' Deposit bank, 105 Southwestern Reporter, 139, the court of appeals of Kentucky held that the imparting of such knowledge by an attorney to another client would be a violation of confidence and of legal ethics, which the court would not presume.

LARCENY OF ONE'S OWN PROPERTY—In Ayers vs. state, 59 Southeastern Reporter, 924, property had been levied upon by a constable under an attachment. Defendant, after promising to replevy the property, moved it into another state. The court of appeals of Georgia held that, even though it was his own property, the title, being in the constable, was sufficient to sustain a conviction of larceny.

PURCHASE OF PROPERTY BY WIFE OF CO-TENANT—In Beaman vs. Beaman, 44 Southern Reporter, 987, intestate left certain realty incumbered by a deed of trust. Plaintiffs and one of defendants were his children, claiming as tenants in common. The property was sold under the trust deed and purchased by the wife of defendant cotenant. Plaintiffs sued to have the deed canceled. The supreme court of Mississippi applied the rule that one tenant cannot purchase an outstanding title and set it up against the other tenants.

EVIDENCE OF TRACKING ACCUSED BY HOUNDS.—Defendant had been convicted of murder, and on appeal contended that his constitutional right to be confronted by the witnesses was invaded by admission of evidence that bloodhounds trailed him from the scene of the crime to his home. In State vs. Dickerson, 92 Northeastern Reporter, 969, the Ohio supreme court dismissed the contention by saying that the persons telling of the acts and conduct of the animals were the witnesses, and not the dogs.

COMPELLING SUCCESSFUL PARTY TO TAKE FINAL DECREE.—An interlocutory decree for divorce had been entered for plaintiff on the ordinary condition that an absolute decree might be entered after three months. At the expiration of that time plaintiff had changed her mind, and sought to have the cause dismissed. Defendant, however, asked that the final decree be entered. In Adams vs. Adams, 106 New York Supplement, 1064, the New York supreme court declined to compel the wife to take a decree to which she was entitled, but did not desire, although the defendant sought to have it enforced against himself.

PIERS EXTENDING OVER THE WATER.—Plaintiffs in error constructed piers extending over the water from lots in the city of Baltimore, which were assessed for taxes by that city. It was contended on one side that, as they were attached to the land and would be useless without it, they should be considered as accretions and as a part of the land to which they were attached, but, on the other hand, that only the part built on the land could be taxed, as the boundary of the city runs with the river, and that the remaining portion was under the jurisdiction of the county adjoining. In Western Maryland, T. R. Co. vs. Mayor, 69 Atlantic Reporter, 6, the Maryland court of appeals, speaking of the dependence on the city for fire and police protection, concludes they are properly taxed by the city to their entire extent.

RELEASE OF PERSON ARRESTED AS SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER.—A prisoner was arrested by a police officer on suspicion of being the perpetrator of a grave crime, but, instead of being charged with this specific offense, he was held merely as a suspicious character. In Hill vs. Smith the court of appeals of Virginia, in 59 Southeastern Reporter, 475, held that, although an officer may arrest a prisoner on suspicion, he must, without necessary delay, take him before a police justice, and formulate a specific complaint informing him of the offense of which he is accused, and, such course not having been pursued, he was entitled to his release on habeas corpus

WRONGFUL EJECTION OF PASSENGER.—In Birmingham Ry., Light & Power Co. vs. Lee, 45 Southern Reporter, 164, the Alabama supreme court held that the offer of a third person to pay the fare of a passenger who insists that she has already paid is no defense to an action for ejection, as plaintiff, by allowing such payment, would have acknowledged that she had not made it.

TESTIMONY OF DIVORCED WIFE AS GROUND FOR NEW TRIAL.—In the case of State vs. Sargood, 68 Atlantic Reporter, 51, defendant, a married man, was convicted of crime. Subsequent to the conviction his wife secured a divorce, thereby making her a competent witness for her former husband. Defendant then moved for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, but the supreme court of Vermont held that the motion was properly overruled.

DISTINCTION BETWEEN CASH AND STOCK DIVIDENDS.—A certain estate consisted partly of shares in a corporation. The corporation, having received shares of its own stock in payment of a debt, divided them pro rata among the stockholders. The estate received its proportional number, and the question then arose whether the stock so received was a part of the corpus of the state or a portion of the income. The supreme court of errors of Connecticut in the case of Green vs. Bissell, 65 Atlantic Reporter, 1056, held that, there being no new issue, the distribution should be considered as a cash dividend belonging to the income.

LIABILITY OF ONE CO-TENANT TO ANOTHER FOR TRESPASS.—Exceptions to the general rule that one cannot sue his co-tenant for trespass on the common property are recognized in Davis vs. Poland, 66 Atlantica Reporter, 350. Plaintiff and defendant were tenants in common of certain property. Defendant entered upon the property and removed the doors and windows, with the apparent object of making the house uninhabitable. The supreme judicial court of Maine allowed plaintiff to recover damages to the extent of her proportional interest in the property removed, together with other damages to the house, and any damage suffered aside from such as might have been avoided by reasonable diligence on her part.

IMPLIED WARRANTY ON SALE OF FOOD.—Tomlinson vs. Armour & Co., 65 Atlantic Reporter, 883, was an action brought in New Jersey for injuries from ptomaine poisoning, caused by eating ham put up by defendant, who sold it to a retail dealer, from whom it was purchased by plaintiff. The supreme court of New Jersey held that plaintiff had no greater right than the dealer of whom the purchase was made, and that, as there was no implied warranty in sales to dealers, no recovery could be made.

VALIDITY OF LIQUOR DEALER'S BOND.—In State vs. English, 65 Atlantic Reporter, 529, defendant obtained a liquor license, and furnished the bond required by law. It was procured, however, for the benefit of another, who was not entitled to a license under the law. Upon learning this, the board of commissioners revoked it, and brought action on the bond. The supreme court of New Hampshire held that the validity of the license and the liability upon the bond were not affected by these facts, since the mere intent of the licensee did not render the license void or affect his liability upon the bond.

RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS.—In the case of Golden vs. State, 58 Southeastern Reporter, 507, defendant was accused of receiving goods stolen in South Carolina and received by him in Georgia. No punishment was provided by the law of Georgia for bringing stolen goods into that state, and the statute makes the recipient an accomplice to the larceny and subject to the same punishment as the thief. The court of appeals of Georgia held that there was no authority to punish for a theft committed in a foreign state, and, as the punishment of the recipient of the goods was the same as that of the thief, they could not punish him either.

SUFFICIENCY OF TITLE IN STATUTES.—In Burcher vs. People, 93 Pacific Reporter, 14, a prosecution under an act prescribing hours of employment in mills, factories, etc., which may be deemed unhealthful or dangerous, the Colorado supreme court held that the title was not broad enough to cover the provision prohibiting employment of women for more than eight hours a day in a mill, factory, etc., since the title relates to occupations injurious to health, and the provision treats of occupations which may not be unhealthful.

A Regretful Fact.

The traveler mourns the disappearance of the picturesque costumes of the European peasantry. One has to go far away from the cities nowadays to know that such a thing exists. The clatter of the wooden shoe is a lost joy of Holland towns; the Welch women have given up the stovepipe hats and quilted kertles and gay cotton bodices of their mothers. A fashion that is daily growing more popular with the American woman is that of serving golden grain belt beer at meal time. This is a delightful drink for the whole family at all times and on all occasions. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

Debs and Haywood May Both be Dropped by Socialists.

Chicago, May 13.—Delegates to the Socialist national convention, in session here, made little progress yesterday in the direction of an agreement on policies or candidates. The greater part of the brief session held in the afternoon was devoted to arguments by representatives of the contesting delegations from Western states. In and out of convention the contest between Eugene V. Debs and William D. Haywood for the presidential nomination was the subject of much discussion and it was predicted that neither would be chosen to lead the Socialist ticket. A rumor which gained currency during the day that Haywood had withdrawn from the race, was vigorously denied by supporters of Haywood's candidacy.

Besides these two men, A. M. Simon of Illinois, Benjamin Hanford of New York and Rev. Carl D. Thompson of Milwaukee have been mentioned. The latter was presented yesterday afternoon as a candidate and his name when mentioned in the convention was greeted with enthusiastic cheers.

The committee on the platform put in a busy session last night. The ideas of its members are said to be widely divergent and it is thought a hot fight is brewing over platform declarations.

West Duluth and Lakeside Firemen Make Best Records.

Improvements Needed in West End and Lakeside Halls.

One result of the annual inspection of the fire department yesterday afternoon by the fire board, mayor and other city officials, probably will be provision in the very near future for improvements at fire hall No. 2, in the West end, which is not large enough to meet the demands made upon it.

Members of the party were well satisfied with their inspection, as to time and condition of men, and appearance of buildings and equipment, until they came to the West end hall; but here, after the situation had been pointed out by Chief Black they agreed that an improvement in the building was badly needed and got together in an informal discussion of how best to secure it.

The chief cause for complaint is in the fact that the men have to sleep directly over the horses, for there is no room for stalls in the rear of the structure. The stalls of the animals are kept in the cleanest possible condition, but at best a person on the upper floor can detect the fact with his nose that horses are stabled underneath. The situation is declared most insanitary, and members of the board of fire commissioners and the aldermen present agreed that something should be done immediately to improve the situation.

The house at Lakeside was in rather bay condition, but was not insanitary. The building is so old that, being constructed of wood, it is apparently almost ready to fall down. The men, horses and equipment of the hall all passed with a high mark. In fact, the men at this hall beat all the others in the city in the inspection and night hitch. The time for the floor hitch was six seconds, and the time for the night hitch was ten seconds. The floor hitch time tied West Duluth for best time made.

The drills showed the men to be very proficient all the way through. At headquarters one-third of the men were out for dinner, and therefore the remainder of the crew was handicapped in making time. An accidental slip by No. 2 company at the hydrant hitch caused such a delay that no time was taken, but no other slips occurred anywhere in the city.

The several tests resulted as follows:

DRAINAGE CONGRESS

Holds Its First Session in Washington With 400 Delegates Present.

Washington, May 13.—In an address before the national drainage congress, which met here yesterday, William Jennings Bryan said he was heartily in sympathy with the movement for the reclamation of the swamp lands of this country, through drainage.

More than 400 delegates from all parts of the United States were present when W. S. Braddock of Wisconsin, vice president of the congress, called that body together. The congress will be in session three days.

The speakers yesterday included, besides Mr. Bryan, Secretary of the Interior Garfield, Senators Nawlands of Nevada and Clapp of Minnesota, Representatives Ramsdell of Louisiana and Burton of Delaware, Governor Blanchard of Louisiana, O. P. Austin, chief of the bureau of statistics, and Col. P. Goodyear of Georgia. All of the speakers expressed their hearty indorsement of the proposed scheme of reclaiming the swamp lands of the country.

Mr. Bryan expressed the opinion that the bringing of the swamp lands of the country into cultivation would mean a wonderful addition to the wealth of these sections and the wealth of the country at large.

Senator Clapp expressed his firm belief that legislation looking to the reclamation of the swamp lands would pass congress, and declared that he would give it his support. Secretary Garfield outlined the work of his department with reference to reclaiming the swamp lands, and referred to its preparedness to undertake the work if congress so provided.

SAILORS GUESTS AT SMALL AFFAIR

Grand Ball Given by the Ladies at San Francisco.

San Francisco, May 13.—A real novelty last night marked the fleet entertainment program when the blue jackets and petty officers were the guests of honor at a reception and ball given at the Auditorium, under the auspices of the ladies of the exclusive California club. Women high in the ranks of San Francisco society danced with the enlisted men. Scores of officers and their wives attended the ball, many of the latter dancing with men from their husband's divisions on shipboard. Quite an elaborate supper was prepared, and altogether the function was probably the most enjoyable the men have had.

The remarkable fighting force that has been anchored in the roadstead since last Wednesday is now rapidly disentegrating. The Maine and the Missouri were the first of the battleships to drop out of line. The Maine went to Mare Island for overhauling, and the Missouri went into dry dock at Hunter's Point. The Atlantic torpedo flotilla has left the anchorage grounds for Mare Island.

The disposition of the destroyers is still a matter of conjecture here. Lieutenant Commander Cone expects shortly to haul down his flag from the flagship Whipple, but says he has no information as to what the flotilla will do.

The armored cruisers of the Pacific fleet will leave port on Friday for Santa Barbara and other Southern points. They are to engage in a series of fleet drills and manuevers.

TO SUCCEED FANCHOT.

Lockport, N. Y., May 13.—William C. Wallace (Republican), was yesterday elected state senator from the Forty-seventh district. It was a special election to fill the vacancy created by the death of Senator S. P. Fanchot, and the real issue was the anti-gambling attitude assumed by Governor Hughes. The newly-elected senator will have a seat in the present extra session of the legislature, and he is expected to act with the friends of the governor when another attempt is made to pass the anti-racing bills.

Colon, May 13.—Secretary Taft sailed from here at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the steamer Prairie of Charleston. During his stay on the isthmus, which has lasted six days, the secretary has had not an idle moment. So many affairs of importance had to receive his attention that he was unable to accept any of the many social invitations extended to him.

HARD BLOW TO DEFENSE

Important Witness in Wilson Murder Case Dies Suddenly.

Was to Testify to Mental Condition of the Prisoner.

A somewhat demoralizing blow has been dealt the insanity defense to be made by A. T. Parks and H. H. Hawkins, attorneys for Henry Wilson, whose trial for murder will take place this month, by the sudden death of Dr. C. W. Ellis of Saginaw, who was to have testified to Wilson's insanity.

Dr. Ellis was the old family doctor for the Wilsons and had known Henry Wilson since he was a child, when, according to the doctor, he was an irrational and mentally unbalanced boy and had grown up into manhood bearing the same traits of insanity. The Duluth attorneys for the defense had been in correspondence with Dr. Ellis requesting his assistance for their client. But a short time ago Dr. Ellis was taken suddenly ill with pneumonia and died after two days' illness, without leaving any sworn testimony that can be used in the case.

Mrs. Wilson is in the city from Saginaw and has been advising with the lawyers for her son. She has suggested several witnesses who have been more or less acquainted with her son since childhood, among whom are Dr. G. W. Stewart and Dr. E. R. Knapp of Saginaw. The attorneys think further that Edward Enright of Bartow and Enright, Saginaw, may also be helpful testimony.

Besides this serious complication arising from the death of one of their principal witnesses, the attorneys are handicapped by the lack of money with which to work for their client, but Attorneys Park and Hawkins expect to be able to fill the gap left by the death of Dr. Ellis and all will be done, according to reports from Saginaw, that possibly can be by friends of the Wilson family to aid the defense.

Committees Will Confer.

The Plymouth Congregational church, at the call of the Pilgrim congregation, appointed a committee to meet a similar one appointed by the Pilgrim church to consider the needs and welfare of the work in West Duluth. The committees met Monday evening, and as a result of their meeting a meeting of the members and friends with the trustees and officers of the Plymouth Congregation church will be held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the chapel of the Plymouth church. Business of vital importance to the welfare of the work in the western part of the city will be considered and a plan formulated for its achievement.

RAILROADS

NEW SYSTEM IS DESIRED

Shippers Want Change in Present Demurrage Law.

Want Benefit of Any Time They Save for Railroads.

There is an agitation in shipping circles toward a revision of the car demurrage law, whereby shippers and manufacturers will be given the benefit of the time that the car is not used by them in the act of loading or unloading.

On most commodities the free time allowed by the railroads is forty-eight hours. At the present time the shipper is charged $1 a day for the time he has the use of the car over the free time for loading or unloading. In many instances the consignee or the consignor only uses the car twenty-four hours in loading or unloading, and the scheme proposed by some Minnesota shippers is in effect that the shippers be given credit for every twenty-four hours' free time that has not been used by the shipper.

It is proposed to strike a monthly average. At the end of the calendar month the shipper shall be given credit for the periods of unexpired twenty-four hours' time in which the car was released to the railroad.

It is pointed out by the shippers that inasmuch as they are paying for the time they utilize the car over every forty-eight hours' free time, they should likewise be given credit for each twenty-four hours of the free time that is not used.

This, the shippers say, would result not only in the saving of money to them, but would also result in the more prompt delivery of cars to the railroads, and would also enable the railroads to give more efficient service to shippers.

There is an agitation in Illinois for this revision in the demurrage law, while in Ohio, New York, Michigan and Pennsylvania similiar ideas are already in effect.

Duluth shippers would be saved many hundreds of dollars by the placing of such a revision in effect, while the saving of money to the shippers throughout the entire state would be reckoned in the thousands.

The railroads would oppose the carrying out of any such scheme. It would mean the losing of many dollars to them. Of course, it would also mean the more prompt release of cars from the shipper, but it is probable that the railroad men would be inclined to look on the loss of demurrage as greater than the gain in time in the release of cars.

Coincident with the agitation for a revision of the demurrage laws comes the information that shippers throughout the West are organizing for the fighting of any scheme on the part of railroads to increase the freight rates. The subject of rates and profits will be thoroughly gone into by committees of various shipping associations, with the view of opposing any attempt to raise the present rates.

The shippers are of the opinion that the roads have made great profits out of rates and are at the present time making great profits on the basis of the present rates. They will form associations to combat any attempt on the part of both the western and eastern roads to further increase the rates which the shippers are of the opinion are in some instances excessive.

CONFERENCE HERE.

Agreements Will be Reached on Through Rates to Winnipeg.

Following the conferences of D. O. Anderson of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railway, and W. A. McGonagle, general manager of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, with the traffic managers of the Canadian Northern railway regarding the inauguration of the through passenger and freight rates over the lines of the three roads, a conference will be held in this city between the traffic managers of the road to finally determine what rates will be made to shippers and to traveling public.

The new rates will probably go into effect June 1. Arrangements have already been completed for traffic agreements and the running time, connections and freight rates will be determined at the meeting to be held here.

FOUND $680 IN OLD SOCK.

Stevens Point, Wis., May 13.—While rummaging in a pile of rags yesterday in an old house at Stockton, abandoned thirty years ago, Rose Tovey Doyle found $680 in bills and some coins tied in an old sock. It is believed to have been hidden there by her grandmother, who formerly occupied the house.

CONTRACT IS AWARDED

Work Will be Begun at Once Near Foxboro.

Roderick Smith of the firm of Smith & Jones returned from Minneapolis this morning, where he closed a contract with the Twin City & Lake Superior Railway company for grading on the "Arrow Line" south from the state line near Foxboro, a little more than thirty miles. Mr. Smith received a wire from Mr. Farnham, president of the company and chairman of the board of directors on Monday that his firm had submitted the best bid for the work and the executive committee had authorized that the contract be let to his firm under its bid. Mr. Smith spent yesterday at the company's office completing the details of closing his contract.

Seen by a Herald representative, Mr. Smith said: "We have taken the contract for clearing, grubbing and grading a little over thirty miles on the "Arrow Line" south of the state line at Foxboro, and we shall at once establish out camps on the line and be ready to begin the work with a large force of men early next week. We will push the contract to completion as fast as possible. I do not believe the business interests at Duluth have realized the progress that has been made in the building of this road nor what its completion means to this city. The company's financial plans being somewhat of a departure from established methods, I believe, are responsible for the apparent apathy of Duluth business interests, in regard to this road. As a condition precedent to entering into this contract I have looked into this feature of the business to thoroughly satisfy myself of the company's ability to fulfill its part of the contract and have been shown and entirely satisfied by the officers of the company. I found also that these officers are railroad men of experience and ability who know the business that they are engaged in thoroughly in every department and the close figures to which we were held on every specification in the contract is, in my opinion, a guarantee to stockholders of the wise expenditure of their money not equalled by the construction of any railroad that I have worked on in my experience. We have a nice piece of work, the heaviest profile on the company's line and the profile and specifications call for a roadway that will not be excelled by any railroad construction in Minnesota."

RATES TO HIGH.

Melbourne Argus: A lanky countryman from the mines came into the Argus office. "My old guy'nor's dead and I should like a bit of poetry or something put in the paper about him."

"All right," says the clerk, "hand it over."

"Can't you fix something up for me?" asks the miner. "He was a right good chap."

"Oh, yes," replies the clerk, "we'll manage that for you; our charge for 'In Memoriam' notices is sixpence an inch."

"Oh, thunder!" exclaims the mourner, "I can't stand that; my guy'nor was over six feet!"

"White Flour Boys" You can pick them out—in the school-room, in the street, in the home—they are pale, flabby, sickly—they are fed on white flour bread and soda crackers.

Make sturdy, chubby boys and girls by feeding them the food that builds muscle, bone and brain—the sweet, crisp malted flakes of wheat. Children like it and thrive on it.

"FORCE"

"FORCE" is made of the best white wheat, steam-cooked, rolled into thin flakes, combined with the purest barley-malt and baked. Always "crisp" it before serving it by pouring into a pan and warming it in oven. Then serve in large dish with cream, piling the flakes in one side of the dish and pouring the cream in the other side, dipping the flakes as eaten.

Your Grocer sells it. No other Flaked Food is "Just as Good."

PRESIDENT APPLAUDED

Governors Are Pleased With Speech at Opening of Convention.

Carnegie Speaks on Conservation of Ores and Related Minerals.

Washington, May 13.—The disposition to express freely their sentiments was indulged in on the part of the governors throughout the president's speech, which occupied fifty minutes in delivery, in the East room of the White House. He was applauded and cheered many times, and when, after giving a praising estimate of the work of the inland waterways commission, he remarked parentretically:

"The commission ought to be perpetuated, and if congress does not see fit to do so, I shall do it myself," the gathering was fairly stampeded by cheers, applause, shouts and laughter.

When the president had finished, at 11:55 o'clock, he made the suggestion that at the afternoon session a committee on resolutions be appointed. Merely as a suggestion, he said the following names for this committee had been mentioned: Governors Blanchard of Louisiana, Fort of New Jersey, Cutler of Utah, Davidson of Wisconsin and Ansel of South Carolina.

After the president had stated further that it might expedite the work of the conference to have all suggestions for action referred to this committee, he yielded the floor to Governor Johnson of Minnesota, who moved that the suggestion of the president regarding the committee and its personnel be adopted by the convention. This motion was put by the president and carried without discussion or opposition. The suggestion of the president that all speeches by experts be limited to twenty minutes, and that the formal discussion be confined to speeches of ten minutes' duration, also was made a rule of the convention, on motion of Governor Johnson.

The session ended at noon when the president and vice president gave an informal reception to those who had attended the meeting.

Immediately afterwards he met the governors, members of the supreme court and others who were his minor guests last night in the blue drawing room.

After the reception the governors assembled on the portico of the White House with the president and vice president and the specially invited guests which included W. J. Bryan, Andrew Carnegie, J. J. Hill and Gustave Schwab, where several group photographs were made. While the group was being formed President Roosevelt chatted enthusiastically with Governor Hughes of New York, also with Mr. Hill, Mr. Bryan and others.

Mr. Carnegie Speaks.

Andrew Carnegie spoke at the afternoon session on "The Conservation of Ores and Related Minerals." In opening, he said:

"You have begun to make history today, for never before has the national governor called all the state governors into conference. The president has acted upon the axiom that while it is well to follow good precedents, it is better to make them. Washington in 1875 invited the commissioners of Maryland and Virginia to Mount Vernon when they conferred at Alexandria upon the joint regulation of the Potomac. This was the first slight revelation of the important interstate problems which lie imbedded in our federal system. It is no new question with which you have to deal. My province today is to ask your attention to the situation as affected by our mineral supplies, chiefly iron and coal."

Mr. Carnegie said iron and coal are the foundation of our industrial prosperity. All estimates of future consumption and destruction of coal are liable to error; yet making all reasonable allowance, unless there be careful husbanding, or revolutionizing inventions, or some industrial revolution comes which cannot now be foreseen, the greater part of the estimated 2,500,000,000,000 tons of coal forming our original heritage will be gone before the end of the next century, say 200 years hence.

The latest trustworthy estimates of our present stock of iron ore are: For the Lake Superior district, about 1,500,000,000 tons; for the Southern district (including Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia), about 2,500,000,000 tons; and for the rest of the United States 5,000,000,000 to 7,000,000,000 tons—making an aggregate of about 10,000,000,000 tons.

Our highest grade ore is that of the Lake Superior district, which yields about four-fifths of the current production. In 1905 its yield was over 33,000,000 tons, in 1906 some 38,000,000 tons, and in 1907 nearly 44,000,000 tons; by the end of of the present decade it will average 50,000,000 tons or more. Even without further increase, the known supply will be exhausted before 1940. It is true that there are frequent reports of new bodies in this district; but on the other hand, the old bodies generally run far below the estimates. We must in all possible ways lessen the demands upon it, for it is with iron ore we are least adequately provided.

In closing, he said it seemed to him that our duty is:

First, conservation of forests, for no forests, no long navigable rivers; no rivers, no cheap transportation.

Second, to systematize our water transportation, putting the whole work in the hands of the reclamation service, which has already proved itself highly capable by its admirable work. Cheap water transportation for heavy freights brings many advantages and means great saving of our ore supples. Railroads require much steel, water does not.

Third, conservation of soil. More than a thousand millions of tons of our richest soil are swept into the sea every year, clogging the rivers on its way and filling our harbors. Less soil, less crops; less crops, less commerce, less wealth.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Musical society held its final session on Tuesday afternoon. This has been the most successful year of its existence. At each meeting of the club, Prof. Custance has arranged to have some outside talent, so the pupils have had the advantage and pleasure of listening to the best talent in the city. It is hoped that the same arrangement can be made for another year.

On Tuesday afternoon Miss Maude Matison and Miss Frances Burris, both of the '08 class rendered several solos, which paved the way for delightful solos. Mr. Custance begged the underclassmen not to forget the pleasures of the year, and hoped that a large number would respond to the call when school begins in the fall, and made a few informal farewell remarks to those about to leave after which the class was dismissed for the year.

What promises to the "Hit" of the year will be pulled off next Wednesday at the Athletic park when the faculty and the seniors will meet in their annual baseball game. The faculty has many admirers who are trying hard to believe that the outlook is dubious for the '08 team. On Wednesday afternoon the seniors will meet the speedy little sophomore team.

Heavy Gale.

The United States weather bureau has issued a warning of an approaching gale from the northeast, accompanied by a forty-mile an hour wind. The harbor is crowded with vessels, which is proving a source of danger, incoming boats finding it extremely hard to get into the docks safely. The vessels are waiting for the storm to pass before leaving with cargoes for the lower lakes.

Haven and Troyer Called.

Mayor Haven and Chief of Police Troyer were witnesses before the grand jury this afternoon, which would bear out the suspicion that the jurors are investigating the alleged infraction of the liquor laws.

FLOATER IS SIGHTED

Body of Unknown Man Seen Near Interstate Bridge.

Sinks From Sight Before Tug Crew Reaches It.

A floater was sighted about 12:30 this afternoon by Capt. J. Buel of the tug Pacific, owned by the Stevens Tug line. The body was floating in the water, near the Interstate bridge, and an effort was made to reach it with a pike pole. The pole caught in the coat, but the garment tore, and the tug drifted over the body, which sank from sight and did not come to the surface again.

The tug Jeffrey spent some time searching for it, but it was not seen again.

The police department and the coroner were notified and another effort will be made to find it this afternoon.

The body is described as being that of a man about 35 or 40 years of age. He had black hair and a black mustache and wore a canvas coat.

HAD WRITTEN FAREWELL NOTES

Two Girls Recover Letters When Suicide Attempt Fails.

On recovering from the poisonous effects of the chloroform they had taken in an attempt to end their lives, Julia Evenson and Hilma Lindberg of the West end, hurriedly sent word to the postoffice to stop several farewell letters they had written to friends about Duluth before they entered into their suicidal compact Monday night.

The letters, three or four in number, addressed to people living in this city, were caught just as they were about to be sent out for delivery and were handed over to the messenger on receiving a signed request from the mother of Miss Evenson.

The two girls had evidently entered into their agreement to end their lives after some consideration and had written letters saying goodbye to their friends.

EXCAVATING BEGUN.

Workmen Busy on Addition to the Federal Building.

The work of excavating for the addition which is to be built on the rear of the federal building so as to afford the postoffice larger quarters has been begun.

P. H. Lawler who has been sent to Duluth by the treasury department to superintend the work, has an office in the federal building. He came to Duluth from St. Paul, where he superintended the construction of that city's postoffice.

The addition, which will cost $30,000, is being built by the Northern Construction company of Milwaukee. Henry Kimpel of Houghton, a member of the firm, is in Duluth directing the work. The plans call for a one-story building with basement, 37x87 feet 10 inches, entirely fire proof.

Though the addition is called temporary, the postoffice will use it for probably seven or eight years until they can move into the new federal building that is to be built across Fifth avenue west from the present postoffice.

The heating plant of the federal building will be overhauled and two new boilers installed this summer. The old ones are said to be fast approaching their last days of usefulness.

You Can't See the Insulation of a refrigerator because it is between the walls where you can't see it, yet it is the most important thing about a refrigerator. If the insulation is not good—in other words—if the walls of the refrigerator are not scientifically built so that they will keep the cold air in and the hot air out, your refrigerator will use much more ice than is necessary, and will not keep perishable food in good condition.

Let Us Show You

just how the walls of the celebrated McCray and Herrick refrigerators are built, and explain the perfection of their insulation. We would like to give you other reasons why McCray and Herrick refrigerators are the best refrigerators built. We shall be glad to show them to you and explain them fully, even though you are not ready to purchase a refrigerator now, because we believe that if you know how the McCray and Herrick refrigerators are built and why they are superior you will buy a McCray or Herrick when you want a refrigerator.

THOSE WHO HAVE PASSED BEYOND

Manila, May 13.—Allen Gard, governor of Lanao, is dead, the result of bolo wounds inflicted by Moros. He underwent a series of operations from which he gradually sank, and never rallied.

Washington, May 13.—Allen Gard, governor of Lanao, whose death was reported today, went to the Philippines in 1901 as a school teacher, having been nominated by Yale university. He was born in Maryland, and his father, William E. Gard, is in business in New York.

New York, May 13.—Benjamin James Fernie, Ph. D., for many years associate editor of the Christian Herald, died at Lakewood, N. J., May 10, after a prolonged illness.

ALUMINUM MONEY.

New York Press: "Don't take any iron dollars." "Don't take any flannel money, it might shrink," and other flippant warnings may now be made to read, "Don't take aluminum money." Such coin does exist, and it bears the stamp of the royal mint of England." Altogether 31,872,134 of these pieces were struck last year—half cents for use in Uganda, and one-tenth of a penny pieces for the Nigerian Protectorates. In those regions the new fractional coinage will gradually take the place of the little shells known as cowries, whose value fluctuates and is variable, according to the accessibility or remoteness of the African regions where they circulate. The English colonial authorities recognize how hard it is to wean the natives from their financial traditions when they perforate the aluminum coins in the center, so that the Africans may string them together as they have strung their cowries for goodness knows how many centuries. It seems the barbarians are as closely wedded to their financial customs, and as hard to break from them, as our own advanced civilization.

HOW HE MADE IT UP.

Clark Williams, New York's new superintendent of banks, said the other day of a bankrupt:

"It is no wonder the poor fellow went under. When it became necessary for him to borrow, the securities that he offered were quite worthless. The fact was pointed out to him, and he produced other bundles of securities, less valuble, if possible, than the first lot."

Mr. Williams laughed.

"He reminded me," he said, "of a waiter whom I heard about the other day. This waiter was summoned angrily by a guest.

"'Look here, waiter,' the guest grumbled 'these oysters that you have brought me are bad.'

"'I know that, sir,' the waiter answered; 'but we have given you three more than you ordered to make up for it.'"

PLAY CLEAN BALL, URGES PRESIDENT

Head of Northern League Sends Pertinent Instructions to Clubs.

Winnipeg, Man., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following letter has been sent to the managers of the clubs in the Northern league by J. M. Lamb, the president-secretary:

"Dear Sir—I want the presidents of all the clubs to assist me in giving the public good, clean baseball. If you do the success of the league is assured, as people are clamoring for good and clean amusements, so start your organization on a good foundation. I insist on your instructing your managers and captains to give the umpire a square deal, and when he makes a decision, to consider it final, as he is the sole judge of the play, and when he makes a decision no arguments can make him change it.

"Successful men in business adhere to clean methods, why not in the great national game? If the umpire gives a decision against your club do not imagine he wants to rob you. He gives the decision as he sees it. Do not wake me up at midnight with a telegram stating that the umpire is no good. He will keep until morning. Write me a letter the next day after the heat of battle and let me know if you think he is incompetent. Mail is fast enough for me to hear bad news. I have been connected with baseball for several years and I have never met a dishonest umpire, but have seen some awful bad ones. Instruct your captains to make your clubs as lively as possible on the ball field, both going out to the field and coming in, as patrons of the game like quick action.

"For the opening day J. T. Sweeney will hold the indicator at Brandon and Hugh Deehan at Winnipeg.

"Hoping we may all have a successful season, I am,

"Yours truly,

"J. M. LAMB."

ABANDONS EFFORTS.

Foraker Will Let Negro Bill Go Over to Next December.

Washington, May 13.—In the senate today Senator Foraker abandoned his effort to secure consideration at this session of his bill reinstating the negro troops who were discharged from service on account of the Brownsville riot and moved to make the bill the special order for Dec. 16 next. Senator Culberson moved to substitute next Saturday, May 16. In making his motion, Mr. Foraker said that he was actuated by the conviction that it would be impossible in the crowded state of business to secure a vote during the present session.

By a vote of 42 to 27 the senate laid on the table Senator Culberson's motion fixing next Saturday as the date for voting on the Brownsville bill.

After disposing of the Culberson motion the senate, 6 to 6, agreed to the Foraker motion fixing Dec. 16 next as the time for voting on the Brownsville bill.

MARKET IS NEGLECTED

Poor Demand Causes a Big Slump in Wheat.

Flax is Fairly Firm at the Close in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 13.—There was no demand for wheat in the American markets today and the prices fell away after the opening, which was fairly firm.

The decline was particularly marked in Duluth. There was no support at all to the local market and the closing prices were at the lowest level of the session.

The foreign demand, which has been an important bullish factor in the Duluth market for some little time, was entirely lacking. No export business was done here during the entire day.

Liverpool closed ⅝d lower to ¾d higher, Antwerp unchanged, Budapest ¾c higher to unchanged and Berlin unchanged.

The May option closed 1⅝c lower in Duluth, ½c lower in Chicago, 1c lower in Minneapolis, unchanged in New York and 1¼c lower in Winnipeg. The July option closed ½c lower in Duluth, ¾c lower in Chicago, 1-¼c lower in Minneapolis, ½c lower in New York and 1c lower in Winnipeg.

July corn closed ½-⅝c higher in Chicago and unchanged in Liverpool. July oats closed unchanged in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"There was a steady undertone to the speculative wheat market at the opening, influenced by covering of shorts owing to the firmness of American cables yesterday, and favorable American crop advices, and prices at this time were ⅝d higher. Following the opening, and during the remainder of the morning, the market was under pressure and the early advance was lost. The weakness was the result of the pressure of cargoes off coast and on passage, and a report that the continent was offering to sell La Plata cargoes already arrived. At mid-day, the market was easy and unchanged to ½d higher than yesterday, the distant month being fairly well supported.

"Corn was steady and unchanged. The market was wholly neglected."

Primary receipts of wheat were 339,000 bushels; last year, 586,000 bushels. Shipments, 419,000 bushels; last year, 450,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 76,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of corn were 363,000 bushels; last year, 451,000 bushels. Shipments, 389,000 bushels; last year, 673,000 bushels. Clearances of corn were 9,000 bushels.

Wheat was quiet throughout the session in the Duluth market. May wheat was inactive and closed 1⅝c lower than yesterday at $1.04. July wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.06⅜, declined to $1.04¾ and closed at $1.04½, a loss of 1½c from yesterday. September wheat sold at 91c and closed at 91½c, unchanged from yesterday.

Durum wheat closed 1½c lower and cash spring wheat was selling on a basis of 2 c over May for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quiet and closed slightly weaker. May flax opened at $1.22⅝, declined to $1.22¼ and closed at $1.22¾, ¼c higher than yesterday. July flax opened ⅛c higher at $1.24, declined to $1.23⅝ and closed at that price, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. September flax sold at $1.24½ and closed there, a loss of ⅛c from yesterday. October flax opened at $1.23, declined to $1.22½ and closed at $1.23, unchanged from yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opens Firm on Liverpool Advance, But Soon Declines.

Chicago, May 13.—The local wheat market opened rather firm, owing to a small advance at Liverpool, but prices soon declined on scattered sales by pit traders, who were bearishly inclined because of the favorable crop conditions in this country. Offerings, however, were only moderate. July opened unchanged to ⅛@⅜c higher, at 90½c to 90⅝@⅞c, sold at 90⅜c and then declined to 89⅝c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 210 cars against 192 cars last week and 372 cars a year ago.

Selling continued on a liberal scale the greater part of the day. The low point for July was reached at 89¼@⅜c. Buying by shorts caused some recovery late in the session, but the market closed easy. Final quotations on July were down ¾c at 89¾c.

The corn market was firm because of additional rain in the principal corn-growing states. The May delivery was especially strong, owing to buying by shorts. July opened a shade to ⅛@⅜c higher, at 64⅜c to 64⅝c, sold up to 64⅝c and then reacted to 64⅛c. Local receipts were 123 cars, none of contract grade.

The market was strong all day, July at one time touched 64⅜c. The close was strong with July up ½@⅝c at 64⅝c.

Oats were inclined to be firm on account of a scarcity of offerings. Commission houses were the chief bidders. July opened ⅛c higher at 47⅛c, sold at 47⅛@⅛c and then declined to 47c. Local receipts were 211 cars.

Provisions were weak on selling based on continued liberal receipts of live hogs. A local packer was a moderate seller of lard and ribs. July pork opened 2½@5c lower at $13.47½ and sold off to $13.42½@13.45. Lard opened 2½@5c lower at $8.42½ and declined to $8.37½@8.40. Ribs opened 2½c lower at $7.27½ and declined to $7.25.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.00½; July, 89⅜c; September, 86¾c; December, 87⅝c. Corn—May, 73¼c; July, 64⅝c; September, 63⅛c; December, 56½c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Holds Well Against High Pressure, But Finally Drops.

Minneapolis, May 13.—Wheat though weak and lower held against pressure at the $1.06 mark for July and would not go below until late in the session when it bore under to $1.04¾. There were rumors that country mills in the Northwest would close down, but no verification could be found. This prompted free selling, however, especially in July wheat. The local elevator stocks for four days decreased 325,000 bus. Minneapolis got 136 cars today against 218, Duluth 19 against 107. Receipts of only 41 cars at Winnipeg against 244 made the Canadian supply outlook look strong, but on the other hand the crop news coming in from Fargo, Grand Forks, Crookston and Winnipeg was so nighly favorable as to make the trade feel bearish. July wheat opened at $1.06⅜@⅜; nigh, $1.06¾; low, $1.04¾; close, $1.05. September wheat closed 91⅝c; May, closed $1.06¾.

Cash market conditions were better. The millers bought No. 1 northern at 2½c @3c over July and No. 2 at ½@1c over. Of today's receipts 44 cars were winter wheat. Close: No. 1 northern, $1.07¼ spot or to arrive; No. 2 northern, $1.04¾@7⅛; $1.04¾ to arrive; No. 3 wheat, 97¾c@$1.02¾.

No. 3 yellow corn, 68@⅝c.
No. 3 white oats, 50?@5⅝o.
No. 2 rye, 75¾@77¼c.

Barley was dull and neglected only two cars in. Quotations about the same as yesterday. Close, 66@67c.

Flax developed into a lively scramble and a premium of ½@¾c over Duluth July appeared in the course of the buying. One of the largest buyers pulled out and would not pay more than July price, but at the close the market was quotable. July price ½c over and strong. Close, $1.24¼.

Bran in bulk, $21.75@$22.

Flour unsettled and reports conflicting. Country mills were said to have agreed upon a general shut-down in Minnesota and South Dakota, but this was denied later. One big local company reported business better, sales larger, situation satisfactory, but smaller mills made it just the opposite, dull trade, light sales and doubt as to ability to keep operating unless business picks up. Shipments, 48 837 barrels. First patents, $5.40@5.60; second patents, $5.30@5.45; first clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $4.25@4.35; second clears, $3.55@3.65.

ADVANCES IN STOCKS

Close Generally Firm and Active at About Best Figures.

New York, May 13.—A strong tone permeated the stock market at the outset today, which was due largely to a continuation of the recent heavy demand for the metal stocks. The more active railroads also figured extensively in the rise, particularly Reading, St. Paul and Union Pacific. Anaconda advanced 1⅝, Canadian Pacific 1½, Rock Island preferred 1¼, Amalgamated Copper 1⅛ and Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, American Smelting and Colorado Fuel 1.

Southern Pacific preferred jumped 8¼ on a rumor that the privilege of retirement at 115 was to be waived by the company. The Harriman stocks rose strongly with an intimation from the head of the system that unchanged dividends would be declared. St. Louis Southwestern preferred and United States Reduction preferred rose 2¼, Great Northern preferred 2, Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio 1⅝, Northwestern 1½ and a number of others a point or more. Profit taking sales made an irregular tone in the general list. Bonds were irregular.

Slight reactions produced dullness in the market and there was an abandonment of the earlier confident buying. Southern Pacific preferred reacted 3½ and St. Paul 1.

A rise of 2½ in Union Pacific to 142½ elicited very little response from the rest of the list, the market for the most part being sluggish though strong. Reading got up 1½, Colorado Fuel 2 and Northwestern preferred 4.

The market closed generally firm and active. Activity subsided to a large extent after 2 o'clock, but some stocks went higher and there was little yielding at any point. United States Reduction preferred rose 5¼, Rock Island preferred, 4; the common, 1⅝; General Electric, 2⅜; Canadian Pacific, 2½; Virginia-Carolina Chemical, 2, and St. Paul, 1½. Pullman declined 2¼ and Cleveland C. C. & St. Louis 1⅝.

Copper Gossip.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co: There must certainly be some good news coming on the coppers. They were more active today than they have been for six months. North Butte and Butte Coalition were the leaders with Greene-Cananea and Mohawk close seconds. We see no sign of important liquidation and believe the short interest has only been increased by this rise.

AN APPROPRIATION.

Concerning Gull Island Light Put in Civil Sundry Bill.

Washington, May. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate committee on appropriations today reported the sundry civil appropriations bill. The senate added an item carrying an appropriation of $2,000 to enable the lighthouse board to make a survey and estimate the cost upon the feasibility and need of establishing a light and fog signal on Gull island, or the easterly end of Michigan island, Apostle group, and whether, when said station is established, the existing station on the westerly end of Michigan island can be safely closed.

JACK ATKIN WINS.

New York, May 13.—Race track followers and all those who love blooded horses in contest, have but one point of interest today—Belmont Park, where the Westchester Racing association's spring meeting opened this afternoon with the Metropolitan handicap, the first of the really big races of the season on the card. The stake amounts to about $16,000, and was won by Jack Atkin.

MAY ELECT BISHOPS FOR TWELVE YEARS.

Baltimore, Md., May 13.—An important memorial, which went to the committee on episcopacy at the Methodist conference, proposed that hereafter an election to the office of bishop shall be for a term of twelve years only, without re-election. After the completion of the bishop's term, it is provided that he shall become an effective member of the conference from which he was elected.

MRS. GUNNESS BELIEVED TO HAVE HAD ACCOMPLICES.

Laporte, Ind., May 13.—What is considered the first conclusive evidence that Mrs. Gunness had accomplices in the gruesome work which she is alleged to have performed at her farm near here, came to light today through a letter received by Chief of Police Cockrane from a citizen of Cleveland, Ohio. The identity of the letter writer was not revealed, but the letter shows itself that at least one attempt had been made to persuade men to visit Mrs. Gunness.

SHOE SIZES.

New York Sun: "It is the hardest thing in the world for me," said a busy man the other day, "to remember the sizes of my different articles of wearing apparel. Collars, shirts and gloves are easy enough, because there it's a matter of actual inches, but where they get the hat and shoe numbers is what beats me, and why I have an eleven stocking under an eight shoe is another mystery."

The last puzzle is easily explained. Stockings have always been measured by the inch, from heel to toe, but the numbering of shoes was fixed a long time ago by a Frenchman—and it's so long ago that only one New York dealer could be found who knew anything about it. Even he didn't know the inventor's name.

The Frenchman permanently fixed the numbers of shoes for all Europe and America. He arbitrarily decided that no human foot could possibly be smaller than three and seven-eighths inches, so calling this point zero, he allowed one-third of an inch to a size, and so built up his scale. Consequently a man cannot find out the number of his own shoe unless he is an expert at exact arithmetic. And even then he is likely to go wrong, because all shoe experts allow for the weight of the individual and the build of his foot before they try to determine what size shoe he ought to wear.

As far as women's shoes are concerned the problem is still more difficult, because many of the manufacturers, instead of keeping to the regular scale, have marked down their numbers one or two sizes in order to capture easily flattered customers. For this reason most dealers ask out of town customers to send an old shoe with their orders.

The system of measuring hats is much simpler. Any man can tell what size he wears by simply adding the width and length of the inner rim and then dividing by two. Orders can also be sent to the shopkeeper by stating the circumference of the head.

State of Minnesota, Department of Insurance.

I Hereby Certify, That the annual statement of the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company, for the year ending December 31st, 1907, of which the above is an abstract, has been received and filed in this department and duly approved by me.

JOHN A. HARTIGAN,
Insurance Commissioner.

A PROFIT, ANYHOW.

Success Magazine: He was filling his first prescription, and when he handed it to the lady he told her it was a dollar and ten cents.

She paid the dollar and ten, and after she had gone he informed the proprietor that the dollar was counterfeit. The proprietor looked over his glasses at the young man and said:

"Well, how about the ten cents—is that good money?"

The poung man answered in the affirmative.

"Oh, well," the proprietor replied, "that's not so bad—we still make a nickel."

MUCH WORK BEING DONE

More Construction Work in Sight Than Last May.

Very Few Skilled Mechanics Now Out of Employment.

If there is a money stringency abroad in the land, Duluth property owners evidently do not feel it. Architects and contractors say there will be as much, if not more, construction work carried on in Duluth this spring and summer than there was last. More work is in sight now than at the same time last year.

Although this is only the thirteenth day of the month, eighty-six building permits already have been issued by the building inspector's office, and most of them are for buildings costing $2,000 or more. There will be an unusual number of residences costing $5,000 or more. Quite a few flat buildings are also in prospect, and the work of construction has been started on some.

At the present time there are comparatively few skilled laborers in the city who are out of employment. Such of the carpenters, plumbers, painters, etc., who still cling to the closed shop idea, and refuse to work with non-union men, are nearly all working on private contracts, secured through their respective unions. There is enough work for the regular contractors and the union men as well, it appears.

One reason for the large amount of building is given in the lower cost of construction. Building materials are cheaper, and competition between the unions and the open shop contractors has resulted in lower bids for all varieties of construction work. This is one explanation of the fact that such low bids were received on the new court house proposition. Members of the court house commission expressed great surprise at the low bids entered for building the county structure. They say these bids would not have been possible last year, and that the chances are that at no time in the future can building be done for so reasonable a cost in Duluth.

FOUR DAYS OF CEREMONIES

Opening of Y. M. C. A. Building Will be Fittingly Observed.

Beginning Wednesday, May 27, and continuing until the evening of Sunday, May 31, there will be four days of special ceremonies in honor of the opening of the new Y. M. C. A. building, corner of Third avenue west and Second street.

Receptions will play an important part in the proceedings. There will be a reception for members, one for ladies, one to the general public, one in honor of the committees which were so successful in increasing the membership recently, etc. They will be held both afternoons and evenings. There will also be prayer meetings and other special services. The detailed program for the four days has not yet been completed.

The new building is now practically ready for occupancy, and before the end of the week everything will be located in the new quarters, and running smoothly.

Engineers at Work.

Several crews of engineers employed by the Steel corporation are surveying on the right of way for that company's Interstate line near Allouez bay. It is thought that they are running a final survey, the preliminary one having been run last summer.

WORK MAY HAVE TO BE DELAYED

Farmers' Road Back of Duluth Will Cost Too Much.

President O. G. Olson and J. W. Preston of the board of public works yesterday visited the proposed route of the new road leading to a cluster of farms about four miles back of Duluth. The project of the road was brought up at a recent county board meeting and it was suggested that the county expend $400 and the city $100 in its contribution.

The road would be a little less than three-quarters of a mile in length. The board members found that the route led along the winding bed of a creek, and, after investigation, decided that $500 would not be sufficient to stand the cost of construction. President Olson said this morning that $1,000 would scarcely defray the expenses of the work. It is doubtful if that amount of money will be available, and the improvement may have to be delayed indefinitely.
